We recommend that notice be given of the intention of the Council to construct sewers as local improvements under Section 9 of the Local Improvement Act on the following streets:

Smith Street from Downie Street to a point 238 feet westerly.

We recommend that the City Engineer be authorized to purchase a car of Amiesite for repairing the asphalt pavements.

We recommend that the Little Lake Cemetery Company's request to be sold road oil for oiling the roadways in the cemetery be granted.

We recommend that a letter from G. A. McDonald calling attention to the matter of repairs to the roadway on London Street from Aylmer Street to Bethune Street be referred to the City Engineer to deal with.

We recommend that the City Engineer be instructed to make enquiries as to where gravel may be procured.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Board and the City Engineer be authorized to have a cinder walk laid the east side of the Monaghan from Chamberlen Street to Wolfe Street.

LATIN-AMERICA MAKES A STAND

NONE FOR REBELS.

GENEVA, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—Through the voice of Dr. Gustavo Guerrero, of Salvator, a noted jurist, who spoke before the international conference on control of the traffic in arms and munitions yesterday, Latin-America has told the world that arms should henceforth not be exported freely to countries in the throes of a revolution, but only to governments which have been chosen by constitutional means.

This opinion is thought to represent the views of many South and Central American States, and if put into effect, implies an important amendment to the draft convention before the conference, which permits the exportation of arms as soon as the manufacturing country has recognized the government of the purchasing country.

PRINCESS BETTER.

Doctors Report Condition of Princess Royal Shows Slight Improvement.

LONDON, May 6 (Canadian Press).—The medical bulletin issued by her doctors this morning says the condition of the Princess Royal Louise, sister of King George, gave rise to rather more anxiety late yesterday. Transfusion of blood was resorted to, since which there has been a definite improvement.

CALOMEL CLEANS THE LIVER

That heavy tired feeling, no pep, muddy complexion, no appetite, foul breath, biliousness, headaches, constipation and rheumatism, are all sure signs that your liver is clogging your whole system. Calomel is the only drug known that acts upon the liver. Start tonight, take two tablets of tanol calomel and in the morning drink plenty of hot water to wash from the system all the poisons and toxins before more food is taken in. Continue this treatment until the liver is restored to its original health then you do not need any more medicine. These Tanol Calomel Tablets can be procured at F. C. Webber's drug store.

VETERANS AMONG STRIKERS GET LAND

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—Senator Robertson, in the Senate last night, expressed the opinion that it would be an excellent idea if the Federal Government would make some arrangement to place the number of 4,000 returned men included in the miners on strike in the Cape Breton coal fields, on the land, under some scheme similar to the Soldiers' Settlement Board.

In his opinion, the dispute between the miners and their employers had become national in its character through the interest it had created.

MINERS DOMINATED BY RED ELEMENT

Senator Beaubien Demands Protection of Workers From Foreign Lands.

OTTAWA, May 6 (Canadian Press)—The Mine Workers of Nova Scotia were under the domination of foreign emissaries and were held in a "reign of terror" by the Red element, Senator Beaubien of Montreal said in a speech in the Senate last night.

He concluded by demanding that Canada should have protection against such foreign labor leaders who perverted the minds of the people.

IMPROVE STATE OF THE FARMER

(By W. H. Chamberlin, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

MOSCOW, May 6. — Addressing the Ukrainian Soviet Congress, Soviet President Kamenex declared the Soviet Government would remove everything dating from the period of military Communism hindering the development of productive forces in the peasant village.

He promised the All-Union Congress would consider the following specific reforms:

1. Longer and more flexible periods for re-dividing lands;
2. Removal of obstacles to normal conditions on the land;
3. Wider application of the law governing hire of labor in the villages for removal of the obligatory eight-hour day and other restrictions;
4. Help for the land workers.

The secretary of the All-Russian executive committee, Kiselev, declared the All-Russian Soviet Congress, opening tomorrow, would consider a report of the health commissariat regarding measures designed to improve the health of the peasants and a report of the land commissiarat dispelling fears for the harvest aroused by the unusual winter; also a report of the finance commissiarat cutting down the peasants' tax and reorganizing local budgets.

OFFICIAL DEAD.

OTTAWA, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—William James Stewart, aged 62, chief Dominion hydrographer, died here yesterday following an operation.

New York City.—"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start." Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects. At all Druggists.

BOARD TO ASK FOR MONEY NOW.

Need May Instalment Right Away, But Will Confer With Council.

PLANS READY.

The decision of the City Council to pay the monthly instalments to the Board of Education at the end of the month instead of at the first of the month, as requested, was given considerable discussion by the Board last night.

It was disposed of by a resolution by Messrs. Strickland and Reid, that the Council be asked to pay the May instalment right away, and that the Finance Committee of the Board meet the finance committee of the Council to discuss the matter and see what saving there would be if the grant were withheld til the end of the month.

It was reported by Mrs. Morris that the plans of the new extension would be ready for the Board to pass on some time next week, and a special meeting will be called to examine and approve these plans. Mrs. Morris said that the officials of the Department of Education had expressed satisfaction with the plans, saying, that they combined efficiency with a minimum of expenditure and elaboration.

Mrs. Morris also read a report of the Ontario School Trustees Association, which she had attended during the Easter vacation, and which she reproted as being a most successful and helpful gathering.

The request of the Health Association that the boys' classes be permitted to make articles for sale at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair was granted, and Mr. Eagerman will see that this work is done in such a way that it does not interfere with the progress of the classes.

Cadet Inspection.

A letter was read from H. R. H. Kenner stating that the annual inspection of the Collegiate Institute cadets would be held on Friday, June 5th, at 11 a.m., and inviting the attendance of the Board.

A letter was read from the Royal Bank that it had some book covers made for distribution, and that 10,000 would be sent to Peterboro. On the statement of the inspector that these contained no advertising and were very useful the secretary was instructed to write accepting the covers.

The reports of the company who inspected the boilers in the schools were presented, and showed all the boilers to be in good shape.

Attendance.

The report of attendance at the Public Schools and Collegiate Institute showed a total on the roll in the Public schools of 2933, with an average attendance of 2651, or 90 per cent., while in the Collegiate there are 552 on the roll and a daily average of 527, giving a percentage of 95. COBOURG WILL HAVE STRONG CLUB

Ex-Central League Stars in Action Against Petes Saturday.

Cobourg will bring a line-up to Peterborough on Saturday for the game with the local Central Ontario League squad that will give Manager Johnston's gang about all the competition they are looking for at this stage of the game. Such well known ex-Central Leaguers as Punch Derry, Bill Skitch and Thompson will be with the Lakeshore club, and they will make things interesting. The Petes will introduce some new talent in this engagement—that is new to Central League ball. Ray Rose, after several years' absence, comes back to the senior organization, and so does Herb Wolfe, after being away from the Central loop for a year. Frank Whitehouse, Johnny Marchen and Fred Ash, of last year's junior Ontario champions, the Lakeviews, and Scotty McPherson, of the C.G.E., will also be in action, while Al Heckman, Max Swanston, Red Legon, Hap Harrison, Jimmy Hall and Frank Collins and other members of the 1924 Petes, will be on the job again. Gartner is the only newcomer in the squad.

Both fans and players are hoping for good weather conditions so that the lid can be pried off the season in proper style.

NURMI TOUR HELD UP BY OFFICIALS

Flying Finn's Manager Demanded Too Much Expense Money From College.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—The record-breaking American tour of Paavo Nurmi came to a temporary halt yesterday when Frederick W. Rubien, chairman of the National Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, announced that he had cancelled all future track appearances of the Finnish running marvel until his manager, Hugo Quist, officially answers the charge of demanding excessive expense money to run at the recent Drake University relays.

Rubien said he had telegraphed Merril Andruss, San Francisco A.A. U. official, more than a week ago to question Quist regarding the charge of Kenneth L. Wilson, athletic director at Drake University, that $1,000 had been asked for Nurmi to appear at the Drake meet.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

K. C. Juveniles Will Work Out To-night and Saturday at Sacred Heart.

The K. C. team of the Juvenile Series of the City League will practice to-night and on Saturday afternoon at the Sacred Heart grounds. Manager Bill Prindible expects a large number of players out at both these practices, and hopes to round out a team that will cop the silverware. All prospective players will be given a warm welcome.

ANSWER GERMANY.

Briand Puts Finishing Touches to Reply to Security Pact Suggestions.

PARIS, May 6. — (Canadian Press).—Foreign Minister Briand is putting the finishing touches to his reply to Germany's suggestions for a security pact. It is understood that the reply will express the willingness of the French Government to consider seriously any responsible offer for the guarantee of French frontiers.

Little change has been made from the general tone of the answer to the German proposal drafted by Former Premier Herriot, it is understood.

HAS NO LICENSE; YOUTH IS FINED

Only One Lady Driver Has Necessary Permission—Others Look Out.

There was one more appearance in court this morning of a young man between the age of 16 and 18 not having secured a driver's license, and found operating a motor vehicle. "Five dollars and costs," the Magistrate said.

The police are emphatic in their statement that no person under the age of 16 is allowed to drive a car, while those between 16 and 18 must must have a chauffeur's license.

The chief says there is just one lady chauffeur in the city who has obtained the necessary license, and he states that the department knows of a great number of other young girls who are driving their parents' cars. For information in this regard the police station should be visited at once.

In order to obtain the license, a test of driving ability must be passed. Dunsford on Brock and Chambers streets has charge of this and is ready to supply the necessary forms. On concluding the test a button and certificate are supplied the applicant. Then information concerning this must be deposited at the police station.

To save possible inconvenience the chief suggests that these matters be attended to immediately, for it is his intention to clear the streets of the irresponsible drivers and make Peterboro safe for pedestrians.

MOTHER EARTH ON GOLD BASIS

Takes Step Toward Establishing World Peace and Confidence.

SEEN ALL OVER.

It is springtime in all of Peterboro, from the Otonabee at Rye's boathouse to Jackson Park, and back to the Lift Lock, but it seems slightly more vernal in Victoria Park and Central Park than anywhere else. There's a surprisingly fresh breeze whipping the tree tops, there's considerable fresh air stirring on the lower reaches, and the baby-carriage brigade is getting the benefit of what is good for the passengers' lungs.

Three robins were seen near the Court-House by four Central School children and a policeman, which just about proves that the robins are here. A band was heard in the vicinity on Sunday afternoon by just about everybody, and those who saw it say the jazzy motions of the trombone player's shoulders give the last sign needed that spring has arrived.

It may as well be admitted to-day as to-morrow—spring is here!

On Gold Basis.

And Britain and Mother Earth have returned to a gold basis simultaneously. Until last week old earth had been issuing promissory notes from the tops of bare and unconvincing trees—notes that were discounted heavily by criticisms of wind and snow. Last week she opened her banks and resumed what might be called species payments in golden dandelions and daffodils, golden pansies and tulips and wild mustard and a hundred other auriferous mintages of flowing currant-cy, it may be said. The long green of the iris and the jonquil is already in plentiful circulation.

The League of Nations—the Government at Ottawa—the City Council—have alike passed without notice this new issue, but Peterboroughites will agree that this is one of the greatest steps Mother Earth has taken in many a weary month toward establishing world peace, contentment and confidence.

FRENCH SHOULD BE TAUGHT IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

AID MINORITY.

An address on the Bi-Lingual Question in Ontario was delivered by Dr. J. L. Hughes of Toronto, in the Knights of Columbus assembly hall last evening, before an audience of between two and three hundred people.

This lecture closed a series of successful evenings arranged during the season by W. S. Merrell, who was in charge of the various programmes, and to whom belongs much of the credit for a successful year.

Dr. Hughes, who is a brother of the late Sir Sam Hughes, of Lindsay, spoke in eloquent and forceful fashion on a subject evidently near to his heart: "the desirability of getting justice for the French minority in the province of Ontario." His speech was marked by clarity of thought, a pleasant voice, which left his hearers untired at the close of a lengthy discourse on a heavy subject, and an apparent deep enthusiasm for the cause of which he spoke.

Mayor Turner occupied a seat near Dr. Hughes, and T. Begley of Lindsay, Grand Knight of the Lindsay Council of the Knights of Columbus, was also present, and endorsed, in characteristically humorous fashion, the remarks of the speaker.

W. S. Merrell, chairman of the evening, introduced Dr. Hughes, who prefaced his review of conditions in Ontario with regard to the French-speaking minority, with the remark that he had two purposes in life: one, to try and procure justice for this minority, and the other, to urge upon every organization, "in the church or out of it," to try to get its young people to develop their powers of public speaking "For there is no better way known to psychology by which entire mentality of the young man or woman may be developed than by standing on their own feet and talking their own thoughts, without writing them down or committing them to memory."

English Coat of Arms.

Alluding to the English coat of arms, which bears on it the Union Jack for the English and the lily flag for the French people of Canada, with the lion for the former and the unicorn for the latter, Dr. Hughes said that the French race was the first mother race of Canada ,and the French people were here a hundred and fifty years before the English came to the country.

He repeated an answer made by him at one time to Mr. Hocken, who said that the Treaty of Paris contined within it not a single word giving the French the right to speak their own language. Dr. Hughes replied on that occasion that the same treaty contained no word within it giving the English the right to speak their own language, either.

"The English people in this province have never been bright enough to see the advantages of possessing the two languages," said the speaker, referring to the inability of any but those who were able to use the two languages to procure positions in Ottawa, such as on the telephone exchanges, where both were needed, and in the big stores.

Dr. Hughes drew a picture of the late Pope Benedict standing with arms raised in benediction over his companions; two Grand Masters of the Orange Lodge, Mr. Hocken and Dr. Edwards, when he sent an encyclical letter to the Catholic clergy of the Dominion, saying that every French child in Canada should learn English. "On this question, there was absolute harmony between the three. They all wanted the same thing."

Eminent Authorities.

Sir John A. MacDonald and the late Sir James Whitney were quoted as being in favor of the two languages, and Dr. Hughes spoke of the action of the League of Nations in compelling Bulgaria to respect the right of minorities as having been ratified by the Canadian convention, representing a country that refused to respect such rights within its own borders. "Every element of chivalry in the British soul should resent the treatment of minorities, as we have it in Ontario."

Dr. Hughes alluded with pride to the action of the French people of Canada at the time of the rebellion of the United States against British authority. "If they had joined with the British rebels at that time, we would never have had a British Canada, but they stood firm in their loyalty to the Crown."

The second point taken up was a contrast between the treatment of minorities with regard to education, in the sister provinces of Quebec and Ontario. "In Quebec, declared the speaker, there had never yet been any complaint of the treatment accorded the English-speaking minority, who had been granted privileges of every sort by the authorities. "The English there have absolute control of their own schools. "In Ontario, this is not the situation, not by a long way. We will never have perfect harmony between the two provinces until justice is done to the minorities of Ontario, as in Quebec."

"This is not a religious question." Dr. Hughes explained the passing of Regulation Seventeen, which he termed as iniquitous, as being the result of a tour of inspection made by Dr. Merchant, after criticism by certain newspapers of the province over conditions in certain of the French schools. An examination of 538 schools was made. Only in 59 of these the teachers had a certificate above the third-class, but still Dr. Merchant reported that the poor French schools were no worse than the poor English schools with bad teachers. "The Education Department in Toronto cannot escape the responsibility of these conditions."

"We blight forever the lives of one-third of the people that we send to our English schools by teaching them in English," said Dr. Hughes, asserting that a French-speaking child should be taught in its own language to thoroughly grasp the sense of the subject in which it was being instructed.

"I have never believed in examinations for promotion," was another assertion. "Here in Ontario, we are the most examination-cursed country in the world, and I agree with Chancellor Burwash of Victoria University when he said that examinations came from the devil and should be sent back to him. What is the sense of cramming stuff into the mind of a child that it may be pumped out within the space of a week and then forgotten forever."

"I must remind you that this is a bi-lingual country. Our Constitution provided that there should be two mother tongues within its borders. I would like to see the time come when Spanish, as well as French, would be taught in the schools, because of the great trading opportunties opening up to us in South America."

The speaker, who concluded his address with a stirring plea for understanding and respect of the French love for their own language and longing for its study and the study of its literature, now almost banned from the schools, was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, voiced by Mr. E. Flood and seconded by Dr. F. P. McNulty.

Mayor Turner spoke briefly, congratulating the speaker on his address and also congratulating the Knights on their possession of such a fine and spacious hall. He was followed by Mr. T. Begley, of Lindsay, who spoke a few words in support of Mr. Hughes' contentions.

Musical Programme.

A very enjoyable musical programme closed the evening's entertainment, Little Grace White danced an Irish jigg in costume, in a manner that brought her repeated applause, followed by a graceful encore number. Mr. Jack Primeau gave a reading of one of Dr. Drummond's habitant series, "How Bateese Came Home"; a vocal quartette composed of Messrs. Fitpatrick, Leonard, Minicolo and Everitt were compelled to respond to applause with their rendition of a medley of popular airs, and came back to sing "Juanita" in fine voice, and the Williams' trio, composed of Messrs. Williams and Dawson, gave a couple of humorous songs that were loudly applauded. Mrs. F .A. Hodgson and Miss Margaret McCabe acted as accompanists.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Benjamin Hunter, of Los Angeles, counsel for Andrew J. Pepall, whose extradition from California to Toronto has been ordered by the Californian Commissioner, has arrived in Washington to file a brief with the State Department opposing the extradition. A ruling by the Secretary of State is expected shortly. Pepall was indicted a year ago along with Peter Smith, former Provincial Treasurer, in connection with irregularities in the purchase of bonds for the Ontario Government.

AT THE ROYAL

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL THURSDAY

Amateur Night comes with the regularity of a clock every Thursday night at the Royal. We are informed that a goodly number are waiting to make their bow to Peterboro audiences to-morrow night.

CONTRACTS SIGNED FOR "FIGHTING THE FLAMES"

Contracts were signed today by McGeachie of the Royal which assures Peterboro of a first run on "Fighting the Flames," said to be the greatest of all fire thrillers. The production is dedicated to the "smoke eaters" and is the last word in thrills.

COLLEEN MOORE LEAVES TO-NIGHT

Colleen Moore and Conway Tearle in "Flirting With Love," have won favorable comment from Peterboro movie fans on account of original story and strong supporting cast. It leaves tonight. Patrons who appreciate the best in photoplays should not miss it.

"CODE OF THE SEA" COMPANY IN A TERRIFIC OCEAN STORM

Caught in the very maws of a terrific storm at sea while working aboard the lightship Relief, eight miles out of the San Francisco Harbor, thirty members of Victor Fleming's "Code of the Sea" company narrowly escaped drowning.

"The storm came up about noontime," related Rod La Rocque, who is featured in this Byron Morgan story for Paramount with Jacqueline Logan. "All of us were so interested in the spectacular water stuff we were filming that we ignored the intensity of the gale. When it came time for our tug to come to take us off the lightship we found that it could not approach the anchored craft.

"In a driving rain sailors helped us into small boats, in which we were to make our way to the tug, which stood off about twenty yards waiting to pick us up. None of us ever knew that twenty yards of water could contain so much fury. One of our little shells capsized throwing three extra men into the teeth of the racing waves. Fortunately they were picked up before anything happened to them.

"We all got a thrill that won't be seen on the screen, but it was of invaluable benefit to all of us, for it enabled us to appreciate the stark horror of being in danger at sea"—a vital dramatic issue in "Code of the Sea," which comes to the Royal Theatre on Thursday. The picture was adapted to the screen from the original story by Bertram Millhauser. Those in the strong supporting cast include George Fawcett, Maurice Flynn, Luke Cosgrave, Lillian Leighton and Sam Appell.

AT THE CAPITOL

EUROPEAN CIRCUS LOCALE OF "HE WHO GETS SLAPPED."

With a European circus as the locale, and a tragic clown as the central character, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "He Who Gets Slapped," which is to open to-morrow at the Capitol Theatre, is declared to be one of the most unusual pictures of the season.

"He Who Gets Slapped" is the story of a brilliant scientist, who is deserted by his wife, and whose life work is stolen by his patron and friend. "He," embittered, and seeking forgetfulness, becomes a clown in a French circus. This is the beginning of the story, and the picture carries its audience into the backstage of a European circus, with the story told by clowns, acrobats, trick riders and the other performers of the hippodrome.

The picture was directed by Victor Seastrom, the noted Swedish actor-producer, who is now in America with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. Seastrom has been hailed by other directors, and by critics, as one of the greatest of directors, and this picture has proved an excellent vehicle for his technique and strong dramatic sense. The story is one of the most tragic and dramatic ever screened, and the locale of the circus provides many colorful settings and much interesting atmosphere.

Lon Chaney, king of character actors and make-up wizards, plays the leading male role, that of the unhappy clown, "He," and it is reported he has made it one of his greatest characterizations. Norma Shearer and John Gilbert play the romantic leads. The supporting cast includes Tully Marshall, Ford Sterling, Marc McDermott, Clyde Cook, Harvey Clarke, Paulette Duval, George Davis, Ruth King and others.

SHE WINS DIVORCE, BUT HUSBAND GETS ALIMONY

George W. Baird of Bairdstown, Cal., acquired a claim on a niche in the Hall of Fame the other day.

He obtained from Judge Fleming in Los Angeles an order for alimony of $75 a month against his wife, Daisy E. Baird. Mrs. Baird, it is true, won the decree of divorce in the litigation that has been pending between them for several months, but she will have to support Baird.

The reason for the unusual alimony order lay in the facts that Mrs. Baird holds title to all the community property and that Baird is physically unable to work.

Testimony in the suit was heard last November, when decision was reserved by Judge Fleming. Mrs. Baird obtained her decree on charges of mental cruelty. Baird asked for the decree in a cross-complaint in which he charged desertion.

"I believe that Mrs. Baird has a right to retain title to the community property, but that Mr. Baird, because of his condition, needs support. The ends of justice will be best served in this instance by the somewhat unusual arrangement of an alimony order against the wife," Judge Fleming commented.

BEATTY SUPPORTS CANADA CAMPAIGN

President of C. P. R. Lauds Manufacturers' Produced at Home Plan.

MONTREAL, May 6 (Special to The Examiner).—Addressing the annual dinner of the Canadian Manufacturers here last night, E. W. Beatty, president and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, presented an incisive and vigorous analysis of national conditions, accompanied by a note of sound optimism as to the future. He warmly supported the manufacturers' proposed "Produced in Canada" campaign, and laid stress on the point that the slogan should be synonymous with the terms "Best for the price" or "Worth the money."

Mr. Beatty said that he was the more willing to support the proposed "Produced in Canada" campaign because it was of a national character and had no political significance, as was instanced by the fact that there were present men of different political complexions. He could also support the cause because the company he represented was produced in Canada, and like the Manufacturers' Association was established because its builders believed in Canada, and that it would succeed if honestly administered and soundly financed.

PRINCE HAS HEART FOR LOYAL CROWDS

MOSSEL BAY, South Africa, May 6 (Canadian Press).—The Prince of Wales did not get as much sleep last night as had been planned, because he did not have the heart to disappoint the crowds that waited throughout the night at way stations to see him as his special train passed.

It had been announced that the train would stop twelve hours each night at some quiet place in order that the Prince might sleep undisturbed. But the Prince cancelled that programme and refused to go to bed until late, when he learned that at each little station or settlement along the route farmers and natives had gathered around camp fires and were patiently waiting to see him. He descended at several of these remote stations and chatted with the watchers, amid much enthusiasm.

In consequence, the train did not reach Mossel Bay until about ten o'clock this morning, later than had been expected.

A large crowd cheered the royal visitor and local officials headed by the mayor greeted him with elaborate ceremonies.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

St. James' Church Young People Have Inspiring Meeting—Topic, Consecration.

The Enworth League of St. James' Church had a very helpful and inspiring evening on Monday. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. E. Kitney, first vice-president, and the topic was "Consecration."

This was the first meeting of the year, and three new members were added to the list.

A very instructive and helpful talk on "What and Where is God?" by Mrs. A. J. Langford was very much enjoyed.

Vocal solos were given by Mrs. E. Frost and Mr. F. Williams, a piano solo by Miss E. J. Hotston and a trio by Misses R. McFadden, A. Rose and J. Hamilton.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Langford by the president, Mr. E. Frost.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

A hearty welcome is extended to anyone wishing to join the League.

ONTARIO MEDICAL ASSOCIATION HONORS DR. G. STEWART CAMERON

DIETING USELESS.

Dr. H. C. Wales, of Toronto, Asserts Fat People Cannot Reduce.

TORONTO, May 6. — Dr. John Macgregor ,of London, Ont., was to-day selected as the new president of the Ontario Medical Association, and next year's annual convention will be held in London.

Other officers elected to-day were First Vice-President: Dr. Edgar Brandon, North Bay.

Hon. Treasurer: Dr. G. Stewart Cameron, Peterboro.

General Secretary: Dr. T. C. Routley, Toronto.

That almost one third of fat people can never reduce by dieting was the statement of Dr. H. C. Wales of Toronto, in an address on "Obesity and Endrocines," to-day before the Ontario Medical Association. He explained that their obesity was due to some defect in endocrine glands. "They have to have special treatment" he said. Dr. Wales forsees the daywhen an extract of these glands will be used just as insulin has been obtained from pancreas.

Dr. G. H. Agnew of Toronto, in his address on "How to Determine Kidney Function," warned that ordinary tests do not always show some of the most serious forms of kidney disease. Speaking of high blood pressure, he said that some types are not at all serious and may go on for several years without any serious consequences, "but others with kidney, heart or arteries involved, must give up their work, or at least be under constant observation."

City Doctors Attend.

The following physicians from Peterboro have attended the conference during this week: Drs. Cameron, Young, Morgan and Yelland. Other doctors who will go up during the week are Drs. Moir, McCulloch, McPherson, McNulty and Wood.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

A man in the gallery at Monday night's meeting of the City Council was heard to say he thought the doings of that honorable body should be broadcasted so that everyone in the city could hear what was being done. The obvious reply is that if people wished to know the city business they would attend council meetings. Session after session has passed without a person in the gallery and only requests for grants and the controversy on daylight saving have brought the comparative crowds of the last two or three months.

Mr. Loud Speaker

If radio is employed another fear is that the members of the council will cease to address "Mr. Mayor," and will talk to "Mr. Loud Speaker." There seems little doubt but that many speeches made during the last three sessions would have remained locked forever in the Aldermen's breasts but for the melting presence of an audience—however small.

A broadcasting station in Peterborough, tapped in on a council meeting might not be an unmitigated evil. One fancies, for instance, an East City family gathered peacefully around the loud speaker, remarking on the desultory character of the debate proceeding uptown. Then it is galvanized into action as an alderman offhandedly mentions the fact that he moves to permit the construction of a gasoline tank by the mmmm company on Hunter Street East.

In three minutes there would be an irate delegation from this and a hundred other crystal equipped homes, thundering at the council chamber door.

Investigation of spring in the city convinces us that we are being cheated of a lot of good phenomena. We haven't heard a bullfrog—in the city—or observed a wild-flower—in the city. On the other hand, we have seen the spring styles.

And, as far as we are concerned, the country can keep its robins and bullfrogs and wild-flowers.

How's Business.

How's Business?

The robin is chirping in the old apple tree. The girls are wearing new green hats. The angle worms are drawing silver maps on the sidewalks. The public school ball season opened on Monday and the Seniors get away on Saturday. Four-point-four is on promise, if not yet on tap, but—

How's business; and what of 1924 as a year of prosperity or hard times?

We wanted to know, so YOU might know.

The Examiner sent a reporter to every factory in the city—to the men who know—to get the real "low-down" facts on local trade and industry and the sentiment of Peterborough business men as to the prospect for 1925.

Their replies have been published, forming a symposium of sentiment which spells progress in box-car letters, and routs the Gloomy Gus Brigade with its banners of "Tariff," "Confused Finances," "National Scandals" "Upset Europe" "Agriculture's Post-War Unbalanced Economies" and such like pessimism.

The answer from the field of practical experience, summed up, is that the prospect is for a soundly constructive 1925.

Keep Plugging Along!

Wouldn't it be fine if we could remember our good luck as long as we do the bad?

GIRL TOOK POISON.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., May 6 (Canadian Press) — Dorothy Rose, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rose, is lying in the public hospital here in a very critical condition, as a result of taking a dose of poison. The girl, who is about 16 years of age, apparently mixed a quantity of rat poison with some water and drank the mixture Monday afternoon. She is not yet out of danger.

WEATHER GOOD FOR NEW DASH TO FIND POLE

OTHERS LATER.

Pioneer Followed in Summer By British and Americans.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Weather prospects at Spitzbergen are reported excellent for the attempt by Captain Roald Amundsen's expedition to reach the North Pole by airplane. The airplanes will be flown northward to-day, following the two expedition steamers, Farm and Hobby, which yesterday led for the intended hopping-off point on Danes Island.

The first plane is to be piloted by Lieut. Ricsar Larsen, with Amundsen as a passenger, and the second by Oscar Omdal, with Lincoln Ellsworth, United States engineer, as navigator.

The planes have speed of more than 90 miles an hour, making it possible, the explorers believe, to reach the pole in about eight hours. The distance is roughly 680 miles. If possible, Captain Amundsen and his companions will make a landing at the Pole and attempt to locate its exact position. If this is not found practicable, the aviators plan to drop a Norwegian flag in the approximate vicinity. The planes will fly 100 metres apart and at an altitude of 500 metres, keeping in touch by wireless throughout the trip. It is expected they will take from three to four hours to reach the island.

MORE TO FOLLOW.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(Canadian Press).—Roald Amundsen's dash to the North Pole by airplane marks the beginning of efforts of three nations to conquer by air that portion of the frozen northern wastes.

Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, carrying the flag of Norway, will be followed in June by expeditions headed by Donald B. MacMillan, United States, and Grettier Algarson, Great Britain, all three taking to the air from bases to be established approximately 550 miles by air line from the Pole.

OTTAWA, May 6.— (Canadian Press.)—The Progressives resumed their caucus deliberations to-day. They gathered at nine o'clock and were still in session in the afternoon.

"ONLY FORCE REMAINS."

Statement Attributed to Senator Borah Raises Furore at Geneva.

GENEVA, May 6. — (Canadian Press.)— A statement printed by Geneva newspapers quoting Senator Borah, of Idaho, as having declared that only force remained to be employed if France fails to take steps to pay her war debts, was one of the chief topics of conversation to-day among delegates to the conference for the control of traffic in arms.

OBITUARY.

MRS. LENA BULLIED.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Lena Bullied took place on Tuesday, May 5, from her late residence, 97 Morrow street. Service at the house at 2.30 p.m., was conducted by Rev. N. R. McLeod, pastor of Park street Baptist church, of which deceased had long been a member.

The deceased was 29 years of age, and had only been ill one week. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Mr. Percy Bullied, two children, Gerald and Helen, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Maybee.

The floral tributes were many and very beautiful.

Interment was made in Little Lake cemetery.

WILLIAM TAYLOR.

The death occurred in Montreal on Monday night of William Taylor, aged 61 years. Mr. Taylor was with the Canadian Pacific Railway for 40 years, and at the time of his death was auditor of disbursements. He was the son of the late Dr. W. H. Taylor, who at one time kept a drug store and doctor's office in Peterboro where W. J. Kent is now located. He is survived by his mother, who now resides at Niagara Falls, and four sisters, Mrs. W. H. Hill of Peterboro; Mrs. A. C. Thorburn and the Misses Taylor, of Niagara Falls. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon in Niagara Falls.

Dr. Taylor was a prominent curler, and a member of the Kaniwaki Golf Club. He was also active in Masonic circles.

MRS. JAMES GARVEY.

The funeral took place on Tuesday to the Immaculate Conception Church of the late Mrs. James Garvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice O'Heron, who passed away on Sunday after a long illness.

Requiem mass was sung by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl and in the sanctuary were Rev. Fathers Garvey and Butler. The interment took place in St. Peter's cemetery where at the graveside, Rev. Fathers Powers, Garvey and Butler officiated. The late Mrs. Garvey was a lifelong resident of the city and the number of spiritual bouquets and masses as well as the floral offerings spoke of the high esteem in which she was held.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides a sorrowing husband and parents, five sisters in the city, Mrs. George Hynes, Mrs. Steve O'Connor, Mrs. Fred Lajoie, Misses Daisy and Madeline at home and Mrs. Fred Derocher of St. Catharines. Also one brother, Herb. of the city.

The pallbearers were Fred Derocher, George Hynes, Steve O'Connor, Fred Lajoie, Fred and Joseph Garvey.

LIONEL FERGUSON.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing father and mother, two brothers and two sisters.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock and proceeded to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. M. Hughes officiated.

MINERS START PICKET.

Endeavor to Prevent Protective Work by Other Than Officials.

SYDNEY, N.S., May 6.—(Canadian Press.) —For the first time since the strike went into effect, pickets from various locals of the United Mine Workers of America, were active at various mines at the Cape Breton area last night seeking to restrain volunteer maintenance men, other than recognized officials, from doing protective work at the collieries.

The decision of the miners to start picketing was made at a meeting called by several local unions. Pickets will be placed at all mines of the district to-day.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Pierre Cyrene, Eighty-five Year Old Man, Loses Life.

THREE RIVERS, Que., May 6. —(Canadian Press.)— Pierre Cyrene, 85, was burned to death when Conrad Neroux's house, where he was living, at St. Maurice, Champlain county, was destroyed by fire.

In Loving Memory of Thomas Raymond Darcy
Who died 1 year ago, May 6th, 1924

One year ago you left us, darling,
And our hearts are filled with pain,
And we long to hear your laughter and to see your smile again.
But we know that you are happy in the Master's loving care,
And that no more pain or sorrow will ever be your share.
So we will be brave, our darling, and pray to God each day
That when He calls us home to heaven
Your loving smile may guide the way.

BISHOP O'BRIEN WAS AT CEREMONY

TORONTO, May 6 (Canadian Press).—With all the imposing ceremonial of the Roman Catholic Church and in presence of a great congregation of clergy and laity, Rt. Rev. J. T. Kidd, formerly head of the St. Augustine Seminary here, was elevated to the Episcopacy this morning in St. Michael's Cathedral and given charge of the Diocese of Calgary. He succeeds Right Rev. J. T. McNally, recently appointed Bishop of Hamilton. The consecration of Dr. Kidd was performed by Most Rev. Pietro De Maria, the Papal delegate, who was assisted by Archbishop Neil McNeil of Toronto and Archbishop Joseph Emard of Ottawa. Bishop McNally preached the sermon.

The congregation crowded the cathedral to capacity, among the laymen present being Lieutenant-Governor Harry Cockshutt and Mayor Thomas Foster of Toronto.

Among other dignitaries present were Archbishop Spratt of Kingston and Bishop O'Brien of Peterborough.

NATIONAL RAILWAYS HAVE ACHIEVED PHENOMINAL SUCCESS AND PRESENT NO CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM, ASSERTS HON. GEO. GRAHAM IN ANNUAL STATEMENT

TOTAL DEFICIT IN 1924 WAS $55,757,481 ON LINES IN CANADA AND UNITED STATES

Public Ownership Cannot Remedy at One Stroke the Failures of Private Ownership Over Half a Century.

HEAVY LOSS FROM MOTOR COMPETITION

OTTAWA, May 7 (By Canadian Press) — Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, in the House yesterday made his annual statement on the operations of the Canadian National Railways. The general results of last year's operations have already been announced, and Mr. Graham dealt with them more analytically, especially as between American and Canadian lines.

The total deficit previously announced on the Canadian National, after fixed charges, was $54,860,419. This, said Mr. Graham was made up of $51,139,161 on Canadian National lines in Canada and $3,721,258 on Canadian National lines in the United States. To the total would have to be added a deficit after fixed charges of $897,062 on the Central Vermont. This would make a deficit after fixed charges of $55,757,481.

Canadian National lines in the United States: Operating net roughly four millions less in 1924 than 1923. Chief loss of revenue on Grand Trunk western lines serving the industrial community adjacent to Detroit and Chicago. Grand Trunk New England lines produced an operating deficit of $482,575 in 1924, against $491,702 in 1923.

Central Vermont—Operating net revenue $1,682,624 in 1924, against $950,899 in 1923. Operating net reduced by taxes, etc. to $229,206 before fixed charges.

Phenomenal Success

Mr. Graham felt that when all things were considered the success achieved by the Canadian National was phenomenal. He declared that no private company had to struggle under such difficulties as the Canadian National. At one of the most critical periods of the world the Canadian National had been handed a disjointed mass of intricacies, the chief entities of which would have been plunged into bankruptcy under private ownership. There seemed to be an idea that public ownership should at a stroke remedy all the deinquencies of private ownership during the last half century.

He made the suggestion that the Canadian National should not be responsible for purely colonization roads. If parliament thought colonization roads necessary, should parliament, independent of the Canadian National vote, not be responsible for their construction and operation?

Consider Co-operation

On amalgamation of the Canadian National and C.P.R., Mr. Graham advised that it should not be rushed at without full consideration although condition might mature that amalgamation would be inevitable. As to co-operation between the two roads to cut out duplication, Mr. Graham intimated unless an agreement could be reached between the two presidents, he was going to consider asking the railway commissioners to sit in with them and perhaps suggest a plan.

He further intimated that a vote of $7,5000,000 for National Railways in the supplementary estimates would not be pressed. The appropriation of sixty millions in the main estimates would also be reduced by ten millions.

Mr. Graham's statement occupied practically the whole afternoon sitting. There will be debate at a later date.

How Dollar Spent

Mr. Graham drew attention to how each dollar expended on Canadian National operation for the last two years was distributed:

	1924 cents	1923 cents
Maintenance of U. & S..	20	19
Maintenance of equipment..	22	23
Traffic...	03	02
Transportation, rail.....	50	52
Miscellaneous operation.	01	01
General....	04	03
Total.....	100	100

Mr. Graham described how operating ratio on the National lines had been reduced from 98.77 per cent in 1922 to 92.68 per cent in 1924, which he said was very encouraging result.

Automobile Competition

The results of the new policy on insurance had been satisfactory and the system carrying its own insurance had achieved considerable economy thereby. The minister read a report on the competition which the railways now suffered from motor vehicles. It was estimated that the railways of Canada lost $24,276,651 in passenger revenues alone in 1923 through that competition, and the loss would be greater in 1924. The Canadian National's share of this loss was $9,829,064.

Touching on the question of interest, Mr. Graham said there was a common misconception about this. One newspaper had said the people of Canada had to contribute $54,860,419 to the private holders of railway bonds. It should be remembered that included in this sum is interest amounting to $31,271,043 on Dominion government advances, which is not paid to private bondholders, or is it paid by the railways to the Dominion Government which advanced the principal. So far as the deficit is concerned, it serves a bookkeeping purpose and thence is carried into profit and loss. Of the interest due to the investing public, totalling $38,361,704, the railways earned $12,235,071 on operation and a had a credit balance of $2,-5377,310 on non-operation income account. In other words the Canadian National was required to pay exactly $23,589,377 last year in interest due the public. Towards the financial requirements of the National system, the actual cash advanced by the Dominion in 1924, was ten million dolars.

Tribute to Management

Mr. Graham paid high tribute to the accounting staff of the road. The system included over one hundred companies; eighty-seven main balance sheets had to be prepared annually, and all these woven into a final balance. It was simply a marvel that the accounting of the National system was done as cheaply and expeditiously as it is.

As for the management generally, Mr. Graham did not

$17,000,000 Reduction In Estimates For Railways

OTTAWA, May 7.—(Canadian Press). — Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, somewhat surprised the House by announcing a reduction of seventeen millions in the Canadian National estimates. He spoke of conference and the application of a fine tooth-comb over expenditures. The upshot was that a vote of $7,500,000 in supplementaries now before the House would not be pressed. In addition, when main Canadian National estimates were in committee of supply, a reduction of ten millions would be moved.

JOBBERS FIGHT FRUIT GROWERS

Trade War Being Waged by Fruit Wholesalers of Prairies.

PRICE CONTROL

WINNIPEG, May 7.— The biggest fight which the trade of Western Canada has witnessed, to control the wholesale fruit business of the prairies, has been in progress here since las Friday and still is proceeding, the Winnipeg Free Press said yesterday.

The paper continues: "Representatives of the Associated Growers of British Columbia, the Co-operative Growers with headquarters at Vernon, B.C., and the jobbing trade of Winnipeg, have been assembled. The co-operative, which claims to control 80 per cent. of the growers in the interior of British Columbia, decided some months ago to sell direct to the retailer, through their own agents and managers. The fight, according to the jobbing trade, centres ground t desire of the Winnipeg jobbing trade to preserve their large organizations, which extends throughout the west, and the aim of the growers to secure for their shareholders the highest price for their produce, which they claim they have not been receiving."

POWER EXPORTATION.

Two Billion K.W.H. From Canada in Five Years.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 7.—(Canadian Press.)—More than two billion kilowatt hours o felectric power have been exported from Canada within the last five years, according to answers made in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario has obtained two licenses to export electric power, one for 80,000 kilowatts and one for 45,000 kilowatts of "off peak or interruptible power." The Ontario Hydro Commission has, according to answers made, been exporting power since 1917 from Niagara Falls.

C.N.R. IS BURDENED WITH COLONIZATION BRANCHES PARLIAMENT SHOULD PAY FOR

Lines That Help Develop the Country But Cannot be Expected to Pay Their Way for Years, Hon. G. P. Graham Points Out.

OTTAWA, May 7. — "If this Parliament believes, in the interest of Canada, and its development, that purely colonization roads should be constructed, should parliament not be prepared to provide for the construction of these lines independent of the vote made to the Canadian National Railways, and be responsible for the operation until such time they are self-sust g? If the Canadian National Railways, like any private company have been required to colonize, knowing that here will be a loss both in overhead and operation for years, then ought parliament not to be responsible instead of the railway?"

This suggestion was made by Hon. George P. Graham during his speech on railway estimates in the House yesterday afternoon. He pointed out that scores of the subsidiary lines of the Canadian National Railway were merely colonization roads, and could not be expected to pay their way for years, although they might assist in the development of the country.

"There seems to be an idea in certain quarters," said Mr. Graham, "that public ownership should make up for all the delinquincies of private ownership during the past half century. It is just questionable to my mind, if in fairness to the Canadian National Railways, the roads built solely as colonization lines, should be detached so far as accounting is concerned at least. Under present conditions, the management has not the ghost of a chance, to my mind, to meet its overhead, if we include advances by the government, and no private management would be expected to attempt such a task. If the C.N.R. is to be treated as a going concern it cannot be expected to take on obligations that can never be met by railways revenues."

SQUATTERS OUSTED

Vancouver Wins Claim to Strip of Stanley Park.

OTTAWA, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—The Supreme Court of Canada yesterday allowed the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada and the City of Vancouver against the squatters in Stanley Park, Vancouver. The appeal was against the judgment of the Provincial Courts and denies squatters' rights to the four respondents in the case, Gonzales, Smith, Dekosta and Long, to retain a strip of land in the civic park on which they have resided for many years. Argument in the case concluded yesterday afternoon, and the Supreme Court promptly allowed the appeal, restored the verdict of the trial judge, and allowed costs if the appellant asks for them.

JAIL UNBALANCES PRISONER'S MIND

Keeps Others Awake in London, Ont., Jail By His Screams.

LONDON, Ont., May 7.—(Canadian Press).—Brooding in the narrow confines of what is known as the "Murrell cage" at the County Jail, the mind of Thomas Fox has become unhinged. Sentenced last October to fourteen years and lashes in Kingston penitentiary, Fox had his sentence reduced to seven years and ten lashes by the Appellate Court.

Fox has worried and fumed over his case ever since he was arrested last summer for a serious offence. He requested two interviews with the Crown Attorney and has declared that the witnesses who gave evidence against him perjured themselves.

Fox has been growing worse mentally until he now believes that people are chasing him. He hears voices and screams in rage at them.

A prisoner recently released from the county jail states that it is almost impossible to sleep at night owing to the noise made by Fox.

"I'm glad I'm out," he told the Canadian Press yesterday. "It would make your blood run cold to hear that man Fox carrying on."

Dr. James D. Wilson, jail physician, who is an expert at diagnosing cases of insanity, and has given evidence in many important cases, stated yesterday that he had not yet made up his mind as to whether Fox was a fit subject for the criminally insane ward at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

757 FALSE CLAIMS FOR BRITISH DOLES

Britain Has 1,200,000 Unemployed, Minister of Labor Reports.

LONDON, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—With regard to recent allegations that there has been a widespread misuse of the dole, J. Beckett, Labor member of the House of Commons for Gateshead, at question time in the House yesterday, asked the Minister of Labor, Sir A. H. D. Ramsay-Steel-Maitland for a statement as to the prosecutions in connection with the matter.

In reply, the Minister stated that there were 11,256,000 persons insured under the Unemployment Insurance Act and the latest figures showed that there were approximately 1,200,-000 persons unemployed in Britain. The number of persons convicted on charges of knowingly making false representations for the purpose of obtaining unemployment benefit, between November 1, 1924, and March 31, 1925, was 757. In 72 other cases, he said, the defendants had been bound over or admonished.

Thereupon Mr. Beckett asked the Minister of Labor if, in view of the figures he had just cited, he would endeavor to stop people from suggesting that there was a general habit of making false claims in connection with the dole.

The Minister did not reply to the question, which was greeted with cheers from the Labor members.

A NIGHT'S TAKE

Consider Using Chain and Anchor in Pursuit of New Game.

Those who are planning the establishment of domestic relationship as well as those who are considering the increase of the present furniture installation might do well to heed the following instructions intended to aid any desirous of securing household effects and general utensils for the expenditure of a reasonable amount of effort.

Great numbers have already taken advantage of the opportunity, and in case that the supply be limited, others should not hesitate if they wish to obtain their quota.

The source of supply is commonly called the Locks, and each evening that locality is thronged with anxious home furnishers.

Ostensibly the reason for their presence is the desire to ensnare the wily, wiry member of the finny tribe but don't be misled — you may be sure that they are aware of the great treasure trove which lies hidden beneath the gurgling waters of the Otonabee. If you chance to pass near the place, note the eager and anxious expression on the face of each alleged fisherman and ask yourself if such concern is occasioned by the mere uncertainty of the fishing game.

Had you been there last night and noted the excessive hilarity occasioned when one lucky fisherman succeeded, after much manoeuvring, in actually landing a complete set of bed-springs, you would know that the capture of a mere pickerel or sucker could not so enthrall the assembled multitude.

But that excitement was but a drop in the bucket compared with the eruption which occurred when one, more fortunate, solved his transportation troubles for ever by extricating the well-preserved remains of a bicycle. In addition to these conveniences, many declare that they have hooked stoves, ice boxes, water coolers, furnaces, steel safes and concrete mixers, but so far this heavier game has eluded them. As with fish, the biggest always escape.

They say that their light tackle is inadequate, and are consulting local foundry managers as to the advisability of using special processed chains equipped with anchors.

To date the sport continues unabated, and each night sees new members flocking to the Locks. It is suggested that those interested should hurry and secure their allotments before the supply becomes depleted.

Family Besieging Jail Where Breadwinner Held

WINNIPEG, May 7.—(Canadian Press).—Huddled together on the steps of the Provincial Jail here, Mrs. Mary Pitras and her five children, ranging in ages from three to fourteen, yesterday began a "siege of the Bastile" in protest against what they regard as "unjust" incarceration of William Pitras, breadwinner of the family.

Mrs. Pitras told the authorities that aher husband had not been treated fairly. He had no lawyers to look after his interests, she said, when Inland Revenue officers arrested him on the farm near Lac Du Bonnet for making "home brew."

The mother says she will not leave Winnipeg until her husband goes with her. Pitras is serving a term of six months.

PROBE MAID'S DEATH

Searching Enquiry Begins Friday in Vancouver Tragedy.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 7. — (Canadian Press).—Subpoenaes calling as witnesses for the preliminary inquiry into the murder charge against Wong Sing Foon, arising from the death of Janet Smith on July 26 last, were served Tuesday upon Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Baker, in whose house the nursemaid and the Chinese houseboy, accused of causing her death, were both employed at the time of the tragedy.

The subpoenaes call upon the witnesses to appear Friday morning in the Point Grey Police Court.

The inquiry, it is said, will be of a most thorough nature, and likely to occupy two days. It is expected that an opportunity will be afforded many people professing to have knowledge of the pertinent facts to come forward and tell all they know.

HERTZOG AGREES WITH DOMINIONS

South African Sentiment Opposed to Geneva Protocol.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, May 7. — (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—In the House of Assembly yesterday, Prime Minister Hertzog stated that the views of the Government with regard to the Geneva disarmament protocol closely resembled those of the other British Dominions as well as the arguments advanced in the reply of the British Government to the League of Nations. South Africa, he declared, ought to avoid incurring the obligations of the protocol, especially as she was far removed from danger.

Premier Hertzog considered that the adoption of the protocol would effectually prevent the entrance of the United States into the League as it amounted to the creation of a super-state. He feared that the League of Nations, in view of the abstention of the United States, Germany and Russia, would differ little from historic alliances instead of being a league of peace.

INVITATION NOT GIVEN FRANCE

German and Hungarian Envoys Were Invited to Pilgrim's Dinner.

PARIS, May 7 (Canadian Press) —The French Ambassador was not invited to the Pilgrims' dinner in London, writes Pertinax in the Echo De Paris; nor those of Italy and the Powers of the Little Entent, he stresses, although Germany, Hungary, Portugal and Brazil were represented. That France should have been left out is, according to Pertinax, "An omission all the more regrettable because the new American Ambassador in London, Alanson B. Houghton, who was to speak in public in England for the first time, unhappily is reputed by the diplomatic corps in Berlin, to which he belonged until a few months ago, to be a confirmed pro-German."

Mr. Houghton in his Pilgrims' dinner speech issued a warning that if the European states do not realize that peace is a matter of good faith the United States will refuse further aid to Europe.

CATTLE CARRIED BY FOUR SHIPS OF GOVERNMENT

Rate of $20 a Head Yields Net Profit of $2.52 a Head.

OTTAWA ENQUIRY

Committee Investigating the Rates Invited by Steamship Lines to Visit Montreal.

OTTAWA, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—A cable which passed between Cairns, Noble and Co., Ltd., of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and the Robert Reford Company, of Montreal, last June, brought the name of W. T. R. Preston, who recently made a report against the North Atlantic Shipping Conference before the special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates yesterday afternoon.

The cable, which was produced by H. J. Symington, K.C., and read by him to Col. W. T. Gean, manager of the Robert Reford Company, who was on the witness stand, was as follows:

"Preston accredited Canadian Government agent studying economic propositions trade between Canada and United Kingdom has cabled Minister of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, see you regarding amending cattle stowage regulations. Please get in touch Ottawa, discuss any scheme whereby our ships would carry more cattle than present regulations allow. We are negotiating with Preston carriage of cattle over yearly periods, Dundee."

"Did you get in touch with Ottawa?" Mr. Symington asked Col. Gear. The witness replied that he had not.

"What did you reply to the cable?" persisted the Government counsel.

"That's what it is to have a world-wide reputation," commented Sir Henry Drayton, a member of the committee.

Had a Controversy.

Col. Gear explained that his reason for not communicating with Ottawa was that his company had just engaged in a controversy with the Department of Marine and Fisheries in regard to the fittings on cattle boats. The Department, he said, wanted to make the regulations more stringent, but eventually decided not to do so.

Wednesday's sitting opened with a complaint by H. J. Symington, K.C., Government counsel, that information furnished to Gordon Scott, the accountant of the committee, by the British steamship lines, was "absolutely useless." What the committee required was information which would enable it to arrive at the actual disbursements and revence of the steamship lines. G. H. Montgomery, K.C., retorted that he was informed that the accountant had been furnished with the actual voyage sheets of the vessels operated by the British lines. If more detailed information was required, it might be necessary for Mr. Scott to go to England to get it. It was finally decided that counsel for the companies and the committee would meet Mr. Scott and see if the information required could not be produced.

Invited to Montreal.

Mr. Montgomery, on behalf of the steamship lines, invited the committee to visit Montreal on Friday to witness the loading of steamships and gather other information which might be useful to those members taking part in the inquiry. His invitation was taken under consideration.

J. P. Doherty, traffic manager of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, gave the committee some information in regard to the carriage of cattle on the Government boats. A statement showing that at the present rate of $20.00 a head the net return to the steamer was $2.52 per head, the cost of carriage amounting to $17.48 was tabled. Four of the vessels of the Merchant Marine were now in the cattle trade, but they carried but a very small proportion of the cattle shipped. It had cost $7,000 each to fit the boats up for the cattle trade.

BLAMES PICKETS FOR HIS INJURY

BIG PARTY.

GLACE BAY, May 7 (Canadian Press).—P. Ogilvie, chief employment clerk in this district for the British Empire Steel Corporation, while in charge of a croup of maintenance men en route to the mines this morning, had one of the arteries in his head cut and suffered heavy loss of blood, when he was struck on the head by a missile presumably thrown from a group of some fifty or seventy-five pickets who met the tram car carrying the maintenance men at the McKay crossing. Nine clerks and surface officials were turned back by the pickets. Mr. Ogilvie's condition is not serious.

CONSERVATIVES ARE PREPARED

Optimistic Fighting Spirit Shown at Annual Convention at Ottawa.

READY FOR GRITS.

OTTAWA, May 7 (Canadian Press).—"We are in position to weather the roughest gale that a general election can blow. We are ready for the fight whenever the Grits want to bring it on."

These and other similar expressions of optimistic fighting preparedness were high lights at the annual convention of the Liberal-Conservatives of the North Eastern Ontario district, held here yesterday morning and afternoon.

Albert E. Honeywell was elected president for another term. The convention changed the constitution somewhat by providing for a lady secretary and also a treasurer for the main body who were found in F. D. Hogg, of Ottawa, and Mrs. G. Blackburn, also of Ottawa. Col. J. A. Hope accepted the office of auditor.

A resolution of confidence in the leader of His Majesty's loyal Opposition and Premier Howard Ferguson were adopted and the rates, tariff and budget policy of the Mackenzie King Government were criticized by Hon. Dr. S. F. Tolmie in a speech.

BRITISH ADMIRAL DEAD.

Sir Doveton Sturdes, Who Commanded at Falkland Islands, Dies.

LONDON, May 7 (Canadian Press).—Sir Doveton Sturdee, admiral of the fleet, who commanded the British situation in the Battle of Falkland Islands in 1914, and later participated in the Battle of Jutland, died today.

Admiral Sturdee had been in ill health for some time at his residence in Surrey. Entering the navy in 1871 he rose by stages to the rank of rear admiral in 1908.

CAMPBELLFORD SCHOOL CADETS PRESENT A GOOD APPEARANCE ON THEIR ANNUAL INSPECTION

NEW UNIFORMS.

Inspecting Officer Says Drill Is Not to Develop Militarism.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7.—Captain G. C. H. Trudeau, of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Kingston, who inspected the High and Public School Cadets here yesterday, made it clear in his address to the boys after the exercises, that the object of giving them such a training was to mold them into good citizens, not to develop a spirit of militarism in the country.

Principal Charles S. Haig, who is also cadet instructor to the Public School Cadets, had 70 boys in line, and when the young fellows, in their neat uniforms, went through the different evolutions with true military precision, they were loudly applauded by the large crowd of citizens who had gathered at the Public School grounds, where the exercises were held. Among the spectators was Major T. M. Bygott, chairman and other members of the Board of Education.

Walter Bibby is the officer commanding these cadets, and the platoon commanders are James Heponstall, Morley Peeling and Ross Dunk. Fred. Ingram is Quartermaster-Sergeant and Douglas Runions furnishes the drum music. The work of each and every officer showed that he was perfectly familiar with his duties.

In New Uniforms.

The High School Cadets 65 strong presented a soldierly appearance in their new uniforms. The suits are made of khaki cloth and are brightened by red labels and shining belt. The caps worn are the same style as the flying corps headgear. Every button and buckle had been polished until it shone again, and the rifles too showed the care which had been given to have them in creditable shape for a public parade. Every move made by the cadets in response to the commands of their officers were as precise and regular as those of a veteran corps.

Arthur Loucks is captain of the High School Cadets; Everett Thomas, Jack McElroy and Leslie Clegg, are platoon commanders, and Kennear Brodworth is drummer. Principal Greig and Earl Stephens, teacher of Mathematics on the High School staff, are the cadet officers.

"War is Bad."

After the cadets of both schools had completed their manoeuvres they formed in front of Captain Trudeau, who in a brief address, complimented them on their soldierly appearance. The members of the Board of Education were praised by the Captain for providing such excellent uniforms for the Cadets. The speaker said that the training which the Cadets received on the parade grounds would be of benefit to them and he was pleased to hear from Principal Greig that the discipline to which they were subjected had an important bearing upon their deportment in the class room. He also commended the Cadets for the care they had evidently taken to polish their accoutrements so as to make a creditable appearance in public.

"We are not looking for war," continued the speaker. "War is a bad thing, and I know enough about it to make that statement. Our aim is not to make fighting men of you but to train you to become good citizens. No soldier is looking for war, but we want to be in a position to be able to hold anything belonging to us that some one tries to take from us.

Complimented Instructors

Major Bygott, too, complimented the cadets of both schools on the excellent showing which they had made and on their neat new uniforms. The training which the boys are receiving will be of benefit to them in their school work and he was pleased to note the progress that had been made since the inspection of last year. The work of the cadets showed that their instructors had spared no pains and these officials were to be congratulated upon the success which had attended their efforts.

Declared Half Holiday

Then came the announcement which is regarded by the pupils as the highest mark of approval of the work of the cadets, the declaring of a half holiday in both schools by Capt. Trudeau. Hearty cheers were given for the King and for Principals Greig and Haig.

Principal Greig and Mr. Stephens entertained the High School cadets at Long's restaurant at the conclusion of the exercises and Principal Haig extended the same hospitality to the boys from his school.

The Government Grant

All told there were 135 boys in uniform and this means that the Government will make a grant of $135 which must be applied only to the maintenance of the corps. The new uniforms which the boys from the High School are wearing were paid for out of this fund so that the outfits cost the taxpayers nothing.

Capt. Trudeau left yesterday for Tweed where he will inspect the cadets today.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads simply dissolve and disappear by this one simple, safe and sure method. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle it on a hot, wet cloth, rub the face briskly — every blackhead will be gone.

WOMAN LOSES ESTATE

Claim to $15,000 Nullified By Her Divorce.

NOME, Alaska, May 7.—(Canadian Press). — Records uncovered here yesterday indicated that Mrs. Inez Peterson, of Kew, Sask., who set up a claim to the estate of John Peterson, a pioneer Alaskan, who was killed in an automobile in Seattle in February, was divorced from Peterson.

Old-timers greeted with surprise despatches relating the contention of Inez Peterson that Maud Peterson, the woman killed with Peterson, was not his wife. The records show that John and Inez Peterson were married in Dawson and divorced in Nome, October 28, 1905.

Notice of the suit was mailed before trial to Mrs. Inez Peterson, in Vancouver, B.C. Peterson left an estate of $15,000, which will revert to Washington State, according to despatches received here.

FORKE REMAINS PARTY LEADER

The Progressives Had Three Caucuses in Two Days and Changed Officers.

STEWART NEW WHIP.

OTTAWA, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—Robert Forke, M.P. for Granville, has decided to remain leader of the Progressive party in the House of Commons, it was announced last night at the end of the third protracted caucus of the party in two days. C. W. Stewart, M.P. for Humbolt, replaces J. Fred. Johnston as Chief Progressive Whip. It is also understood that Wilfred Kennedy, M.P. for Glengarry, will cease to act as chairman of the Progressive caucus, and the matter of a successor was left with the Ontario members.

J. Fred. Johnston, of Last Mountain, who is succeeded as Chief Whip by Mr. Stewart, was one of the 17 Progressives who voted with the Government on the main budget motion.

There was talk after the caucus that some of the 17 may now throw in their lot with the Government. A few of them left the caucus before its deliberations ended but gave no intimation of any intention to leave the Progressive party.

NEW CONSTABLE.

Sanitary Inspector Will Retire and Chief Brown Will Take Duties.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7. — When the assistant policeman takes office on June 1, as already stated, A. J. Beavis will give up his position as sanitary inspector, collector of poll and dog taxes and enforcer of by-laws, these duties to be taken over by Chief Brown. It is also proposed to make the latter school attendance officer. It will no longer be necessary to pay anything for special police service. It is estimated that in this way at least $50 a month can be saved and applied on the salary of Constable Light, which is $1,000 a year. The new constable will, therefore, it is figured, cost the taxpayers not more than $400 a year.

Council Is Approved.

Citizens generally commend the action of the Council in purchasing a road roller and scarifier, as the majority realize that something must be done to improve the streets of the town. Visitors to Campbellford find nothing amiss except the roadways.

YOUNG'S POINT EUCHRE.

Card Party at South Beach on May 13.

YOUNG'S POINT, May 7.—The ladies of St. Mary's Church, Young's Point, are giving a euchre party at South Beach, Wednesday evening, May 13, commencing at 8 o'clock. Six good prizes are offered.

Improvements are being made around the local locks and bridges. bridges.

The local mill commenced operations last Monday.

Mr. Sturgeon of Peterboro was in the village on business Tuesday.

PREPARE PLAYGROUNDS.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7.—A gang of men have been set to work levelling the land in the rear of the town jail, where it is proposed to lay out a public playgrounds. Several large rocks have been moved and dumped into a hollow and these stones will be covered with earth. It is expected that in a short time the grounds will be ready for use.

NATIONAL RAILWAYS HAVE ACHIEVED

know where any management could be found in the world which could do better than the present one had done to bring order out of chaos.

Mr. Graham pointed out in discussing the question of capital cost that if a viaduct were to be constructed on the old Intercolonial, for instance, the money would come out of the Canadian National Railway Vote; and in this respect the Canadian National was in a worse position than any railway in Canada. Under the act if the Board of Railway Commissioners ordered the construction of a subway, it also fixed the amount that had to be paid by the municipality, the amount to be paid by the government, and the proportion to be paid by the railway company; but in case of any improvement made on the Canadian Goverment line by the Canadian National Railways the latter would get none of this aid. "It is very questionable if the act should not be changed in this respect," stated Mr. Graham, "If the Canadian National Railway is to be given square deal." This all led up to the point of having the reconstruction of the Canadian National Railway finances on a more unified and possibly sounder basis.

Unprofitable Lines

There ought to be a careful review of the physical value as well as the farming record, etc., of every company in the system in relation to the securities outstanding. Unprofitable lines should be carefully studied as to the necessity and advisability of future operation. Where losses were to continue, that fact must be faced and provision made for it. "It is not easy task, and cannot be accomplished in a day. This work, let me intimate, is now underway and it is hoped by the time another session arrives, there will be a report to place before parliament and the Canadian people."

Mr. Graham thought it would be questionable if it would be wise in the interests of both Canada and the railway, to have the entire financing of the Canadian National system separated from Government financing.

One of the peculiarties which presented itself every day in the operation of the system, was the ownership and operation of these lines in another country. It had been recently stated, in one of the legislatures of the United States, that money which should be expended over there was being withheld in Canada. There was no foundation for such a statement.

Taxed by Provinces

Private railway companies, pointed out Mr. Graham, were subject to taxation, both by the provinces and the municipalities. In this respect, those companies that were under private ownership previous to the formation of the Canadian National railway were in the identical position today as they were previously. A committee had been appointed from the Board of Management of the Canadian National Railways to confer with the governments of the provinces through which the lines ran to see if some solution of this vexed problem of taxation might be reached.

Opposed to Monopoly

On the subject of the proposed amalgamation of railways, Mr. Graham said "monopoly to me is distasteful in any form, and I would like to try out every other kind of management before resorting to monopoly." He asked the house if the Canadian Pacific service today was not immeasurably better than before the Canadian National Railways commenced operations under a single management. Competition was the only thing that would give a business man a freight car when he wanted it or give a passenger on the train the service he desired.

Mr. Graham advocated a co-operation that would give service without monopoly.

As for the co-operation to eliminate duplication, it was scarcely fair to ask a company to remove a passenger train from service if that passenger train was paying, although undoubtedly some trains could be dispensed with.

Canada was being unjustly criticized in England since the purchase of the National system. They were ill-founded complaints. Certain Grand Trunk shareholders claimed they were frozen out in the purchase. Actually, the Grand Trunk was practically bankrupt and the government purchase saved it. Officials, directors, and shareholders of the Grand Trunk were all to blame if the rights of any shareholders had not been protected. Holders of four per cent debentures of the Grand Trunk Pacific were in a better position than before the Government took over the railway. If the Government had not done so, the road would have gone into bankruptcy. The holders of these securities were in an infinitely improved position. "The Canadian Government has never repudiated a debt, and never will," said Mr. Graham.

Encourage Immigration

The real solution for industrial, agricultural and transportation problems, was in the bringing of people to Canada.

W. C. Good (Progressive, Brant) asked how people could be kept in Canada when they were once here.

Mr. Graham replied that if Mr. Good would become a leader in affairs instead of a follower, he would help to solve these problems. Members of parliament and senators should take the leadership in Canadian affairs, and if they did so as they should, there would be no question of the results.

"There is no need for pessimism about the Canadian National Railways," stated Mr. Graham.

Referring to the holders of securities in the old country, he would like to say for the benefit of financial men in Great Britain, "that Canada always pays her debts, but will not be stampeded into a position she is not entitled to be stampeded into."

Reducing Requisition

In the supplementary estimates, he stated, there was provision for a vote of $7,500,000. The house, however, would not be asked to vote this money and the railway would get along without it. Mr. Graham explained that a committee of officials of the Canadian National railways and Major Graham Bell had been doing considerable fine-combing with a view to keeping down expenditures as low as possible, and when the main estimates came before the committee in supply, he would have one of his colleagues move to have the appropriation of sixty million dollars reduced by ten million.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, complimented Mr. Graham on his speech. He regretted however, that the minister had chosen to speak on Wednesday, but hoped that arrangements would be made to continue the debate for a longer period at a later date.

Meighen's Objection

Mr. Meighen said that criticisms of the former government's method of taking over the shares of the Grand Trunk and Grank Trunk Pacific Railways were absurd. What the shareholders did not realize was that their company "principally by its Grand Trunk Pacific adventure, but as well by its long distance and inefficient management of the road had itself, over a series of years, wrecked the enterprise." The board which had awarded the compensation for the shares was the best that could possibly have been procured. In the method of payment the directors themselves had not only concurred but had actually stipulated the terms.

Mr. Meighen was still speaking when the house adjourned at six o'clock. He will continue this afternoon.

LORD LEVERHULME.

British soap magnate who died this morning.

BRITISH SOAP MAGNATE DEAD

Lord Leverhulme, Head of Great Firm, Died This Morning.

SELF-MADE MAN.

LONDON, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—Viscount Leverhulme died at 4.30 o'clock this morning of pneumonia. He was 74 years of age. One of the wealthiest men in the Empire, Lord Leverhulme was known throughout the world as the head of a vast soap-making enterprise, which possessed ramifications in practically every corner of the globe. From humble beginnings, he made his way in life to the topmost rung of the commercial ladder, his success being largely attributed to his own characteristics of shrewdness, initiative and sound business instinct. In England at Port Sunlight, he left a model industrial town which will stand in itself as a monument to the commercial empire which he created.

Born in Lancashire in 1851, he entered his father's business in that town in 1867. In 1877 he removed to Wigan, and afterwards to Warrington and Wirral.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE AT CAMPBELLFORD

Committee Appointed to Draw Up Schedule For First Half.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7. — A meeting of the Softball League was held last night in the Public Library, four of the eight teams being represented. J. H. Bell was chairman and Rev. C. D. Daniel secretary. On motion of R. Dunk and R. Long, Messrs. Bell, Daniel and C. Montgomery were appointed a committee to draw up a schedule for the first half of the season.

It was decided that all players must be registe ed at least 10 days before the games in which they take part are played. Neutral umpires will be engaged.

On motion of Messrs. Dunk and Montgomery, it was agreed to leave to the executive, which is composed of one representative from each of the eight teams, the decision as to the size of the ball to be used and the rules to govern the League. The executive will meet Tuesday evening at 8.30.

ENTERTAINMENT AT ST. ANDREW'S

Campbellford Young People Put on Splendid Play and Programme.

LARGE AUDIENCE

CAMPBELLFORD, May 7—The schoolroom of St. Andrew's Church was taxed to its capacity last evening when a clever two-act play entitled "Excuse Me," together with an excellent miscellaneous programme was rendered under the auspices of the Young People's Society, Harry Anderson, presiding.

The young people of St. Andrew's have long been known for their dramatic talent and those who were present last evening were unanimous in their opinion that this play was the best yet. There was not a dull moment, and those who were afraid to laugh (if any) should have stayed away. The setting was artistic, and each member of the caste as well as the directress, Miss M. Gourlay, B.A., is deserving of much credit.

The opening number, a vocal solo, "As I Went a Roaming," rendered by Miss Emma Meiklejohn, was heartily encored, the accompaniment being played by Miss Cherrie Turner.

Miss Lillian Hay gave a reading in Scottish dialect, entitled, "M-h-m" which merited much mirth and applause, and to which she responded with a bright number, "My Lady." Mrs. Frank DeCarrol sang in her usual charming manner, "Up From Somerset," and for an encore, "I Passed by Your Window." Between the acts Misses Bertha and Grace Blue and Mr. W. Blue favored the audience with charming Hawaiian music, these numbers as well as the piano solo by Miss Harriet Little were much appreciated.

The cast, in order of appearance, was as follows:

Aloysius Dalrymple, Earl Stephens, B.A.

Katie (Mrs. Harding's maid) Miss Dorothy Ackerman.

Narcissa O'Kee, Miss Freda Nelson.

Pinkerton ean (pill agent), Gerald Bailey.

Elaine Stetson Harding, Miss Hazel Atkinson.

Dora Atherton, Miss Dorothy Milne.

John Harding, John Storie.

Martha Winthrop, Miss Katie McArthur.

Alice Lindsey, Miss Helen McDonald.

Robert Stetson, Mr. Clarence Massie.

Karin (maid) ? ? ?

Act. II.—David Harding's former bachelor aparment in Fair View, Boston, evening of same day.

Brief synopsis:—Mr. Dalrymple, a near-sighted, rather eccentric university student hunting for botanical specimens, wanders into the grounds of the Harding summer home, much to the consternation of the Irish maid, Katie. Narcisso O'Kee and Pinkerton Bean (a pill agent) also intrude the latter, persuading Katie to accept some of his pills as a cure all for la grippe, of which she partakes of so freely, her head is set reeling. Mrs. Elaine Stetson Harding, a bride of six months, makes a charming hostess when she entertains her friends. Miss Dora Atherton, her guest, Martha Winthrop, and Alice Lindsey. Her brother, Robert, decides to write a thrilling but true story. A clever frame-up which forms the basis of this story is carried out by John Harding, who abducts Mrs. Harding and takes her to her husband's former bachelor apartment in the city. This furnishes much excitement and gives Mrs. Harding an opportunity to play in disguise the roll of Katrin, a new maid, who brings out the title "Excuse Me," in a clever manner.

The play required much diffcuilt acting, and each character excelled in his or her part, reflecting much credit not only to him or her self but upon the society.

SENATE HITS BACK.

Motion Proposes Reduction of Lower House to 200.

OTTAWA, May 7.—Reduction in the membership of the House of Commons was moved in the Senate yesterday by Senator Lynch-Staunton. He dealt at some length with the usefulness of the Commons and with the cost of its upkeep. He suggested that a maximum of 200 members would be ample and that the Quebec representation which is the ratio on which membership of other provinces is based should be reduced accordingly. Senator Lynch-Staunton thought that representation should be by district and not by population. Sir George Foster moved adjournment of the debate.

NO CHANGE IN COBOURG PRICES

Farm Produce Sells at Same Price—New Vegetables Coming In.

MEATS ARE CHEAP

COBOURG, May 7.—Prices in Cobourg markets have not varied much this week. Hogs are a little stronger, selling from $12 to $13. Eggs remain around the 25 cent mark with some vendors asking from 26 to 27 cents retail. Duck eggs are 40 cents a dozen. Butter sells generally for 38 cents. In the stores, creamery butter sells for 37 cents and 38 cents, and some brands of dairy butter can be purchased for 35 cents. Seventy-five cents per bag is a top price for potatoes with same bags selling for sixty-five cents, and at the former figure sales are not brisk. One farmer declared he would take his potatoes home rather than sell below seventy-five a bag. Hay sells for twelve dollars to fourteen dollars a ton and chiefly at the former figure at the barns, as there is no scarcity.

From five to six butchers are engaged regularly on Cobourg markets cutting up meats, roasts of beef range from 15 cents to 18 cents pork ham and loin of pork is 23 cents, the best cuts of veal run from 25 cents to 30 cents. Cheaper cuts in all these meats are sold at various prices. Cured ham and bacon are sold on the inner market.

In poultry chickens (year-old birds) sell from 25 cents to 30 cents a poun dand fowl about the same rate Ducks are 30 cents to 35 cents, and few geese or turkeys are offered.

There has been more maple syrup than usual offered on Cobourg market this spring, it being now, however, past for this season. Very nice syrup retailed for 60 cents a quart, and some for 50 a quart. A feature of the spring market at Cobourg are cucumbers, which have been preserved in the brine, and which are offered at $1.00 a pail. Cabbage sells for 10 cents and 15 cents and in the stores the new cabbage is 10 cents a pound. Carrots sell from 20 cents to 30 cents a peck on the market, and new carrots are 10 cents a bunch, with sometimes 3 bunches for 25 cents. Parsnips are 2 for 10c or 3 for 10 cents, according to size, and beets (old) are 30 cents a peck. The new beets sell for 10 cents a bunch. Green onions are 5 cents and 10 cents a bunch, and dried sage sells for 5 cents a bunch.

Rhubarb made its appearance on the market on Saturday for the first time this season and sold for 10 cents a bunch or three bunches for 25 cents.

New potatoes are offered in the stores and sell at the moderate price (for the season) of four pounds for 25 cents.

WEDDING BELLS

HEFFERNAN—NOLAN

The marriage was solemnized recently at St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Lakefield, by Rev. J. J. Garvey, in the presence of a large number of friends of Mary Bernardette, eldest daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Albert Nolan, and William Joseph Heffernan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heffernan of Douro.

Miss Doreen Johnston presided at the organ and played the Wedding March, while the young ladies of St. Paul's Choir, Lakefield, sang appropriate hymns.

The bride entered the church learning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Francis Nolan. She was becomingly attired in rose colored Georgette heavily beaded with silver, with stockings to match; satin slippers and hat of sand. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bridesmaid, Miss Katherine Buckley, cousin of the bride, wore salmon rose satin-faced Canton crepe, with hat and stockings to match, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Robert Heffernan, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Joseph Nolan, where a sumptuous repast was served to 75 guests. Rev. J. J. Garvey was present.

During the evening a jolly little dance was held, attended by over 300 of the young friends of the bride and bridegroom.

The numerous and costly presents testify to the popularity in which the young people are held. They received, besides many presents, $175.

The groom's gift to the bride was a rope of pearls, and to the bridesmaid, a gold bar pin. Among some of the guests noticed were Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lawless, Dr. Kennedy, Lionel Lawless, Emma Kennedy, Margaret Bissionette, Margaret and Pearl Charlton, Miss Ray, Margaret and Josephine Allen, and Mr. Leo Allan of Lakefield. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hygnes and Master Joseph and Miss Lillian Hygnes, and Theresa Fitzgerald of Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Heffernan will reside on the groom's beautiful farm home in South Douro.

BRANTFORD'S EXPERIENCE.

The city of Brantford, it is announced, has not had one case of diphtheria among its school children in the past eight months, although the disease has occurred among adults and among children not old enough to attend school.

The immunity of the Brantford school children so far as diphtheria is concerned is not the result of chance, but a triumph of medical science.

The children were first tested to discover which were susceptible to the disease and those who showed a positive reaction were immunized by being treated with diphtheria toxin anti-toxin.

The result speaks for itself—not a pupil in Brantford in eight months who contracted diphtheria.

A similar programme is being adopted in regard to scarlet fever.

The susceptibles are located by means of the Schick test and similar preventive measures taken.

Once the value of stopping diphtheria and scarlet fever epidemics before they start is realized, it will be considered almost a case of criminal negligence when a child contracts one or other of these diseases.

A BOWLING GREEN WANTED.

The lawn bowlers have applied to the City Council for the use of a portion of King Edward Park as a bowling green, and their request should receive careful consideration.

When the bowlers last year applied for a portion of Central Park for the same purpose the Examiner opposed the request, and believes it was justified in doing so inasmuch as Central Park, in the heart of the city and surrounded by some fine public buildings, should be made a beauty spot and maintained as such rather than turned into a recreation ground.

The same argument does not apply in the case of King Edward Park, which has been largely used as an athletic field, and where a bowling green with a neat club-house and carefully kept sward would be an asset rather than otherwise.

Toronto has blazed the trail by establishing civic bowling greens in several of the city parks, but the local bowlers are not going that far.

They are willing to bear the expense of establishing the green if they are given the use of part of a park that has not been developed.

If there is any way in which their request can be granted by the Council the matter should be earnestly considered.

LEARNING TO SWIM.

The Peterboro Y.M.C.A. is to be congratulated upon its decision to hold a learn-to-swim week and to bring here for the occasion one of the best known swimming instructors on this Continent, Mr. George H. Corson of Toronto.

Vast strides have been made in this city in recent years in learning the art of swimming, and the majority of young people of both sexes have picked up the rudiments of the science of taking care of themselves in the water.

It is a splendid thing that this should be the case in view of the proximity of Peterboro to many lake and river resorts, and the large number of citizens who spend their vacation at such places.

The summer holiday is more enjoyable and not so great a source of worry when all members of the party have mastered the knack of swimming.

There are still many people in Peterboro who have not learned to swim, and the coming of Mr. Corson, who has the faculty of being able to teach the art in a lesson or two, should be a boon to them.

The Y.M.C.A. has done much to develop a love for swimming among Peterboro boys, and its latest action in making available the services of such a famous instructor as Mr. Corson should be taken advantage of by many people who have hitherto not had a chance to learn under proper conditions.

CIVIC BALL GROUNDS.

The City Council of Kingston has decided to give Kingston's Central Ontario League and St. Layrence League teams the free use of the Fair Grounds for the season, this being the third year in which this property owned by the city has been available without any charge.

The Council's action is approved by the Kingston newspapers, and the Standard editorially says:

"The City Council is to be commended for its wise action in giving the use of the Fair Grounds free of charge to the baseball teams of the city. These teams in the last few years helped materially to put Kingston on the baseball map and the advertising that has come to the cities as a result of this has been of inestimable value.

"In the Southern States, and especially in Florida, the people there so greatly appreciate the value of the publicity given by the presence of the big league teams there for training purposes that city after city has built at civic expense magnificent parks for the teams which they have turned over absolutely free of charge, despite the expenditure on them of thousands of dollars.

"Kingston might well take a leaf from the book of experience of these progressive cities. The way to move ahead is to move ahead—not stand still or go backward."

The contrast between Kingston's treatment of its ball club and the attitude taken by the City Council in Peterboro toward the local organization is marked.

The Peterboro Council not only refused to furnish a free grounds, but declined to accept a rental fee of $500 for the James Stevenson Park.

BORROWING WITH PROFIT.

The people of this community began a little transaction in borrowing on Sunday morning last which not only avoids the payment of any interest charges, but actually yields a dividend, says the Ottawa Journal. By a simple note of hand, running for a term of five months, they took a loan of one hour of sunlight from the morning and added it to the evening. It cost them nothing; it will give them an hour of extra daylight at the end of each day for health-promoting recreation and social enjoyment. The value of that is inestimable.

Nobody experienced the slightest inconvenience, except those who wanted to. From now until the end of September next there will be twenty-four hours in each day, just as there was before this borrowing of sunlight took place. The clock will still be the arbiter of time, precisely as it has been; for standard time is unavoidably arbitrary, and can never be, except at one spot in each zone, "God's time."

Here and there a few people, very few, will be inconvenienced by this change. That could not be helped. The common good, however, always rises above individual rights. The farmer, who bitterly opposes this movement, is not governed by city clocks, except when he comes to the city. Daylight and dark remain unchanged, so far as he is concerned. His habits and the habits of city people are different; but that is no reason why he should be narrow in a matter which affects him very lightly indeed. A spirit of give-and-take always gets us around things of that nature, and certainly daylight saving for his city customers is not worth any hard feelings on his part.

AMERICA AND EUROPE.

The new American Ambassador has made his first speech in London. As he came straight from the White House and the State Department in Washington—and as he had a prepared speech to read—it may be safely assumed that what he had to say was the official announcement of the present American policy. The gist of it was contained in a paragraph or two. Speaking of possible American assistance in restoring war-shattered Europe, he said:

"The full measure of American helpfulness can be obtained only when the American people are assured that the time for destructive methods and policies has passed and that the time for peaceful upbuilding has come. They are asking themselves if that time has in fact arrived. And that question they cannot today answer. The answer must be given to them. It must come from the peoples of Europe who alone can make the decision. If the answer is peace, then you may be sure that America will help to her generous utmost. But if—which God forbid—that answer shall continue confused and doubtful, then I fear that those helpful processes which are now in motion must inevitably cease."

A detached and indolent gentleman was watching a lady trying to hang a picture on a wall.

"Can't I help you?" he asked, but making no move to do so.

"Yes," remarked a cynical observer. "Bring the picture over where he is sitting and he will help you."

There is no one in Washington who wants peace in Europe half so much as everyone in Europe does. The Europeans are doing the best they can to escape from "destructive methods and policies," and to concentrate on "peaceful upbuilding." They are not in need of lecturing or exhortation, but of practical help. If the Americans do not want to help, they might at least "cut the chatter."

But the Americans ought to want to help. If they had one-tenth as much skill in penetrating the international situation and its possible future developments as they have in seeing right through and all around their home business problems, they would realize that the two nations which most keenly and speedily need a peaceful and united Europe are the British Empire and the United States—with the United States first.

They would think of that Japanese tanker which was not taking a pleasure cruise when it followed the loudly-advertised "American Armada" to Hawaii. They would ask themselves what would be their position if the yellow races ever again challenged the supremacy of the white races. They would perceive that—whether they relish it or not—they are in the very front trench, the Philippines, with the British not far behind. They will be—if trouble ever comes—the first object of attack.

And then they might be very sorry if the white Continent of Europe were so divided by hate and shaken by fear as to be immobilized. They would be sorrier still if Europe were so dangerous a powdermine as to immobilize the British nation which dare not send its fleets away for fear of what might happen in the North Sea or the English Channel.

Established European peace is a paramount interest to the United States. It is not a subject to be dismissed with a superior wave of the hand as if any American effort in that line were the purest philanthropy. It may easily be for even our great neighbor a matter of national life—or death.

Of course, nothing in the world will make the Americans believe it—yet. The majority of them think nothing of slapping China across the jaw—with Chang-Tso-Lin master of Pekin and his half-Russian garrison in possession of Shanghai. Chang-Tso-Lin is just from Manchuria, which is next-door to Japan. They are not interested in the Japanese-Soviet Treaty signed last January in Pekin, which the Berlin Lokalanzeiger says contains secret clauses binding the two nations to military and naval co-operation and to a joint program in China.

None of these things move them and, by the same token, neither do they move the parish politicians at Ottawa. We are all safe behind the purple seas. Yet the Americans' own naval experts tell them that if they had to fight a war with Japan today in the Western Pacific, they would be soundly beaten!

What Washington should do is to stop giving Europe pious and platitudinous advice on a subject about which Europe knows infinitely more than any of us in the Western Hemisphere can; but to turn on Europe the shining batteries of its gold reserve and its financial power and benevolently compel the warring nations to beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if this young fellow Cobb with Detroit will be quite a batter when he gets some experience.

There seems to be a certain liveliness on the Progressive front.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition should be an eye-opening demonstration of just what is made in Peterboro.

It seems to be a case of Robert Forke, M.P., deserting the driver's seat unless he is furnished with a new Whip.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, May 6.—"Go easy" is the word being sent out to cattle shippers in the country from some of the commission men here, in reference to shipping in the heavy export cattle for next week. This class of cattle were shipped in last Monday largely in excess of requirements, and the result has been a heavy hold over all week, about 18 loads, it was said, were still unsold when the market opened this morning. Rogers and Maybee it is expected, will probably take the bulk of these at this week's reduced prices, and if they do, there will not be needed many more cattle to make up the requirements for next week, at present estimated to be about 700 cattle, including stores, bulls and heavy steers.

In the butcher section today there was fairly active trade, practically all offerings being taken by the local packers at prices steady with Monday's opening.

Fat cows continue firm.

Calf trade very draggy, bulk of receipts of very poor quality.

Sheep and lambs steady with light receipts.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 1-8.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 6.—The egg market is reported steady at the recent advance. There is a feeling in the East that a reaction is due as offerings from the Prairie Provinces are heavier and Eastern dealers will have to counter these by offering at lower prices. Some are of the opinion that the market is at the peak.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 6—Wheat prices took a big swing upward today, about six cents a bushel. Immense purchasing for Europe was chiefly responsible. Export buying was said to total 3,750,000 bushels, inculding 2,230,000 bushels for Spain. Corn and rye advanced almost as much as wheat. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 3 to 5 1-4 cents above yesterday's finish, with May delivery ranging from $1.65 1-2 to $1.66, and July $1.54 1-4 to $1.54 1-2. Corn closed at 1 to 5 5-8 cents net gain; oats, 3-4 to 1 3-8 cents up, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 27 cents.

Announcement that world supplies of wheat had decreased 13,411,000 bushels for the week tended to accelerate the wheat price advance based on the sudden enlargement of export buying. The total available world stock of wheat today was figured at 189,641,000 bushels, against 229,763,000 bushels a year ago. Today's wildest jump in price, though, came earlier, immediately after word went roun that the Spanish Government had bought wheat on a huge scale, and that much of the wheat purchased would come from the United States. Topmost prices for the day, nevertheless, were only reached in the final hour.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 6.—In spite of the improved enquiry from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today, the volume of business was not large owing to the fact that there were many bids in exporters' hands that could not be accepted on account of the further advance in prices at Winnipeg. A few sales of Manitoba wheat and Canadian Western oats were made. The demand from Canadian and United States exporters for ocean grain room from this port was better and a fair amount of business was done with some United Kingdom ports booked up for May-June loading.

The trade in cash grain in the local market was rather quiet, and only sales of odd loads of No. 1 feed oats were reported at 3 1-4 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, and No. 2 feed at 1 1-2 cents per bushel over, c.i.f. Montreal. The market for spot supplies was strong and prices for car lots were advanced another cent per bushel.

The feature of the local flour situation was the stronger feeling in the market for spring wheat grades of flour and millers generally marked up prices 20 cents per barrel which makes a net rise so far for the month of May of 40 cents per barrel. This was due to the pronounced strength that prevailed in the Winnipeg cash wheat market. The volume of business with the United Kingdom and the Continent was reported larger and the market in this respect was rather more active, but the domestic trade continues unsatisfactory for the season of the year.

In sympathy with the above and the fact that Ontario millers are demanding much higher prices for Or

A THOUGHT.

A CANADIAN QUOTATION.

I have mountain peaks that stand up grandly high
I have sunsets full of glory on the sky,
I have beaches washed by ocean's rolling tide.
I have avenues along the river's side,
I have wildwoods filled with rares ferns and flowers,
I have song birds singing sweetly in the bowers,
I have apple blossoms smiling on my trees,
I have clover fields of sweetness for my bees,
I have hawthorn trees that love me in the glen,
I have hemlocks that still call "Come back again,"
I have pathways where I wander free from care,
I am just a happy, hopeful millionaire.

The Original Flaked Lye

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

Maggie opened the door of Mother Gregory's large and imposing house for Glory.

"How do you do, Maggie?" Glory said as naturally as she could. Maggie nodded grimly.

Mother Gregory was sitting in a Sleepy Hollow chair before the fire. The parlor with its heavy walnut furniture and oil paintings was in shadow.

"Did you want me for anything . . . special?" Glory faltered. She was afraid of Mother Gregory as she never had been afraid of anybody before in all her life.

"Something very special . . . if you call it that!" the older woman snapped. The thin nostrils of her Roman nose dilated, angrily.

"Who—who was that man you had in your car in the country this afternoon?" she asked. "And what were you doing in such a God-forsaken spot with him?"

"Oh, it's not so God-forsaken as all that!" Glory answered with all the courage she sould command. "You were there, weren't you?"

"Yes, and on a perfectly good errand . . . collecting the rent from the tenant out on our farm," Mother Gregory answered. "Now, I've been frank with you . . . you be frank with me! Who was the man?"

"You wouldn't know him . . . Stanley Wayburn, the actor," Glory answered. She lifted her head and went on bravely.

"I just happened to bump into him . . . and offered him a lift," she said. "What makes you always thing the worst of me?"

"Well, on this particular occasion," she said, "the thing that makes me think so badly of you is that I plainly saw the fellow's arm around you, Gloria! I was right behind your car for a good half-mile before your friend saw me."

"Spying on me!" Glory cried disdainfully. "A fine thing to do!"

Mother Gregory laughed with grim triumph.

"You'll stand a little watching, I guess, young woman!" she said. "And now, look here, I'm not going to Dick with this tale. I'm going to let him find you out for himself . . ."

"He wouldn't believe you if you did tell him. And that's all that stops you! Don't think for a minute I don't know it!" interrupted Glory. "And another thing . . . Mr. Wayburn did not have his arm around me when you saw us! It may have been lying along the back of the seat, but that's all . . . I'll tell Dick about it myself."

She turned on her heel and went out of the house.

* * *

Glory intended to tell Dick all about her chance meeting with Stanley Wayburn, that night.

But when he came home, long after midnight, he told her that he was going out of town for two or three days on business. And she forgot about Wayburn for the time.

"I'm going to borrow Ranghild's alarm clock," Dick said. "I've got to get up at six to-morrow morning. I think I'll pack my bag to-night."

Glory watched him sleepily as he moved around the room, folding shirts and under-clothing into his kit.

"Aren't you sorry for the way you talked to me to-day down in your office?" she asked.

"Sure, I'm sorry. I was a brute," Dick said shortly. He did not kiss her, or make a move to come near her.

In the morning when Glory awoke he was gone.

While she was having her coffee the telephone rang.

"I'm psychic . . . I knew it was you," Glory lilted when she heard Stanley Wayburn's deep voice saying "Hello."

"Are you going to be home this afternoon?" Stan asked. "An actor out of a job is a pretty lonely fellow. I need cheering up, Russet."

"And cheering up you shall have," Glory cooed. "How about three o'clock?"

"Three o'clock is a long way off, but it will do," answered Stan. "I'll see you then, Russet."

Glory had hardly set the phone down on the bedside table before its bell whirred again. This time it was May Seymour calling.

"What are you doing with yourself, old thing?" May asked. "Want to go downtown for lunch and a movie?"

Glory giggled.

"I can't, darling," she said. "I have a heavy date with the best-looking man in the world at three o'clock."

* * *

There was a long silence.

"I think you're kidding me, Glory," May's voice when it came over the wire, was puzzled.

"No, I'm not. Honest Injun, Stan Wayburn is coming here this afternoon to have a cup of tea with me," she said.

"What'll Dick say?"

"Dick won't know. He's gone out of town on business," answered Glory. "He's peeved to death at me, anyway, just now, because I spent a bit of his hoarded cash. I don't think he cares what I do as long as I don't bother him. . . ."

"Well," May remarked thoughtfully "your friend Wayburn is good-looking but I'd be careful if I were you. There are queer stories floating around about him. The men don't like him."

Glory didn't answer.

"I think I'll come over to chaperone you, baby," May said suddenly. "Perhaps I'll bring Jim along, so it won't look queer to your play-acting friend. . . . We'll make it a regular, sure-'nough party."

When Ranghild came upstairs for the breakfast tray, Glory told her she could have the afternoon off.

"But before you go make a lot of sandwiches, please," she said. "And see that there's a good fire burning in the living-room. And phone the drug store for some cigarets."

Glory couldn't make up her mind which of her new dresses to wear that afternoon. She stood thoughtfully before her clothes-closet.

Not the black velvet. She had worn that the afternoon before.

The old-rose? . . . No.

She held it against her, and walked over to the mirror.

Yes, she would wear that. It made her amber eyes look almost green, her hair like molten copper. It was what May called a "mean" dress!

Glory put it on.

She brushed all the wave from her hair and bouhd it close around her head with a silver ribbon.

"A bit over-dressed, but . . . stunning just the same," she said to the image of herself in the long mirrot.

* * *

When Glory trailed downstairs, Ranghild stared.

"I've been trying to get the drug store on the wire, but the phone is out of order, I think," the maid said, her eyes wide with admiration.

"Shall I go next door to telephone?"

"No, never mind," Glory told her. "Be sure to lock the kitchen door behind you when you go out."

She went into the living-room and sat down before the fire, trying to read. But the words danced before her eyes.

After an eternity the bell rang. Glory opened the front door. May and Jim stood there.

"Well, look at you, all dressed up like a broken arm!" cried May as she danced into the house. "Isn't she grand, Jim? And me in my old sport rags!"

May pulled down the belt of her white sweater, and ran a comb through her short black hair.

"There! I'm all fussed up, too!" she said in her lively way. "I don't see your little boy friend, anywhere. Where is he . . . hiding?"

Glory laughed.

"He hasn't come," she said. "It's not quite three o'clock, and he has manners, he has! He wouldn't come ahead of time. He must be fashion-nably late!"

"I suppose Jim and I are guilty o a social error by arriving on time!"f observed May. "Well, we brought the life of the party along with us. So forgive us, dearie!"

She showed Glory what was inside the crown of the sport hat she was carrying . . . a large silver flask!

Glory's heart sank. She didn't want a "wild" party. She had looked forward to this quiet afternoon with Stan. She was sorry that she had told May that Stan was coming.

"Here comes Wayburn up the street now," said Jim, as he started for the kitchen, flask in hand. And in a minute afterward the bell rang.

May and Jim disappeared into the kitchen to make high balls while Glory opened the door for Stan.

* * *

Wayburn threw off his top coat as he entered. Then without warning he turned and took her in his arms. Glory pushed him away.

"What's the idea?" asked Stan. "I wanted to see you alone. . . .to talk to you. . . . What did you ask them for? Afraid of me?"

Glory shook her head again.

"I didn't ask them, silly," she said. "They asked themselves, as soon as they heard that Dick was out of town."

"Dick out of town . . ." Wayburn groaned. "And we could have had the whole afternoon to ourselves . . ."

"You weren't so wild for my companionship a year ago when you could have had it, you know," Glory said sharply.

"You'll never forgive me for that, will you infant?" the actor asked. He put one finger under her soft chin and raised her face to his.

Just then Glory heard the swinging door of the pantry creak on its hinges.

"Look out!" she whispered. "They are coming!"

The curtains of the living-room parted in. And in marched May with the platter of Ranghild's sandwiches, followed by Jim, carrying four tall glasses of gingerale. Under his arm was tucked the silver flask.

Stan sat down in Dick's favorite armchair.

"This," he said, when he had greeted May and Jim "begins to look like a regular party., I'm glad I came!"

BRIDAL COUPLE ELUDED FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tinney Anticipated Reception at Cavanville.

END OF HONEYMOON.

CAVAN, May 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tinney returned from their wedding trip on Tuesday evening. They will reside in Cavanville.

When the local from Toronto drew into Cavan station, shortly after eight p.m., there was a merry crowd of friends waiting to welcome Mr. Tinney and serenade him and his wife to their home. There were, perhaps, ten or a dozen cars in the procession, well provided with instruments to furnish music. All that marred this pleasure was the fact that the wedding party got off at Dranoel, where they were met by friends, instead of Cavan.

Mrs. E. Syer has returned from a couple of weeks' visit with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clegg, in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Clegg will go to Los Angeles, the latter part of May, to attend a R. R. convention.

TRIBUTE

From the Lakefield Correspondent of The Examiner.

In The Examiner we read of the last rites of the Christian religion having been bestowed upon the late lamented Mr. Ernest G. McKeeley, and that friends and associates in large numbers were present at this ceremonial, thus attesting their regard and affection for their deceased friend and comrade, and this was as it should be. In the passing of Mr. McKeeley it seems fitting that at least some of the outposts of The Examiner with which his life was more or less closely linked, should be heard from at this time, and we of the Lakefield quota beg to state that we also are of those who mourn the loss of a valued friend whose like we may not know again.

In the immediate circle of his friends were those whose presence he craved during his patient suffering. These did not fail him in the least degree and they were privileged to enter the inner portals of his life where friendship rejects the human phase and partakes of a fellowship sacred and divine, and now he is "still with them, but unvexed by any pain; no crushing care to weary him again, but by his presence sweet, unseen yet near, their lonely hours to cheer."

But there was also an outer circle in which were many who stood aloof, but watching with a yearning sympathy the progress of that inexorable disease as it ate away the tabernacle until the brave spirit was set free. These too deplore the loss of a friend above the ordinary. They too realize that this young man who has passed to the Higher service when just on the threshold of the big things this life has to offer, left record of integrity of purpose, of devotion to duty, of fortitude in suffering, of loyalty to friends and associates such as few in mature years achieve, and they are deeply sensible, we are sure, of the lessons conveyed by such a life. If they are thus led to pursue the ideals which animated and beckoned and chained him in their pursuit, his brief life will not have been in vain.

"Still with us in the land where we shall rest,
When we a little further on have pressed;
There just as tender and as true as ever,
He shall be with us still, forever."

THE MARKETS.

tario grades of flour for nearby and future delivery, the local winter wheat flour market was stronger and prices were advanced 20 cents per barrel. They was some enquiry for supplies and a moderate amount of business was done.

An increased enquiry from the United States for bran and shorts was the outstanding feature of the millfeed market. The prices bid in cases were satisfactory and a fair trade was done. The local and country demand continues fair and on the whole the market was more active. There was no change in prices for standard grades of rolled oats, but the undertone to the market was very firm.

The receipts of butter were 55 packages, as compared with 619 for the same day last week, and 313 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade in butter was reported quiet owing to the fact that there was no improvement in the demand for supplies from any source which would indicate that buyers have ample stocks on hand for the time being and as the general feeling is that prices may possibly go still lower soon, they do not seem disposed to operate for future requirements at present. There was no further change in prices, but the undertone to the market was easy. No. 1 pasteurized held creamery was offering at 32 1-2 cents per lb. No. 1 creamery at 31 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 30 1-2 cents per lb.

Cheese business here was very quiet, with the tone of the market easier at a decline of 1-8 cent per lb., Western No. 1 white being quoted at 17 7-8 cents per lb., No. 1 colored at 17 5-8 cents per lb., Eastern No. 1 white at 17 5-8 cents per lb., and No. 1 colored at 17 3-8 cents per lb.

NEW ORGAN FOR ALNWICK CHURCH

St. James' Anglican Church Receives Handsome Instrument as Memorial.

HASTINGS, May 7.—A fine new dark oak chapel organ has been donated to St. Jame's Anglican church in Alnwick township, which is part of Hastings Parish, by Mr. Edward Weir, as a memorial to his wife and daughter, who passed away some years ago.

The organ was used for the first time on Sunday morning. Miss Cuffe of Peterborough rendered very effectively, "My God, My Father, is any hour so sweet?"

Rev. W. A. Pippen rector of the church expressed his appreciation and thanks to the donor and accepted the gift as a memorial and gift to God.

60 BILLIONS TRADED.

Record Year on New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 7.— The aggregate market value of all securities traded in on the New York stock exchange exceeded $60,000,000,000 on January 1, 1925, the largest total in the history of the exchange, it was revealed in the annual report of President E. H. H. Simmons, made public to-day.

"The past year in finance," said Mr. Simmons, "has been significant chiefly as revealing the financial pre-eminence and stability attained by this country since the war in its full scope and its complete strength.

"Won't you play with me?"

THIS little girl is speaking to you from the store windows of thousands of Congoleum merchants throughout the Dominion. She represents the thousands of happy children who have gained their mothers' closer companionship through Congoleum Gold-Seal Art-Rugs. For with these rugs on their floors, mothers have more time for their children, more time for the things that every woman enjoys.

Look for Me!

From May 8th to May 16th I will be playing in the windows of leading stores wherever you live. Be sure to look for me.

I will identify the authorized Gold-Seal Congoleum dealers in your town.

Spring cleaning and moving time offer an exceptional opportunity to change from old-fashioned, dust-collecting carpets to easily cleaned Congoleum Gold-Seal Rugs. They are far less expensive—will leave you money for draperies and other furnishings—and in addition offer a charming variety of beautiful patterns for every room.

No Sweeping or Beating

No wonder housekeepers everywhere are using Congoleum Gold-Seal Rugs all through the house. For all the cleaning a Congoleum Art-Rug ever needs is a quick going-over with a damp mop. How different from the tiresome sweeping and beating that woven floor-coverings demand! And how infinitely more sanitary is the smooth, waterproof Congoleum surface.

Lie Flat without Fastening

Unlike many woven floor-coverings, Congoleum Art-Rugs are made in one piece. Another advantage: these rugs hug the floor; never curl at the edges, never wrinkle.

Low in Price—Big in Value

Value! That's the outstanding feature of Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs. In quality, durability and in range of patterns they are the biggest money's worth in floor-coverings today.

YOUR GARDEN

GLADIOLUS CULTURE.

The increasing number of gladiolus growers witnesses to the popularity of this splendid flower. The hybridists have greatly improved upon the original gladiolus and developed new types as well as many new colors and color combinations. For the home owner with limited space to grow flowers, they are ideal, and as cut flowers gladioli are exceptionally fine and will last a long time in water.

There are three main types. The plain petalled; the Primulinus hybrids and the ruffled petal. The plain petalled type we all are familiar with even though it be in the guise of a new color. Primulinus hybrids are distinguished mainly for their varying shades of yellow, orange, saffron and pastel tints. Their small, hooded flowers are airily poised on graceful slender stems. The newer ruffled sorts have as their name implies ruffled edges to the petal which give a pleasing, graceful effect, much less stiff than the plain type.

Time to Plant — The corms (bulbs) may be planted as soon as danger of frost is past. If you divide up your varieties into three or four lots and plant them at intervals of two weeks you can greatly prolong the season of bloom.

Depth—Four inches deep or more in mellow soil. Four-eight inches apart in the row is sufficient for garden purposes, but when grown simply for cut flowers they may be placed closer.

General Culture—Choose a new location each year if you possibly can as it is an advantage not to plant gladioli in the same place oftener than every third year. When the soil is in proper condition, spade deeply and thoroughly pulverize it. If manure has been used the previous fall so much the better. As planting time use a high-grade potato fertilizer at the rate of 5 lbs. per 100 square feet. Liquid fertilizer or prepared sheep manure can be applied to the soil near the rows once every week or ten days. Exercise great care, however, to avoid too strong an application. Nitrate of soda (one tablespoonful to 2 gallons of water for each dozen plants) may be applied after the buds show color. Keep the soil well worked and do not let a crust form in the rows between the plants. After the blooming spikes begin to show cultivate only to a depth of two inches. If you have a supply of water handy, frequent and thorough waterings of the soil in the beds in the evening is a splendid stimulant and gives the blooms much greater sun resisting powers and lasting qualities. Be sure, however, to cultivate the soil early the following forenoon, when the plants begin to ripen, watering should be discontinued.

Staking—Slender stakes of wood or bamboo make good supports at blooming time for the spikes. Paint them a good green color. Horizontal lines of wires may be used. These should be stretched tightly between firmly set posts. A few more stakes set at intervals in the row will add to the efficiency of the system. Tie the blooming spike to the support with raffia or strips of cloth rather than cord.

Blooming—Gladioli foliage should never be cut right down to the ground when cut flowers are desired. Always allow at least four leaves to remain which are necessary to supply the corm with nourishment for another season. This is important, and if not done will result in the loss of the corm. Best results are obtained by cutting the spikes when the first flowers are open and letting them bloom in the house. Each morning wilted blossoms should be removed and a little of the stem cut off. It is better to make this cut with a sharp knife on a long slope rather than at right angles. Then rinse the stems and place them in fresh water. If placed in a cool cellar overnight they will be greatly refreshed and improved.

To make a satisfactory choice of varieties from the exceptionally long list of offerings is very difficult. There are a number of good varieties, however, which will make an excellent nucleus for a good collection.

Varieties.

White — Peace, White Giant, White Glory.

Creamy White—Mrs. Dr. Norton, Mary Pickford.

Dark Red—War.

Salmon Pink—Halley, Prince of Wales.

Light Pink—Mrs. Frank Pendleton, America.

Pink—Gretchen Zang, Evelyn Kirtland.

Yellow—Schwaben, Niagara.

Mauve—Herada.

Purple—Baron Hulot.

Primulinus Hybrids — Maiden's Blush, Orange Brilliant, Souvenir, Alice Tiplady.

Ruffled—Pride of Goshen, Kanderdii Glory, E. J. Shaylor, Mona Lisa.

These are more or less standard and as one's enthusiasm grows, other varieties and newer introductions may be tried. There are great possibilities in trying to raise some seedings of one's own.

NORWOOD CHORAL SOCIETY.

The second annual concert of this society on Friday, was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience and the, in several instances, exacting numbers on the very well arranged programme, were rendered by the choir, under the able leadership of their conductor, Mr. G. M. Wright, in a very pleasing manner.

For such a small body of singers the largeness and roundness of tone obtained in the big numbers on the programme was surprising, very little tension being evident. The delicate shading was especially noticeable in such numbers as "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," S. C. Foster, and "My Ain Folk," Laura G. Lemoir, the latter most effectively rendered and, to my mind, the most most perfect bit of ensemble obtained under the baton of Mr. Wright. The heavy work was reserved for the second part of the programme, the first number, Maunder's Cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace" being well sung, though, speaking generally, taken at a slower tempo than I have been accustomed to. In this, Miss B. E. Pearce, A.T.C.M., with careful and scholarly attention to both text and music, produced the effect desired and expected in the soprano solos. The baritone soloist, Mr. D. G. Melton, of Peterborough, particularly in the Aria "Behold Now is the Accepted Time" etc., declaimed in fine, vibrant tones the stirring words, and in the other solos of the cantata, his work was artistic and pleasing. He sang several songs in the first part of the programme to the audibly expressed pleasure of the audience. Many of us know the difficulty of keeping a singing organization together for any length of time in a small community, so I think Mr. Wright, the officers and the society itself, are to be congratulated on the musical and financial result of their second season's concert. Mrs. F. B. Garlick accompanied the choir and also Mr. Melton. The solo pianist was Mr. Gordon Hallett, of Toronto, where he is assistant to Paul Wells. Extremely modest and youthful, one would venture to say that here is a great artist in the making. His interpretation of "La Campanella" by Liszt, would alone mark his peculiarly pianistic ability. Personally I enjoyed the delightful etherial quality obtained by Mr. Hallett in "The Lark" by Glinka-Balakirew. "The Perpetirum Mobile" of Weber was played not only at a rapid tempo, but with a crystal clarity, altogether delightful. By the continuous applause Mr. Hallett must have been convinced that his work had given pleasure to many. The concluding number on the programme, and to me the most interesting, was Dudley Buck's "Hymns to Music" in Motette form. The writer sincerely congratulates the conductor and choir on their work generally and particularly in this number.

Wm. C. Thompson,
Organist, etc., St. Luke's.

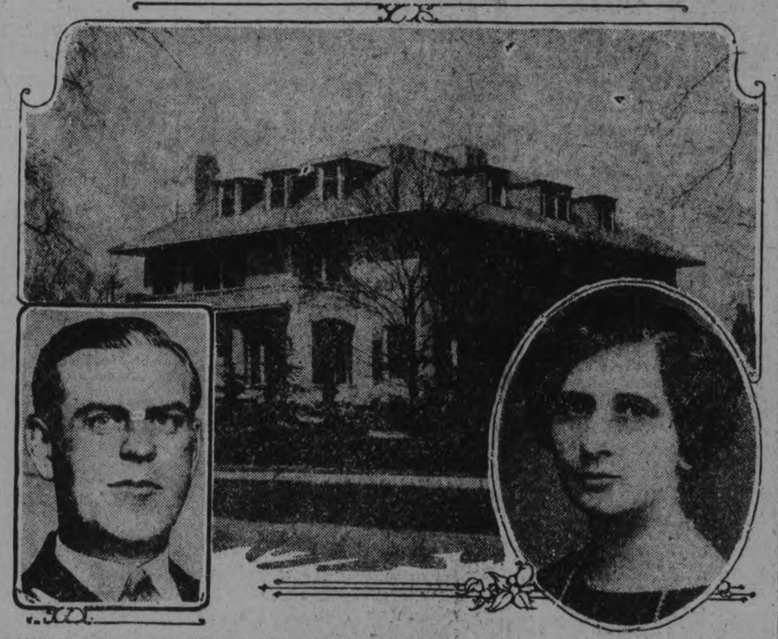
MET THROUGH CHURCH WORK—BUILD $3,000,000 HOME



ABOVE IS MRS. JOHN DODGE AND ALFRED G. WILSON WHO WILL BE MARRIED SOON, AND THE DODGE HOME.

DETROIT, Mich. May 7. — A common interest in church affairs, which led gradually to a personal insonal interest in each other, was the bond that united Mrs. John F. Dodge (widow of the automobile manufacturer) and Alfred G. Wilson, business man of this city.

Engagement of the couple has been announced and the wedding will take place in the near future.

Work has been started on the new $3,000,000 Dodge Home in Grosse Point, which was left unfinished when John F. Dodge died. The wedding ceremony, it is believed, will be held at the home.

Through church work the couple were often together and in time a romance began which will carry them to the altar rail.

Wilson is 42 years old and was born in Lawrenceburg, Ind. He was graduated from the literary department of Beloit College and engaged in the lumber busines in Rhineland Wis., until 1919, when he came to Detroit.

Mrs. Dodge inherited the bulk of the vast estate left by her husband, sharing it with five of his six children, one son John Duval Dodge, being cut off with $150 a month for life.

The estate later made a settlement with the son for $1,500,000.

When John Dodge died in 1920 his estate was valued at $36,942,727. This has vastly increased however. The recent sale of the Dodge Brothers plant indicated the heirs of John Dodge would have approximately $75,000,000 to divide.

Mrs. Horace Dodge, sister-in-law of Mrs. John Dodge, who also lives here is expected to figure prominently at the wedding ceremony.

MRS. HORACE DODGE, SR.

EMILY CEMETERY TO BE IMPROVED

New Caretaker Appointed—Omemee A.Y.P.A. Elect Officers.

OMEMEE, May 7. — A meeting of the Emily Cemetery Company, was held in the cemetery on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mr. R. H. Johnston, secretary-treasurer, O. G. Williamson and the Directors, J. T. Beatty, Walter Magee, Gabriel Switzer, William Robinson and Harry Lamb were present and after a thorough inspection of the grounds decided that much improvement was necessary in order to beautify the burying place. In view of the resignation of the caretaker, Mr. Arthur Williamson, which position he has held for the past eight years, tenders were called for, and four were received. Mr. Paragreen of Mount Pleasant, an English gardener, was awarded the position, and is to devote four days a week during the next five months to the care of the cemetery.

The windmill and tank, which have not been in use for some time, were disposed of to Mr. Harry Deyell for a reasonable sum and the well is to be drilled in the near future.

Circular letters are being sent to all the lot holders to cooperate with the directors and as this little cemetery, which is on the main thoroughfare, never has been noted as a place of beauty, all will look forward with interest to the improvements about to be made.

Omemee A.Y.P.A. Annual.

The annual meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of Christ church was held Monday evening in the basement of the church. One of the interesting topics discussed was the formation of a tennis club. It is hoped that the new tennis court will this summer be brought into use. The secretary Miss Mabel Rowan, gave an excellent report of the year's activities while Miss Irene Clemett, the treasurer, submitted a statement showing the financial affairs to be in good condition.

Balance on hand from 1924	$117.19
Receipts during year	247.90
Expenditures during year	274.77
Balance on hand	90.22

The election of officers then took place. Mr. John Bent was elected president, with considerable majority

Vice-President: Harry Burgess.
Secretary: Miss Mabel Rowan.
Treasurer: Miss Irene Clemett.
Publicity Secretary: Horace Hill.
Convenor of Social Committee: Mrs E. Jamieson.
Convenor of Missionary Committee: Mrs. M. Stephenson.
Convenor of Musical Committee: Mrs. H. Griffin.
Convenor of Lookout Committee: Mrs. V. Jones.

Mr. John Bent, the new President, then made a brief though very fitting speech in which he bespoke the support of the members, reminding them that they are the A.Y.P.A. and urging each one to support the officers. The Rector, Mr. Weir, then expressed a hope that the branch would attain even greater possibilities next season, after which he closed the meeting with prayer.

During the summer months the meetings will be withdrawn and the association will meet socially through out the vacation period.

Two Baptized.

Glanville Leonard, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brockley, received the rites of baptism in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday morning, by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Black, as did also Helen Elois, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hart. On Sunday next a congregational meeting will be held at the close of the morning service.

NEW FASHION SET PETERBORO AGOG

Years Ago, Evidently, Men Were Unaccustomed to Women's Vagaries.

On March 8, 1911, Peterborough experienced a near riot which was occasioned by one of the most trifling causes conceivable.

A yard of cloth, or possibly less, had the effect of bringing together all available persons whether profitably occupied or not and holding their amazed attention for the space of nearly an hour while the excitemen created did not subside through a period of several days.

According to present thought there was nothing peculiar in the cloth, in fact it would be regarded now as quite ordinary but in the unenlightened period of 14 years ago, in which the incident occurred, it was of paramount importance, climacteric in its results.

It appears that the material referred to was formed into a cylindrical tube having a reinforcing band at the top and a slight incision at the bottom. The scientific name give the rarity at the time of its inception was 'Harem' an it was use in connection with the more common term 'skirt.'

The furore was caused by the appearance of this peculiar genus on the otherwise and heretofore orderly street for the purpose of advertising the benefits to be derived from the mastication of a certain tobacco. Encased within the creation was a young lady of French descent.

Advance Made.

This merely shows us the advancement of the age in which people of today live.

The ladies are now permitted to roam at large, attired as they see fit or unfit, without arousing the intense and uncontrollable curiosity of the male inhabitants. Surely this change is laudable and indicates a greater tolerance for the peculiar manifestations of Dame fashion.

Possibly, however, the male population is merely holding its breath in pained anticipation of what may ultimately happen and it must be admitted that when one reads of the peregrinations of movie actresses attired incompletely in bathing costumes or ordinary street dresses unaccompanied by the customary hosiery and when one hears of pyjamas being decreed the correct thing for afternoon street wear a chill thrill of apprehension is registered and mere man bleats the query, "Where will it end?"

MILLBROOK CADET CORPS INSPECTED

Paraded Tuesday Before Inspecting Officers of Military District.

MILLBROOK, May 6.—The annual inspection of the Millbrook Cadet Corps took place on the school grounds on Tuesday, at 2.30 p.m., forty or more of the boys turning out for parade.

Owing to the large increase in the number of Cadet Corps, it has been found necessary to detail an officer to assist Captain V. W. S. Heron, District Cadet Officer, and Captain G. A. H. Trudeau, Royal 22nd Regiment, Infantry Instructor for Military District No. 3, was he for the occasion.

Captain Trudeau expressed himself as well pleased with the general appearance of the Corps, and the excellent manner in which the details of drill, marching, physical culture exercisse etc., were carried out, and warmly congratulated B. B. Dawson, Cadet Instructor, and Captain Ernest L. Burnham, on the success attending their work. The inspecting officer also urged continued application and attention to Cadet training in order to keep the local Corps up to its maximum of efficiency.

This was the first time in at least two years when it has been possible to hold the inspection out of doors, unfavorable weather compelling the use of the armouries on former occasions, and though the floor space is fairly large, indoor limitations did not give the boys a chance to do their best work.

A number of the parents and friends were present, but it seems unfortunate more do not show interest, and give encouragement, by being in attendance. A. A. Smith, secretary-treasurer, J. A. Vance, and G. E. Burnham were members of the school board who were on the grounds.

R. Shaw and J. Larmer are lieutenants in the local Corps, G. Elson sergeant, and A. Matchett corporal.

Personal Notes.

Misses Alice and Lottie Vance, who have been in Toronto for the past winter, made a brief visit to Millbrook the latter part of the week, and were guests of Mrs. J. C. and Miss Anna Kells during their stay here. They are not re-opening their home for the summer months according to their present plans.

Miss Lottie Luxon has taken a school near Norwood for the balance of the school year, going to her new position after the Easter holidays.

Mrs. G. E. Burnham, and son Ernest, Miss Needham, Misses Jean and Mary Burnham, and J. Larmer motored to Orono on Tuesday and were guests of Rev. S. T. and Mrs. Tucker at the parsonage.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

Farewell Presentation.

On Monday evening about fifty-five of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Wood, Inkerman Street, assembled at their home to spend an evening with them prior to their departure for Warkworth, where Mr. Wood has secured a position in the bakery of Mr. A. Thompson.

During the evening, which was pleasantly spent in dancing, Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Donald were presented with a handsome leather rocker, accompanied by the following address, which was read by Mr. Melville Booth.

Mr. Wood has been the most successful local representative of the Fuller Brush Company for some time, and, together with Mrs. Wood, have made a host of friends since coming to Campbellford a year ago.

Campbellford, May 4, 1925.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Wood and Donald,—We, your friends and neighbors, have assembled here this evening to express our regret at your departure from our midst. You have always been such good friends to both young and old, willing to lend a helping hand, wherever needed, and to show our appreciation of you, we ask that you accept this gift, which we trust will remind you of the happy days spent in Campbellford.

We bid you God-speed, and trust that every earthly blessing may be yours in the days to come, and that the benediction of Heaven may crown all your labors with success.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,

Agatha Ward.
Ruth Plumpton.

Messrs. Robert J. Allan, James Allan, J. A. Anderson, W. W. Clark and Dr. G. A. Hay, all of St. Andrew's Church, were in Cobourg on Tuesday attending a meeting of the Presbytery.

PLAY ESSENTIAL

What do you men, when you solemnly say, "I guess that I'm getting old"? I'll be you've forgotten the secret of play, if the story were truthfully told.

You can't limp around in an old easy chair and spend all your time just frtting. If that's what you do—well, it seems only fair that the age ache's the thing you are getting.

Too often we fail at just facing the truth 'cause it's easy to loaf away. We know that there still is a calling of youth if we'd only go to it.

Real vigor and vim will keep people in trim though a great many years have been tolled. When you let such things halt, well, it's just your own fault if you have to admit that you're old.

Come on there, young fellow, don't simply be yellow, but put up an age fight that's real. If you'll learn how to play, you'll agree, when I say, that you're only as old as you feel.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

SEED INOCULATION HAS ITS LIMITATIONS AND CULTURES ARE NOT ALL REALLY NEEDED

Only Bacteria That is Scarce is Legume Which is Necessary.

OTHERS HELPFUL

If They Are Scarce They Cannot Grow Because of Poor Soil.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Especially at this season of the year, when spring seeding is under way, the question of seed inoculation with cultures of bacteria receives considerable attention. As various cultures are advertised, some with unwarranted claims, it seems desirable that our Canadian farmers and growers should be informed as to what extent the practice of seed inoculation has received sound scientific approval, and just what its limitations are in the light of present-day knowledge. With this in view the following statement has been prepared jointly by F. C. Harrison, Principal and Professor of Bacteriology, Macdonald College; D. H. Jones, Professor of Bacteriology, Ontario Agricultural College; G. H. Lee, Professof Bacteriology, Manitoba Agricultural College; and A. G. Lochhead, Dominion Agricultural Bacteriologist, Ottawa:

In all agricultural soils bacteria are necessary for the best production of any crop. They play an indispensable part in the preparation of plant food, helping to change it from an unavailable form into a soluble form capable of being used by the growing plant.

It is especially in connection with the work of supplying the nitrogen requirements of the plant that bacteria are important. While certain kinds convert nitrogenous materials in the soil itself into forms which can be taken up by the plant, other bacteria are able to enrich the soil and the plant by gathering nitrogen from the air. Some of these work independently in the soil, others in association with the roots of plants of the leguminous type, in the nodules or swellings on the roots of vigorous plants of this kind.

No Scarcity.

With the single exception of the legume bacteria there is no indication of a scarcity of useful bacteria in an otherwise good soil. If they are lacking in a soil the soil does not favor their growth, due to some such condition as excessive alkalinity, acidity or some other defect. Only when such a defect is corrected will the useful bacteria flourish. Adding bacteria other than legume bacteria will therefore be superfluous in normal soils and of little or no avail in abnormal soils.

With legume bacteria, however, the case is different. In many instances there may be an actual deficiency of these in a soil, a deficiency which may be remedied by inoculation. With each variety of legume are associated its own special bacteria, the presence of which is necessary if the plant is to benefit from the supply of nitrogen in the air which the bacteria make available, and only in some special cases will one variety of bacteria be of use to another kind of legume.

Inoculation Unnecessary.

If a crop has been growing successfully in a field, and shows the presence of well-developed root nodules, the soil contains the proper bacteria for this crop, and inoculation is not so necessary for another similar crop as when the crop is being cultivated for the first time or where previous crops have been unsuccessful. It will then be of distinct advantage to inoculate the seed. Even in such cases inoculation cannot be said to be a sure cure for all ills. Success will be most probable if the other soil conditions are at their best, and inoculation is thus really an aid to, and not a substitute for good farming methods.

Much scientific research has been devoted to the question of soil and seed inoculation, but only with legume cultures has the practice been placed on a sound basis and received unbiassed approval from agricultural scientists. While legume inoculation, then, is to be encouraged, yet in order that this practice may not be brought into disrepute by lack of success with cultures claimed to be of benefit for miscellaneous non-leguminous crops, we consider it important that the public should understand as fully as possible the limitations of bacterial inoculents, and we therefore warn farmers and other growers not to expect results from other cultures which cannot be endorsed.

BUTTER EQUIPMENT MUST BE CLEANED

BUTTER EQUIPMENT—C

Improperly cleaned factory equipment is the most frequent cause of mould in butter, after the cream has been pasteurized. Vats should be rinsed with warm water and steamed for at least five minutes. They should be washed daily with a hot solution of alkali washing powder, using a scrubbing brush. Pumps and pipes should be taken apart and cleaned every day, and afterwards steamed. The churn should be first rinsed, then washed with a boiling solution of alkali washing powder, revolving it for five to ten minutes. Then rinse the churn again with boiling water, drain thoroughly and turn the doors up and open. Before using rinse again with hot water, then with cold. Churn should be limed at least once a wee with a strained solution.

SWEET PEAS AND PANSIES.

If well-rotted manure is thoroughly mixed with the soil, sweet peas and pansies may be planted in same place each year.

FRACTIOUS HOG CAUSED MISHAP

LANDED IN DITCH

NORHAM, May 1.—George Walker, of Warkworth, had a narrow escape Monday forenoon while hauling a load of hogs from Morganston. When nearly into Norham he had occasion to make an attempt to keep one of the hogs from climbing over the edge of the rack and as he turned the truck bolted into the deep ditch and had it not been for a telephone pole it would probably have overturned. The front axle of the truck was broken and otherwise damaged, while Mr. Walker escaped unhurt.

Sunday School Annual.

The annual meeting of the Norham Methodist Sunday School was held in the hall on Monday evening. There were fifteen members of the executive present. The secretary reported an average attendance of 52 which was an advance over last year. Sessions of the school were held upon fifty Sundays of the year. The treasurer's report showed $80.00 paid for supplies, $11.00 contributed to the Forward Movement for Missions, $7.00 was given to the work of Religious Education through the Rally Day offering and $2.00 on Go-To-Sunday School Day. There was a neat balance in the treasury.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Superintendents, Fred Huycke and Fred Laver; Teachers—Adult Class, Mrs. Lorne Evans and Fred Laver; Young Women's Class, Mrs. Clarence Brenton; Mrs. David Evans; Young Men's Class, Mrs. J. F. Everson, John Wesley Newman; Girls' Class, Miss Madge Cliffe, Mrs. J. W. Newman; Junior Class, Mrs. Albert West, Mrs. David Cryderman; Primary Class, Mrs. Samuel Platt, Miss Blanche Cryderman; Superintendent of Cradle Roll, Mrs. Clarence Brenton; Superintendent of Home Department, Mrs. J. W. Newman; Organist, Miss Lulu Mitchell; Librarians, Gordan Mitchell, LaRoy Newman, Donald Knight; Missionary Treasurer, Miss Jean Diamond; Missionary Secretary, Mrs. J. F. Everson.

There were four members of the school attended the Teachers' Training Class, two of whom took the prescribed examinations.

The service held in the Methodist Church Sunday morning was well attended. Sixty-four communicants partook of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Four probationers were received into full membership.

Mrs. J. W. Harper, Mrs. Lorn Evans, Mrs. Clarence Brenton, Mrs. A. M. Smale, Miss Bessie Wilson, A. C. Twiddy and Fletta Zuefelt wrote on Teachers' Training examinations on Monday on "The Teacher's Study of the Life of Christ."

LARGER YIELD BY INOCULATION

Bacteria Culture Produces More and Better Peas for Canning.

GROW LONGER

MADISON, Wis., May 4 — Peas, higher in quality yet cheaper in price, may be produced for canning as a result of experiments conducted by the College of Agriculture.

The tests point to the value of inoculating the seed of peas with a culture of nodule bacteria. Several experiments conducted under the direction of A. L. Whiting, E. B. Fred and J. W. Stevens of the College, lead them to draw the following conclusions:

"Inoculation of canning peas—

"Increases the yield substantially.

"Maintains for a longer time the best condition of the peas in the field.

Inoculation, it was found, supplies nitrogen from the air, with the result thath igher vines were produced, more vigorous and more erect. It retains the green growing condition for a longer time, with the result that more blossoms are produced, more pods and more peas to each pod.

Maturity, which is the factor that ruins quality, was delayed by inoculation, the tests showed. This gave more time in which to harvest fancy quality peas.

The quality, or fertility, of the soils showed little difference in the results. The peas were benefitted by inoculation on soils of different fertility, and increases occurred in some cases despite the previous growing of peas.

Paper From Straw Will Add To Farmers' Income

TORONTO, May 7 (Canadian Press).—The utilization of straw in the manufacture of paper is likely to add an important industry to Western Canada and increase the revenue from wheat fields, according to W. R. Allen, President of the Union Bank of Canada, Winnipeg, who was in Toronto recently. Work will be started in a few days, says Mr. Allen, on a mill which will turn out fifty tons of straw paper per day. He predicted that within 25 years straw will entirely take the place of pulpwood in the manufacture of paper. It is estimated that the farmers will get twenty cents for straw with every bushel of wheat.

MORE ALFALFA BRINGS PROFITS

It Builds Up the Soil and Supplies Abundance of Rich Hay.

ERADICATES WEEDS

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

In a survey covering an investigation on 900 farms, those that were growing alfalfa showed an average net profit of $1,200 per farm against $728 per farm profit for those that were not growing alfalfa. This difference of nearly $500 in profit was due to the alfalfa and farm practice that goes with it.

Use Hardy Strains.

Ontario Variegated and the Grimm varieties are more winter proof than the common or southern grown. These alone should be used in Ontario, but when everything is at stake against King Winter, the additional cost of good seed is your insurance for a return in crop. Hardy varieties last longer, and when once established and given rational treatment, remain vigorous and profitable for many years.

Alfalfa's Greatest Need is Lime.

Alfalfa is a lime hungry plant; it cannot succeed where lime does not exist in abundance. Each ton of hay produced requires approximately 100 pounds of lime. So the attempted growing of alfalfa on soils that are sour or lacking in lime, is time, money and labor thrown away. Correct the lime deficiency first, if the soil needs it apply up to two tons per acre every five years. Most Ontario soils do not require more than a ton per acre every five years. With a yield of four tons of alfalfa hay per acre over a period of five years a ton of lime will be removed from the soil. So you see the need of returning lime to the medium in which the plant grows.

How to Apply Lime.

Apply lime to the surface of ploughed land. Do not plough it under; work it in with the harrow. Lime may be spread over the surface of the land by using a lime distributer, the manure spreader, or shovelling from the waggon box by hand. Autumn is the best time, after the fall ploughing has been done.

Vigorous Growth Follows Inoculation.

Areas on which alfalfa has not been grown should be treated through the application of 200 pounds of bacteria carrying soil per acre. Soil obtained from successful fields fulfils this requirement. Seed may be inoculated to accomplish the same result. This is generally the easiest way, unless soil is clote at hand. The Bacteriology Department at the O. A. C., Guelph, will supply for 50 cents sufficient culture to treat a bushel of seed, the requirements for three acres.

Seed Bed Sgould be Well Prepared.

Select reasonably rich soil and prepare it well. Do not waste time on worn out land unless you realize the necessity of applying lime and manure to feed the crop to a point of vigorous establishment. Land that has both good surface and under drainage is best. Avoid heavy, flat areas, with hardpan or tight clay subsoils. Alfalfa is a deep-rooted plant and must have root room. Prepare for the seeding by working up a fine surface on a firm seed bed. Autumn ploughing worked down in the spring with cultivator, harrow, and corrugated roller will give the desired condition providing that the weather is right for work on the land.

Use Plenty of Seed.

On land in good condition and adapted to alfalfa growing 16 pounds of good Canadian grown Ontario variegated seed is sufficient. Timothy may be mixed with the alfalfa seed as an agent of security to hold the blue grass in check until the alfalfa is well established. Its presence ensures a hap crop should the alfalfa winter kill the first year. It is a good practice to use three or four pounds of alfalfa seed in the general hay mixture over the farm. Such a practice will bring the entire farm into condition for successful alfalfa growing without very much effort or cost.

Alfalfa needs a protective covering over winter. Eight inches or more of growth to hold the snow is provided by the alfalfa plant in its September growth. Those that cut or graze alfalfa after September 15th kill all chances of future profits from alfalfa growing. Two good crops taken at the right time should satisfy, then give the plant a chance to recover for winter.

Early cutting weakens the plant, late cutting gives a course, poorer quality hay. Cut when the crop had nearly reached the full bloom condition. Cut but twice a year, leaving the third growth for winter protection. —L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. College.

CHICKWEED.

Chickweed is a very troublesome weed in moist or sandy placed. Some seasons it is much worse than others as climatic conditions favor its growth or otherwise. Constand hoeing will keep it in check, and hand weeding is also often necessary.

Porpoises feed on smaller fish.

A STORY WITHOUT WORDS

FARMERS HAVE TOO MANY SPUDS

Not Many Are Being Planted This Year Except for Home Use.

CAVAN NOTES

CAVAN, May 7.—Spring work is well advanced in this vicinity for this date. Several have finished seeding, and others are nearing that point.

A few have early potatoes planted. It is not likely that there will be as many potatoes planted this spring as last. Almost every farmer has more potatoes than he knows what to do with. The price is so small that they are not worth drawing out. They are being fed to the stock, and the opinion is given by many that they will not waste time in planting, spraying, hoeing and picking many this year. On many farms just enough for home consumption will be planted.

Alfalfa, clover and wheat are looking well.

Stanley Carveth, Millbrook, received a consignment of baby chicks on Wednesday. He had some time previously received five or six hundred which he had ordered to raise in his own brooders. The second consignment was sent by mistake and had not been ordered. However, the phone was made use of and they were soon placed on Cavan farms in bunches of fifties and one hundred.

Mr. J. Smith lost a good horse recently from lock-jaw.

BRITAIN IMPORTED MILLIONS OF EGGS

In 1923, the latest year for which statistics have been published, there were imported into Great Britain 20,045,943 great hundreds (a great hundred equals 120 eggs) of eggs in shell valued at £13,816,896. This was in addition to eggs not in shell valued at £3,098,909. According to advices received by the Bankers Trust Company of New York through its British Information Service, these importations of eggs came chiefly from Denmark from which the imports were 6,757,300 great hundreds valued at £5,486,300. The next largest source of supply was the Netherlands from which were imported 1,435,392 great hundreds valued at £1,075,400, and then followed Poland, including Danzig, from which the imports were 1,284,900 great hundreds valued at £710,900; 1,209,332 great hundreds valued at £628,600 came from Egypt and 1,113,000 great hundreds valued at £643,936 came from China. The United States shipped only 240,000 great hundreds valued at £198,000; 3,980,700 great hundreds came from the British possessions, chiefly from the Irish Free State from which in nine months only, 3,345,000 great hundreds valued at £1,963,000 were received. It is believed that there are great opportunities for the increase of egg production in Great Britain and both the Ministry of Agriculture and the leaders of the poultry industry, who are in close touch through the Ministry's Poultry Advisory Committee and otherwise, are constantly considering methods of assisting the industry to take advantage of them.

HEAVY PLOUGHING

In spite of the difficulty experienced in ploughing alfalfa stubble, up-to-date farmers are sowing more of it every year. This is the month to plan a field or two of this valuable fodder and forage crop for years to come. Fields to be cropped following sweet clover offer an excellent opportunity for seeding alfalfa, as one is almost sure of a catch after sweet clover. It is especially adapted to those hard, gravelly knolls and steep hillsides that are difficult to work, because when once well caught, it will remain almost permanently Its superior feeding qualities have been demonstrated time after time and it is gradually superseding the old standby, timothy.

A local veterinary tells of being called to prescribe for a cow that was in very emaciated condition. He found that she was being fed first-class timothy hay. He told the owner to feed oat straw in place of part of the hay ration and the cow recovered. This, however, is not an argument in favor of wintering cows on straw.

Mr. Van Allen, of Stirling, has been in the Burnbrae district buying young dairy heifers for the western market. He has secured a large number of both grades and pure-breds, mostly yearlings.

Many of this district's farmers have been clipping their work horses during the week to put them in shape for the hard work ahead.

Farmers are generally cheerful over the prospects of an early season. In some parts a good deal of ploughing was not finished in the fall and the early opening of the spring will ensure a better crop for 1925.

FARMERS BUSY NEAR WARSAW

Sowing is Still in Progress and Cheese Factories Are Open.

ARBOR DAY PLANS

WARSAW, May 7.—Some fields of spring wheat and of oats are up.

Seeding was being rushed last week until the rains stopped it.

The farmers are on the land again.

So far, most of the fall wheat and meadows look well, some exceptionally.

Quite a few farmers are sowing mixed barley and oats for feed.

Allan Edwards is very anxious that all who are entering the field crop competitions would fill in their papers and send in as soon as possible.

Warsaw Cheese Factory opens for the season Tuesday, May 5. It was hardly ready to open on Friday as announced.

Warminster Factory opened on Monday under the management of Ralph Selby. Mr. Selby is well satisfied with the first day's work, thirty-five hundred of milk and everything running splendidly.

This young manager should do well, for the factory has been wholly renovated. He worked several years with his uncle, Charles Foster, in Warsaw Factory. Last year he was cheesemaker at Maple Leaf factory Arbor Day.

Last Friday was the official Arbor Day, but it was so very disagreeable that it was decided to postpone the keeping of it until next Friday. There will be lessons until 10.30 a.m., then the school and bit of yard will be cleaned. After dinner there will be a trip to Allan Payne's woods, where natural history, play and picnic will be combined—if the weather proves favorable.

Quite a number of little ones have come under the teacher's training for the first time this spring. There are now thirty-seven pupils in the lower school.

A horse buyer was around last week. He gave good prices for the horses that suited him.

Flowers For Farm Gardens

THE HOLLYHOCK.

In many plant books the hollyhock is classified as biennial. That would mean that they bloom one year only and have to be resown yearly. I have found that by proper treatment the hollyhock can be kept on for many years. Just as soon as the flowers are passing, the stock and all foliage should be cut down to the ground so that nothing is visible of the plant abov the soil. This may seem to one who loves his flowers as harsh treatment, particularly if the stalk still has one or two flowers left on it. Nothing is more untidy than a stalk of hollyhock covered with seed pods nearly to the top. Such a plant resembles a bean pole with a coloured rag at the end. By allowing these conditions to exist the hollyhock is made biennial. If, however, it is cut down as suggested, new plants will come from the old root, and instead of having one stalk next year there will be from four to six to enjoy.

This cutting down process does not stop with the first operation, but must be continued. As the new growth of leaves attain a fairly good size, they should be removed individually, always allowing the centre and the heart leaves to remain. This process of keeping foliage off has a tendency to develop a harder root, which can withstand the severity of the winter. Furthermore, hollyhocks improve with age, coming true in colour year after year.

WHOLESALE PRICES DROP.

OTTAWA, May 7. — (Canadian Press). — The index number of wholesale prices computed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and weighted according to the commercial importance of the 236 commodities included fell 5.1 points in April, being 156.5 as compared with 161.6 in March prices in 1913, being taken as equalling 100. Seventy-three quotations were lower, 25 were higher, and 138 were unchanged.

Many Wicked Deeds Have Been Forgiven on This Score.

The economic status of the crow has been in dispute for more than a century. His versatile nature, his shrewdness, his shyness, yet apparent frankness of speech has confused many a jury.

The crow has been on trial in many courts, and the judge has pronounced a strong indictment but the jury is not always unanimous and the crow "gives caws" for suspended sentence. We let him go, and he makes some dastardly raid and gives us the Ha! Ha! We shoot him and then feel sorry for it.

We think he was born mischievous and troublesome, and cannot help it. So we forgive many a bad act and are ignorant of many others. In 1919 an indictment was placed on the crow in Manitoba, and a bounty placed on his head, dead or alive. Public opinion was against him, school children were subpoenaed and 400,000 paid the penalty with legs or eggs. The next year the crow was missing and somehow we weren't boasting about it, and no more crows were put on trial.

Double Personality.

The crow has a dual personality. He can be good or bad as circumstances permit. In 1918, Professor Herner lost over 600 chickens through crows. The next year he got ten balls of twine and a pump gun but no crows. Since then sunflowers, corn and alfalfa have served to protect the chickens, and a crow is seldon seen around.

No doubt the banging of a gun in the early morning would save scores of nestlings round about, for crows need a reminder of their lack of moral laws. On the treeless prairies where birds' nests are more scarce the crow paces the fields looking for worms, grubs, grasshoppers, and the farmer thinks he is helpful, and no doubt he is under these cirsumstances.

His versatility in food habits makes it difficult to make any sweeping statements about the crow. Only by carefully observing the habits of the crow are we able to give correct testimony at his trial, for the defence will say: "What proof have you that the chick of fledgeling was alive when taken?" Well, they are much more conspicuous, squawking than dead, and the percentage of dead is very small. Yes, you are probably right, but your evidence would have been much more valuable if you had observed the crow robbing the coop or the nest.

An Egg Eater.

Much scientific investigation has been made to find the truth about the crow. The U.S. department of agriculture carried on an extensive investigation over 30 years ago. The stomach contents of 900 crows were analyzed and tabulated. The average was found to be one-third animal food in the winter, and two-thirds in the summer. This means that the animal and vegetable diet is about balanced for the year, and that during the winter the crow is forced to eat corn, and in the summer it becomes more carnivorous on eggs, flegdelings, insects, frogs, young rodents, crayfish, and shore carrion, whatever is most convenient.

Of insects eaten, many may be carrion, but we must credit the crow with assisting in grasshopper plagues, devouring many ground beetles and soldier bugs, seeming to prefer hard-shelled insects and neglecting cut-worms and other soft grubs. Nor do small insects attract their attention—as chinchbugs, leafhoppers, Hessian-fly, and ticks are seldom, if ever, found in the crow's stomach.

However, there is a small balance in the crow's credit in harmful insects taken, which, together with young mice and rabbits taken, is all we can say in its favor.

Spreads Poison Ivy.

And I have another charge against the crow in Manitoba. I believe he is almost solely responsible for spreading poison ivy all over the province. Wherever he rests, along the fenced, under trees, in the woods, we find poison ivy. In the stomachs we examined in April, 1919, we usually found poison ivy berries. They are easily recognized by their horny white covering ribbed lengthwise, and stony seeds. It is the only part of the plant that is not poisonous, and as other sumachs of which the crow is also fond are not found this far north, these are about the only berries the crow can find in April. Dense clusters of them just stick above the melting snow or the leaf mould. They are white and easily seen. The crow is fond of them, and he is a great traveller. Here is your explanation of why the poison ivy should be so widespread. How else could it get so widely scattered? The blue jay also eats poison ivy berries, but he doesn't travel. So the black, black crow will have to take the blame for spreading our poison ivy trouble. This may be a local problem, for I doubt if poison ivy is anywhere more common than in the province of Manitoba.

Gathering Places.

We must not forget that the crow is a searcher of a new feeding ground. He has great travels and often goes 30 or 40 miles from his rookery during the day in an intimate knowledge of the whole district. The total crow population must be millions. It is their increasing numbers that is causing alarm. Individually and locally they can be controlled or made behave, but collectively they are a menace. The struggle for existence makes them bold. It is during epidemics that they are on their worst behaviour. Therefore the safest things we can say about the crow is that:

(1) Their numbers should be kept down.

(2) They should be kept in check at all times, and driven from homesteads.

(3) Early morning raids shouldbeb stopped by the banging of the gun.

(4) Coal tar on seed corn, red pepper in egg shells and twine over the chicken yard makes a better crow.

(5) Extermination isn't necessary. Bounties and contests awaken interest, but everyday vigilence will accomplish

England Will Admit Only Purebred Dominion Cattle

LONDON, May 7 (Canadian Press).—The question of the importation of Canadian dairy cattle in order to secure an adequate milk supply and to replace the cattle slaughtered because of foot and mouth disease in this country was raised at a conference of market authorities at Southport on Monday. It was asserted that Canadian cattle were the healthiest cattle in the world and that there was no fear of disease from them. The Ministry of Africulture, however, declines to go beyond the resolution passed at the Imperial Conference in 1923, which was to the effect that the admission of Dominion cattle to this country must be confined to pedigreed stock.

GIRDLED TREES MAY BE SAVED

Bridge Grafting Will Save Trees Damaged by Field Mice.

PROTECT WOUNDS

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The field mouse is the most destructive rodent orchard pest that we have to contend with in Ontario. With the passing of the snow each spring the girdling work of Mr. Mouse is brought to light, and many a tree owner gets quite a shock when he sees destruction, where everything promised so well at the beginning of the winter. Hundreds of trees die each year, many of which might be saved if a little timely work was done to enable the tree to make repair and carry on.

The effect of mouse injury in girdling is to destroy or restrict the downward circulation of elaborated foodstuffs to the roots. The problem is therefore to re-establish the bark connection immediately, either by means of bridge grafting or inarching. Earliness in treatment is without doubt the most important factor in determining success or failure.

Bark Regeneration.

Trees injured by mice will sometimes make recovery without reatment, providing that the injury is limited and does not completely encircle the tree. These minor cases can be assisted by coating the injured arc with warm grafting wax or asphalium paint, these protect the wound and encourage the regeneration of bark.

Bridge Grafting.

Where the injury completely encircles the trunk the problem is to re-establish the bark connection by bridge grafting. This can be accomplished successfully providing that the bark both above and below the injury is sound. Shoots or scions ¼ to 3-8 inch in diameter should be selected and cut slightly longer than the distance to bridge. These shoots or scions should be bevelled at each end with both bevelled surfaced on the same side. The bevelling should be long to give a wedge-shaped end that is thin enough to insert easily. The scion is set by making an inverted T-shaped cut above the injury at the point where it is desired to insert, and a similar T-shaped ut is made below. The ends of the scion are slipped into the incisions and it forms a slight arch. It is held in place with a small brad driven through and into the wood of the tree. If the wood of the scion is brittle drill a small hole in each end of the scion to avoid splitting. The scions are set 1½ to 3 inches apart, according to size of tree. After insertion, all surfaces of attachment and the body of the scions should be coated with warm grafting wax to prevent drying. Further protection against extremes of temperature can be provided by mounding up soil around the tree to cover the bridged area, until union takes place. Remove this soil covering in six weeks. Burlap, or old sacking, can be wrapped loosely over the bridging for the same protective service.

Shoot Bridging.

Should strong shoots of suitable size exist, attached below the injured area, such may be shortened and the free end inserted above the injury.

The subject of grafting is fully treated in the bulletin on Orchard Grafting, published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. If interested, a post-card will bring it to you. Try and save all injured trees—there is a way to do it. Don't let the field mouse beat you out. Repair your injured trees by the practice of tree surgery this time, but next time provide protectors. The mouse cannot eat wire netting.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O.A. College.

SUPPORT PULP MILL

Winnipeg Business Men Unanimous for 200-Ton Project.

WINNIPEG, May 7.—(Canadian Press).—Fifty delegates, representing practically every business organization in Winnipeg, gave assurance of their undivided support to the proposed 200-ton pulp and paper plant for Manitoba, at a special meeting here yesterday.

A resolution, unanimously endorsed, urging that "no political nor technical interference" be allowed to interfere with the project, will be forwarded to Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, and Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba who now is in Ottawa.

SWEET CLOVER HAS PROGRESSED IN FARM STATUS

Was Formerly Legislated Against as a Noxious Weed.

NOW SOUGHT FOR

Received Almost Instantaneous Popularity as Very Valuable Forage.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

From the status of a weed, legislated against by Governments, to that of a much sought-after, cultivated forage plant has been the history of the development of sweet clover. This transformation has not been the slow development resulting from long and careful consideration but rather an almost instantaneous popularity.

There is always a danger, accompanying the sudden popularizing of any crop, of many people accepting the new production without reservation of any kind. Such acceptance invariably results in disappointments and numerous failures. For this reason it is desirable to indicate some of the limitations and advantages of sweet clover as a forage crop. These refer principally to the biennial white blossom type as it is the only kind as yet of considerable commercial importance throughout Canada.

Advantages.

Sweet clover can be grown successfully on a surprisingly great variety of soils.

Because of its ability to thrive on poor soils it offers an excellent medium for the improvement of worn-out soils or for lightening up heavy soils. At the same time it is a gatherer and storer of nitrogen, and adds to the soil a considerable quantity of this necessary element.

It provides an excellent source of pasture and in most years on the Prairies and in dry years in the East it is possible to produce a fair quality of hay from it. Once cattle become accustomed to the peculiar taste and odor of the sweet clover they appear to relish both the pasture and hay.

Objections.

Sweet clover has a peculiar odor and a bitter taste that renders it unpalatable to cattle until they become used to it.

The quality of hay produced even under the best conditions is usually inferior to that produced by alfalfa, red clover or our commonly cultivated grasses.

It is difficult to prevent sweet clover from seeding even when cut for hay or pastured, consequently it often appears in succeeding crops where it is not wanted.

When alfalfa seed production is carried on, the presence of sweet clover is very undesirable because of the difficulty of keeping the alfalfa fields free from it and becaus its presence in alfalfa seed lowers the market value of the seed in which it is found.

Conclusions.

All things considered, it would seem as if sweet clover had a distinct place as a soil improver and as a temporary pasture crop with a more limited use as a silage crop and also, in the western provinces, as a hay crop.

MUSTARD A ROBBER

But Solution of Copperas Will Stop Its Depredations in Grain.

Iron sulphate or copperas can be successfully used to destroy mustard in standing grain without injury to the crop, so says Prof. J. E. Howitt of the O.A. College.

Preparation of Solution.

A 20 per cent. solution should be applied. This can be prepared by dissolving 80 pounds of iron sulphate in 40 gallons of water, or 10 pounds of copper sulphate to 40 gallons of water.

The solution should be strained through a cheesecloth as it is put into the spray pump tank. This will remove the dirt and small particles that are apt to clog the nozzles.

Time to Apply.

Apply on a calm day just as soon as the first plants in the fields show flowers. It is very important to spray early. If the plants are left too long the treatment is not nearly so effective. If a heavy rain comes within 24 hours after the solution is applied it will be necessary to spray again.

How to Apply the Solution.

An ordinary hand pump barre sprayer, such as is employed to spray fruit trees, may be used, or a potato sprayer can be used to do the work. Care must be taken to see that each mustard plant is covered with the solution in the form of a fine spray. The work must be thoroughly done and at the right time.

LOWER NURSING FEES NEEDED BY POORER PEOPLE

SHORTER COURSES.

Graded Periods From Six Months to Three Years as Training For Minor Cases.

TORONTO, May 7. — The problem of nursing, so far as it concerns the general public, was one which merited serious consideration, in the opinion of Dr. George S. Young, president of the Ontario Medical Association, who in the course of his presidential address at the annual dinner last night, pointed out that nursing fees were such as to make it totally impossible for many families to have proper care during illness. This was not intended as any reflection upon the fees charged by graduate nurses, for Dr. Young admitted that in view of their long training and the fact that they might not have more than eight months of work in any year the nurses were never over paid. But that did not alter the fact that there were many families with illness where the nursing fees were prohibitive. In view of that Dr. Young felt that the problem was one which should be attacked by the Ontario Medical Association, with the aim or seeing that the nursing service becomes more attainable.

As a suggestion the speaker felt that it might be well if the hospitals and the profession would consider short courses for nurses, for there were plenty of cases where nurses were needed and where the full skill of the present graduate might not be essential. His idea was that there might be short courses, graded, from six months to three years. In this connection Dr. Young pointed out that good work was being done by the Red Cross, which organization had put on 350 courses for training home nurses. He approved as well of the experiment to turn out nursing housekeepers and this class of nurse he felt might become more available for poorer families. Any change made in the training of nurses would have to be worked out in co operation with the hospitals.

Dr. Young believed that the association should encourage clinical work and the establishment of centres where the patients could be kept under observation for a long time. If this were done all through the province it would doubtless result in a much greater amount of clinical work being carried out by rural practitioners.

Dr. Young touched upon the point that some of the public might have a feeling towards the doctors the same as towards the nurses, that was, that the fees were too high and that the service of the medical man was beyond the purse of the poorer classes. While there might be some truth in that, Dr. Young pointed out that the strain of keeping pace with the times was becoming greater and greater and as a means of solving the problem of cost, he suggested that it might be well if there were periodic examinations of the whole population. That would serve the purpose of checking disease and the public would benefit in the end in the way of better health.

FRECKLES

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckleface, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of reliable concern that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from any drug or department store and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine, as this strength is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove your freckles.

At all drug or department stores or by mail. Othine Laboratories, Inc., Buffalo, N.Y. P. O. Box 2616, Montreal Canada.

He, Being Dead, Yet Speaketh!

The forty-fifth anniversary of the formation of the Company which provides this community's telephone service, calls attention to the many beneficient by-products of Bell's great idea.

In the accompanying photographs we see in use the artificial larynx which represents the triumph of Bell Telephone scientists over one of surgery's most difficult operations, namely, the removal of the larynx — the familiar "Adam's Apple" and adjacent parts of the throat—because of cancerous tissues.

It was only natural that in his desire to provide a means of speech for those whom cancer had robbed of this precious function, Dr. John E. Mackenty the leading surgeon in this line should turn to the Bell research laboratories. Dr. Harvey Fletcher took up the problem and under his supervision Clarence E. Lane developed an artificial larynx. Public praise has come unsought to Dr. Mackenty and the scientists. Letter after letter repeats the story of men and women resuming their old places in life enabled to converse as before through the medium of a little rubber tube and a bit of silver.

In very truth it may be said that the inventor of the telephone, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, though dead yet speaks.

TOURISTS ASK ADVICE ABOUT LOCAL RESORTS

Peterborough Will Be Mecca For Many From the United States.

SEEK FISHING.

Further proof is being received daily of the fact that Peterborough and vicinity is the Mecca for nimrods and the devotees of all outdoors.

The fame of bass and lunge has been brinted broad so that hosts are preparing for the annual invasion. It is, howeevr, the type of invasion which should be welcomed and encouraged.

Actuated by the fascinating lure of the vibrant rod, Waltonians cast about in the springtime whipping the country for suitable locations for summer sport. Peterborough is fortunate in being the centre of such a popular district. Some idea of the interest aroused can be obtained from the following epistles written to the Chamber of Commerce.

"Up a Stump"

Akron, Ohio.

I am up a stump as the saying goes. I am planning a trip into the Kawartha Lakes this summer to fish and I don't know where to go—I want to camp out and would like to be as near to the lake as possible. I would like to camp where here are lots of bass and maskenonge and would like to know the rentals for motor boats.

Toronto.

I am planning a motor trip through the eastern part of Ontario this summer and would appreciate any literature that you may have describing the city of Peterborough.

Kenilworth, New Jersey.

I would like to know if you can furnish me with the following information in regard to a proposed trip through the Trent Canal and waterway system.

Can you give me the name of the owner of a small motor launch capable of carrying a family of six persons who would be willing to undertake such a trip. Also quote me the approximate cost per day for the use of the boat and the man operating it.

I figure on staying about ten days or two weeks and prefer to camp out at night time besides doing a little fishing en route.

Is there any charge for lockage, etc.?

Trout Fishing

New York.

Early in July I shall give myself the pleasure of a trip through the Trent Waterway from Trenton to Georgian Bay. I desire, and so do two or three friends who will accompany me, to make this the occasion for some trout fishing by fly-casting. We have in mind, of course, the speckled trout and the rainbow (if the rainbow has been planted in your waters).

In order to make our plans now, so that connections of various sorts may be assured, we need to know where such fishing can be had, especially where it is best. Will you be good enough to give me any information that you have on this point?

Some time in June I shall order from you a set of charts.

Cleveland.

Kindly send me what literature you may have regarding your summer resorts on Kawartha lakes together with list of hotel or cottage accommodations and weekly or daily rates for same.

These serve as examples of the many inquiries daily received by the Chamber of Commerce and indicate a very healthy tourist traffic for the coming vacation season.

Everyday Radio

BY KIMBALL HOUTON STARR

WHAT SUPER POWER MEANS TO BROADCASTING

Super-Power is a somewhat serious question and many, many people are wondering what's going to happen to radio entertainment when the super-power broadcasting stations get "on the air."

There are at present nine super-power, or Class B broadcasting stations authorized to operate using 1000 watts or 1 electrical horse power. These stations as shown on the map are:

WEAF	A. T. & T. Co.	New York, N. Y.	2000	491.8	610
KYW	Westinghouse Co.	Chicago, Ill.	1500	535.1	560
WBZ	Westinghouse Co.	Springfield, Mass.	1500	333.1	900
KGO	Gen. Elec. Co.	Oakland, Cal.	2000	300	1000
WGY	Gen. Elec. Co.	Schenectady, N. Y.	1500	380	790
KFKX	Westinghouse	Hastings, Neb.	1500	288	1040
WOC	Palmer School	Davenport, Iowa	1500	483.5	620
WTAM	Willard Bat. Co.	Cleveland, Ohio	1500	389.5	770

To my mind, super-power broadcasting stations will be a step forward in the advancement of the art of radio education and entertainment, for I think it will do much to increase the number of "listeners in" by decreasing the cost per mile of radio receiver operation, hence increasing the market for receiving equipment, and surely programs may be listened to with greater volume and, when using modern receivers, with greater clarity.

Receiver selectivity will possibly need to be increased with the advent of super-power stations, but in the case of Neutrodyne receivers, their ability to separate one station from another, and their extreme simplicity of tuning at their present state of development will be of major importance.

As a thought on the possibilities of radio reception under super-power conditions, we may check the operation of a present-day FADA Neutrodyne receiver. Several reports have verified that the operation of such a receiver, even in the very building in which a broadcasting station is operating, allows the reception of outside signals with relatively good volume and signal strength when the wave length difference between transmitter and receiver is as low as 25 meters.

Peterborough Gun Club Will Be Visited For Shoot on Friday.

The Peterboro Gun Club is holding its first weekly shoot at the grounds to-morrow evening, Friday, at 5 o'clock. A squad from Lakefield and some shooters from Port Hope will be on hand to give the local gunners a shoot. Any others desiring to become members of the Gun Club will be welcome to try their hand at the trap-shooting game. Members will be able to procure shells at the grounds.

PRICE PLANS TO PAY ALL DEBTS

Provincial Treasurer's Plan to Balance Budget and Creat Sinking Fund.

TAKE FORTY YEARS.

HAMILTON, May 7.—(Canadian Press)—The payment of Ontario's debt in forty years by a balanced budget and the creation of a fund to meet principal payments as well as the interest charges is the plan of Hon. W. S. Price Provincial Treasurer, announced last night at the annual meeting of the Canadian Club. He added that the Government has already arranged to have the question gone into thoroughly. Nothing could be gained by creating a sinking fund and at the same time borrowing money to put into this fund. For this reason the budget must be balanced and payments to the sinking fund made out of the revenue of the Province.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

A Bright Spot on the Road.

Whether you saw it or not, the very reading of its passing should bring a warm feeling to your heart for the driver. If every motorist in Peterborough had a notice on the left of his windshield: "Howdy! Half the Road is Yours," how pleasant life would be for every other motorist! There would be no cutting corners, because the other fellow is entitled to that half of the road. There would be no speeding along the street car tracks, because that would be infringing on the other chap's half.

And there's a nice little lesson tucked in that message for every man and woman, motorist or pedestrian. Along the human highway there are many wrecks, men and women who have been crowded off the road by the human hog. And yet the most cheated, the most defeated man, is the selfish individual. It is self-interest to help—not hog. When we friendly greet the other fellow and give him his share of the right of way, we feel right; and when a man shows that he feels right, how soon we like him!

It just boils down to the answer given Rev. W. Harold Young by his son last week. We overheard the story during an intermission in the Y.W.C.A. exhibition, so Mr. Young will not mind its being repeated—it is so good. Mr. Young remarked that his boy had been good one day. "Yes," he replied, "I know I've been good; I'm happy."

No matter where my body moves
My shadow follows me around.
But thoughts, I think, can soar like birds
That leave their shadows on the ground.

There was a fight last night in the middle of a city street—a real, old-fashioned, two-fisted, private encounter between neighbors. It lasted only a few minutes, and the casualties were not sufficiently important to report. The police were not even called. But an Examiner reporter, who happened to be passing, heard the argument, and found that it arose, as so many misunderstandings do, from the careless word of gossip.

The Gossip Gets His Due.

It was like the story of Rudolph Rife and Ben Cowhide told in one of Walt Mason's poems a year ago. The gossip was passing Rife's home when he heard Rife say, "I saw Ben Cowhide beat his wife." Continuing on his way he told twelve friends, who told twelve more, and the tale reached Cowhide, who went on the warpath. With the gossip, he looked up Rife and found that he had really remarked that Cowhide beat his wife at crokinole. Then the gossip, who snatched a spicy tale from the midst of a half caught sentence, got his.

The Grouch who will trade his Hammer for a Smile will soon find his way out of the shadows into the sunshine.

THIRTY

THREE BRITISH HELD CAPTIVE

Man and Two Girls, Captured By Mexican Bandits, Escaped.

HELD THREE DAYS.

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, May 7.—(Canadian Press)—After three days' captivity in the mountains near Cuautla, State of Morelos Frank Doughty and the Misses Gwen Waterland and Elizabeth Best, all British subjects made their escape. They reached the Cuautla Hotel at 11 o'lock yesterday morning. Mr. Doughty and party left Mexico City on May 1 for Cuernavaca by motor car, and proceeded thence to Guautla. Sunday morning Mr. Doughty and the two young women left the hotel and started on horseback for the thermal baths among the mountains, less than two miles from the town. As they did not return other members of the party began a search for them Sunday evening. About this time the Indians brought a report that bandits had captured the missing tourists and were demanding a ransom.

The State and Federal Governments mobilized troops and gave orders for the summary execution of the bandits if captured. It is reported that the seizure of Mr. Doughty was a political move, intended to create trouble for the Morelos Government.

SUMMERLESS YEAR 1816 IS RECALLED

Snow Fell During Every Month and No Crops Were Raised.

COBOURG, May 7—The snowstorm of April 19 which covered this district with its icy blanket and drifted country roads came as a surprise to farmers. But the people of Ontario had a greater surprise in 1816, more than a century ago, when there is stated to have been snow every month of the year. The season of 1816 is called the "summerless season." Just as the year 1790 is called "the hungry year."

Benjamin D. Waldbrook of Western Ontario, in describing it, has left this record: "The spring of 1816 was probably as promising as that of any. But the brilliant promise of an early summer was followed by the blackness of despair. That was the summerless year. Snow commenced falling in the middle of June, and from that time on until the following spring the earth was not free from its wintry blanket. Absolutely nothing in the way of harvest was raised. What did the people live on? Meat—meat and fish. There were no vegetables raised and there was no flour. It was venison and fish to-day, relieved by the flesh taken from slaughtered cattle, for which there was no sustenance.

"My father did not come in until the next spring, but found the country full of stories of the year-long winter through which the settlers had just passed. Hay was shipped from Ireland to save the starving cattle and it sold at Quebec for 45.00 a ton. When my father came flour was selling at $17.00 a barrel at Quebec."

Army Worm in 1833.

Going on to tell of other bad years Mr. Walbrook said the army worm swept over the country like a plague of locusts in 1833. The worms swarmed over the trees, which they soon denuded of all foliage, on the fences and everywhere. The condition of the growing grain that escaped them was that it was scarcely fit for hog feed.

BRIGHTON CLERGYMAN HAS BEEN IN SAME CHURCH FOR 37 YEARS

Rev. A. K. McLeod Was First Pastor of St. Andrew's Church.

FROM GLENGARRY

(By Staff Reporter.)

BRIGHTON, May 7.—According to the records there were 700 ministers in the Presbyterian Church of Canada, and of these less than 20 are still on active duty. Three of the survivors still occupy the same pulpits that they filled in 1887—Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings, Rev. A. K. McLeod of Brighton and Rev. Dr. Love of St. Andrew's Church, Quebec.

Mr. Thomson completed 40 years of his ministry in Hastings two years ago, and of the three he has the longest record of continuous service. In 1923 the Peterboro Presbytery, as a compliment to Mr. Thomson, held the June session in Hastings and presented the vete - an pastor with an address and an easy chair. The citizens among whom he has lived so long also joined in a movement to recognize the unusual event and presented Mr. Thomson with a purse of gold, the donors representing every religious denomination in the village.

"The Man From Glengarry."

Mr. McLeod of Brighton has been pastor of St. Andrew's Church in Brighton for 39 full years, and the Presbytery will hold a session there on June 23 in order to recognize the event. Before that meeting Mr. McLeod will be in his fortieth year of service. The meeting of the Presbytery at Brighton will mark another epoch in church history as it will be the first session held under the new order.

Mr. McLeod was born in Glengarry, a decendant of one of the hardiest type of Scottish settlers who ever took up pioneer life in Canada. When he was young his family moved to Western Ontario, and he received his collegiate training at Kingston. He attended Knox Church, of which Dr. T. W. McMullen was minister and of which at the age of nearly 100 he is still pastor emeritus. Dr. McMullen received the young man into membership and encouraged him to study for the ministry.

Graduate of Queen's.

Mr. McLeod graduated from Queen's in 1885, working his own way through college. For two memorable terms he attended classes in the day time and earned money to pay his expenses by acting at night as private tutor or coach of two sons and a daughter of the late Alex. Quinn, who were attending the Collegiate Institute in Kingston. This Mr. Quinn was the man who won undying political fame by defeating the late Sir John A. Macdonald in an election in Kingston.

In the Mission Field.

At that time the home mission field was more extensive than it is today. Mission stations have since developed into self-sustaining charges. In order to keep up the work at these outposts of the church it was the rule in those days that no man could, after graduating, be licensed as a preacher until he had first served one year as a home missionary.

Labored at Consecon.

Mr. McLeod served this ministerial apprenticeship at Consecon, in Prince Edward County. In his student days he had preached there for four summers. There was a law or custom in those days limiting the time of a student missionary in one charge to two years, but so popular was Mr. McLeod with his flock that they insisted three times on his return and their request was granted.

Called to Brighton.

When the Wesleyan and Episcopal Methodists amalgamated in the 80's there was a branch of each sect in Brighton, as well as a Presbyterian congregation that was united with Colborne. The Brighton Methodists agreed on the question of union, but fell apart when it came to decide which of the two churches was to be retained as the home of Methodism. The result was a split. Thirty-seven Methodist families left these denominations and cast in their lot with the Presbyterians, the united body purchasing the M. E. Church building, which was re-christened St. Andrew's. In this new congregation Methodists and Presbyterians were almost equally divided, the charge became self-sustaining and was separated from Colborne. Mr. McLeod was called from Consecon to the pastorate and has remained there ever since.

History Repeats Itself.

There was church union in Brighton when St. Andrew's became an indepedent charge. History repeated itself when the congregation that had lived in amity and prospered for nearly 40 years was called upon to express itself with regard to the recent union movement. It was not thought necessary to have a ballot but by a standing vote, according to the figures appearing in the official records 95 per cent. of the members declared in favor of entering the United Church, a court with which the veteran pastor was in accord.

"A Certain Rich Man."

There lives in the confines of the congregation a certain rich man, a Presbyterian by heredity, and a generous contributor to special schemes of the church although he seldom or never attended public worship. At the meeting at which the standing vote was taken he offered to contribute $50 a month to the maintenance of the church if the congregation would remain out of the union but this offer was not accepted. It has been noted that of those who wished to remain Presbyterian there were two families who had been Methodists when the congregation was organized.

"In the Fierce Light."

"In the fierce light," which beats about a minister, especially in a small community, Mr. McLeod has move for nearly 40 years, and has stood every test. He is popular as a preacher and pastor and his scholastic attainments are evidenced by the fact that he has for the past 10 years been examiner for Queen's University in the Brighton centre. Last Christmas the congregation presented Mr. and Mrs. McLeod with an address and handsome gifts, the people uniting in an expression of good will and of the hope that the pastor and his helpmate would be long spared to continue their labors.

Like Father, Like Children.

Mr. McLeod has two children, a son and daughter and both have followed in the footsteps of their father by graduating from Queen's. Florence, the daughter, after taking her degree taught for three years in the Madoc High school, giving up that position to marry F. Myels of Dresden.

Kenneth, the son, graduated in 1923 and is now writing at his last examination for a mechanical engineer.

Teachers Will Replace Wardens in the Gaols

TORONTO, May 7.—(Canadian Press).—Preachers, teachers, surgeons and parole officers will replace jail wardens, policemen, turnkeys and guards in dealing with the criminally inclined in the near future, according to opinions expressed to-day before the delinquency division of the Social Service Conference in session here.

While not specifically advocating the repeal of capital punishment in Canada, A. E. Lavell of the Ontario Parole Board, minimized it as a deterrent to crime.

NOW A HEAVYWEIGHT.

Stribling Started as Bantam at 16—To-night Fights Heavy.

BOSTON, May 7. — (Canadian Press). — Young Bill Stribling, Atlanta, Ga., bantamweight, at the age of 16, will fight his first heavyweight battle here to-night, when he encounters Quintin Romero, the Chilean heavyweight champion. Stribling has waded through each respective class until he now stands before the throne of the heavyweights. To-night he will weigh in the vicinity of 180 pounds, and will give away much poundage to his opponent.

TROTSKY RETURNED.

Former Soviet Leader Ready to Accept Any Position Offered Him.

MOSCOW, May 7. — Leon Trotzky, the deposed war minister, returned to Moscow to-day after four months isolation, ready to accept any position the government may offer him. The former Red army leader has been granted absolution from his political heresy upon his promise to obey the dictates of the party and observes all rules of strict Bolshevism. It is probable that he will be offered the commissiarate of foreign trade.

WEDDING BELLS.

LAMB—GERVAN.

MILLBROOK, May 7. — The First United Church of Ottawa was the scene of a very pretty wedding last week when Katharine Eva May, the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gervan, became the bride of Walter Thornton Lamb, younger son of Mr. W. A. Lamb, and the late Mrs. Lamb of Ottawa.

The ceremony which took place at high noon, was performed by the bride's brother, Rev. G. S. Gervan, of Millbrook, assisted by Rev. A. F. Pollock.

The bride who was given away by her father, was unattended, and looked charming in a gown of white brocaded Blanchini crepe, simple in design thef lared front of the skirt being edged with a single row of peorls and having long tight-fitting sleeves. A coronet of old Carrickmacross lace (an heirloom in the groom's family) caught her long, tulle veil, which fell in cascades over the shoulders,orange blossoms holding it in place at intervals. A single string of real pearls was the only ornament worn, and her bouquet was an arm effect of lily-of-the-valley and mauve sweet peas.

Miss Edith Lamb, the groom's sister, presided at the organ, her ensemble suit being of navy twill and printed crepe, with hat in orchid tones and corsage bouquet of orchids.

Mrs. Gervan, the bride's mother, wore black crepe, with handsome Spanish lace shawl, small black lace, flower trimmed hat, and corsage bouquet of mauve sweet peas.

Mr. Ben Allen of the Dumbells Co. a friend of long standing of both the bride and groom, was the soloist for the occasion.

The honeymoon will include a trip to Montreal and through the Berkshires to Washington, D. C. The bride travelled in a smart motor costume. Upon their return they will reside in Ottawa.

The out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Lamb of Buckingham, Quebec, Mrs. Jack Gervan and Miss Jean, of Brockville, Ont,

OBITUARY.

THOMAS R. KENNEDY.

The death occurred this morning at eleven o'clock at Nicholls Hospital of Thomas R. Kennedy, in his seventy-third year.

The deceased was born in Newtonville and has resided in this city for twenty years, having moved here from Toronto. He was a member of the Wilson Masonic Lodge of Toronto and was an elder in Knox church in this city.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife and daughter Florence Ethel, also one sister, Mrs. C. K. Grigg, of Renfrew, and one brother, Mr. W. J. Kennedy, of this city.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 264 Lansdowne street, on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m. The funeral service will be conducted at the house at 2 o'clock, with Rev. M. C. Mackinnon officiating.

WILLIAM M. TAYLOR.

The Montreal Gazette has the following account of the death of William M. Taylor, of Montreal, brother of Mrs. W. H. Hill of this city:

A widely-known official of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has spent his lifetime in the service of the company, passed away Monday night in the person of William Taylor, assistant auditor of disbursements.

Mr. Taylor was at his desk attending to his duties that day, but feeling tired, went home early in the afternoon and died in his sleep during the night. He was 58 years old and had been with the company since 1884, when he was a clerk in the audit department. He rose to be chief clerk in that department, and then to the important position of secretary to Vice-President I. G. Ogden. Later he became assistant auditor of disbursements and remained in that position until his death.

Mr. Taylor was a keen sportsman and was well-known in many athletic organizations. He was secretary of the Montreal Curling Club and honorary secretary of the Kanawaki Golf Club for a number of years. Four months ago he was taken sick and was sent away to recuperate, returning early in April. Among his associates at the company's headquarters he was extremely popular and he took more than ordinary interest in their recreational and athletic activities. He put the same enthusiasm and energy into his curling and other pastimes as he did into his work.

He lived and died a bachelor, but is survived by four sisters, one, Mrs. W. H. Hill, in Peterboro, Ont., and three in Niagara Falls; and one brother, who lives in the Southern States.

J. T. SMART.

The death occurred this morning of J. T. Smart, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. G. A. Goheen, after a short illness.

The late Mr. Smart was born in Bristol, England, coming to this country over forty years ago, residing at Kingston for a short time, and removing to Peterborough, where he resided for many years, afterwards removing to Toronto.

On the death of his wife about a year ago he removed here to reside. He was a member of the S.O.E. Albion Lodge, No. 1, Toronto.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, Messrs William H. and Jos. Thomas Smart, Toronto, and three daughters, Mrs. A. J. Downing, Toronto, and Mrs. G. A. Goheen and Mrs O. S. Matchett of this city.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law, G. A. Goheen, 293 Dalhousie street. Service will be at 2 p.m., and the funeral at 2.30 p.m. Rev. N. R. McLeod of Park street Baptist church, of which the deceased was a member, will conduct the service.

Refreshment Priviliges.

Sealed tenders endorsed "Tender for Refreshment Privileges" will be received at this office up to 5 o'clock in the afternoon on Tuesday, May 12th, 1925, for the refreshment privileges at the athletic section of the James Stevenson (Riverside) Park for this season.

The highest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

NO ONE TO FORM A SOFT BALL LEAGUE

Only Five Persons Present at Organiztaion Meeting Last Night.

A meeting for the purpose of organizing a city softball league was called by Chief Gimblett to be held in the Chamber of Commerce, Wednesday, at 7.45. This meeting was attended by an aggregate of five public spirited citizens who had sufficient vision to see that the great civic need is some sport in which a great number can participate.

At present the sole sporting interests are confined to senior hockey and senior baseball. All other sport organizations are very poorly patronized, with the possible exception of the girls' softball league, which played its games last year on the Central Park diamond. This fact would indicate that softball really has a general appeal, and it is strange that the idea of an extension to this league has not occurred to more of the leading luminaries of the city.

Softball is a game of absorbing interest to old and young alike, and it is a game which does not call for an expensive and extensive paraphernalia and hence is more economic. It is a game which abounds in thrills and necessitates real speed and dexterity; it is a faster game than baseball, yet it can be played by those whose physique would rebel at that pastime. It is a game that develops, a game that keeps one in condition, and a game that holds the interest, both of player and spectator, at top notch.

Softball, moreover, is a Canadian game, instituted and played first in this country. It is now spreading like wildfire in the States, where the idea of community pastiming is taking hold, and throughout the larger and lesser places in Canada softball leagues by the score are being organized. Cobourg and Port Hope have softball leagues in active and enthused operation.

Why cannot such an organization be floated in Peterborough? It is not possible that the population in general is suffering from debility or paralysis. It must be assumed that a type of inertia has enthralled, and until this can be shaken off, everyone will remain in the comatose state so greatly enjoyed by Bruin throughout the colder seasons.

Few appear to realize yet that spring has really come and that it is time to get out and live. The grounds will never be in better condition than they are at present, and in cavorting about the greensward one can forget the insatiable maw of the furnace and the hammering of the grocery man. Let the motto be, Play ball while the sun shines.

FISHING SEASON OPENED ON FRIDAY

Hastings Pickerel Fishermen Were Lucky, But Few Trout Were Caught.

HASTINGS, May 7.—The fishing season for trout and pickerel opened in earnest on Friday, May 1. Many of the local fishermen were to be seen in the dam, bridge and around th locks and some were rewarded by a good catch. Several good sized pickerel were landed, some weighing seven and eight pounds each.

A few fishers motored to near by trout creeks but report poor luck.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Hastings Methodist church on Sunday, the pastor, Rev. M. L. Hinton, officiating. A very impressive service was held, the members of the church realizing that it was the last sacrament to be taken under the name of the Methodist church. The next time it will be as the United church.

At Home.

The annual "At Home" of the Hastings Fire Brigade was held on Friday evening in Lynch's Hall with a good attendance, despite the wet weather. The "Star" orchestra of Hastings furnished the music, both new and old dances were indulged in. Guests were present from city Peterborough, Warkworth, Campbellford, Rosencath, Norwood and Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. German and Miss Velma Oliver spent Sunday with friends in Colborne.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wilson were visitors in Warkworth on Sunday.

On Monday evening the young people of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Hastings, were entertained by the young people of St. Andrew's church, Norwood.

REGINA, Sask., May 7.—Miss Jessie Maxwell, dean of women at Regina College and instructor of French, Gertrude Boyd, teacher in French at Prince Albert Collegiate, and Harold E. Bowes, a member of the teaching staff at Ross Collegiate, Moose Jaw, yesterday were awarded the three annual scholarships of $1,200 under the War Memorial Scholarships Act of 1919-20.

The successful candidates who were picked from 12 applicants, may resume studies in Paris, France, on any subject they may select.

Miss Maxwell is a graduate of Manitoba University, Miss Boyd of St. Francois Xavier, Nova Scotia, and Mr. Bowes, of Toronto.

UNREST FOUND IN ALL EUROPE

Assassination, Plots and Communist Perils Cause Anxiety in All Countries.

IN ASIA, TOO.

By WEBB MILLER.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 7.—The All-Russian Soviet Conference meets today at Moscow to discuss profound changes in the Soviet system.

A "Little Entente" conference is scheduled for to-morrow at Bucharest to arrange a united front against the alleged peril of Communism and to discuss recent events in Russia, the increase in the Bulgarian army and the general effect on Europe of Hindenburg's election.

Meantime, from many widely separated parts of the world come reports of an unprecedented series of plots and bomb outrages. The Soviet minister to Denmark exposed a plot to assassinate Danish Cabinet members and set fire to the public buildings, informing the police that a report had reached him containing an offer to perpetrate the foregoing crimes. An unnamed Swede and Frenchman, both notorious criminals, were arrested.

A report from Warsaw describes the attempt of three disgruntled students at Vilna to blow up an examiantion board. Entering a class room, they fatally shot the professor in charge. One of the malcontents attempted to hurl a bomb at the examiners, but exploded prematurely, killing the three conspirators and wounding ten other students.

At Constantinople to-day an Armenian named Stepanian, was hanged for complicity in a plot to assassinate Ismet Pasha. The Armenian was arrested at Eskicher, hiding under a wagon awaiting the arrival of accomplices from Adna. An independent tribunal passed sentence.

Tokio had its share of excitement when Ryohei Uchida, prominent political leader, and head of the National organization of Conservatives, was imprisoned, together with two others, charged with a plot to assassinate Premier Kato and several members of the cabinet in an effort to stop passage of the suffrage bill in the Diet.

Bulgaria's court martial investigating the Cathedral outrage in which more than 200 were killed, were expected to return verdicts tomorrow and those condemned will be publicly executed in front of the Cathedral within a week.

Says Tobacco and Booze Spoiling Men's Eyesight

TORONTO, May 7.—(Canadian Press.)— The excessive use of tobacco and alcohol was cited as the second greatest cause of failing vision after middle age, by Dr. J. C. Connell, of Kingston, addressing the Ontario Medical Association to-day. The leading cause is syphilis, and since 1914 he has noticed an increase of this disease, which formerly was quite rare.

"In regard to the failing vision from alcohol, I think it comes more strikingly now from the necessity steady drinkers find themselves under to change their drink which arises from the difficulty of obtaining regular supplies."

Dr. Samuel Johnson, Toronto anaesthetic specialist, advised medical men, when called in to give an anaesthetic in dental cases, not to use chloroform. If you adhere to ether you will probably never have a fatality." He stressed the importance of examination of a patient's heart before an operation.

I.O.D.E. PLANS FUTURE EVENTS

Otonabee Chapter Will Have Tea Room at Made-in-Peterborough Fair.

TAG DAY FIRST.

The regular meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., with a good attendance. The Regent, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, presided.

An excellent report on the recent Hamilton conference was given by Mrs. K. S. Wightman, one of the delegates from the Otonabee Chapter. Mrs. Wightman reviewed, in comprehensive and inspiring fashion, many of the questions which came up for consideration at the convention. A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Wightman was moved by Miss A. Lancaster and seconded by Mrs. R. R. Hall, with further appreciative remarks made by Mrs. J. H. Renwick.

Discussion took place regarding arrangements for a Silver tea which will be held in the latter part of June or the first week in July, at the residence of Mrs. R. R. Hall.

Miss M. Archer was appointed delegate to the annual meeting of the National I.O.D.E. which takes place in Ottawa during the first week in June.

The Chapter, with the other I. O. D. E. organizations of the city, will co-operate in holding the tag day for the blind on Saturday of this week. A committee was appointed, composed of Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. H. E. Stenson and Mrs. F. L. Robinson.

The appeal made by Mrs. Robinson at the last meeting for $2 each from members, in talent money, was answered by six ladies who brought in $2 apiece yesterday. Eleven new members were added to the roll.

At the conclusion of the business session, a pleasant social hour was spent. Several enjoyable readings were given by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland. Tea was served, with Mrs. W. H. Lytle in charge. Mrs. H. E. Stenson poured tea, assisted by Mrs. F. White, convenor of the refreshment committee, Mrs. G. S. Mattice, Mrs. R. E. Hinton and Mrs. C. S. Cummer.

BOBBED HEADS IN THE ARCTIC

NEW DEPARTURE

CHICAGO, May 7.—Bobbed hair has invaded the Arctic. Raven-tressed, cherry-lipped Eskimo belles are snipping off their pig-tails in favor of the bob, according to Madame Berthe, beauty specialist of New York.

"Hum of shears is resounding through igloo boudoirs of the Northland," said Madame Berthe. "The Eskimo flapper will soon be a reality according to reports from Northwest Alaska. New styles in furs to give background to the bobs, it is said, have already made their appearance.

"Moreover, Cupid has followed the bob. Shorn locks of the village shebas have aroused the ardor of Eskimo shieks. They are showering their favorites with whale meat, blubber and other Arctic delicacies. Strolls through snowy lover lanes under the northern lights have set wedding tapers burning.

PIANO RECITAL.

A capacity audience of parents and friends was entertained at a piano recital last evening, given by the pupils of Florence V. Saunders, in the J. M. Greene Music Company's store.

The pupils played in a pleasing manner which showed to advantage the careful training given by their teacher.

The programme given was as follows:

Clifford Cruickshanks, "Daisy."
Gladys Henry, "My Ladies' Mantle."
Ray McFadden, "Crocus."
Norman Orbell, "Violet."
Elsie Clark, "Minuet in G."
Adeline Rogow, "Musette," by Bach.
Duet by Stanley and Elsie Clark, "Birds of Paradise."
Stanley Clark, "Queen of Drowsy Land."
Rosie Rogow, "First Violets."
Anna Kay (a) Fun and Frolic; (b) Sans Souci.
Viola Deline, "Sonatina" by Beethoven.
Duet, "Secret Wishes," by Adeline Rogow and Miss Florence Saunders.
Marion Pilling, "The Wanderer's Return."
Myrtle Jones, "Pink," Isabel Haylock, "Queen of Roses," Alice Bradshaw, "La Jeunesse," Linda Thompson, "Frolics," Agnes Moore, "Berceuse." Albert Saunders, "Sonatina" by Lichner, Irene Killingbeck, "At Evening," Roy Tranter, "The Mill," Olive Prest "Valse Chromatique," by Godard.

The pupils were assisted by Miss Lillian Farthing, vocal pupil of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, who sang in pleasing contralto voice "As I went a-Roaming." Miss Jean Hamilton also gave a very well received reading, with encore.

They are opening a new camp near Pittsburgh this year, which will probably be patronized by a number of Peterboro young ladies.

Weddings

TEDFORD—HOWDEN

At St. James Parsonage on Tuesday, May 5th, the marriage took place of Mr. George Lawrence Tedford to Miss Harriet Ann Howden, both of Peterboro. The sacred rite was solemnized by Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., minister of St. James Church. Mr. and Mrs. Tedford will reside on Chamberlain Street, Peterboro.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

1 cup sugar.
Yolks of 3 eggs.
½ cup milk.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 3-4 cups flour.
2 3-4 teaspoons baking powder.
Whites of 2 eggs.
3-4 cup broken walnut meats.

1 cup icing sugar, 1-3 cup cold water, white of egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1-2 tablespoon lemon juice, or other flavoring.

Garnish with candied cherries if desired.

SWIMMING POOL OPENS AT Y. W.

CAREFUL TEACHING.

The swimming pool at the Young Women's Christian Association, which forms such a convenience for girl swimmers of the city in giving them careful instruction in the art of taking care of themselves in the water, opened yesterday. There was a large attendance of school girls during the afternoon and a number of the seniors took advantage of the heated pool in the evening.

The interior of the swimming pool building has been newly painted, and presented a very attractive appearance, done in pale green, with cream woodwork picked out in black.

Miss C. Littlefield is instructress in charge of the pool, and attendants this year are the Misses Helen Bell and Etta Wiggins. The pool is open this week for swimmers, and the regular swimming schedule starts next Monday.

SOCIAL EVENING.

The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary of St. Peter's Cathedral Parish held a very jolly social evening at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening. About seventy girls were in attendance, including a number of the students of the Normal School. The evening was spent in playing cards in games and in music, followed by the service of light refreshments. The prize for cards was won by Miss Loretta Galvin. The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of the officers of the society: Miss Marion Hayes, president; Miss Florence Murray, vice-president; Miss Eileen McCabe, treasurer, and Miss Agnes Grant, secretary.

PRETTY HANDS EASILY KEPT

Question of Universal Interest to Women — Nails Are Important.

GREAT CHARM

Women are daily paying more and more attention to the care of their hands. A fastidious woman would just as soon appear in public with a shiny nose or a dowdy hat as to be seen with ill-kempt hands.

Long ago, of course, the daughters of Eve discovered their hands to be powerful weapons in their battery of charms, but it has only been a matter of a few years that the proper care of the hands has been developed to a science and has become a question of universal interest to women.

The well-groomed woman gives as much care to her hands as she does to her face. There is no secret about having beautiful hands, however. The simplest treatment, if persisted in, will bring wonderful results.

The nails are filed first—the shape of your own hands and not those of someone you admire, determine the shape of your nails and their length. What may be good for the right appearance of your own hand, may be entirely wrong for someone's else. Excessively pointed nails are bad taste. A few light strokes of the emery board will perfect the shaping.

The hands must be soaked in warm—not hot—soapy water. If there are ridgest in the nails, or the surface is uneven, the occasional use of powdered pummice, or, a paste of pummice and cocoa butter, will make them beautifully smooth and easy to polish.

When the cuticle is soft, it should be pushed back, not cut. If it is ragged, clippers, discreetly used, should take the place of scissors. If you use a liquid polish, use a tint that is suited to the coloring of your hands. The very pink tints have been discarded unless seen behind the footlights. If a dry polish is used, there is another dip into warm water, and the result is soft, well-groomed, shell-tinted hands, which after all, have required little effort.

C.G.I.T. GROUPS HELD BIG RALLY

George Street Church Had Attendance of Seventy or Eighty.

MOTHERS' DAY.

A rally of the Canadian Girls in Training groups of the city was held last evening in George Street Church, with an attendance of between seventy and eighty members. Miss Alda Bartlett, president of the George Street Church group, presided. Miss Mary Elliott's class had charge of the devotional period.

The meeting was addressed by Miss Mary Allison of Toronto, Dominion Girls' Work Secretary, who spoke on the proximity of Mother's Day, the ideals of our mothers which should be followed by 'teen age girls, and the assistance given by the C.G.I.T. groups in living up to these ideals.

At the conclusion of Miss Allison's address, a brief programme was given, including a chorus by St. Andrew's C.G.I.T. group, a vocal duett by the Misses Hilda Hall and Jean McKone, and a reading by Margaret Walker.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Miss Allison for her presence and instructive address, and the evening closed with the singing of several choruses and instruction in several new games by Miss Allison.

ANNUAL URGE TO HOUSE HUNT

LOTS OF FUN.

Spring is the signal for some to clean up their fishing tackle, for others to have their tennis rackets restrung, for still others to turn toward the greens with thier golf bags on their shoulders. Each man to his sport, and the house hunter to his! The open season is now on for him.

What fun he, or she, has! None of that tearing here, there and everywhere all over the city to inspect houses and apartments within one's means. Springtime house-hunting is no search for a place in which to live; it is an outlet for cherished dreams. One goes to the place where one would like to live and where it is within the realm of probability, that one will live. Those that have automobiles have a decided advantage since they can skim through the north, west and south sections in a few minutes, and may even take a run over to East City. Those without cars must hunt at a slower rate, but have the advantage of seeing everything as they go along.

They look at houses, houses, big and little, houses of which they have dreamed, houses of which they have never thought. The wife mentally arranges her furniture in the rooms beneath every roof, plans additions to fit, this spot or that corner, visualizes fluffy curtains at the sun-room window. The husband, in his mind's eye, puts his car into the garage, plants sweet peas and cabbages in the back garden and sets out vines and hedges.

Agents Are Busy.

The man with a house on the market may have left it closed, neglected, unvisited all winter. Now he is busy sprucing it up to catch the house-hunting eye.

Building is being pushed rapidly, with about forty houses being built in different parts of the city—five on one street.

Couples wander into the unfinished houses and cast appraising eyes at kitchen, bedroom and alcove, admiring here and criticizing there. The interior of this bungalow is too cut-up and the exterior of this two-storey house is too plain. Here the woodwork is too light—there too dark. On this street they stand entranced before a breakfast alcove and on the next are infatuated by a chic fireplace.

Many of Peterborough's house-hunters are only lovers and dreamers with years to wait. They find house-hunting an alluring diversion. The experienced agent can detect their kind at once, but usually he humors them. Perhaps he can show them a way by which they can attain their dreams. Now and then come flat-renters who have planned consistently and saved systematically. Now their buying season has come. But, for one of these there are three to whom house-hunting is a perennial complaint, severe while it lasts, but ineffective from the salesman's point of view.

Come Regularly.

House hunting attacks come with the regularity of hay fever or poison ivy. The first warm Sunday the victims may take a casual stroll out Charlotte street and look around the houses on the short avenues; next week they may take a day off and price those they saw for sale. Then they may take on the north end, around the Normal school, where the air is bracing and the climb hard. On week days the wife will perhaps go southward, where her practical sense tells her the lowest priced homes may be found, and on the following Sunday the whole family tours the dozen or so houses she likes. Maybe friends are taken along for their advice.

So they go, through the spring until mid-summer comes, with no house bought and finally cessation of house talk for a while. These are the real house-hunters. It would spoil their game to get a house. Still, realtors handle them gently. Who knows when they may prove untrue to form and buy something? And if they once go in for buying they may be subjects for other sales, every season perhaps. A purchase is by no means a cure for the house-hunting urge.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

TO CHECK HICCOUGHS.

Every month or so the papers tell of some person on the verge of death from hiccoughs.

Physicians seem unable to give relief.

For a mild case of hiccoughs, however, there are plenty of remedies. If some of these are applied the hiccoughs may be checked.

An old and well-tried remedy is: Moisten granulated sugar with good vinegar. Give of this a few grains or a spoonful, depending upon the needs.

When an infant has hiccough, pat him gently but suddenly on the back. Give a little hot water in which are a few grains of sugar or a drop of peppermint.

Slight pulls, or traction of the tongue, is recommended for severer cases of hiccough. Another good remedy is for the patient to crowd the fingers tight into the ears and chew, or move the jaws as in chewing vigorously.

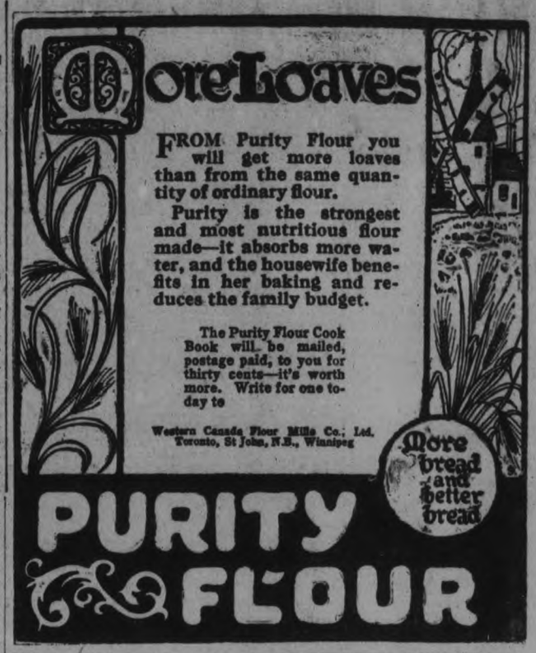
They are not guaranteed to cure, but it is believed they will give relief in many cases.

Is This Your BIRTHDAY

THURSDAY, MAY 7—If today is your birthday, you can easily become a "flapper wife." You will not care for a family or home life, but will constantly crave excitement and a gay social life. You will see the time when you'll regret very much your past actions, and your future happiness wil depend on your decision at that time. If you have learned your lesson, your future will be marked with real happiness.

Persons born this day come under the zodiacal sign of Taurus, the bull. They generally have full faces and a healthy flesh that is inclined to reddishness.

The sale of ukuleles in Germany has shown a large increase within recent months.



This new kind of laundry soap makes a thick soap-sudsy solution. Pour this into your tubs, boiler or washing machine. Use it instead of bar soap.

USE enough Rinso to get good lasting suds that stand up after the clothes are put in. These rich soap-suds SOAK dirt out. No more harmful rubbing!

SOAK clothes an hour—overnight if you wish. Then rinse. Because Rinso dissolves completely, it rinses out thoroughly leaving clothes snowy white.

TWO-SCORE ENGLISH BISHOPS TO OPEN THE SOUTHCOTT BOX

Dying Wish of Johanna May Be Granted After Lapse of 110 Years—Curious Speculate as to Contents of Sealed Will

If at last, as is now anticipated, the mysterious sealed box of Johanna Southcott is to be opened under the conditions she prescribed before her death in 1814 the ceremony should be fantastic in the extreme.

Marshaled by the Most Rev., Their Graces, the Lord Archbishops of Canterbury and York, Primates of England, no less than four-and -twenty prelates of the Established Church, prim in their gaiters and shovel hats, will be seriously taking cognizance of a psychoneurosis conceived 150 years ago in the unbalanced mind of a Devonshire lass whose father was a humble farm laborer and who herself was a maidservant.

Johanna had convinced herself that she was the mystic woman of the Apocalypse, "clothed with the sun and the moon under her feet and upon her head a crown of twelve stars." She was to bring forth a man child who would rule all nations with a rod of iron despite that other wonder in heaven, the "great red dragon having seven heads and seven horns," whose tail "drew the third part of the stars of heaven and did cast them to the earth" as he waited to devour the man child as soon as it was born.

She also had succeeded—so contagious are psychoneuroses under favorable conditions — in convincing some thousands of English folk of her own humble class of the truth of her delusion. But the English clergy proved obdurate. To all but a few of them the woman was either a crazy fanatic, or a blasphemous schemer.

Securing ecclesiastical indorsement of her mad claims became an obsession. Twice she submitted them to "courts" composed of persons she persuaded to "try" her. And she covered reams of paper with chaotic words and doggerel prophecies scribbled in her almost illegible hand. Altogether she wrote some 14,000 pages of this stuff, of which a portion was published in sixty-five pamphlets.

But none of them penetrated the mental and spiritual armor of the men she bombarded. Not a single pastor and master of a diocese came to offer his homage to the prospective mother of "Shiloh"—the Prince of Peace.

So when Johanna felt the premonition of death, she sealed up the unpublished portion of her writings, some 9,500 pages, in a great nailed and corded box. These pages, she told her followers, embodied prophecies which would "save England," but the box must be opened only in the presence of twenty-four Bishops of the Church of England.

Johanna died in October 1814. It speaks volumes for the conservatism of the Bishops of England that only now, 110 years and six months later, does it seem possible that four-and-twenty of them may be musterable to carry out her dying behest. It may perhaps be assumed that they desire to put an end once and for all to the long-lived delusion.

Johanna was born in 1750, in the tiny rural parish of Gittisham in Devonshire, in the vale of the Rivre Otter beloved still of anglers. Early in her teens she was sent out to domestic service. But her mind was set on higher things than pots and churns and pans to hold the clotted cream of Devon. Much to the astonishment of her parents, she began to promulgate the idea that she like the Virgin Mary was immaculately conceived.

She had been reared, naturally, as a communicant of the Established Church. But her increasing pietistic ardor led her over into Methodism, where she was welcome for a time because of her fervor, but soon aroused opposition by insistence of being allowed to preach from the pulpits of their chapels. This led her to the tart conclusion that Methodists were "a sect of people who believed themselves religious."

Johanna already had begun her scribbling. Being fully persuaded that she possessed supernatural gifts, she wrote and made the following prophecies and made the following public attestation concerning them:

"I am clearly convinced that my calling is of God and my writings are indited by His Spirit; as it is impossible for any spirit but an all-wise God could have brought around such mysteries so full of truth as is in my writings."

It was 1792 when she first announced herself as the mystic woman of the Apocalypse and began to gather a following of devotees and believers. She was the "bride" who would crush the serpent's head." The angels had rejoiced when she was born, because she came to deliver men and angels from the insults of the dead.

"My character," she told her gaping audiences, "will bear the strictest scrutiny, and so bright did it appear in my early age that many I lived with said I had not my fellow or like amidst women. As my temper was mild and heavenly, my principal (she meant principle) was upright."

The revolution ran its course in France. The era of the Napoleonic Wars drew on. The time was full of signs and portents, full too of anxiety and dread for all the folk in England. Johanna Southcott began to preach and prophecy concerning the second coming of Christ. She used the words and phrases of the Book or Revelation of St. John the Divine which had first set her girlish brain awry.

CHARGED FOR SEALS.

The time was at hand when the "seven seals" would be opened. The "day of wrath" was nearing. Four angels stood on the "four corners" of the earth while another angel ascending from the east cried to them not to hurt the earth, or sea, or trees till the servants of God were "sealed" in their foreheads.

"And there were sealed 144,000 of all the tribes of the children of Israel. ..... They shall hunger no more, neither shall they thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat."

Down to the ancient town of Exeter, where Johanna was proclaiming her interpretation of this, came a London engraver, William Sharp by name. When he returned to town, Johanna went with him and began to insure her followers against the blowing of the last trump—to "seal" the 144,000 "elect"—at charges varying from 12 shilling to a guinea.

By 1807, it is said, she had thus equipped some 14,000 converts. The "seal" was a folded bit of paper with a huge blob of red sealing wax on it. The faithful called them "passports" and hung them from their necks. Inside each one was written the name of its owner and a scrawl in Johanna's hand:

"Those who join hand and heart and subscribe with their hearts to the Lord to petition for the fulfilment of His words are sealed to be made heirs of God."

This was regarded as a binding contract between God and bearer, with Johanna Southcott in the role of celestial consular agent. It was her traffic in these heavenly vises which led many sceptics to regard her as far less mad than she sounded. But to the end of her life she lived frugally, even meanly, and she left no estate behind her. So perhaps she expended her takings in the propagation of her "message."

SCHEDULES BIRTH.

That message grew constantly more definite in its claim to possessing authority as the voice of the destined Mother of God. Johanna had never married and was now past the age of bearing. But she told her followers that when the time was ripe she would bring forth a son of divine paternity whose name would be "Shiloh."

Even in the original Hebrew that name is meaningless. It occurs first as a mystic term in the death-bed speech of Jacob to his sons:

It was 1814, when Waterloo was only a year away and Johanna was going on sixty-five, that the woman definitely scheduled "Shiloh's" birth. An angel had come to her, she said, with its annunciation:

"In this year thou shalt have a son by the power of the Most High."

The pious shuddered at her blasphemy, the worldly wise looked knowingly. But the "Joannites," as her disciples had come to be called, sent gifts appropriate to the needs of the expected infant Messiah. One family at a cost of £200, contributed a crib which drew throngs to the window where its maker displayed it for a time.

"It was carved and had gilt head and feet, with a canopy and gold ball, and a dove bearing an olive branch." Hangings and coverlet were of blue silk with celestial crowns embossed upon them, and the little mattress was stuffed with swan's down. A Bible, bound in equally grand style in red morocco with gold tooling, was another offering. Altogether, it is reported, thousands of costly presents were sent it.

But time began to drag. The prognosticated divine birth became overdue by a month or more, and the ribald made much of it. One wag, mimicking poor Johanna's fondness for doggerel, wrote as follows to the Times:

Johanna! Johanna!
Do give a poor man a
Reply without shuffling or guile—O!
And tell me the reason
So late in the season
Keeps back the miraculous Shiloh.

STRANGEST EPISODE.

Now comes the strangest episode connected with this strange craze. At Johanna's own request physicians and accoucheurs who were not "sealed" were called in and asked to form their opinions of her state. Independently half a dozen of them examined her. All but one expressed the same opinion. Had the case been any but that of a spinster of sixty-five they would have felt no doubt she was far advanced in pregnancy.

But still the anticipated birth of "Shiloh" failed to materialize. After a fortnight Dr. Reece, one of these who had examined her and a medical man of high standing in London of his day, was called in again. He found to his astonishment that the indications of pregnancy were now lacking. And Johanna Southcott was a very sick old woman. She felt death creeping over her. But she still was sure that "Shiloh" lay beneath her heart and would make his advent on the earth as the second Messiah whatever her own mortal faith. Her followers were equally confident. She and they commissioned Dr. Reece if she should die to conduct an autopsy—"open her body," as the phrase ran then.

She died a little later. For four days, following out her instructions, her followers kept her body warm in bed. They explained that her spirit had gone to heaven to meet her divine spouse and would return after the celestial marriage rites had been completed.

Not till the signs of advancing decomposition were undeniable was Dr. Reece permitted to fulfil the duty he had assumed. The autopsy showed that Johanna Southcott had never been with child and that all the organs of the viscero-thorax were in healthy condition. The medical men believed death had been caused by some brain lesion, but the autopsy had been delayed so long that they did not open the skull.

The great nailed and corded box, with the reams on reams of Johanna's unpublished prophecies inside it, was left in the possession of her chief follower at an address "hard to find but easily ascertainable whenever the Bishops" should agree, four and twenty of them, to come together and open it and be instructed what to do to "save England."

The world at large soon forgot her save when, from time to time, some violence was raised to remind them of her legacy. She had somehow contrived to plant faith very deep in the hearts of those who imbibed any. But the "Southcottian" movement really slumbered for a full century till the strange coincidences of the outbreak of the great war in August, 1914, gave it new life. Then the old credulity flamed up. "Joanite" meetings were started indoors and outdoors and grew larger and larger. Memorial after memorial was addressed to the ecclesiastical authorities. Newspaper advertising also was utilized to put pressure upon them.

But only this year did the two Primates agree to be witnesses of the ceremony of opening the "Southcott Box." That broke the ice, and other Anglican prelates also consented, till now, it is reported, twenty of them are lined up and a committee of Johanna's followers declare five more are willing to attend if the clergy of their diocese make no objection. So the long deferred unnailing and uncording, is now a probability.

EARL'S SON BEGINS LIFE AS MECHANIC

OFFICE ROUTINE

Heir to Dukedom of Richmond and Gordon Sweeps Floor

Lord Settrington, heir presumptive to a British dukedom, was discovered recently working in a motor mechanic's shop.

Only last month he came of age, but he has been working for eight months as a motor mechanic, almost incognito.

Inquiries among the workpeople at the main works at Cricklewood failed to trace any titled person working for the firm. When I got to the service department at Kingsbury Aerodrome, however, a mechanic in the long, low shed indicated with his grease rags that "his lordship" was in the inquiry office.

Inside the office was a pretty telephone girl, a manager, and a young man neatly and plainly dressed sitting in front of a number of papers. He was dark and slight of build, with a pale and rather handsome face.

"Is Lord Settrington in, please?" I inquired.

The denouncement was dramatic. Up jumped the young man from his papers and demanded my business. "Tracked at last!" he exclaimed.

Lord Settrington was reluctant to give his impressions of life as a working man. During this year he has been going backwards and forwards between Cricklewood and Sussex Place, Regent Park, where he has been staying with Lieut.-Colonel Sir Phillip Chetwode's family.

The reasons for his decision to take to business, and start at the bottom of the ladder, he would not disclose.

"I start here very early in the morning," he said, "and sweep out the office"—at which the pretty girl at the telephone smiled approvingly.

"Then I carry on with the work all right. Sometimes I get in a muddle, and I expect I shall get sacked in the end," he added jocularly.

He admitted that he had recently got promotion. He started first at the bench as a working mechanic, and went through the details of assembling cars and learning the rudiments of the workshop duties.

Now he has got his first rise, and is wrestling with the intricacies of office routine.

Born in 1904, Lord Frederick Charles Gordon-Lennox Settrington, was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford, and is the only surviving son of the Earl of March. His elder brother died of wounds while serving with the Irish Guards in the North Russian campaign of 1919. He is a member of the Bachelors' Club, and a lieutenant in the Royal Field Artillery (T.A.)

SIEGE OF RATE COLLECTOR'S HOUSE

Brisk Fight With Armed Men—£1,700 Cash Taken

A £1,700 raid on a rate collector's house at Closnara (four miles from Roscommon), in which there was a half-hour seige, with a brisk exchange of shots, was one of several robberies under arms recently in the Irish Free State.

Before dawn eight or nine masked and armed men demanded admission to his house.

This being refused, they opened fire, shattering the windows. Mr. Geraghty and his two sons returned the fire, and there was a brisk duel for half an hour. Then the ammunition of the little garrison being exhausted, the raiders broke a way in with the butts of their guns.

They demanded money and threatened to burn the house down if it were not produced.

Fearing that they would do so, a daughter of the collector handed over the keys of the safe, and, having taken all the notes and silver, amounting to over £1,700, they escaped in motor-cars.

CENTURY-OLD SILVER WITHOUT OWNER

Thousands of pounds' worth of silver plate, much of it valuable by reason of historical interest, is lying about England to all intents and purposes ownerless.

It is the regimental plate of the old Militia battalions, now disbanded. In many cases it is lying in the vaults of banks; in some instances it is even being used by people who have not the slightest right to it.

There are pieces among the mass that date back to the Peninsular War; a little of it may even have been in use when Marlborough was in command of the British Army.

"A good deal of this plate has been handed over to us to take care of," said the secretary of the United Services Trustee.

"In such cases we insure it, take an inventory, and store it in some safe place—usually a bank—where it could easily be found if ever the Militia were re-formed.

"Some of the old silver has gone to the United Services Museum in Whitehall. Regimental plate has been recovered from all sorts of queer places, where, apparently, it had been forgotten."

SPRING IN LONDON

The fine weather of spring has brought out many horsemen in Hyde Park, and the Row is an animated sight of fine horses and riders, while the walks are crowded with pedestrians.

SEVEN MURDERERS AWAIT THE DROP

Seven convicted murderers are now lying under sentence of death in British prisons.

For one, William Bressington, a 21-years old ship's steward of Bristol, who murdered a boy of eight, there is no hope. The Appeal Court has rejected his appeal and the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, has refused a reprieve. The other six are:

Norman Thorne, 24, who murdered Elsie Cameron at Crowborough; now in Wandsworth Gaol.

CHOKED BY EARTH IN RABBIT HOLE

Giving evidence at an inquest at Westville, Lincolnshire, on a Boston man named Frank Burt ,aged 20, a farmer said that he saw two legs sticking from the earth and found that Burt had apparently fallen head foremost into a large rabbit hole. He had dislodged a quantity of soil which fell upon him and entrapped him.

He had made frantic efforts to extricate himself, but had died from suffocation.

The previous evening a wagoner noticed legs protruding from the ground, but thinking the man was trapping rabbits, did not go to his assistance.

A verdict of Accidental Death was returned.

DARWIN'S COFFIN FOUND IN OUTHOUSE

A massive oak coffin, made for Charles Darwin, when he lived at Downe Village, has been found in an old coachhouse, now used as a garage, at the New Inn, Farnborough, England.

Darwin lay in the coffin for thirty-six hours, but when it was decided that he should be buried in Westminster Abbey another coffin was sent from London.

The coffin, which has a tarnished metal plate with the inscription: "Charles Robert Darwin, died April 19, 1882, aged 73," was last seen twenty years ago, when a former landlord of the inn bought it from the local carpenter.

FATHER'S OFFER TO START HIS SON

The following advertisement appears in the Draper's Record of London.

A father desirous to establish a son in business is prepared to go to a large figure, even over £250,000, for any sound proposition that would show past and present good earning profits, would enter partnership or buy right out; must stand investigation; write first instance—

WHOLE TOWN OF PONTYPOOL ON DOLE

Their notices having expired, 3,000 miners took home their tools from Blaenavon Colliery, Monmouthshire, and the horses were raised from the mine.

Pontypool is in a serious plight, there being no immediate prospects of re-employment for the affected miners anywhere, although about 15,000 inhabitants are dependent. The unemployment insurance scheme, known as the "dole," will be available to them.

DASH FROM TRAIN TO SAVE DROWNING LAD

Sale, Cheshire, has been the scene of an extraordinary rescue from drowning.

A train passenger noticed a boy in a canal near the railway line. When the train stopped at the next station he alighted, dashed down the line to the canal, flung off his coat and, diving into the water, secured the boy, who was then unconscious.

Under treatment the boy recovered, and the rescuer, who gave the name of Ambrose Welfare, of Longsight, Manchester, continued his journey by the next train without waiting to dry his clothes.

PEDESTRIAN DIES IN SIGHT OF GOAL

The death has occurred at Shirley Warren Infirmary, Southampton, of Mark All, the 95-year-old pedestrian who, during the last 20 years, had been engaged on a walk of 350,000 miles for a reward of £3,000.

An entry in his diary written on his 95th birthday read: "Since August 6, 1900, I have walked 256,000 miles. Finished in Exeter. Now got to walk to London to get my reward."

Surrey wife: My husband frightened me into the marriage. Magistrate: How? Wife: He told me that if I would not have him he would marry somebody else.

REMARKABLE FEAT BY GIRL OF TEN

Two little girls, one of them a mere baby of four, who had been missing for two days from their home at Gorleston, Norfolk, have now been found at Limehouse, having performed the 125 miles journey on the strength of an ingenious story told by the elder child, Iris Horton.

Iris, who is only ten, is motherless, and lives with her widowed aunt, Mrs. Wall, at Gorleston. While out for a walk with her four-year-old cousin, the little daughter of Mrs. Wall, she went to the station at Yarmouth, and, stating that she had lost her ticket, begged to be taken to Liverpool street, where she said her father was to meet her.

Kindly officials, moved by her tears, put her in charge of the guard of a London train.

She evaded the guard on arrival at Liverpool street, and made her way to Limehouse, where her father lives.

The father at once sent a telegram to Mrs. Wall, who for two days had been distractedly searching for the children.

WORM REMOVED FROM MAN'S EYE

Dr. Russ Wood, chief surgeon of the Shropshire and North Wales Eye and Ear Hospital, Shrewsbury, told a subscriber at the annual meeting on Wednesday of the remarkable case of a man who had lived in German East Africa who went to the hospital asking that a worm should be extracted from his eye.

"He said he had already visited about a dozen hospitals, but whenever an operation was tried the worm vanished.

"That experience was repeated at Shrewsbury. Five minutes after one fruitless visit the patient ran back excitedly saying that the worm had returned. It had, but it again avoided the hospital staff.

"But there came a time when the sporting worm remained visible too long, and I secured it and extracted it.

The worm was due to a tropical disease.

MAN WHO REFUSED TO TAKE £48,000

Lord Devonport has resigned the chairmanship of the Port of London Authority, a post which he has held since the formation of that body in 1908. He said in January last: "Next March I shall reach the age at which, had I been a Civil Servant, I should have to go. Now I shall draw my stumps. It has been a splendid job, and I have enjoyed it immensely, and I hope that, in going, I shall have left behind me something to be proud of."

Lord Devonport has been repeatedly pressed by his colleagues to reconsider his decision, but has refused.

He refused to accept the salary of £3,000 a year provided in the Act, and has thus in all forfeited by his own act £48,000.

THE ROMAN DOLE AND ITS ORIGIN

The following extract from Smith's Classical Dictionary (p. 371) may be of interest, writes a correspondent to a London Editor:—

"Sempronius Gracchus proceeded to win over the populace by enacting that all citizens who applied should receive at a low price five modii of corn."

Here, surely, was the beginning of the pernicious system of doles which, more than anything, demoralized the proletariat of Rome?

Marriage Tangle 490 Years Old Involved In Peerage Claim

It is expected that romantic episodes of Scottish history will be recalled when the claim of Sir Bruce Seton Gordon to be Lord Gordon in the Peerage of Scotland comes before the Committee for Privileges of the House of Lords shortly. The petition is being opposed by the Marquis of Huntly, premier marquis of Scotland, as representative of a line which once held the title. It is stated that one of the main problems of the case will be the unravelling of a marriage tangle of about 490 years ago.

The first Earl of Huntly was a Seton, and he also held the title of Lord Gordon. It is said that he rid himself of his first wife on the ground that she was too closely related to him. Then he married again.

WINDMILL 300 YEARS OLD DEMOLISHED

After standing for nearly 300 years Leavenheath windmill, an Essex landmark near the main road from Colchester to Sudbury, has been demolished. It measured 80 feet to the top of the sails from the ground, and had a 62 feet spread of sails. The original oak beams were found practically as good as new, and behind the sails, inside the top of the mill, was a striking piece of woodwork in the form of a toothed wheel 9 feet in diameter.

Elderly man at Willesden: My boy is abusive, and uses bad language in the house. Magistrate: How old is he? Man: Forty.

Ill-treated wife at Marylebone: I should like my husband to understand that he is not to hit me unless he has a good cause.

INFLUENZA GERM IS BEING HUNTED

Great Promise from Test Now Being Made on Dogs

LORDS DEBATE

Banbury's Familiar Bill is Torpedoed Once More

Experiments which are being conducted at Mill Hill, Middlesex, into the cause and cure of distemper in dogs may result in the prevention of influenza, smallpox, chicken pox, rheumatism, and scarlet fever.

Year after year Sir Frederick Banbury introduced a Bill in the House of Commons to prohibit vivisectional experiments on dogs. Year after year it was defeated, and now that he has become Lord Banbury he introduces the same Bill in the House of Lords.

Lord Mildmay spoke as a member of the Medical Research Council, which is unalterably opposed to the Bill as being likely to impede scientific progress and retard the successful treatment of disease, and he told an astonishing story of a Mill Hill "farm" which is being run by the Medical Research Council for experiments in distemper.

"We have taken this farm," he said, "because the malignant agent in distemper is a filter-passing organism closely akin to the malignant agent in the cause of human influenza."

Then he went on to give a brief but fascinating explanation of the reason why the investigations must take time.

FLY-PROOF.

"It is necessary," he said, "to breed in fly-proof kennels the third generation of dogs for experimental purposes. They must have been absolutely immune from any contact with distemper in the outside world.

"The filter-passing organisms are being hunted with a remarkable prospect of success. A real success in one direction is likely to amount to a flood of light in many other directions, not only in regard to animal diseases but also in regard to such human diseases as smallpox, chicken pox, not to say rheumatism and scarlet fever."

Lord Kumtsford, chairman of the London Hospital, declared that experiments on dogs were absolutely necessary, and his chief illustration was the discovery of insulin as the cure for diabetes. No boy or girl, he said, need now be sentenced to death when suffering from diabetes, and no adult need carry an intolerable burden. That was solely due to experiments on dogs.

The "farm" at Mill Hill mentioned by Lord Mildmay is surrounded by an unclimbable fence, and the utmost care is taken to prevent the possibility of a distemper germ being carried into the compound where the dogs are kept.

KENNEL MAIDS.

The only entrance to the compound is through a "cleansing" room. Here the attendants and authorized visitors are compelled to have a bath and exchange their outer garments for sterilized clothes. They are then allowed to pass into the compound to the kennels.

At present there are about thirty puppies at the farm. Their mothers were all kept in quarantine before being admitted to the premises. These puppies will grow up without ever having had distemper. From them a further generation of dogs will be reared none of which will ever have been even in contact with a dog that has had distemper. These third-generation dogs will, in fact, be absolutely free from the slightest possibility of the disease, and it is from these animals that important results are expected.

Special arrangements are made for the feeding of the animals. Their food is passed into the compound through a hatchway in special vessels.

Stiffer Punishments in Britain for Offences of Kind

A Bradford man, Herbert Kitching Barraclough, of Hastings street, who when examined admitted standing in the queue at the Bradford Labor Exchange to draw the dole while he had £30 in his pocket, £400 in a building society, and more than £100 in the bank, was charged with obtaining benefit under the Unemployment Insurance Act by false representations.

The Stipendiary Magistrate: This is the state of things in this country. A man can have money like that and go to the Employment Exchange and draw money, the hard-won earnings of other people!

Barraclough was fined £10.

PRISON FOR OFFENDER.

Sentence of 14 days' imprisonment was passed on Henry Fisher, 60, of Regent street, Smethwick, at Birmingham, for making a false representation to the Ministry of Labor on January 30 to obtain unemployment benefit.

Mr. Arnold Butler, the presiding magistrate, said the Bench were determined to put a stop to that class of offence. In future there would not be the option of a fine.

MAGNETISM FROM EYE IS MEASURED

Dr. Russ, after a series of experiments, states that the human eye emits a magnetic ray that can move a sensitive electrical instrument at a considerable distance. This movement, which is almost instantaneous, may amount to thirty degrees of the compass.

The human body, states Dr. Russ, is not magnetic, but an electrical force is apparently generated in the brain, and escapes through the eyes during sight.

Young man at Bow County Court: I do not draw the dole, as I live on my sister's "finance." Solicitor: You mean your sister keeps you? Young man: No, her sweetheart.

Doctor to Receive £1,000 if He Restores Life to Testator

A bequest of £1,000 to the doctor who should discover that he was in a trance when supposed to be dead, and who should restore him to life, was made by Alfred Augustus George, of Messrs. W. S. and S. I. Attenborough, pawnbrokers, who died last December. He left a fortune of £133,470.

He directed that three doctors, including the one in attendance on him, should each examine him in order to make sure that he was dead, and should each receive a fee of £10 10s.

His bequests included £1,000 to his manager, J. W. Osborne; £300 each to his assistant, Harry White, and William James Bennet; annuities of £100 to Mary Hannah Barker, his "faithful housekeeper," and of £40 to Mrs. Wright, his charwoman at 402 Strand; and £100 to "my good nurse," Florence Ross.

NEEDLEWOMAN IS BEST IN WORLD

Colonel's Wife Makes Hobby of Doing Artistic Embroidery

OTHER WINNERS

Competitors from Many Countries Took Part in Contest

Mrs. Tyndall, of Newhouse Farm, Rudgwick, near Horsham, Sussex, has been adjudged the world's best needlewoman in the Old Bleach International Needlework contest at the Royal School of Art Needlework, South Kensington, S.W. There were competitors from all parts of the world.

The winner of the silver championship medal was Miss Margaret Mickel, of Harrington street, Regent's Park, N.W. Miss Eveline Palmer, of Smeaton Terrace, West Hoe, Plymouth, gained the championship in the children's class.

"The modern girl is taking a more intelligent interest in needlework than did the Early Victorian girl," said Mrs. Antrobus, one of the judges. "Hunting women and the girls who play hockey and out-of-door sports are, taking them as a bunch, the women who do the best embroidery today."

When a reporter called on Mrs. Tyndall to tell her of her success her husband, Colonel Tyndall, said she was staying with her parents near Huntingdon.

"My wife, who is a rector's daughter, is now 45," he said, "and has been devoted to needlework ever since she was a child. It has been her hobby, and has claimed her attention in all her spare moments. She is never lonely out here during the long evenings as long as she has her needle, and she spends the winter evenings making new designs. She makes French, Italian, and Spanish lace equal to that made by the natives; in fact, there is very little of that kind of work she does not know something about."

TONS OF DEBRIS CRUSHES 8 MEN

Part of Cliff at Boscombe Comes Down on Working Party

Eight men were buried under 100 tons of debris at Bournemouth, when a portion of the cliff at the foot of which they were working crashed down on them.

Three were killed and five were injured. One of them was buried up to his neck and received injuries of only a slight character. The other seven were buried six or eight feet deep by the sandy material from the cliff face.

The men were working on the construction of the new sea-wall and promenade half a mile east of Boscombe Pier, near where a number of serious cliff falls have taken place this winter.

They were busy directly underneath the cliff when, without any warning, there was a tremendous subsidence and they were overtaken by a torrent of debris before they could escape.

No one appears to have seen the actual fall of cliff; it all happened so suddenly and silently. It is thought that the frosty weather following on the heavy rain must have loosened the cliff face.

Emigration Made Easy To Australia; Twenty Millions Sterling Involved

Mr. Ormsby-Gore, speaking for the Government in the British House of Commons, announced that the biggest emigration scheme yet devised was being negotiated with Australia.

It will cost 20 millions, and its features include:

Reduced passages after June at £16 16s.

This sum to be lent to accepted settlers.

Free passages to children under 12 to Australia, and under 19 to New Zealand.

Loans to families of passage money both to Australia and New Zealand.

AMATEUR RIDER KILLED IN RACE

Adam Scott, the famous amateur rider, who was aged about fifty, fell three fences from home in the Springwood Steeplechase at the United Border Hunt meeting at Kelso, and broke his neck. His wife was among those who saw his death.

Turkey Buzzard, Harrismith, Jazz Band, and Nant Coch were some of the horses that Mr. Scott bred and owned.

At the time of his death, Mr. Scott was riding his own horse, Command.

Judge Snagge, to a talkative woman at Bow County Court: You do not mind my saying a few words, do you? Woman: Not at all, so long as I can have my say afterwards.

WORLD FAME IN SPARE MOMENTS

London Carpenter is Recognized Expert on Old Coins

GIFT FROM KING

Learned Sanskrit and Arabic in Pursuance of Hobby

William Henry Valentine, a Londoner, while working for 35 years as a carpenter for the tramways, became an authority of world-wide renown on Oriental coins.

He corresponded with the King of Italy as a member of the same learned society. He wrote books which won him a medal—and now, with a series of treatises only half finished, he has been stricken with writer's cramp and can do no more.

I saw him today in his little flat off the Kennington Road, Lambeth, S.E., writes a reporter, and found him bent over a table laden with trays of Eastern coins. Great bookcases lined the walls, and books overflowed even into the bathroom.

In a range of cabinets by the door was his wonderful collection of modern bronze coins—thousands of them — which he has gathered together in the meagre spare time of a working man. Speaking of his unfinished treatises, he said:

"I had planned four of this last series. They all have to be done by hand—the publishers simply reproduce my writing—and thousands of strange coins have to be drawn, with infinite care and patience.

"The first two I did while still at work as a carpenter. I did them at night. They were published, and the Indian Numismatic Society awarded me their medal for them. Then I was stricken with neuritis, which, at one stroke, forced me to cease my carpentry and my writing.

"The third volume is half-written, and I have all the material for the rest —material I have spent a lifetime in gathering. But I am afraid the end has been reached."

SEARCHES AT NIGHT.

Mr. Valentine is now 69 years old. He has sold his unique collection of Indian coins to the American Numismatic Society, and makes a livelihood by placing his knowledge at the service of London experts.

He loves to talk about his coins, to delve into their history, to describe the rise and fall of the empires which used them; to read the weird hierogiyphics stamped on them—this man who began life as a draper's apprentice and was a carpenter for the London tramways right up to the time of his recent illness!

"I have always been interested in coins," he said. "I used to prowl around London at night, searching barrows and old shops for them.

"On Saturday afternoons I would go to the British Museum and stay there, studying books about the history of coins, until closing time.

"I learnt Sanskrit (the ancient Aryan language of India) and Arabic in order to read the legends on the Eastern coins. And once I had really begun I could not stop. I mastered enough Chinese to read the inscriptions on those strange, heavy coins of China. I learnt more and more as the years went by.

"Indian coins, especially, began to fascinate me. In the end I suppose I knew as much about them as any man alive, and I had begun to collect them.

"By day, of course, I was still a carpenter.

"Then the keeper of the coins department at the British Museum suggested I should write a book. 'I'll be the first subscriber,' he said, 'with half a sovereign.' I got other subscribers and wrote a book on Mohammedan copper coins. It was published by a London firm.

"My other books followed. The Indian Numismatic Society gave me their medal. Learned men corresponded with me. The King of Italy, who is a numismatist, sent me a set of rare coins which I had been unable to find.

"You see them, in that frame? That is the royal seal underneath them.

"I took to haunting the sale-rooms in the spare time from my work. I secured wonderful bargain."

Mr. Valentine showed his books. The drawings in them — drawings of thousands of coins—are delicately executed; his handwriting, reproduced by the publishers, is copper-plate.

"There's nothing in the world more fascinating than old coins," he added. "All history is summed up in them. They are the story of humanity. Even now I am happy among my thousands of coins."

UNBIDDEN GUEST TAKES REVENGE

Fred Kynoch, a young baker, was fined £5 at Aberdeen, for malicious mischief. Because he was not invited to a friend's wedding at Strichen, he laughed and jeered at the wedding guests, performed acrobatic feats on a gate outside the hall where the wedding took place, and then climbed to the top of a store and threw a wire over the electric cables, plunging into darkness the hall and half the houses in the village.

The town hall, where a council meeting was in progress, was also plunged in darkness.

TRIVIAL OBJECTION HALTS WEDDING

The bridegroom's parents objected to the marriage of a young couple at Atherstone, Warwickshire, Parish Church, on the ground that they had described themselves in the banns as "both of this parish," which was incorrect.

The wedding party was assembled in the church. The vicar satisfied himself that the objection was good, and refused to marry the couple, who went away disconsolate.

ARM OF THE LAW 14 YEARS LONG

A breach of the peace, committed 14 years ago, led to the appearance of Manacle Netherton, a fireman, at Aberdeen Police Court.

"This is the long arm of the law to some purpose," remarked Mr. Gavin Sinclair, the prosecutor.

Netherton had left the country after the offence and returned only a few days ago. He was put on probation.

RAISED SALARIES REPLACE BONUSES

New Schedule in Civil Service Clerical Classes Published To-day.

OTTAWA, May 7.— (Canadian Press.)— The Civil Service Commission to-day issued details respecting the salary revision affecting the clerical classes in the civil service which this morning received the assent of the Governor-in-Council.

A grading of all junior clerical classes has been made so that in place of the present classes there will be four with salaries ranging from $750 to $1,800. The clerk-stenographer series of classes will be replaced by three grades with salaries ranging from $720 to $1,500.

Any employee receiving less than the minimum salary provided for his grade will be advanced to the minimum salary.

The new schedule provides for increases in place of the bonuses now paid. Those drawing bonuses of $25 per month will receieve salary increases of $300 per annum. Bonuses of $5 per month will be replaced by salary increases of $60 per annum.

The minimum salary for junior clerks has been raised from $50 to $60 per month.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR LUSITANIA DEAD

NEW YORK, May 7.— (Canadian Press.)—Memorial services in the town hall this afternoon mark the tenth anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania with a loss of 1,198 lives, including Canadians. Clergymen of all faiths, naval officers and civilians and relatives or friends of some of the victims, were on the programme.

DRAMATIC CLUB OF ALL SAINTS' HAVE FINE PLAY

Capacity Audience Rocked the Hall With the Applause and Laughter.

SPLENDID ACTING.

All Parts Were Well Taken and Setting and Costumes Were Good.

All Saints' Parish Hall rocked with applause and laughter last night when the dramatic club gave the first performance of their play for 1925, 'The Stubborn Motor Car.' The play, a rollicking comedy in three acts, was put on with the painstaking attention to detail in costume and setting for which this club is well known and the acting left nothing to be desired. The hall was filled to the doors and not a complaint was heard, but many went home holding their sides and laughing at some part of the comedy.

The plot hinges upon the adventures of a party from Montreal when their automobile broke down about sixty miles from Calgary on Christmas eve. The easterners were compelled to spend the night in shack of Jim Page, a bachelor rancher, while Page rode to Calgary for a new part for the car. During his absence they were visited by a band of ruffians, headed by the villainous 'Red' Leary, and Page returned just in time to rescue them. Waring, the head of the party, recognized Page as the son of his former partner and when the car is fixed they all go to Calgary to enjoy a real meal and find a parson that "knows how to tie a knot" for the purpose of joining Page and Ruth Waring in marriage.

Jim Page (J. H. Price) was a typical western cowman. His make-up was perfect and Mr. Price showed perfect understanding of the lines and business of his part. His solicitude for his little niece, Polly (Miss Lilian Rootes), for whom he rode miles that he might get her a doll for Christmas, combined with his gallantry in fighting the band of Leary, endeared him to the audience who expressed their pleasure when he obtained his heart's desire, the pretty and lovable Ruth (Miss Jessie Maconomy).

Miss Maconomy as Ruth Waring, made a charming heroine. Her struggle with Leary when she seized his gun and her tender care in binding up the wound in Page's arm were good pieces of acting.

Harry Carter as Waring, the rich easterner, played his part to perfection, and his horror at sleeping on the floor and eating from tin dishes amused the audience. His business like manner of taking in a strange situation quickly was well acted.

Sharing the dislike of the audience were two characters, Sir John Snifin (Harold Freeman) and "Red" Leary (Joe Lancashire). Snifin, an English baronet, who aroused roars of laughter by his continuous statement in every situation, "Now, when I was in the Boer War," became very much disliked when he crawled under the table on the entry of Leary, a villainous looking and heavily armed bandit. The disapproval of the audience was strongly shown when Leary used the little girl, Polly, as a shield when Page was attacking the house. Both these men had very difficult parts and carried them through in a most excellent manner.

Comedy was added by Sam, the Mongolian (William King) and Otto, a Dutch chauffeur (Herb Frost). Sam's surprise when he emptied his stocking on Christmas morning and found nothing but wood in it, tickled the audience. Otto, who had a whole row of medals, which he finally admitted he had bought, was blamed for all the troubles of the party and his answer, "How could I help it?" was the hardest worked line in his part.

The parts of Mrs. Merril (Miss Dorothy Worboy), Waring's widowed sister, Polly (Miss Lillian Rootes), the little niece, Apatow (Miss Gwen Dobbin) and Sherrit Hank (Edward Waudby) were all well acted and added to the success of the play.

The whole production reflected great credit on Mr. Price, who directed it; Miss M. E. Dawson, who was stage manager, and all who helped in fitting up the stage. he lighting effects, arranged by Mr. Lancashire for the night scene, were particularly effective.

This play is being repeated to-night and Friday night.

LABOR LEADERS TO VISIT CANADA

Ramsay MacDonald and Arthur Henderson Will Arrive in October.

OTHERS COMING.

TORONTO, May 7.—(Canadian Press.)—Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, is to visit Canada in October, according to a high authority in local labor circles. Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, secretary of the British Labor Party, is arriving on the same vessel, while two other members of the party are former under secretaries in the MacDonald Government—Rhys Davis and Morgan Jones.

Mr. MacDonald has no other plan than to see Canada, but Mr. Henderson, who is a strong temperance advocate, and chairman of the temperance group of the British Trade Union Congress, intends to proceed to the United States to study the enforcement of the prohibition legislation in that republic.

LOCAL DATES ARE CHANGED A BIT

Central Ontario League's Executive Adopts Schedule For Season.

At a meeting of the Central Ontario League executive in Cobourg yesterday, attended by H. P. McFadden and Shiner Johnston representing the local club, several changes in the schedule were made at the request of the Petes. The game scheduled here for Wednesday, May 27, goes over until Peterboro's civic holiday, and the fixture originally listed for July 4, which will be Circus Day here, is also shifted.

TUXIS BOYS ENTERTAIN.

Illustrated Lecture on Japan Given By Tom Dutton —Orchestra Helped.

The Tuxis Boys of St. Paul's Church journeyed to Glenarm on Wednesday evening, to entertain the young people of the Presbyterian Church in that village.

An interesting illustrated lecture on "Japan" was given by Tom Dutton, and the Sunday School orchestra of St. Paul's did their part by contributing several selections. An enjoyable instrumental duet was given by Misses Violet Davidson and Margaret Mason.

At the conclusion of the programme, everyone adjourned to the basement of the church, where the Glenarm young people entertained the Peterboro group to a supper.

PIMPLES SPREAD OVER FOREHEAD

Inflamed and Itched Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"My trouble began with a breaking out of pimples at the edge of my hair which soon spread to my forehead. At first the pimples were very small but became larger and were inflamed. They itched badly for a while and were so embarrassing that I hated to go out. My hair fell out.

MEIGHEN SAYS FISCAL POLICY INCREASES DEBT

Thousands of Canadians Are Being Driven to the United States.

TARIFF NEEDED.

Protectionist Neighbour Will Absorb Canadian Industries Unless Protected.

OTTAWA, May 7.— (Canadian Press.)—"I say to-night, as I have told the Prime Minister to his face, appeal to the people when you will, lay your policy before the people and be prepared to stand by it and their verdict, and we are prepared," declared Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, at a banquet given by the Eastern Ontario Liberal-Conservative Association last night. "Mr. King is said to have gained votes in the division on the budget," continued the Conservative leader, "by threatening an appeal to the people, a general election. It may have had some effect on the Progressive party, they are better able to answer than I am. But I assure you it never did and never will on the Conservative party."

A "Canadian," stated Mr. Meighen, "would not be an honest Canadian who did not analyze the results of the present policy of the government.

"I regard," he stated, "the situation in which we find ourselves in, as due in a major degree to the false turn of the fiscal policy given to us by Government of today. Yet, with conditions as they were, we are regaled by free trade speeches by the Prime Minister and free trade speeches by the Progressives."

Since the government came into power, he declared, the country's debt had been increased by sixty-four million dollars, and our railway debt had also increased enormously. Furthermore, the United States' immigration figures showed that in 1923, about 15,000 Canadians per month had entered the United States and about 13,000 per month in 1924.

While the United States had contrived to reduce the level of taxation, in Canada taxation stood at an oppressive rate. Canada had only one neighbor traditionally, and historically protectionist, and that nation, the United States, was protecting its industries by an adequate tariff. If this country did not do likewise it would result in the gradual absorption and subjection of our industries by United States' interests. Mr. Meighen expressed his belief in a policy of protection that would give work to our industries, and keep our workmen employed in this country.

THREW ACID ON WIFE.

Winnipeg Man Arrested For Murder Following Her Death.

WINNIPEG, May 7. — Maurice Desmedt was arrested last night following the death of his wife in St. Boniface hospital, and the police say he will face a charge of murder. Desmedt is alleged to have thrown acid on his wife causing her death from burns about the face and body.

Her Headaches Were So Bad She Couldn't Do Anything

Once the head starts to ache and pain you may rest assured that the cause comes from the stomach, liver or bowels, and the cause must be removed before permanent relief may be had.

There is no better remedy for headaches of every description than

as it removes the cause of the headaches in a way that no other remedy will do.

Mrs. Wm. Helpard, Lower Stewiacke, N. S., writes: "I suffered for a long time with my head. It would ache and ache until it made me so sick I could not do anything, but after taking four bottles of B.B.B. "Gutta Percha" Tires—Canada's Predominance in Tire Manufacture and Performance

CANADA is young, but already old in achievement! Here is a page scanned from her work-a-day history. Over forty-two years ago when the "horseless carriage" was still a prophecy—a large variety of rubber goods was made and marketed by the makers of "Gutta Percha" Tires. Rubber! the science of its processing, toughening, curing and excelling was, and is, the dominant purpose of this institution. Hence, twenty years later, the challenge of the automobile was met by tires created from this continuous and unequalled experience.

The symbol "G. P." was affixed to this Canadian built tire, which has since become the admiration and envy of competition. Just as cord tires by their amazing performance in long distance speedway races revolutionized the tire industry—so "G. P." Tires stand sentry over Canadian ability to dig deep and aspire high—to achieve enduring records, for something more than lip-word "Quality"—even the spirit, the integrity, the very life of what that word stands for in the English tongue.

Since "Gutta Percha" Tires came upon the market they have made notable contributions to that durability which sets today's standard of service. Time was, when six tires per car per year were necessary requirements. Twenty years of "Gutta Percha" Tire improvements have steadily made this Tire the leader in rolling the average down to less than two tires per car per year. This wonderful increase in mileage is the composite result of exclusive experiment and betterment in product and design. "Gutta Percha" Balloon Tires are undoubtedly the ultimate in tire construction—the masterpiece of experience and skill. This unity of built-in service and value to the buyer embraces many factors.

For instance, their design! "Gutta Percha" Balloon Tires are built to reduce friction to a minimum. They possess a balance in their generous bulk and graceful contour which is at once the sign of smooth rolling and long wear.

Then, the tread! You will observe that the tread meshes together, smoothing the arc of the steering circle and forming the well rounded apex of the sturdy side walls. This gives a velvety but sure road-grip to the tire, making it amazingly durable: and the steering so much easier and more flexible than other tires of this type that they offer a new experience in Balloon Tire-steering.

CROSS TREAD

MEDIUM PRESSURE

LOW PRESSURE
CENTRE—Remarkable traction and resiliency combined with strength and flexibility—yet easy to steer.

Then the rubber! The toughness of the rubber in "Gutta Percha" Balloon Tires is one of the secrets of their durability. The tougher the rubber in a low pressure tire the greater the mileage it will give you. The extraordinary tough side walls and tread in "Gutta Percha" Tires resist the abrasive action of ruts. These are some of the reasons why "Gutta Percha" Balloon Tires give the dweller in rural communities and those who follow the lure of far-flung highways a sense of comfort, of well-being, of car and pocket-book protection. The toughest rubber and strongest fabric that knowledge and skill can create form the carcass of these predominant tires.

"Gutta Percha" Balloon Tires are therefore dominant in quality yet sold at the usual standard price. Forty years of experience, of acquired genius to produce a tire of unquestioned distinction and worth, have been concentrated to this unswerving purpose. They are made in Canada. The pride of that affirmation will be attested in mileage, in comfort, in safety at high speeds and easier steering at low speeds, by every purchaser —from the first day on.

EVERETT SCOTT TERMINATES HIS RECORD FOR CONTINUOUS GAMES WITH 1,309TH—WILL TAKE A REST

LOST TO ATHLETICS

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Yankees fell back into their losing ways today, dropping the final game of the series to the Athletics in ten innings, 6 to 2. The two-all score was broken in the tenth when Jones weakened and Bishop, the first batter, hit him for a home run. Before the inning was over, Shocker succeeded Jones in the box and the Athletics had tucked the game away with four runs and five hits.

The famous consecutive game record of Everett Scott was cut short at the 1,307th contest, when Manager Huggins ordered him to take a rest. Score:

Cobb's New Record.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—The veteran Ty Cobb added to his batting laurels by hitting two home runs, thereby establishing a modern major league baseball record of five four-baggers in two consecutive games, and the Detroit Tigers defeated the St. Louis rowns today, 11 to 4. George Sisler hit safely in his 21st consecutive game. Score.

TWO GAMES IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

Prince of Wales and Queen Mary Schools Were Yesterday's Winners.

ONE-SIDED GAMES

The Public School baseball league was blessed with a little better weather for the second date in its 1925 schedule but the games played were not as exciting as the 4-3 game of Monday night, both being decided by wide margins.

At Prince of Wales.

Prince of Wales school had no trouble in handing out a 22-10 defeat to the Central school in their game at the Prince of Wales grounds yesterday afternoon. There was never any doubt as to the better team and the homesters piled up 5 runs in the first inning and 8 more in the second. One in the third and 8 more in the fifth completed their quota.

The Centrals gave their supporters cause for joy when they collected 3 runs in the second, making the score 5-3 but from that time on they were never in the hunt, collecting their runs two at a time after the third inning.

Both teams scored more runs than their hitting warranted as the pitchers gave out a number of charities and the fielding was far from airtight. Doug Loomis gave entire satisfaction to both teams by the manner in which he handled the game.

Prince of Wales ... 581080x—10 21

At Queen Mary.

Assistant principal Ron Deyell and his cohorts went back over the half-million dollar white elephant with the short end (very short) of the score in their game with the Queen Mary team. The East City school has a much smaller number of pupils to pick from than any other school and the team averages younger and smaller than the other teams. The heavy hitting of the Queen Mary was much in evidence and several home runs were driven to the far corners of the lot. The fielding of both teams was very good although a few errors were made. Alex Kay acted as umpire.

At the Oval.

The game between the King George and Queen Alexandra schools which was postponed from Monday night, was played on Tuesday night and resulted in a victory for the north ward school.

PETES TO PLAY AT OLD STAND

Agreement on Rental Reached Between Baseball Club and Parks Committee.

FIFTEEN PER CENT.

The home games of the Peterborough Central Ontario League team will be played in Riverside Park as of yore. Last night the Parks Committee of the City Council passed a resolution, moved by Aldermen Phelan and McIntyre, that the athletic field in James Stevenson Park be given to the Peterborough Baseball Association for their games for 15 percent of the gate and grandstand receipts, and for the purpose of calculation the war tax shall be deducted from the gross gate. The suggestion of Gordon Matthews that the advertising, being of benefit to both the city and the club should also be deducted was received with a counter proposal as some of the Aldermen feared that confusion and argument would arise; so that, in lieu of having the city pay a percentage of the advertising, the club will be given the use of the park for their exhibition game with Cobourg, free of charge.

The matter of appointing a caretaker and ticket takers was left in the hands of Chairman McI. Turner. The agreement with the club calls for the club to provide ticket sellers and the city will provide ticket takers. The city retains the refreshment and advertising privileges.

Five Homers In Two Days Another Record By Cobb

ST. LOUIS, May 7.—(Canadian Press).—Ty Cobb, veteran Detroit Tiger playing manager, got two home runs in yesterday's game with the St. Louis Browns which made his fifth in two days. The first homer Wednesday came in the fifth inning off Danforth, and the second in the ninth off Falk. One man was on the first time, and two men on the second.

Five home runs in two consecutive games constitute a new record for modern major league baseball. A. C. Anson, of Chicago, got five home runs in two consecutive games in 1884. The modern record of four was held by Babe Ruth, of the Yankees; Ken Williams, of the Browns, and Charles Walker, of the Athletics.

SWANSTON PUTS PETES THROUGH WARM PRACTICE

Weather Was Frigid, But Petes' Candidates Showed Lots of Stuff.

JOHNSTON AWAY

Hap Harrison Drove One Beyond Score Board — Battling for Positions.

In spite of the cool weather and the absence of Manager Johnston, who was attending the League meeting at Cobourg, the Peterborough Central Ontario Leaguers put in a useful practice last night in charge of Max Swanston, in preparation for Saturday's game with Cobourg here. "Hap" Harrison was out for the first time and signalized his seasons debut by driving a ball past the scoreboard into the river and by lining another drive high up against the fence in deep left field.

An infield consisting of Harrison at the initial corner, Ray Rose at second, Johnny Marchen at short and "Jiddy" Helson at third base, uncovered some very snappy fielding while Hall, Wolfe, Ash, Batten, L. Collins, Lebarr and W. Collins were among those who chased flies in the outfield. Al Heckman was out and unlimbered his good right and later batted for the infield practice.

There will be another practice tomorrow night at 5.30 and all players are asked to be out in order to make final arrangements for Saturdays game and to issue uniforms.

Manager Johnston will probably use a string of players in Saturday's fixture, both Heckman and Whitehouse being slated to work on the rubber, with Swanston, Gardner and likely Bob Ross doing the receiving. For the infield Harrison at first and Rose at second can be regarded as certainties, while the shortstop assignment will likely fall to Johnny Marchen, whose work in practice has been high class. Marchen played second base for the champion Lakeviews last year and showed constant improvement all season and he is taking to the short field position as if he had played there for years. He and Rose work nicely together around second base. For third base it is expected that Helson, Frank Collins and "Scotty" McPherson will be available and all three may get into Saturday's game. As for the outfield "Red" Legon, Jimmy Hall and Herb Wolfe will likely start the game with Fred Ash of last year's Lakeviews and other players getting a chance to show their wares during the battle.

With favourable weather Saturday a big crowd will see the season opening. Not in some years has there been so much new material and the policy of giving young players a chance to win their spurs should be popular with the fans. Of this year's squad, Whitehouse, Wolfe, McPherson, Rose, Ross, Gartner, Marchen and Ash were not with the Petes last season. Whitehouse, Hall and Marchen are still young enough for junior baseball and Ash is just too old.

With Shiner Johnston at the helm and a balanced mixture of fast youngsters and well seasoned veterans to work with and a real homebrew outfit at that, the Petes should have a good season and win a big following.

Alex Kay, back on the Central Ontario staff of umpires will be umpire-in-chief of Saturday's game.

Cobourg will bring a real team to town, as they have the pick of last year's two Cobourg Midland League teams and may have a couple of Port Hope ex-Central Leaguers with them as well. Derry is likely to draw the pitching assignment and the former Kingston right-hander is still stout opposition for any man's team.

Association Busy Guarding Waters and Gathering New Members.

The executive of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Assocaition has been quite active during the past few weeks in having special men appointed to act as overseers during th spawning season. The local member, W. H Bradburn has done a lot of good work for the Association by assisting them in having appointments made.

The association has three men on at different points acting as overseers and being paid by it. Several reports have come in regarding the taking of fish unlawfully and some examples will be made in a short time by the chief game warden. The sportsmen of the district of Peterboro know the benefit derived from protecting fish and game during the closed seasons and it is hoped by the association that the general public will assist in keeping the laws.

Membership tickets for the season are on sale now and it is the aim of the Association to have at least five hundred members this year. Herb Routley, the secretary, will be glad to sell the 1925 memberships nad they are also on sale at the Empress Hotel. Applications have been made for a number of pheasant eggs and for fish fry for all the lakes, and it is hoped to make this year a banner one.

YOUNG PEOPLE HAD SPLENDID MEETING

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, May 7.—The young people's league met on Thursday evening and despite the unpleaasnt weather, a large number attended.

The meeting was in charge of the social and literary department under their vice-president, Miss Agnes Thomson.

The programme was as follows: Recitation, Mrs. Thos. Kerr; duet, Rev. Chas. Daniels and Fred Barnum; reading, Miss Agnes Thomson; paper, Everett Fairman, "Jesus as a teacher"; recitation, "The Booster", Miss Gladys Simpson.

One of the interesting features of the program was a debate "Resolved that a boy or girl in the city has more advantages than a boy or girl in the country." The affirmative was upheld by Miss Alma Simpson and Roy Barnum, the negative being taken by Miss Hazel Brown and Roy Fry. The result of the debate was a tie.

While the judges were deciding the matter of points, a number of those present were called upon to give stump speeches. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and contests.

The next meeting will be in charge of the devotional department, under their vice-president, Thos. Fry.

An Early Picnic.

A most enjoyable outing was spent on Monday when the three schools, Masson's, Shea's and Petherick's Corners met at Crow river to have a picnic together.

After the usual Arbor Day performances of shining windows, raking yards, scrubbing desks, planting flowers, etc. they journeyed to Crow river.

The Petherick scholars covered the distance on foot and were first to reach the camping grounds. The Masson squadron came next by a more modern mode of travel by motor, and lastly came the gypsy-like procession from Shea's school, headed by two ponies and followed with four vans containing about thirty occupants.

After the horses had been stabled and fed, the pupils gathered in classes in a very picturesque spot along the bank of the river for lunch. After the appetites of such a hungry multitude had been satisfied a programme of sports was held, which was as fololws:

Senior boy's race (60 yards), won by John Cleugh.

One of the most interesting events of the afteroon was a baseball match between Shea's and Petherick's schools, with 2 Masson boys on each side, Petherick's winning by a score of 9 to 5.

The line ups were as follows:

Pethericks—Fred Fry, p; Millard Mackenzie, c; Gerald Petherick, ss; Arthur Petherick, 1b; Ray Thomson, 2b; Eddie Willis, 3b; Gerald Barnum, lf; Kenneth Parr, rf; Walter Watson, cf.

Shea's—Douglas Ingram, p; E. Fairman, c; Clarence Millar, ss; John Ceugh, 1b; Don Watson, 2b; Max Remmington 3b; Clare Ingram, rf; Willie Sharpe, lf; Stewart Bedford, cf.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in games, contests, etc.

REFER TENDERS TO COMMITTEE; TO REPORT BACK

Many Quotations Received on Sewage Disposal Plant and Equipment.

WILFORD LOW

Lindsay Contractor Quoted Low Figure for Buildings, Tanks and Pipeline.

There was a wide range of prices in the tenders for the sewage disposal plant which were opened by the Board of Works last night. Fourteen tenders were received for the construction work, five for the air diffusers, three each for the compressors and pumps and one for the clarifiers. All the tenders were referred to a committee consisting of Mayor Turner, Alderman Fife, chairman of the Board of Works, Aldermen Phelan and McIntyre and the City Engineer, who will examine the tenders and report back to the board.

Part one of the work consists of the construction of the pipe line across the Otonabee river, the pumping station, the grit chambers, the aeration tanks and the settling tanks. There was a difference of $58,533.00 between the low and the high tenders, F. R. Wilford of Lindsay quoting the low figure. His quotation was made up of $17,819 for the pipe line, $16,745 for the pumping station, $1,162 for the grit chambers, $21,827 for the aeration tanks and $20,447 for the settling tanks, making a total of $78,000.

Other tenders were Norman McLeod, $89,610 with no check or bond enclosed; John Carroll, $93,500; McAllister and Power, $94,390; G. B. Moogk, $95,000; A. C. Stewart, $95,110; R. H. Parsons, City Engineer, $95,979; the Port Arthur Construction Company, $99,911; Johnston Brothers, Brantford, $106,576; Russell Construction Co., $108,960; W. H. Yates, $111,877, less $3,637 if the gravel on the site is suitable; F. F. Fry, $117,865; T. A. Brown Co., $126,007; R. Sheehy, $136,533.

Pumps.

Only three firms tendered on section two, the pumps and motors, but a great variety of quotations were made. The Babcock Wilcox-Goldie McCulloch Company of Galt quoted $9,180 with some extras, bringing the total up to $9,618.80 for the three pumps but their letter called attention to the specifications enclosed, which they said were slightly different to those sent out. The John Inglis Co. quoted on pumps with four The Smart Turner Co. also sent in a $14,609; R. G. Sturgeon at $15,774.00 from the Lancashire Dynamo and Motor Co. of Toronto they ask $9,866; for C. G. E. motors their price is $10,400; English Electric Company motors make the cost $10,860, and Canadian Westinghouse motors would cost $11,700. The Smart Turner Co. also sent in a bunch of quotations. They quoted on two styles of pump and three motors. Lincoln motors with Frost and Wood pumps would cost $11,416.00; Parkinson motors with the same pumps would cost $11,286.00; and Westinghouse motors would come to $12,116.00. For these makes of motor but with Smart-Turner pumps the price in each case is $4,000.00 less.

Compressors'

Five prices were received from three firms for the compressors. The Laurie and Lamb Co. will supply compressors with either C. G. E. or Canadian Westinghouse motors for $17,771.00. For compressors with Parkinson motors they ask $17,025.00. The A. S. Leitch Co. will supply compressors and motors for $20,740.00 and Francis Hankin quotes $18,753.00.

Air Diffusion System.

Four prices were received for air diffusion equipment. W. R. Turner's price is $14,576.00; Laurie and Lamb tender at $14,609; R. G. Sturgeon at $15,774.00 and G. B. Moogk at $17,500.00. Francis Hankin quoted $6,748 for the system less the diffusing plates.

Clarifiers.

The Dorr Company was the only tenderer on the clarifiers, and their price was $31,970.00. No tenders were received for part 6, which consists of a number of valves.

There were present Alderman Fife, chairman, Mayor Turner, Aldermen Phelan, Jones, Turner, McIntyre, Crowe, Denne and Hancock.

DAUGHTER OF TWO STARS.

Here is Leatrice Joy, movie actr ess, and her five-months-old daughter, Leatrice the Second. The father is John Gilbert, also well known to movie fans.

WOULD PROHIBIT USING POISON GAS

United States' Delegation Introduced New Clause to Arms Convention.

GENEVA, May 7. — Condemination of the use of poison gas and the prohibition of its exportation for war purposes, is proposed in a new article of the draft convention offered by Representative Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, heading the United States delegation at to-day's session of the International conference for control of the traffic in arms.

Mr. Burton said that he expressed the desire of the United States government and people that some such provision regarding poison gas be adopted. He said the subject had been brought to the attention of President Coolidge and that the president will approve the prohibition of the exportation of poison gas for war purposes.

MUST CO-OPERATE TO STOP ACCIDENTS

Too Many Children Are Being Killed by Automobiles, Says Coroner.

TORONTO, May 7 (Canadian Press) — "There has been a great number of motor accidents in the city lately and I think there will have to be more co-operation between the schools and the automobile people in order to solve the problem in some way. There are too many accidents to little children," said Coroner J. H. McConnell at the morgue last night in addressing the jury at an inquest held into the death of five year old Robert Evans, who was fatally injured when run down by a car driven by F. Custins.

A verdict of accidental death of returned.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

GASOLINE TANKS.

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I heartily endorse your recent editorial regarding gasoline supply tanks on the city streets. I cannot imagine what our Council is thinking of in permitting so many obstructive incumbrances on our streets, nor their utter disregard of public safety by allowing these street parasites on such busy corners as Smith and Water, Charlotte and Park, Charlotte and Downie, while the business sections of Water, George and Charlotte are obstructed by them.

I have no interest in any way in any of the service stations that provide accommodation for cars on their own property, but in all fairness they are entitled to some measure of protection from these one-horse affairs that are using public property for a sales place.

The greatest menace, however, is to the motoring public; you cannot tell when some one is going to pop out from a car standing at one of these places. They greatly increase the risk of accident in addition to blocking traffic.

The suggestion to tax these users of city property should be carried out, and the tax be made sufficiently high to form a rental, or, better still, put them out of business.

They are no longer a necessity, and have become a public nuisance; their elimination would secure the addition of service stations where the motorist would be conveniently and safely served.

—Yours truly,

Motorist.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Machines have been devised at golf ball factories which, for testing purposes, will drive out ball after ball. Except for slight differences in air pressure due to changing wind currents, the balls would fall within a few inches of one another. The machine is automatic. The goal of the golfer is to become automatic. That it can be done is proved by the fact that par players are nearly automatic. The most noticeable thing about the ways of the tip-top players is the ease with which they accomplish their work. In that respect they resemble the machines used for testing. The only difference is that the machine may always be relied upon, while the human cannot be. The machine, however, sticks to its fixed method—never varying the slightest. Each time the human varies, his game varies. The point, then, is to adopt a method and stick to it.

HAD BAD SPELLS WITH HER HEART

Mrs. C. Martin, R.R. No. 2, Orillia, Ont., writes: "I have been troubled with my heart for a long time and very often had bad spells with it. I would take fainting spells, and my husband had to have somebody to stay with me all the time. He got me everything he could think of to see if they would do me any good, but nothing seemed to help me. One day a friend was in to see me and advised me to try

AT THE CAPITOL

LON CHANEY, "HE" IN STRONG DRAMA OF CIRCUS TROUPE

Norma Shearer, John Gilbert and Tully Marshall in the Cast

TELLS AN UNUSUAL STORY

Clown's Tragedy a Mixture of Realism, Romance and Rhapsody.

What promises to be one of the most important events of the screen season here is the Victor Seastrom production of "He Who Gets Slapped," which is to open at the Capitol Theatre today and run until Saturday night.

"He Who Gets Slapped" is the work of Leonid Andreyev, the distinguished Russian writer. As a drama it has been played successfully in New York, London, Paris, Moscow, Berlin and Vienna. Critics have regarded it as one of the most interesting contributions of the modern theatre.

A Notable Cast.

When it was transferred to the screen the reviewers greeted it as one of the outstanding features of the year. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company has gathered a notable cast for this production. Lon Chaney, the hunchback of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," appears in the title role as "He Who Gets Slapped," the name given to the clown of the European circus about whom the story revolves. Norma Shearer, the beautiful young Canadian society girl, who has come to the fore with dazzling brilliance in recent Metro-Goldwyn pictures, plays the circus rider, Consuelo. John Gilbert, who won fame as the "Count of Montre Cristo" and in Elinor Glyn's "His Hour," is cast as Bezano, the handsome circus equestrian. Tully Marshall, the old trader of "The Covered Wagon," plays the spidery, conscienceless Count Mancini.

AT THE ROYAL

"CODE OF THE SEA" ROARING ACTION STORY

With Rod La Roque and Jacqueline Logan at Royal.

The picture was adapted from an original screen story by Byron Morgan, prominent magazine writer. The story has to do with the regeneration of a coward, a theme not unlike that of James Cruze's "The Fighting Coward," yet with entirely different treatment. Directed by Victor Fleming, "Code of the Sea" should prove one of the most interesting films of the current season. It has a great cast, an appealing story, heart-interest and everything else—and it's a novelty in that practically every scene is an exterior, and about every two out of three of these is a water shot.

If you liked Rod La Rocque in "The Ten Commandments," "Triumph," "A Society Scandal" and the rest, you'll rave over him in this one. He's one of the few leading men on the screen who are more than just pretty boys. And you haven't seen Jacqueline Logan at her best until you've seen "Code of the Sea."

Your ship of joy with its cargo of thrills will come in when you see this one!

AMATEUR NIGHT TO-NIGHT AT ROYAL

Among the list of amateurs to appear at the Royal to-night are:—

Dorothy Fine, violin.

Collins and Brioux, mouth organ and violin.

O'Toole and Ronco, step dancing.

Nora Scully and Elenor Anderson, dancers.

Mary Tobin and Isabel McBride, Irish jig.

FAMOUS FAIRY TALE FOR KIDDIES AT ROYAL

"Jack and the Beanstalk," the one fairy tale known by every child, has at last been filmed and will be presented at the Royal to-night, Friday and Saturday. Baby Peggy is the featured artist, and Jack Carl, seven-foot comedian, is playing the Giant. Another novelty for the kiddies is Dunkie Doodle in "Cinderella and the Glass Slipper," also "The Iron Man."

AT THE REGENT

F.B.O. WILL AWARD $3,000 IN CASH PRIZES FOR NEW TITLE FOR "ON THE STROKE OF THREE"

Messrs. Goebel & Erb, the producers of "On the Stroke of Three," in conjunction with Film Booking Offices of America, Inc., the distributors of the film, are offering cash prizes in the amount of $3,000.00 for a new title for the production.

The contest is open to everyone in the United States and Canada, with the exception of employees of F. B. O., and employees of the motion picture trade journals.

In order to conform to the United States Postal Law, it is not necessary for participants in the contest to see the picture, "On the Stroke of Three," in order to enter the contest. Synopses of the story will be mailed to every exhibitor throughout the United States and Canada, and a synopsis secured at the box-office of his favorite theatre makes the contestant eligible.

There are 151 prizes in all. The first prize, to be awarded to the man, woman or child who sends in the most acceptable title, will be One Thousand Dollars ($3,000.00) in cash. The second best title will be awarded a cash prize of $450.00. The winner of the third prize, for the third best title, will receive One Hundred Dollars in cash. The fourth, $75; the next seven, $50; then will come five prizes of $20; and seventy prizes of $10 each. The sixty next best will receive $5 each in cash; 151 opportunities to win a cash prize, whether the picture is seen or not.

The contest starts now, and closes June 30, 1925.

Three Thousand dollars has been deposited in the Greenwich Bank (Broadway Branch), New York, to remain there till the contest is closed.

The judges of the contest will be J. S. Dickerson, Editor of the Motion Picture News; Robert E. Welch, Editor of the Moving Picture World; Martin J. Quigley, Editor of the Exhibitors Herald, Messrs. Goebel and Erb, the producers of "On the Stroke of Three," and the executives of Film Booking Offices, the distributors of the film.

"On the Stroke of Three" was formerly called "Sold for Cash." It ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post as "The Man From Ashaluna," and comes from the pen of Henry Payson Dowst, with the continuity by Phillip Lonergan. Messrs. Goebel and Erb and F. B. O. changed the title to "On the Stroke of Three" but feel that the story has possibilities for a better title.

Prominent in the cast are Madge Bellamy and Kenneth Harlan, who are co-starred, with Mary Carr, Eddie Phillips, Robert Dudley, John Miljan, Edward Davis and Dorothy Dahm, giving admirable support. F. Harmon Weight directed.

"On the Stroke of Three" will be shown at the Regent Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

CANADA CANNOT EXPORT POWER

Premier Ferguson Says Power From Carillon Must Be Used Here.

QUEBEC OPPOSED.

OTTAWA, May 7. — Opposition to any export of power from the Carillon Rapids, on the Ottawa river, was voiced last evening by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the Premier of Ontario, before the Eastern Ontario Liberal Conservative Association.

"If we have a great heritage given to us by Providence, making it possible to turn the wheels of industry in Canada, and the Americans want to use it, let them come over here, and manufacture," stated Premier Ferguson. "If the Dominion Government once permitted electrical energy to be exported we might as well make up our minds that we are crippling the future development of industrial life."

There was immediate use for this power here, and Ontario did not propose to allow the Dominion government to allow such an export without making it an issue, even an election issue. He wos glad to know that Premier Taschereau of Quebec also opposed such export.

Improve the Moral Situation.

The government should be given credit for endeavoring to improve the moral situation and we ask you to wait and see what the result will be, stated Mr. Ferguson, in referring to the legislation passed by the Ontario house, permitting the sale of 4.4 beer in the province.

"The greatest menace we have is the illicit importation of alcoholic liquors of a poisonous character from across the border," he continued. "If the government by providing 4.4 beer, which was of a harmless nature, reduced the consumption of the poisonous alcohol, a great deal would be accomplished."

BOWLING TOURNEY STARTS IN AUGUST

Dominion Association Will Hold Trial Tourney By New Method.

TORONTO, May 7 (Canadian Press)—Monday, August 17, was selected as the starting date for the Dominion bowling tourney this year, at the annual meeting of the Dominion Lawn Bowling tournament association held last night.

The suggestion to divide Canada into sections, each section to declare champions to compete for the Dominion titles was discussed and it was decided to partly try the experiment this year at a special tourney which will not in any way interfere with the regular annual gathering of bowlers. All affiliated clubs were asked to declare winners by July 18 to compete in the trial tourney.

FREIGHT RATES OF COMBINE ARE ADOPTED BY GOVERNMENT BOATS WITH A LOSS ON OCEAN BUSINESS Manager of Merchant Marine at Meetings of Atlantic Shipping Conference.

STABILITY NEEDED.

Could Make Better Showing If More General Cargo Obtained.

OTTAWA, May 8. — (Canadian Press). — Although the Canadian Government Merchant Marine has not "sat in" at the meeting of the North Atlantic Conference since February, conference rates are still being quoted on the Government boats. This was the information given to the special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates by John P. Doherty, traffic manager of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine Thursday afternoon. In answer to a question by Sir Henry Drayton, Mr. Doherty said that the Government service quoted the same rates as the conference lines.

"How do you keep yourself advised of the conference rates?" asked Sir Eugene Fiset.

Mr. Doherty replied that he inquired for and obtained the conference rates. Later, William Duff, of Lunenburg, asked Mr. Doherty if he knew the conference rate on apples.

"Ninety cents a barrel," answered Mr. Doherty.

"And what is your rate?" inquired Mr. Duff.

"We charged ninety cents a barrel," was the reply.

Examination of Mr. Doherty occupied the full time of the committee at yesterday's sitting, and he was still on the stand when adjournment took place.

Combine Cut Rates.

Dr. M. McKay, a member of the committee, directed the attention of the witness to a statement previously filed by W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the C.P.R., showing marked reductions in steam ship rates since 1919. Dr. McKay asked why, since the Government boats were losing money, they had agreed to these rate reductions.

"As far as the Canadian Government Merchant Marine is concerned, we had to reduce our rates when they were reduced by other lines," Mr. Doherty replied. He expressed the opinion that stability of rates was of the greatest importance.

"Do you see any disadvantages to Canada from the conference arrangement?" Mr. Doherty was asked by G. H. Montgomery, steamship counsel.

He stated that rates from New York and Canadian ports were on a parity, and expressed the view that stability of rates was of prime importance to the shipper.

Trade Not Profitable.

"Is the North Atlantic trade considered a profitable one to-day?" asked Mr. Montgomery.

"Our figures show that it is not a profitable one to us," was the reply.

"Is it good business to keep ships running back and forth across the Atlantic at a loss?" Mr. Duff asked.

WEATHER

The weather still keeps quite cool, unseasonably cool, and is not conducive to growth. The same conditions still prevail throughout the great western prairies, though growth is further advanced there than here. Those who have faith in the moon claim that there will be no change until we have a new moon —which will not be for a couple of weeks. Dan Whetung, Sr., in a note to me says: "It will be of no use to look for a change to warmer weather until the moon moves more to the south.". Moon or no moon, a little warmer weather would be appreciated Temperature this morning, 33 degrees. A few snow flurries yesterday, and the likelihood of some to-day. —W. P.

WINS JAIL SIEGE

Woman at Winnipeg Assured of Husband's Release.

WINNIPEG, May 8.—(Canadian Press).—The silent fight waged by Mrs. Mary Pitras and her five children, who Wednesday picketed the Provincial jail here in protest against what they believed to be the unfair imprisonment of her husband, William Pitras, promised to bear results.

Papers recommending Pitras' release went forward to Ottawa yesterday, and it is expected that he will be paroled in a few days.

Assured that her husband will shortly be given his freedom, Mrs. Pitras has ended her vigil and returned with her children to the farm at Lac Du Bonnet.

TRACTOR KILLS MADOC FARMER

RAN AWAY.

MADOC, May 8.— Angus McKenzie, of Madoc township, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon by a tractor. He had a seed drill attached behind the tractor, and while trying to avoid running into his harrow, the tractor struck a stone pile, running over Mr. McKenzie. The neighbors were summoned at once, but Mr. McKenzie was dead when taken from the wreck.

LARGE AUDIENCE ON SECOND NIGHT

All Saints' Dramatic Club Repeated Successful Play Last Night.

The second performance of the comedy, "The Stubborn Motor Car," at All Saints' Parish Hall last night, was even better than the first. Those taking part in the play showed more confidence and acted their parts in a more finished manner. The audience entirely filled the auditorium, and many were turned away. At many points of the play the speakers had to hold up their lines until the applause or laughter had died away so that they could be heard, and people coming out were heard to say it was worth double the money.

The musical numbers in the intervals were very much appreciated. All Saints' Sunday School orchestra, with fifteen capable musicians, under the skilled leadership of Walter Hughes, presented some very fine numbers which added greatly to the success of the play.

Owing to the great demand for tickets and the number who had to be turned away, it was announced that the play would be repeated next week, in addition to the performance already scheduled for to-night.

"Unwanted Mother" In Cat Tragedy At Keene

KEENE, May 8.—A cat belonging to the Rev. A. McLauchlin brought home a family of two kittens. Two days after, she left them and did not return. Another cat strayed into where the kittens were and took them under her care. A few days after, the original mother cat returned and claimed her kittens, and the two cats compromised, each taking one kitten.

The following day, when both cats and kittens were out in the yard, the children began playing with them, and cat Number 1 decided that one mother was enough for the kittens, and walked away from them and dropped dead, supposedly of a broken heart.

LAST ASSEMBLY OF GOVERNMENT IN NOVA SCOTIA

Provincial Election Due Before September 30 — Gift to Premier Armstrong.

FINAL ADDRESSES.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 8.—Prorogation of the last general assembly of Nova Scotia's fourteenth parliament since Confederation was carried out at one o'clock yesterday by Lieutenant - Governor J. Robson Douglas to the accompaniment of martial music, an artillery salute and a brilliant military and naval display. In his prorogation address Lieutenant-Governor Douglas referred to some of the most important legislation enacted during the present sessions, including acts to make uniform the law respecting life insurance contracts, to encourage zinc mining, to provide a gasoline tax and to encourage the use of ground limestone for agricultural purposes. He referred particularly to the act amending the constitution, powers and privileges of the Upper House, limiting the tenure of offices of members that may be appointed in future and assuring the passage of measures that have public approval.

Regrets Strike.

He regretted the continued differences between coal miners and operators in Nova Scotia, "notwithstanding every effort made by the government of the province to effect an amicable settlement," but trusted that the legislative provision made for the prevention of strikes and lockouts — "The Industrial Peace Act" would be an effective means for the settlement of all such disputes. Referring to the resolution adopted by the house in reference to the effect upon Nova Scotia of the terms of Confederation, the Lieutenant - Governor expressed pleasure that a bill had been passed to authorize a commission which would ascertain the particulars in which the province had suffered through administration of the federal government of the terms of Confederation.

The session had lasted over two months, having assembled February 26 last. No announcements have been made by authorities as to when the general election will be held, but the statute demands that it come before the end of the fiscal year, September 30.

Address to Premier.

Just prior to prorogration, an interesting ceremony was carried out in the legislative assembly, when Hon. E. H. Amstrong, premier since 1923 and member of the House for 20 years, was the recipient of a gold watch and chain and an address, from his Liberal supporters in the House. The presentation was made by James Scaly, King's.

The Premier was greatly affected by the incident, and it was with apparent difficulty that he controlled his emotions when replying to the address. Whatever the will of the people decided for him in future, he said, the last day of his term would remain green in his memory always as one of the most pleasing things that had ever occurred in his political life. He recalled with great satisfaction the pleasing relations that had always existed among the members of his own side of the House and between himself and the members of the Opposition, he said, in conclusion.

CHURCHILL AND SNOWDEN CLASH ON THE BUDGET

TARIFF APPROVED.

LONDON, May 8. — (Canadian Press). — The House of Commons last night concluded the report stage of the budget. All the resolutions with the exception of that relating to the silk duties, were carried by large majorities. Discussion of the silk duties was postponed until Monday.

The House agreed to a duty of £4 per hundredweight on imported hops for four years from next August. A Laborite amendment seeking to limit the duration of the duty to one year was rejected, 308 to 146.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Churchill, in the teeth of strong Laborite opposition, secured the reimposition of the McKenna duties without modifications. These duties become effective July 1, and a Labor amendment to cancel the duties on automobiles and motorcycles was rejected, 320 to 159.

Snowden's Asperity.

The debate was interesting mainly for a heated personal encounter between Mr. Churchill and Philip Snowden, who held the post of Chancellor in the Labor Government. Mr. Churchill had vehemently challenged the Laborite contention that any question of protection was involved in re-imposing these duties, and in declining to listen to proposals from the Conservatives that commercial vehicles should be included in the re-imposed duties (these duties having to do with luxuries), frankly admitted that his only object was to reverse the policy of the Labor Government, which last year abolished these duties.

There is a permanent feud between the Laborites and Mr. Churchill, and the Chancellor's remarks brought forth a hot rejoinder from Mr. Snowden: "I can well understand that the Chancellor of the Exchequer is incapable of understanding that any person can be moved by honest political convictions."

Refused to Withdraw.

This provoked a storm of Ministerial protest and cries of "Withdraw!" The noise was so great that Mr. Snowden was unable to continue his speech for several minutes. He stood at the table and declared that he would follow the example which Mr. Churchill set last week and "withdraw nothing," and he added: "I can tell the right honorable gentleman that my action in repealing the duties was not the price I had to pay for political apostacy."

This retort, an allusion to Mr. Churchill's recent change of parties, delighted the Opposition and excited renewed protests from the Government side. But nothing further occurred.

GIRL DISMISSED BY FATHER OF MISSING CHILD

Disappearance of Charles Hodges, Lindsay Boy, Has Aroused Whole Town.

NO TRACE FOUND.

"Fortune Tellers" Say He Was Whisked Away in Car Monday Night.

LINDSAY, May 8. — The mystery surrounding disappearance of little Charley Hodges, while still unsolved, has taken on sensational features as a result of the many reports in circulation. One has to do with the parentage of the missing child, but this has been cleared up, it is claimed, by the chairman of the Police Committee. Mr. Hodges, the father of the boy, enlisted for overseas in October, 1916, and on January 31, 1917, the boy was born.

Friends of the family consulted another fortune teller living at Fenelon Falls on Wednesday night. The woman promptly explained that the father of the boy was a returned soldier, and that his son had been spirited away in an auto by two men and carried in a northwestern direction from Lindsay.

Her "story" tallies in every respect with the one told by the Lindsay fortune teller.

Heard Call for Help.

The little sister of the missing boy as well as a little girl named Winchester, living next door to the Hodges restaurant have come forward with a story that on the night of his disappearance they heard the boy call for help.

This statement lends color to the belief held by a large number of citizens that the child was spirited away in a car. Very few now hold to the theory that the boy met death in the Scugog river. The father of the child, who felt all along that he had been drowned, now believes him to be alive.

An added thrill was given to the incident in the hurried departure from Lindsay yesterday of Chief of Police Umphrey. He refused to give out his destination and no information regarding the object of the trip could be obtained from the chairman of the Police Committee, who has been quite active in the search.

Further inquiry revealed the fact that the Chief left for the vicinity of Coldwater to look into a clue which is believed to be an important one.

It was stated by parties who are in a position to know that a young girl, who had been employed as a domestic at the Hodges restaurant,

Threw Acid On Wife To Mar Her In Eyes Of Other Men

WINNIPEG, May 8.—(Canadian Press).—Jealousy is believed by the police to be the motive that caused Maurice Desmedt, of St. Vital, a suburb, to throw picric acid over his sleeping wife, Valemire, at the family home Wednesday, and which resulted in her death in hospital several hours later. He is declared to have been obsessed with a belief that he might not be long for this world, and that his wife would re-marry.

"I did not want to kill her, I wanted to spoil her good looks so that no other man would look at her," he is declared to have told neighbors.

MARLER QUOTES INCREASED DEBT FROM RAILWAYS

Sum of $50,848,485 Added to Public Debt of Canada by King Government.

REPLY TO MEIGHEN.

OTTAWA, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—Mr. Forke, Progressive leader, discussing the railway problem in the House yesterday, was not in favor of amalgamation. He did not believe that the "Utopian situation," wherein a publicly - owned road would successfully consolidate all of Canada's railways was realizable in the near future. And he was not in favor of a monopoly. If one corporation owned all the railways, it would also own the country.

Mr. Forke was in favor of a selective and constructive immigration policy as a solution of the railway problem.

Herbert Marler (Liberal, St. Lawrence-St. George) analyzed the railway situation in its relation to the financial problem. He accepted the challenge made by the leader of the Opposition in the latter's budget speech. When Mr. Meighen estimated the addition since 1921 to the public debt, as $262,000,000, Mr. Marler had interrupted him to say that the real figure was about $100,000,000. Mr. Meighen then advised Mr. Marler to give more time to a further investigation of the facts, and less time to "trying to get back into the good graces of the Government." Mr. Marler gave his reasons for believing that his estimate was

REPRISALS FROM CANADIANS IF AMERICAN PLANS FOR RUM WAR ON GREAT LAKES ARE CARRIED OUT

Twenty-two Cruisers Fitted With Cannon Commissioned For Prohibition Service.

BUILDING FLEETS.

U. S. Government Has No Right to Use Guns in Three Mile Limit.

WINDSOR, May 8—International complications will arise from the efforts of the United States to maintain a coast guard on the Great Lakes to curb rum-running between the two countries, it was predicted by John H. Rodd, K.C., and former Crown Attorney.

Mr. Rodd was emphatic in saying that reprisals would follow if the United States pursued its proposed policy of shooting first and investigating afterward.

As Mr. Rodd was making his statement, the news came that elaborate plans, which are carefully guarded, are being worked out by Michigan and Washington prohibition officers for the operation of the rum fleet. Twentytwo cruisers, carrying cannon and smaller guns, have been commissioned for Great Lakes service, it was learned. Ten ships are being built at Bay City, and another fleet is under construction at Canton, Ohio. Both of these fleets will be put into service, if necessary, it was announced.

"I consider the proposals of the American authorities an outrage," said Rodd. "They are almost sure to result in international complications. The American Government has no right to use fire-arms within the three-mile limit in a matter such as this, that is, the enforcing of purely domestic and sumptuary legislation.

"The recent treaty between the United States and Great Britain allows the American authorities to follow and capture within a 12-mile limit, but this agreement doesn't permit the use of guns. The capture must be made peacefully."

News to Ottawa

OTTAWA, May 8—No notification has been received here of the reported determination of the United States to place on the Great Lakes 22 armored cruisers to fight rum runners, but notification may hardly be necessary.

While the Rush-Bagot treaty, over 100 years old, restricted to six the number of armed vessels on the lakes, a very elastic interpretation has long been put on this statute and both countries have put on many more armed patrol boats.

Negotiations have been conducted for a revision of the treaty and were supposedly concluded two years ago but nothing has since happened. Meanwhile, by allowing naval, militia and other armed craft on the lake, the treaty has practically been recognized as obsolete, and the proposed warfare against rum-runners is unlikely to evoke any international protest.

BRITAIN SUGGESTS WARSHIPS BE OMITTED FROM CONTROL OF ARMS TRAFFIC BECAUSE SALE IS OPEN

RUSSIANS IN PLOT

Financial Bulgarian Agitation and Outbreak in Cities.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 8 — The police now believe they hold all the skeins of the Agrarian and Communist plots. Persons under arrest, the police say, have confessed that workers for the Russian Reds received more than 15,000 levas monthly apiece. (A leva normally is valued at 19 cents) Numerous arrests have been made, including the leaders of local secret organiations.

HEAVIER TAX IN CAILLAUX PLAN

Income From Investments and Agricultural Profits on Par With Other Sources.

PUBLISHED TO-DAY.

PARIS, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—The following forecast of the plan devised by M. Caillaux, Minister of Finance, for straightening out the financial situation appears in to-day's Matin. M. Caillaux will lay his plan before the Cabinet this afternoon and before the Finance Committee of the Chamber on Tuesday next.

Various expenses, which heretofore have not been incorporated in the budget, will now be listed in it; for example, pensions, the deficit of the railroads and the supplementary posts, telephones and telegraphs budget. These henceforth must be covered by taxation, leaving only the settlement of war damage as a direct charge on the Treasury.

This means, the Matin says, 3,000,000,000 francs supplementary receipts from the taxpayers, half of which amount M. Caillaux intends to obtain by increased indirect taxation, and the other half by increasing certain schedules of the income tax, notably those dealing with income from investments and agricultural profits, which will be taxed in the same proportion as other sources of income.

Thus remodelled, the 1925 budget is to be voted before the end of July, and the 1926 budget prepared soon enough to be introduced before the end of the session.

Lilies of the valley are used most effectively to trim white dancing frocks of satin or chiffon. The combination of green and white is a most popular one now.

Railways' Frenzied Race Will Be Ruin Of Canada

OTTAWA, May 8.—(By Canadian Press).—A new kind of anti-racing agitation was heard in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon Dealing with duplicate train services, W. F MacLean (Conservative-South York described "two mad trains rushing to Toronto" with passengers cheering them on from the car winows.

The same sort of racing was going on all over Canada, he said, and if it did not stop, Canada would be wrecked Expensive competition would also wreck the C.P.R., Mr. MacLean said.

He said the Minister of Railways Wednesday "sidestepped the question" of amalgamation in his speech on railway estimates.

Mr. MacLean suggested commission to ascertain exactly what was the debt of the National roads. The question of consolidation of services should then be put in the hands of a committee of five men composed of executives of both roads. Shareholders of the Canadian Pacific should be justly dealt with but "the mad dance of railway competition must stop."

Impossible to Conceal the Sale of a Warship, British Delegate Points Out.

GENEVA MEETING.

Japan and Italy Support Britain's Proposal—No Nations Opposed It.

GENEVA, May 8.— (Canadian Press).—Great Britain dropped a bomb on Geneva last night when she proposed before the international conference on the control of arms and munitions that warships be omitted from the category of armaments which will be subjected to international control.

Japan and Italy supported the British move.

This action on the part of Great Britain followed a move of another kind, made earlier in the day, when Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, proposed an entirely new clause in the convention whereby international traffic in poison gas for war purposes would be prohibited.

Mr. Burton's resolution was subsequently referred to a committee of technical experts.

British Contentions.

Rear-Admiral Aubrey Smith, British delegate, outlined to the conference committee on military, naval and air matter why his country favored taking warships out of the list of armaments which under the draft convention are subjected to a system of license when sold by one country to another. He argued that the chief aim of the conference was not to prevent illicit trade in armaments, but to control and, especially, make it public.

He laid stress on the fact that the object of the conference was not to reduce armaments, but merely to throw everything about their seal into the light of publicity. Now, nobody, he declared, could conceal the sale of a warship and hence it seemed unnecessary to keep warships in the category of war material to be supervised.

Japan supported the British view for the same reason and Italy followed suit. No nation opposed the British suggestions.

FRENCH PRIEST ON LEPER ISLE

Former Army Chaplain Will Spend Rest of Life Among Afflicted.

CITED FOR BRAVERY.

KALAUPAPA, Island of Molokai May 8 (United Press)—A former chaplain in the French army, Father Peter Henri D'Orgeval, has come to Moolkai, the leper colony, the saddest spot in the world, to care for the afflicted and to die.

The former chaplain has no misgivings about his coming here. He realizes that he will never leave the island.

Father D'Orgeval, cited five times for bravery and recommended by Marshal Joffre for the Cross of the Legion of Honor, was a priest in Paris before coming out here.

"If I can make one single unfortunate happy," he said, "my errand will be a great success."

Most Urgent Wants

There's a world of interest in the Want Ads. They reflect the urgent desires of various businesses, households and individuals.

The Wants tell what is most needed. If the cook has left, if a worker is needed in the office or factory, if an article of value is lost or found, if there is urgent necessity to sell a piece of property, secure tenants, roomers or boarders—all such conditions are expressed and met in the Want Columns.

The Wants are close to the heart interests of hte people. It is interesting to watch them carefully.

PERSONAL NOTES OF CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8 — Miss Blanche Bell, who has been visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. J. H. Bell, manager of the Campbellford Cloth Company, returned to Toronto on Thursday.

Rev. J. T. O'Connor-Fenton, Rural Dean, of Norwood, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Linton during the meeting of the Deanery of Peterborough, held in Christ Church on Monday and Tuesday.

Rev. Mr. Stanley, of Havelock, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Smith and Rev. J. L. Hughes of St. George's Church, Peterborough, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Bullen during the meeting of the Peterborough Deanery held this week.

Mr. Pearson, of Deseronto, who conducted services in the Gospel Hall, Rear Street, on Monday and Tuesday nights, is paying his farewell to Campbellford, as he leaves soon for Manchester, R.I., where he will reside.

Rev. J. D. Paterson, of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, Rev. Mr. Cox, of Lakefield, and Rev. Mr. Pippen, of Hastings, attended the meeting of the Deanery of Peterborough this week.

The Girl Guides and Brownies held a bean roast at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. On Saturday afternoon they are planning to hold their sports on the Methodist Church grounds.

Deanery Meeting.

The meeting of the Deanery of Peterborough was held in Christ Church, Campbellford, on Monday evening, and on Tuesday the meetings were held in the Parish Hall.

On Monday evening a large congregation listened to an eloquent and impressive sermon by Rural Dean J. T. O'Connor-Fenton, of Norwood. The speaker based his remarks on Revelations, chapter 21, verse 19, "And the foundations of the walls of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones. The first foundation was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth an emerald."

The rector, Rev. G. C. Clarke, took charge of the service, while Rev. J. L. Hughes, of St. George's Church, Peterborough, read the lessons, and Rev. Mr. Stanley, of Havelock, read the prayers. A full choir rendered the anthem, "Son of My Soul," in an exceptionally fine manner.

The morning session on Tuesday, which was held in Parish Hall, was of a business nature. At one o'clock, the Women's Auxiliary gave a delightful luncheon at the home of Mrs. A. J. Jenkins. Returning to Parish Hall a new paper written by Canon Plumptre, entitled, "A Trip to France and Eng. with Observations upon the Church in Those Parts," was read by Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church. The ladies again served a dainty afternoon tea before the meeting dispersed.

At Tuesday's sessions therewere present, beside the clergymen already mentioned, Rev. Mr. Cox of Lakefield, Rev. Pippen of Hastings, and Rev. J. D. Patterson of All Saints' Church, Peterborough.

I. O. D. E. Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Campbellford Chapter, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, was held in the library on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30, the regent, Mrs. W. H. Ashton, in the chair. In the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) A. Haig, Mrs. Harry Lowery most efficiently performed the duties of secretary.

The report presented by the Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Townsend, was very gratifying. This report showed the net proceeds of the concert staged recently under the auspices of the I. O. D. E. for the Memorial Fund to be $112.80. The chapter has on hand a Memorial Fund of nearly $1600, and it is most anxious that the long talked of memorial in honor of our fallen heroes be a reality without further delay. With this end in view a meeting of a committee composed of the regent, Mrs. Ashton, and Mesdames J. P. Archer, Harry Lowery and R. Weston and Mayor Meyers and Councillor Kingston was held immediately prior to the meeting and it was decided that the secretary communicate with Mr. A. L. Killaly, Peterborough, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, re the fitting up of the grounds and maintenance thereof on the proposed monument site near the wharf on the west side of the river. The secretary was also asked to communicate with certain firms who are being asked to send representatives to confer with the committee, showing cuts, or designs, etc.

The names of Miss Hazel Atkinson, Regent of Bemersyde Chapter, and Major Bygott will be added to this committee.

The members of the chapter are to b complimented upon the indomitable spirit by which they have striven with untiring spirit by which they have striven with untiring energy to raise funds for this most deserving object and still they are planning to continue their efforts to raise still more money. It was unanimously decided to hold an afternoon tea and sale of home cooking about June 24, Mrs. G. A. Kingston very kindly offering her home and spacious grounds for the occasion. Committees were formed for this event, which will no doubt be, as all other similar undertakings have been an unqualified success.

Mrs. G. W. Hammond then gave a very practical and helpful reading, "The Family's Money and the China Pig," showing how by the curtailment of small expenditures for luxuries, ice cream, movies, etc., and putting the money in say a penny bank one can easily provide for pleasant and profitable trips, etc.

UNITED CHURCH W.M.S. FORMED

Havelock Has Distinction of Being First in This District.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

HAVELOCK, May 8.—The first meeting of the local branch of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada was held on Wednesday afternoon in the basement of the church and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President: Mrs. John Cochrane.
1st Vice-President: Mrs. Geo Chiles.
2nd Vice-President: Mrs. Wm. Davidson.
Recording Secretary: Mrs. E Fennell.
Corresponding Secretary: Mrs. A. C. Denike.
Treasurer: Mrs. R. Campney.

Delegate for Branch Convention at Oshawa: Mrs. J. Freeman.

The Havelock church began to operate as the United Church of Canada on May 1st, and has the distinction of being the first church in this district to operate as a United Church.

Peterboro Visitor.

On Monday evening the Right Worshipful Bro. H. R. H. Kenner of Peterboro, District Deputy Grand Master of Peterboro District, paid an official visit to the Havelock Lodge A. F. and A. M. No. 435.

A large number of the young people of Knox Church spent a social evening at Norwood on Monday, the guests of St. Andrew's Young Women's Auxiliary.

The officers of the local Masonic Lodge paid a visit to the Compbellford Lodge on Tuesday evening for the purpose of conferring the third degree.

Funeral.

The funeral of the late Atckison Wilde, who passed away in Toronto on May 4th, took place from his late residence, Concession Street, on Wednesday morning. The remains were taken to Camden Cemetery, near Napanee, for burial. The service was held on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the residence and was conducted by Rev. E. O. Seymour.

The deceased, who was 83 years of age, had been ill for nearly three months, and his death was not unexpected. He is survived by his wife.

GIRL DISMISSED

and who came from a point between Coldwater and Midland, had been dismissed from the service and left in a very angry mood.

Those who are on the inside believe that the Chief of Police left yesterday to interrogate the girl with a view to obtaining some light on the mystery.

Missing since Monday.

Charley Hodges disappeared Monday night. He was seen one block off the main street at 7.30 that evening, but a few minutes lates he disappeared as if the earth had swallowed him.

For two days searchers dragged the river from the locks to the Carew mills in search of the body as it was felt the eight year old boy might have wandered to the river shore and been accidentally drowned. The bed of the river has been thoroughly combed, but no trace of the body was found.

The boy was not in the habit of wandering away from home, and it is said had a fear of the water. The searchers have abandoned the work of dragging the river for the time being.

A great many of the citizens hold to the belief that the child is alive, but they advance no tangible reason for this belief. An old fortune teller has been consulted and she told friends of the family that the boy had been carried off in an automobile by two people, and that he would return in a day. The time for his return has elapsed however, but some continue to have faith in the woman's predictions.

Another story was to the effect that the child had been spirited away by an Indian family from St. Regis, Quebec, which had been camped in Ops township, but this was shown to be a canard. Some person started the rumor that the boy was being detained in a Chinese laundry. This place was visited but there was no trace of the boy.

At six o'clock on Wednesday night the town bell rang an alarm. Citizens congregated at the corner of Kent and William streets, where Ivan Moore, president of the Great War Veterans' Association, urged those with autos to turn out and scour the country for the missing boy. A great many responded to the call, including the local troop of Boy Scouts. No trace of the missing boy was found, however.

PICKEREL BITE AT TRENT RIVER

Will Wight Landed One That Weighed Eight Pounds.

Trent River, May 8. — A great number of pickerel have been caught this week. In the evening the pier is thronged with anglers. Mr. Will Wright recently landed one that weighed eight pounds.

Mrs. Harry Wannamaker has been confined to bed through serious illness with Dr. Holdcroft in attendance, but is improving. Her mother, Mrs. Vance is with her.

The trees are coming out in leaf, and pastures are green, but the nights are still cool, with frost.

Miss Frances Sedgwick has returned from spending a few weeks with relatives at Roseneath.

M. G. Miller, star of the east piano and organ tuner, has been busy throughout this district with his many customers and was a guest ot the Waldorf.

First Tug.

The first tug passed through on Wednesday en route to the Falls towing a large scow laden with supplies.

Mrs. Herbert Rose arrived from Toronto on Tuesday to "Ye Olde Mill" after spending a few weeks in the city.

MARLER QUOTES

The statement of Mr. Meighen, declared Mr. Marler, that the debt to the public, insofar as our railways were concerned, had been increased by $176,796,490, since the Government came into office, was incorrect.

Increase $50,848,485.

Mr. Marler quoted figures in support of his argument that this increase in the railway debt to the public was approximately $50,848,485 only.

It had been sought, stated Mr. Marler, to make the debt of the Canadian Northern Railway, the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific as small as possible on December 31, 1921, so as to produce as large an increase as possible.

Since that date, for instance, the debt of the Canadian Northern on December 31, 1921, was $405,496,933, instead of the lesser amount of $302,399,007, given by members of the Opposition.

Mr. Marler placed statistical tables on Hansard to refute statements made by Mr. Meighen regarding the increase in public debt due to Canadian National Railways. He pointed out that the present Government in taking office in 1921, had to carry out contracts made. Whoever heard of directors coming into a company and cutting off all that had gone before, and starting out with new expenditures? The reasonable way was to consider the railway position from 1923 when the present management took charge.

Too Much Duplication.

W. F. MacLean (Conservative, South York) disagreed with the suggestion of Mr. Forke, that there should be two railway systems. "The world is crazy over duplication, and it seems to be the curse of the world," stated Mr. MacLean.

"And of speeches," interrupted T. B. Caldwell (Progressive, Carleton-Victoria).

"Yes, my hon. friend is a good imitator," replied Mr. MacLean.

Mr. MacLean believed that the Canadian National Railways and Canadian Pacific should be merged under public ownership. The carrying out of such a scheme would bring a vast improvement to the country.

W. C. Good (Progressive, Brant) expressed his conviction that the only solution of our railway problem under existing conditions, was by amalgamation of the two systems. He saw no reason why as good service could not be rendered under public ownership as under private.

Beautiful Dream.

F. S. Cahill (Liberal, Pontiac) said that every man had his own figures in the matter of railway finance, and he was the only man that could be convinced of it. The country was faced with a serious deficit every year, amounting in the last five or six years to one hundred million dollars. Amalgamation of the two railways seemed like a beautiful dream, but it was only a dream. Monopoly under private ownership or public ownership would be intolerable, and a centralized authority employing about ten per cent. of the population of Canada would be a menace. The railways would control politics. The end sought for by amalgamation suggestions could be obtained by present facilities. The Railway Commission should be brought into the situation more actively, and ought to deal with matters pertaining to branch lines.

The Minister of Railways was hoping to get the two presidents together with a view to eliminating unnecessary competition, but that situation was hopeless. The facts were that Canada had more service than it could pay for, and the question of competition should be brought before the Railway Commission for their consideration as soon as possible, said Mr. Cahill. He indicated some of the difficulties which would stand in the way of reducing the capital of the National Railways. Although that seemed very simple, in statement, it would prove very complicated in practice.

The remains of the late Robert Tudhope, which have been in the vault in Peterborough Cemetery, were interred in the Westwood Cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. Percy Wilson and Charles Esson, of Villiers, were in the village on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Roy Frankish, of Lakefield, spent Sunday evening with friends in the village.

Mrs. Carmen spent Tuesday evening in the village.

Mr. Patrick English, of Asphodel, has secured the position of road supervisor for the township.

SMOKING STARTS FIRE

Berlin Girls in Jail for Destruction of Fine Forest.

BERLIN, May 8.—Longing for a smoke while walking recently through the pine woods of Tegeler, near the city, two young girls started a fire that consumed 20 acres of fine timber in two hours.

A lighted cigarette end, carelessly cast aside, ignited the dry pine needles. The girls tried to put out the fire, but could not, and then gave the alarm, but it was too late. They are now in jail, and will be sued for the loss of the forest.

Irate Wife (discovering husband on front stens fiddling with door knob): "What are you doing there, Webster?"

Husband (continuing to turn the knob): "Sshh! I'm trying to get Pittsburgh!"

CONSERVATIVES MEET.

Percy Gray and J. H. Wiley Added to Marmora Delegates.

MARMORA, May 7.—A meeting of the Liberal-Conservatives was held in the G.W.V.A. rooms on Tuesday evening. Several interesting addresses were given and Messrs. Percy Gray and J. H. Wiley were added to the list of delegates to the forthcoming convention.

The annual Ladies' Aid meeting of the Methodist church was held at the home of Mrs. Alex. Kennedy. The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. F. M. Marett.
Vice-President—Mrs. D. E. Bell.
Secretary—Mrs. H. Conner.
Treasurer—Mrs. F. Wells.
Visiting Committee—Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. Sopha.
Parsonage Committee — Mrs. Marett, Mrs. Bell, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. Conner, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Grant.
Auditors—Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Oliver.

The financial report for the year was read and reported. Receipts, $545.

The next meeting will be at Mrs. Marett's.

The Young People's League met on Wednesday evening. The Christian Endeavor Department had charge. Rev. D. R. Clare gave the story of "Esther." Miss Alma Osborne sang a solo and Miss Lorraine Conner gave an excellent recitation, "The Message of the Music."

The annual financial report of the League was given.

Marmora Personals.

Mr. T. H. Blanchard of Peterboro, was a visitor in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Harold Nayler motored to Belleville on Wednesday, returning with a new "Studebaker."

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Bell motored to Belleville on Saturday evening.

FREIGHT RATES

"You'll have to ask the Minister that," replied Mr. Doherty. He expressed the opinion that if the Government boats could obtain more general cargo, they would make an improved showing. If the Government boats were faster, they would probably secure more of the higher class cargo.

Just before adjournment, Chairman McMaster informed the representatives of the steamship companies that the committee would be unable to accept the invitation to go to Montreal and witness the loading of vessels, etc., this week-end. Possibly next week, it might be possible.

Nine Vessels Engaged.

Nine vessels of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine were now engaged in the North Atlantic trade, Mr. Doherty told the committee.

Mr. Duff directed a number of questions at Mr. Doherty with a view to ascertaining the qualities of the Government boats. Mr. Doherty refused to agree with Mr. Duff that the Government boats were at a great disadvantage, as compared with other lines. He admitted that the Canadian boats were not built as cattle boats.

"Didn't they cost a lot to fit up as cattle carriers?"

Mr. Doherty replied that they had cost $7,000 each.

"Are your ships at a disadvantage in carrying grain?" Mr. Duff asked.

"Are the hatches properly spaced to go under spouts of the elevators?" asked J. F. Johnston, another member of the committee.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"Isn't it a fact that the Department of Marine and Fisheries ruled that your boats must not carry cattle?" Mr. Duff asked.

Mr. Doherty replied that when the ships of the Merchant Marine were equipped only with temporary cattle fittings, the Marine Department ruled that they could carry cattle only during the summer months. With the fittings now installed, however, cattle were carried all the year round.

Mr. Duff directed a question to Mr. Doherty in regard to a shipment of deals, which the witness objected to on the ground that it involved a detail of management. He was supported in his objections by Sir Henry Drayton.

NOT QUITTING PARTY.

Fred Johnston, M.P., Not Joining Liberals.

OTTAWA, May 8 (By Canadian Press) — J. Fred Johnston, M.P., whose resignation as chief progressive whip was announced Wednesday, after a series of caucuses held by the party as a result of the vote on the budget, denied that he would join the Liberal ranks in the House.

"Have you any intention of crossing the floor and joining the Liberals?" Mr. Johnston was asked.

"No," he replied.

Be on your guard for signs of Pyorrhea

Just as the stability of a building is dependent upon its foundations, so healthy teeth depend upon healthy gums.

Bleeding gums are the first sign of Pyorrhea's approach. Then they begin to recede and the healthy pink color gives place to a pale, whitish tint. Soon the teeth are loosened, pus pockets form and drain disease-breeding poisons through the system.

Forhan's For the Gums contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession) to neutralize oral poisons, and keep the gums in a firm, strong, healthy condition. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

THE CASE OF THE BOOTLEGGER.

The bootlegger is one citizen who does not worry about Canada having too much legislation inasmuch as the law seems to be his best ally.

First came prohibition measures to establish the illicit sale of liquor as a business of wide ramifications, offering a large percentage of profit to the successful promoter.

And now the Supreme Court furnishes the climax with its decision that the income derived from bootlegging is not liable to the income tax levy.

The bootlegger has no quarrel with Canada's laws or their interpretation.

One law set him up in business, and the decision of a Canadian court enables him to keep all he makes, while his neighbor engaged in honest industry has to contribute via the income tax route.

Of course, he is liable to go to jail if he is caught, but the men at the top of the trade have shown a remarkable immunity from being caught.

Their agents serve the jail sentence if a fine will not satisfy the law, while the man higher up goes serenely on with his business.

MR. GRAHAM'S OPTIMISM.

The optimism shown in the speech of Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways, in his annual discussion of the railway financial statement was needed.

The railway situation has been the subject of some very gloomy discussion in Parliament and in the press.

Amalgamation with the Canadian Pacific has been suggested, and some people have recommended that the Government-owned railway be handed over to its privately-operated rival.

He declared his faith in the Canadian National system, and characterized its showing as phenomenal, challenging a comparison of its management with that of any railway in the world.

No amalgamation for Mr. Graham, at least until he is satisfied that every other method of reaching the desired end has been tried and proven unsuccessful.

In view of the barrage of criticism to which the railway project has been submitted, the Minister's cheerful confidence in the future of the Canadian National is refreshing and will go some way at least in restoring public confidence in the Government system.

A FATEFUL ANNIVERSARY.

Yesterday was a fateful anniversary, the tenth anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine.

Doubtless the countrymen of the 1,396 innocent victims recalled to mind this fiendish act of a war-crazed nation, while it must have been with regret, if not with remorse, that the German people and their former allies remembered their great crime against humanity.

The torpedo that sent the big liner to the bottom sent the United States into the war.

Most of those who remember the eventful years from 1914 to 1918 are probably convinced that our neighbors might have preserved their neutrality to the end of the struggle had there been no Lusitania abocity.

Although the United States did not declare war on Germany until two years after the sinking of the Lusitania, this outrage against American neutrality and against every humane law was the first in that series of events which culminated in the crystallization of public opinion in the neighboring Republic against the Central Powers and forced the United States into the war on the side of the Allies.

Yesterday was an anniversary that could not have brought much satisfaction to the German people, even to the new President.

LIFE SAVING RULES.

Canada's death toll from automobiles in 1923 was 355 people, a casualty list which, while comparing favourably with the record of 19,000 slain in the United States, should give the public in general and motorists in particular some cause for concern.

Forty-two of the Canadian victims were children under five years of age, their deaths coming as the result of the youngsters being run down on the street.

The majority of all these fatal accidents were the result of carelessness on the part of somebody—some times the driver was to blame, other times the carelessness of the victim was responsible.

The first rules are for pedestrians.

1. Look where you are going.
2. Cross only at crossings or street corners.
3. Wait for the traffic policeman's signal.
4. Be careful in outlying districts.
5. Remember the motorist cannot see you at night until it is often too late to stop his car.
6. Do not dash around a street car.

The rules for drivers follow:

1. Signal before turning a corner or slowing down.
2. Do not try to beat a street car or train across a track.
3. Avoid passing to the left or crossing the track, but the rear of a street car, or passing a standing car that is loading or unloading passengers.
4. Go slowly when approaching a "blind" or sharp corner, and come to a full stop before crossing a railroad track.
5. Slow down when you see children on roller-skates or bicycles or playing ball.
6. Keep your mind on driving, your hands on the steering wheel, and your eyes on the road.
8. Be twice as careful on rainy days.
8. Test your brakes often.

CANADA'S NEED.

To those who are anxious lest the more stable interests of the country in the East may be sacrificed to the impatience, the sectionalism and the lack of knowledge of anything save agriculture in the West, it will make little difference whether the anti-Protectionist from Saskatchewan is called a "Progressive" or a "Liberal"—or, for that matter, a "Conservative," says the Montreal Star. It is his opinions that count; and his opinions will in the long run be those of his constituents.

What the East must do is to find a formula that will enable the West to co-operate with us of the East in keeping our industries going, our railways on a paying basis and our trade and commerce moving. To do this, we must meet the proper and well-founded grievances of the West wherever it is at all possible. Today, the East has a large majority in Parliament. If it unites—as it may have to unite for self-protection—it can get its way. But it would be a capital mistake for the East, just because it has a comfortable majority, to deny to the West whatever can be granted without scuttling the national ship.

The men of the West—when free from fear of their often prejudiced and little informed constituents at home—are usually quite ready to admit that our whole industrial system cannot now be torn up by roots without imperilling the existence of the nation. They are ready to admit that our west-and-east railway systems must be maintained. There seems to be no reason why a workable compromise cannot be reached between the two sections of the country. It would be reached if three men from the West and three men from the East had plenary powers to act for their respective sections.

One of the advantages of an unlimited franchise is that the least intelligent section of the community usually fixes the pace of the whole.

THE HUDSON BAY RAILWAY.

The Hudson Bay Railway was the maddest of all the mad, fantastic railway nightmares foisted upon Parliament twenty years ago, and which now remain as a curse and millstone to thwart Canadian progress. Spawn of that period of lunacy when politicians paralleled transcontinental with transcontinental, when with idiotic optimism they spent our dollars like inebriated seamen, it has been a sink-hole for millions, and today not a mind out of Bedlam but knows that its completion will but swallow millions more.

* * * *

Twenty million dollars to take care of ten small ships—and to what purpose? No one who has ever seen a ship, no one who has ever seen the sea, no one who has ever heard or read of the Hudson Bay, believes or should believe that its navigation is commercially feasible. What shipping man outside of an asylum is going to put ships on the Hudson Bay route? Will the C.P.R. do it? Or the White Star? Or the Cunards? And what reputable shipping man, unless it be some new Sir William Petersen, willing to be subsidized with millions, is going to build special ships that could only be used in the Hudson straits for two months out of a year? The whole proposition is grotesque.

* * * *

Twenty million dollars for ten small ships! In the House, one member, a Progressive, said the Hudson Bay route would save the West $100,000,000 a year. Just think of it! Ten ships of seven thousand tons, operating for even three months, without delay or mishap, could not possibly take out more than 5,000,000 bushels of wheat. Consequently, if a saving were effected of 50 cents a bushel—which is out of all possibility—the saving of the West would be but $2,500,000. Yet here we have supposedly sane men talking about saving 100 millions a year! It is in keeping with the whole idiotic foundation upon which this structure of folly is being reared. The plain fact is that the Hudson Bay straits are not commercially navigable and, even if they were, for a period of three months, the achievement would not begin to justify the investment.

* * * *

Canada today is burdened with a railway debt that dizzies and appals. We are piling deficit upon deficit to the crippling of our finances. We saw the Canadian National Railways go into debt last year by an additional $100,000,000. Yet it is at this juncture, at a time when people everywhere are writing an interrogation mark after our railway problem, at a time when our people are trying to discover some way out of a desperate position—at such a time this Parliament sanctions a new outlay of $30,000,000 to build a railway to a port of ice and wolves and seals. Could anything be more mad, anything more revealing of the character and calibre of Parliament?

* * * *

Not even all the people of the West want this Hudson Bay Railway. The Edmonton Journal, one of the sanest and most responsible papers on the plains, is vigorously opposed to it. It is from Winnipeg, Winnipeg which sees its position as a wheat centre threatened by Alberta's crop going through Pacific ports, that the agitation chiefly comes. For a purely sectional reason, for no sound reason in the world, Canada is asked to throw millions to the wolves.

* * * *

This is not a party question. All parties have been equally guilty in the past. All are equally guilty today. The Journal particularly regrets the position taken by Mr. Meighen, a position which his experience and his intellect must tell him to be utterly unsound. What nonsense to argue, as Mr. Meighen argued, that because political parties went made years ago and promised to commit folly, Canada owes it to certain people now to march forward with that folly! A vote-getting pledge, given decades ago, impeached and destroyed and shown to be ruinous by subsequent events, must, according to this logic, be carried out by succeeding generations! Would to Heaven parties were half as scrupulous about more worth-while promises!

* * * *

Canada is in no mood to accept this verdict. Overwhelmingly, the nation is opposed to this project; and it may well be that in searching for support from a section in the West those who support this waste of millions will find their conduct costly elsewhere.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Perhaps the polar expeditions will have something to report in regard to the Hudson Bay Railway.

The two Aylmer boys who burned the high school must have thought that was the only way they could get out of the first form.

The scientist who says there is no reason why man should not live to be 150 apparently overlooked the motor car.

The Progressives have a new Whip, but even so may not find the driving any too smooth.

Wise and Otherwise.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 7.—The demand from United Kingdom buyers for Canadian grain in the Montreal market today showed an improvement, and as the prices bid in some instances were in line with exporters' views a moderate amount of business resulted in oats and barley for May shipment, but the trade in wheat was reported quiet. On spot sales of a few loads of No. 2 feed oats were made at 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f. Montreal, and 14 cents per bushel over the same future was bid for No. 2 Canadian Western, with 15 cents over asked for oats on spot.

The local market for oats was easier at a decline of 1-2 cent. per bushel in sympathy with the lower prices ruling at Winnipeg. The demand was somewhat limited and trade was inactive.

There was no important change in the condition of the local egg situation, prices being still remarkably steady owing to the fact that packers are absorbing all the surplus coming forward for storage purposes. The trade in a wholesale jobbing was reported fairly good and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 2,455 cases, as against 2,451 for the same day last week, and 3,578 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Butter Trade Quiet.

The receipts of butter were 1,276 packages, as against 798 for the same day last week, and 2,729 for the corresponding day a year ago. The market continues very quiet for the season of the year, there being no demand from foreign buyers, while the purchases being made by local houses are only small lots to meet immediate wants. Therefore, the volume of business was again somewhat limited and the tone of the market was easy. No. 1 pasteurized held creamery was offered at 32 cents to 32 -12 cents per lb. No. 1 creamery at 31 cents to 31 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 30 cents to 30 1-2 cents per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 2,654 boxes, as compared with 1,671 for the same day last week, and 1,297 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no improvement in the enquiry from English importers for supplies and the indications are that the movement for export account this week will be small. The tone of the market remains easy an' prices have a downward tendency, but in the absence of any important transactions they were quoted nominally unchanged, with Western No. 1 white at 17 7-8 cents per lb, No. 1 colored at 17 5-8 cents per lb., No. 1 colored 1234 ui-H n cents per lb., and No. 1 colored at 17 3-8 cents per lb.

BROCKVILLE CHEESE

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 7.—At the meeting of the Brockville Dairymen's board of trade held today, 1,236 boxes of colored and 364 boxes of white were registered. Two hundred and twenty boxes sold at 16 13-16 cents.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 7.—Consumption continues very good on account of the big quality of the product this season. Toronto reports receiving offers from the West of extras 30 1-2, first 28 1-2, seconds 25 1-2 f.o.b. Winnipeg.

Toronto—Jobbing, specials 35, extras, 33, firsts 31, seconds 29.

Montreal—Active and steady.

Quebec—Jobbing, extras 33 to 35, firsts 30 to 32, seconds 29 to 30.

STERLING RATE

Sterling demand $4.84 3-4.

Sterling cables $4.85 1-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 7.—Selling out on the part of traders who sought to avoid a possible surprise in the Government crop report tomorrow did a good deal to bring about lower prices in the wheat market today. Wheat closed nervous at 1 to 2 1-2 cents net decline, May $1.64 1-2 and July $1.52 3-4 to $1.53; with corn 1 1-4 to 1 7-8 cents down; oats 5-8 to 1 1-8 cents off, and provisions at an advance ranging from 2 to 22 cents.

Notwithstanding that the Government report was generally expected to show much less favorable crop conditions than a month ago, considerable doubt existed as to whether the amount of crop damage indicated of late by unofficial reports had not already discounted or perhaps over-discounted the situation. However this might be, there was heavy selling today to realize profits on wheat bought a while back at levels well below current values. One of the factors which tended to promote selling was an estimate that spring wheat acreage in the United States had increased 15.3 per cent. as compared with last year's total.

BOOTBLACKS OUST CRUISERS

HAVANA, May 8.—The Association of Shoe Cleaners is the latest organization to be formed in Havana. The purpose is to present a solid front on the part of bootblacks who have regular stands on street corners, and to preevnt perambulating shoe cleaners from soliciting on the streets.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

At last she set it down on the reds lacquer smoking-stand that had been her Christmas present to Dick.

. . . Oh, why were Jim and May there, with their drinks that she dosn't want to take?

Why weren't she and Stan there alone, as they had been alone yesterday afternoon? . . . There were a thousand torturing questions that she wanted to ask him.

And there was one thing she yearned to hear him say to her . . .

"I love you." For he never had.

"What's the matter, old girl?" he asked. "Got cold feet?"

Glory nodded.

"I'm afraid to drink since I passed out the other night after those cocktails," she said.

"Oh, where do you get that sweet girl graduate stuff, Glory?" May asked bluntly. "Go on, take a drink. You can't be a crepe-hanger at your own party!"

"I should say not!" Stan nodded vigorously.

Glory lifted her glass.

"Well, here's to the crime then!" she cried and sipped the pale amber fluid slowly.

Stan leaned over and touched his glass to hers.

"I drink to business trips . . . and to husbands who are away on them!" he said in a tone so low that May and Jim couldn't hear his words.

"The chaperones are going into the sunroom so you won't have to whisper to each other. 'S not polite," Jim remarked in his loud, good-natured voice.

He picked up the plate of sandwiches and followed May out of the living-room.

* * *

"Chaperones?" he asked. "Explain yourself. Did you ask those two birds over here to-day to chaperone us?"

Glory shook her head gravely.

"No, not exactly," she said. "I mentioned to May that you were coming to see me this afternoon, and she invited herself and Jim over. Why . . . do you wish they weren't here?"

"I do," Stan replied shortly. He gazed thoughtfully into the fire.

Glory watched him. She had an almost unbearable desire to cross the room to him and put her arm around him . . . to hold his dark head in the crook of it . . . to tell him how very much he meant to her.

"H'm, I had a letter this morning that I certainly wasn't looking for," Stan said suddenly.

"From Sonya Chotek, I'll bet a dime, Glory answered.

Stan laughed.

"By Jove, you guessed right!" he said. "You're a fortune teller."

"I wish I really were. Then I'd know how you feel toward all these women who send you letters," Glory said bitterly. "How do you feel about Sonya Chotek, for instance? . . . Do you think she's as nice as I am?"

"Oh, gosh, you have it all over her like a tent," Stan promptly answered. And, for the moment, Gloria's jealousy was appeased.

"By the way, did you find out for sure that your mother-in-law saw us yesterday in the car?" Stan asked presently.

"Did I find out? I'll tell the street I found out!" Glory answered. "The minute I cam home Ranghild told me she wanted to talk to me . . . so I went over to see her, and she 'panned' me for half an hour about being a bad wife."

"I should worry about anything she says!" she added. "I don't care what anybody says . . . or who sees us when we're together . . . Stan, I don't care about anything in the world except you!"

Glory knelt down on the floor beside Wayburn's chair. She looked up at him, breathlessly waiting for him to speak. But he said nothing.

"Stan, do you care for me at all? . . . I've just got to know!" Glory asked at last. Her face was hot with shame. She hid it in her hands.

* * *

Wayburn stood, and lifted her to her feet.

"That drink's going to your head a little, isn't it, Russet?" he asked. He pushed her gently back into her chair and stood looking at her.

"Do you know you're the prettiest thing I ever saw in that blue-green dress you're wearing?" he asked. "You look like the Lorelei. Remember the Lorelei in the old song? . . . Her hair was golden, like yours."

Wayburn walked over to the piano and lifted the lid of it. He sat down and struck a few chords.

Then he began to sing the Lorelei song between puffs at the cigaret that clung to his lower lip.

When he had finished, May and Jim applauded loudly from the sunroom.

Wayburn came and sat on the arm of Glory's chair. There was a smile in his eyes as he looked at her.

"Little tiger-cat!" he said, "aren't you ashamed of yourself for being jealous of Sonya Chotek, or any other woman I happen to meet? . . . Don't think of the other women. Think of just you and me . . . to-day!"

He leaned closer. Glory shook her head.

"That's just the trouble. I think of to-morrow . . . and to-morrow," she said dismally. "I think of your going away soon, out on the road, where I won't be able to see you . . ."

Glory's voice dropped to a long sigh.

"Oh, I'm not leaving town so soon as all that!" he remarked. "If that's what's worrying you! . . . There are very many new shows at this time of year, you know. I may be out of a job for months. And in the meantime I'll probably stay right here, where I can see little Russet every once in a while. . . ."

His hand stroked her hair.

"Glory!" May called. "Put on a record so we can dance, will you? . . . Something peppy, please!"

Glory put a new jazz record on the phonograph. Stan swept her into his arms and they danced around the firelit room.

* * *

"Makes you think of tropic forests, and savages dancing around fires . . . that music, doesn't it?" Stan asked, his lips pressed to Glory's forehead. "Do you like jazz?"

Glory's eyes were starry as she smiled up at him.

"I like any old kind of music when I'm dancing with you!" she said truthfully. And hated herself for saying it.

. . . Stan should be the one to say nice things! And he wouldn't tell her that he loved her . . . even when she asked him to!

Glory wondered if he ever had really cared for any woman. She doubted it.

Stan was the handsome, happy-go-lucky type of man that almost all women adore. There probably had never been any need for him to court women. They courted him . . . matinee idol that he was!

The walls of his dressing-room at the theatre had been covered with photographs of women. Pretty women, too! . . . Glory had seen them the day Stan had sent for her to come to him.

How she wished now that she had not gone to the theatre that day!

For the very sight of Stan, and the sound of his voice, had brought back to her all the longing for him that she had known in her old days of friendship with him . . . before she met Dick.

* * *

"Tell me about your friend May and this Carewe," Stan was saying in an undertone. "Isn't she married to the doctor who was at your party the other night?"

Glory nodded.

"She is . . . but he's awfully busy, so Jim beaus May around," she explained. "It's all right. They're just friends."

Wayburn smiled skeptically.

"'Friend-of-the-family' stuff, eh?" he asked.

Glory didn't answer. She didn't like anyone to criticize May . . . not even Stan! . . . They danced on.

* * *

"There's an automobile stopping outside your house," Stan said after a moment. "Are you expecting callers?"

"Heavens, no!" Glory cried. "Stop the music. . . . It's probably Mother Gregory coming to find out what I'm doing while Dick's away! Somebody take the highball glasses out in the kitchen so she can't see them—quick!"

"Jiminy, here's the returned husband!" said May, absent-mindedly returning to Jim's lap.

"Well, where do we go from here?" she asked. "This party's all rain, from this point on. I can see that!"

Glory couldn't think. Her mind was utterly blank.

"Hello, Dick, old man!" Jim Carewe said heartily.

"Hello, Dick," May echoed. "We've been cheering up Glory in your absence."

"So I see." Dick's voice was cold and hard. His eyes travelled from Glory to Wayburn, smiling nonchalantly.

Dick's face was white. Glory was struck by his pallor. Even his lips were whitish-gray. Beads of cold sweat were on his forehead.

"Dick, you're sick!" she exclaimed. She went to him, and took his hand. It was cold and clammy.

"Get rid of them! Get them out!" he said, looking at Glory.

She held her hands out helplessly to May.

"May, dear, I hope you realize that Dick isn't himself. He's sick," she said. "So just don't say anything, but go . . . and send Dr. John over here, will you, please? As soon as you get home?"

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MONUMENT.

It is indeed a soulless people who evince no desire to perpetuate by some means, the memory of those who have performed signal service to their race. It is a duty which the living owe, not only to the memory of honored men and women, but as an example to the generations of the present and future. London, Paris, Athens, Rome, Washington, Ottawa, all capitals and great cities of the civilized world have many monuments of stone and bronze in honor of men and women who have contributed to the greatness of their nation and to the betterment of their species. It has remained, however, for Canada to choose a monument which will outlive the Pantheon, the Nelson Column in Trafalgar Square, and beside which the towering shaft to Washington is dwarfed into insignifance.

Mount Edith Cavell, is a glorious monument to a glorious woman. As long as the hills stand, it will remain, its snow plumed crest rising high above the Athabaska Valley in Jasper National Park, Alberta, to meet the skies in an eternal tryst. Eleven thousand feet and more it towers in solitary majesty above its sister peaks, truly emblematic of the solitary majesty of that heroic figure who, alone, one morning walked to her place of execution, a martyr to unswerving loyalty to her native land and devotion to her calling. On the side of Mount Edith Cavell rests a glacier. At Jasper Park Lodge it is mirrored in the opalescent water of Lac Beauvert, like a great angel with outspread wings, hovering in benediction over the magnificent monument to a woman whose heroism will always be a golden page in the history of a nation of many valorous deeds. FACTORY ASKS HASTINGS LOAN

LETTERS RECEIVED.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

HASTINGS, May 8.—H. T. Kennedy, member of a Toronto firm that manufactures sleighs and other vehicles, has written Alex. Wilson, village clerk, with a view to leasing the cooperage factory building which is now idle. Mr. Kennedy asks particularly as to the shipping facilities at Hastings both by rail and water and says that his company is desirous of locating in a place where there is a foundry in which their castings could be made and a sawmill that could furnish them with the timber required.

Mr. Wilson wrote the firm giving information asked for and received a reply asking if the village would be willing to make the Toronto company a loan if it was decided to move their works here.

Mr. Kennedy has now been invited to send a representative of his company to attend a meeting of the Hastings Council so that the question may be fully discussed.

MENNONITE LAND SUIT PROGRESSES

REGINA, Sask., May 8.—In the long-drawn-out legal proceedings over the attempt of the Mennonite colony to sell their lands to the Mennonite Land Sales Company for four millions of dollars, another step was passed yesterday, when Mr. Justice McDonald gave judgment of the application of the trustees for an accounting and damages for breach of trust against the Saskatchewan Mortgage and Trust Corporation. With the corporation were joined the Mennonite Land Sales Company and other interested parties as defendants.

In his judgment, the judge ordered the payment into court of a sum of $28,410.95 received by the trust corporation, with interest thereon, less sundry charges for remuneration, etc., and dismissed the action of the plaintiff for damages for the amount of mortgages registered against the lands of the colony, amounting to $221,750 by the Great West Permanent Loan Company, occasioned, it was claimed, by the breach of trust on the part of the trust corporation.

The court holds that the breach of trust resulted in no loss to the plaintiffs, the mortagages in question being offset by benefits received.

As regards the claim of the Mennonite Land Sales Company for the return of the sum of $28,410.95 before mentioned, part of the purchase price of the lands, the judgement is that as the company has never been ready and able to perform its contract, it cannot recover the amount paid on the purchase price.

WORTH MORE NOW THAN FIRST COST

Cable of Old Machine Telephone Company Being Salvaged To-day.

A striking example of the change which has taken place in industrial economy is exemplified in the salvage of the cable formerly owned by the Machine Telephone Company.

W. H. Lytle stated that the value of the scrap cut into four foot lengths was greater than the original cost of the cable.

This work was proceeding on George street to-day, with many interested spectators.

The cable was purchased from the Standard Underground Cable Company of New York and there are approximately 21 miles of it in the city of Peterboro, both underground and suspended.

The scrap is being sold to a Toronto firm.

Mr. Lytle says that Lindsay and Brantford also have miles of this cable which will be salvaged in the same manner.

When the cost of material and workmanship is considered it is rather remarkable that the scrap after years of service and disuse should have so increased in value, and it is quite possible that many other relics of past industrial activity could be scrapped with profit.

NORWOOD CADETS WERE COMMENDED

NORWOOD, May 8.—The Norwood High School cadets were inspected on Tuesday morning at the exhibition grounds by Capt. Trudour of Kingston. The boys looked quite natty in their uniforms and received very favorable comments from a large number of the local citizens.

The inspector addressed them and congratulated them on their neat appearance and on their work in general. E. C. Squire, chairman of the School Board, and Mr. R. G. Lawlor, principal of the High School, also addressed the company. A half holiday was given the pupils on account of the extra good work done by the cadets.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ABOUT BONDS.

Editor, The Evening Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—The enclosed letter wa-recently received from the Bond De partment of this Bank in Toronto, and we thought that you may, in the interests of the investing public, desire to publish the contents of same in the columns of your paper. As you will notice, it contains a timely warning regarding the activities of high-pressure salesmen who are constantly trying to unload worthless stocks on the inexperienced and unsuspecting public.—Yours truly,

A. J. Reynolds, Manager.

Re Bond Business.

Recently a number of new offerings of industrial securities have been made, and the advertising in connection therewith has aroused an increased interest on the part of the public in that sort of security. Under such circumstances it is quite usual for unscrupulous salesmen to take advantage of the interest created by legitimate investment firms to sell valueless securities or those of doubtful value to persons who are not familiar with the investment business.

The Financial Service Limited, Montreal, has recently published the following in this connection, and we pass it on as a matter of interest:

"One of the chief financial nuisances of the day in Montreal and vicinity is the group of stock salesmen who pester shareholders of one company to switch into another stock, very frequently of doubtful value and sometimes worthless stuff. People who have sound listed securities are the ones mostly approached owing to the readiness with which these can be turned into cash and the proceeds applied to the purchase of the offering they are making.

"Women shareholders are considered easy marks by these sharp individuals and it would be well for them to consult their husbands before taking any action, or, in the cases of spinsters and widows, their banker or some reliable, well-informed financial friend who is willing to give them conservative advice.

"Many of these salesmen, some of whom are known as 'high pressure' artists in their line, were driven out of the United States by vigorous prosecutions for crooked dealings, and are following their customary tactics in Canada, some of them having headquarters here.

"One scheme which has been effective has been to approach small tradesmen and advise the purchase of some well-known local stock which enjoys an excellent reputation. The stock is supposed to be bought on the instalment plan, but the order is likely bucketed and the part payments put in their own pockets. Having established what seems to be a sound reputation for conservative dealings in the eyes of their inexperiences clients, a switch to some other offering is soon suggested. Sometimes these are worthless if they are delivered, but delivery is generally delayed for a time on one pretext or another. In the long run the client loses everything.

"This emphasizes the necessity of the public being extremely careful about dealing with strangers who adopt such methods. A great deal of money would be saved if old-established houses dealing in securities were consulted before undertaking commitments or exchanges."

BOYS' SLINGS KILL A ROBIN

Followers of the Marksman of Israel May be Rounded Up.

CITIZEN HIT

A good many years ago, boys were permitted to carry catapults, or sling shots, and one young fellow called David got himself into the news through being an expert in their use. If David lived today probably the only way he would break into print would be through the police court record—as it seems some of the down south Peterborough boys may.

But David lived a good many years ago, and in those days there were no glass window panes to break, and the women didn't have so much to say about things.

If Dave or some of his gang let go a pebble and caught some fair damsel in the ear it was quite alright. If she put up a holler about it she would get more. If she went home and told the old man he would call her down for being so conspicuous. And if she was a real favourite he would yell some more because she had taken a chance of having her beauty marred.

Then came an age (maybe half a century ago) when the kids all carried these catapults, but still there was not much question raised. The youngsters knew if they pulled any rough stuff mother would not only burn the engine of destruction, but would inflict a still further burning on the pelt of the perpetrator.

And the novelty wore off.

But in recent weeks the craze has revived, as it has a habit of doing in spring, and the boys apparently have no maternal guidance.

A Prince street resident yesterday picked up a pretty robin that had been killed by a slingshot, and on Sherbrooke street a man was struck on the shoulder by a missile hurled from one of the old-fashioned but still powerful implements of war.

Last year there were many reports of broken windows, and it seems possible that the police may be called upon to round up this Davian army and demand its arms.

WOOLER NEWS.

WOOLER, May 8.—Dr. and Mrs. Anderson are spending a few days in Toronto attending the convention of the Medical Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Putnam motored to Hamilton to transact business in connection with their home at Burlington, returning on Wednesday.

The Mission Circle will meet at the home of Miss Stella Nelsons on Saturday afternoon, this being the first meeting under the new leader, Miss Margaret Teal, and it is hoped the young ladies will come with a determination to make this their best year of service.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Austin, Mr. and Mrs. M. Sharpe and Mr. and Mrs. Jo. Carr, of Frankford, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wessels on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bell entertained a number of their friends on Friday evening.

On Sunday morning the quarterly service was held in the Methodist Church, conducted by Rev. Mr. Bick, who gave an inspiring message, leading up to the reception service when nine young people gave their names to be enrolled as church members. This service was followed by the communion service.

Mr. John Dimner and family, of Codrington, spent Sunday afternoon at Floral Hill Farm.

Mr. Gordon Whaley, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan. Whaley.

Mr. Phillip Matan has been busy all the week moving his sawing machine outfit to Mr. Jo. Horsley's farm where Mr. Horsleys has a very large number of pine logs ready for sawing.

Mrs. Herb. Wessels returned home accompanied by her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Faux, of Westwood.

Mrs. J. J. McCall is in Toronto with her brother, Roy Faux, who has undergone an operation on his eyes.

Mr. Howard Rowe, who has been working in Whitby, has returned home.

Mr. Sam McColl has secured a position in a garage in Belleville.

Mr. L. H. Rowe motored to Whitby on Wednesday to move by truck Mr. Bert Palens household effects down to Colbourne. Mr. Palen's farm home is in this locality, and he and Mrs. Palen lived here for a number of years. Recently Mr. Palen has been the barn superintendent at the Hospital Farm at Whitby, and now will start in business in Colbourne.

The caretaker, Mr. George Bell, is very busy improving the Women's Institute Park by arranging the flower plots.

Mrs. Caleb Cole spent Monday in Belleville.

Mr. C. G. Rutlan, who has been spending his winter's in California, has returned home again.

The Wooler Band is busy practising as it is invited to play for the Oddfellows service and parade next Sunday in Trenton.

Mr. Harmen and family have moved into Mrs. Holland's residence.

The farmers are busy seeding and a number have finished, despite the foot of snow that fell recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Tackaberry attended the funeral of the late Mrs. C. Tackaberry at Brighton on Monday afternoon.

PETER PAN COLLAR.

The Peter Pan collar, though most charming on the young girl, is rarely becoming to the mature woman. She needs a slight raise at the back and usually a V or U-shaped opening in front.

GOOD SERMON FOR BURNBRAE PEOPLE

"Whatsoever a Man Soweth That Shall He Also Reap" Was Text.

BURNBRAE, May 8.—The congregation of St. Andrew's was treated to a splendid sermon on Sunday morning last, when Rev. Mr. McKenzie spoke from the old text of fearful warning and joyous promise, Galatians 6:7, "For whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he aso reap."

Young People Met.

The Young Peoples' Guild met on Monday evening, with a good attendance. Miss Irene Thompson was in charge of the program and Miss Frieda Hay acted as leader. The program was both instructive and entertaining, consisting of a vocal solo, Mrs. Roy Walker; piano solo, Miss Jean Craighead; reading, Mrs. Geo. Ingram; topic, Mrs. G. V. Taylor; current events, Charles Little. An interesting contest was then held which provided much amusement. Fifteen questions were given, the answers to be some part of an old-fashioned dinner. The winners were treated to candy and the losing group provided a comic story.

A congregational meeting will be held in St. Andrew's church on Monday evening, May 11th for the purpose of forming some plan whereby the two groups, divided on the question of church union, may work together.

The various cheese factory operators in the locality are busy painting and decorating about the premises in an effort to land one of the prizes offered this year for the best equipped and most attractive looking cheese factories.

Harvey Donald is again working full time and often overtime at his trade of carpenter. He is assisted by W. H. Little, Burnbrae, and Fred King, Rawdon township. He began this week by shingling Bert Hay's residence. Recently Mr. Donald erected a fine new garage for Herebert Watson.

BRITONS SHORTER

Average Man Now is Only Five Feet Eight in Height.

LONDON, May 8.—(Associated Press).—Europeans of the present day have smaller brains than formerly, according to Sir Arthur Keith, conservator of the Royal College of Eurgeons' Museum, and England's best known anthropologist.

In a lecture on man's evolution at the Royal Institution recently Sir Arthur said that from the limited data at the disposal of scientists, it may be inferred that the people who occupied western Europe at the close of the Ice Age stood distinctly above their successors of today in the matter of the size of their brains.

Referring to the height of man, the speaker said it was evident that the mean height of the modern Englishman was five feet six inches, not five feet eight, as has been supposed for many years.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL TOURING STREETS TO PLAN 1925 PROGRAM

INSPECTION TRIP.

Jack Cowell and Perry Sanders Get Positions Out of Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 8. — Members of the Council will meet at the office of Mayor Meyers today and make a tour of the town to learn at first hand just what work is required on the streets. Later a special meeting will be held in the clerk's office when the matter of street improvements will be discussed in detail and a programme laid out for the operation of the new road building machinery which has been purchased.

The price of the road roller and scarifier which the Council has decided to purchase is $5,920, and when the sale was made it was understood that the town was to pay the freight from Toronto. The manufacturers of this machinery have decided to make an exception in this case and will deliver the roller and scarifier for $5,920, f.o.b. in Campbellford. The town in this way saves $135, the amount of the freight from Toronto.

Mr. Black's Funeral.

There was a large turnout of friends and relatives at the funeral of the late Daniel Black, which was held at 9 o'clock Thursday morning from the family residence on Inkerman Street to St. Mary's Church, where requiem high mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan. All the sons of the deceased were present, and among the mourners were Mrs. Henry Black, of Peterboro, whose late husband was a brother of the deceased, and who was accompanied by her daughter and two sons.

Taking as his text the words, "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord," Rev. Father Phelan referred to the long life of the deceased, and to the fact that in spite of his age, he had died in the harness, not giving up his usual pursuits until forced to take to his bed by his last illness.

The pall-bearers were John Quinn, P. J. Anderson, David Lynch, Jos. Kelleher, Robert Lee and James O'Brien. The remains were interred in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Have Left Town.

Two popular young men have left town, Jack Cowell and Perry Sanders, the former going to Brampton in Peel County, where he has secured a position with a large plumbing firm, and the latter to Port Arthur, where he will enter the employ of the Hydro. Both were among the best lacrosse, hockey and baseball players in Campbellford, and both ar graduates of the local High School.

Jack Cowell played third base for the Northumberland League team in 1923, but was at home in any position in the field, and could also take his turn in the box. It was hoped that his services could be secured for the team this year as infielder and change pitcher, but his reputation as an efficient and gentlemanly athlete has secured for him a good position in another town, where has services will be in demand on the lacrosse field and hockey rink. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cowell, of Queen Street. In 1923 he won the championship at the High School field day.

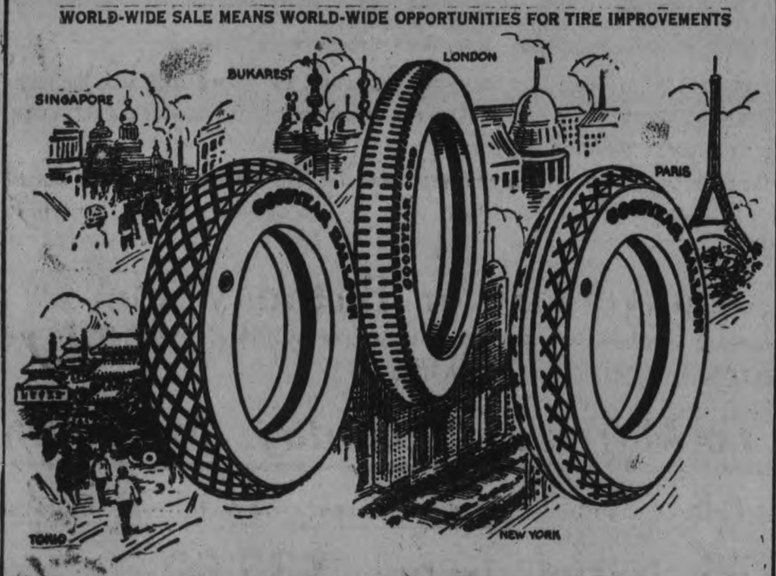
Perry Sanders has been one of the best hockey and lacrosse men in town both as a player and as a member of the executive.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker, of Warkworth, was in town Thursday, visiting their son, T. S. Baker.

J. Harnden went to Delora to talk upon his electric welding machine to the officials of the smelting plant. This is the only machine of its kind in Cehtral Ontario between Toronto and Brockville.

WORLD-WIDE SALE MEANS WORLD-WIDE OPPORTUNITIES FOR TIRE IMPROVEMENTS



SUPERTWIST

Another Goodyear Contribution!

The history of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, from its humble beginnings to its present-day supremacy, reveals a continuous record of invention, improvement and contribution to the progress of a great industry. That record is studded with such signal achievements as the All-Weather Tread, the first straight-side tire, the tire-building machine, the braided piano wire bead, the practical pneumatic tire for motor trucks, the All-Weather Tread solid tire for motor trucks. And now SUPERTWIST.

In addition to their wonderful riding qualities, Goodyear Balloon Tires have the advantage of being extremely durable. This is in great measure due to Goodyear's remarkable new cord fabric, SUPERTWIST. Extra elastic, and far out-stretching the breaking point of ordinary cord fabric, SUPERTWIST gives Goodyear Balloon Tires the maximum capacity to absorb road shocks, avoid stone bruise and similar injuries. The only balloon tires built with longer-life SUPERTWIST are Goodyear Balloon Tires.

Following the tremendous success of Goodyear Balloons, due largely to SUPERTWIST, this remarkable fabric is now used in all Goodyear Cord Tires—and in Goodyear Cords only.

Such tire improvements as SUPERTWIST are made possible only by Goodyear's big, world-wide business—a business which puts us in touch with motoring conditions all over the world, which puts us in touch with every source of raw materials, which enables us to maintain efficient laboratories and research departments.

All these advantages are centred for you in the stock of your Goodyear Selected Dealer.

A PRESENTATION TO LIFFORD FOLK

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Staples Move to Bethany—Speaker Coming.

BETHANY, May 8—On Monday evening the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Staples gathered at their home near Lifford to spend a last social evening with them before their departure for their new home in Bethany. During the course of the evening the following address was read and presentation made:

We, your neighbors and well wishers, having heard of your early departure from amongst us, feel that we could not let this opportunity pass by without expressing in some tangible manner our appreciation of you as neighbors and friends.

During these several years of neighborly association we have on occasions too numerous to mention discovered your excellent qualities, among those that come so readily to mind we think of your jovial good nature, your kind hospitality to the stranger or friend beneath your roof, your absolute integrity in business and your ever-present sympathy to those in trouble and distress.

You, Mr. Staples, in public life, also have been prominent as councillor, deputy-reeve, and reeve in all of which positions you have demonstrated your executive and business ability.

After so long a period of fellowship it seems only fitting that we should wish to acknowledge and appreciate your united services to the community at large, we ask you both to accept these few words of testimony and this gift of a mantel time-piece, and to you, personally, Mrs. Staples, this tea service.

May the ticks of this clock and the use of this service recall to you the many good times you have helped to make among us, the old neighbors in and around Fleetwood and Lifford may they remind you of our gratitude for your true service and encourage you in your continued labors of love. Signed on behalf of the community,

J. L. Hart, A. W. Staples,
L. H. McKinley J. A. Scott.

An Address.

On Wednesday evening, May 20, in the town hall, Mrs. R. Boyes, of Lefroy, Ont., will address the members of the Women's Institute and their friends. An additional programme will also be provided. All women and girls over fourteen are especially invited. Mrs. Boyes is district secretary for South Simcoe, where district work has been developed so effectively, and she will have much of value and interest for the Institute officers and members who are looking for suggestions as to how to make the Institute of greater value. Mrs. Boyes has lived on a farm before and since her experience of several years ago as a public school teacher.

Mrs. Boyes comes prepared to speak on any of the following subjects:

(a) "Work of the District and Branch Institutes—How to Make it Most Effective."

(b) "Sweet Sixteen—What of Her Future?"

(c) "The Farm Home—Its Possibilities."

(d) "Our New Neighbors."

DECLARES CULTURE THING OF THE PAST

Danish Critic Says There Is No International Culture.

BERLIN, May 8.—(Associated Press).—George Brandes, the Danish critic, recently lectured in Berlin on "Europe as it is today." Despite his 84 years, the speaker's mental keenness and elasticity are surprising. Brandes is not infatuated with the Europe of today. Culture, he believes, is a thing of the past. In 1913, he said, the fires of the impending world conflagration were glimmering everywhere in Europe and quite as much in Paris as elsewhere. When he made this declaration there was a dead silence in the crowded hall. He continued to speak of the pernicious influence of the press everywhere in bringing about the World War and was scathing in his remarks when he broached the question of cultural developments in Europe since the war.

He mentioned that a well-known French journalist had asked his opinion about the international state of culture. "Culture," he had replied, "is dead. Therefore, there can be no question of an international culture. Look at the France of today. She can no longer stand criticism. Her best friends remain silent. Today she has become the heir of Prussian militarism."

Dr. Brandes admitted that Russia, Japan and China showed symptoms of cultural progress. But wherein was Europe progressing in the world's cultural development? he asked. Did she still play a part in the concert of the nations? If so, scarcely more than the treble. And the League of Nations? With a disparaging gesture he declared that institution a farce.

PASSES SURGERY EXAMS

Dr. William Egan of Ottawa, With London Hospital.

OTTAWA, May 8.—A private cablegram just received from London, England, announces the success of Dr. William Egan in passing his final surgery examinations at Charing Cross Hospital. Dr. Egan has been studying in London since 1919 following service as an officer in the Royal Field Artillery since his matriculation in Cape Town, South Africa, in 1916. He is now connected with Charing Cross Hospital, and will continue the practice of his profession in London.

Dr. Egan is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Egan, of Ottawa. Mr. Egan is Deputy Minister of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

REFUSED A KISS

After Edna Sullivan Murray, wife of "Diamond Joe" Murray, recently executed in Arkansas, held up and robbed the Rev. H. H. Southward in an automobile at Kansas City she tried to make him kiss her. His reverence refused. Edna has been arrested and identified and is held under $10,000 bond.

GROWTH STOPPED

Cool Weather This Week Has Somewhat Retarded Crops.

KEENE, May 8.—The cool weather has stopped growth somewhat but the wheat and clover is looking exceptionally well all over the district. The spring crops are also fairly well advanced on a large number of farms.

Andrew Rennie has been called to Toronto, owing to the serious illness of his sister, Miss Margaret Rennie.

Fred Eason is putting the finishing touches on the new addition to his house and garage.

Persons driving along the Keene road must detour at Zion on the Base Line to the Tenth Line and strike the Keene road again at the Hiawatha corner.

Wm. Jeffries and W. H. Fletcher of Peterborough were in Keene on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. D. D. Brown of Keene was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Max Kerneghan of T. Kinnear and Co., was in the village Wednesday, on business.

David Kempt is busy moving the house owned by Mrs. John MacFarlane of Peterborough.

Pickerel fishing is exceedingly good in the Indian and Otonabee rivers and Rice Lake. Rice Lake is fast becoming a fisherman's paradise.

AUSTRALIA PAYS HIGH

Estimated Cost of Half Million Immigrants is $5,000 Each.

SYDNEY, May 8.— (Associated Press.)—In connection with a recent agreement in London between England and Australia to assist 450,000 emigrants from the United Kingdom to get settled on land here, it has been estimated that the cost of this undertaking will be from $5,000 to $10,000 for each individual making the 16,000 mile voyage.

Prime Minister Bruce, in announcing the estimate of cost, said the many reproductive and development works were awaiting the emigrants. The two governments will bear the cost of the travelers.

It is planned that the 450,000 men, women and children who are to be sent to Australia within the next years under this scheme, designed to relieve the unemployment problem of England, will comprise a great many persons whose aim is to settle on crown land and become cattle raisers and farmers.

WILLIAM AFFABLE

Ex-Kaiser Seeking to Gain Good-Will of Children of Doorn.

AMSTERDAM, May 8.—A picture of William Hohenzollern, one time German emperor, dressing in the latest fashion and seeking to win the good-will of the children of Doorn, is given by a Dutch journalist, Barteld H. Ibelings, who recently visited Doorn castle.

Another pastime of the former emperor is collecting photographs of the Prince of Wales, and he is also fond of cutting and pasting up pictures of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland. He dresses most carefully, says Mr. Ibelings, and his suits are always of the latest cut. At the court which William continues to hold, the same stiff ceremonial as obtained in Berlin days is observed.

One of the former emperor's chief ambitions is to become popular with the people, and especially the young folk of Doorn. He therefore often goes out personally to shop and addresses the townfok in their native Dutch dialect. He even deigns now to tip his hat pleasantly in greeting, whereas formerly he had everybody bowing to him.

PHOTOGRAPH IS A MESSAGE NOW

COMMERCIAL USE

CHICAGO, May 8.—Anything that can be photographed, from fingerprints of criminals to elaborate interior decoration, is now being accepted as a "message" by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. The most delicate detail, according to company officials, has been transmitted as distinctly as words.

One commercial use made of the new process was the sending of an advertising layout photographed from a plate of type from a New York firm to a Chicago newspaper, in which it appeared the same day.

News pictures were among the first sent over the wires. President and Mrs. Coolidge leaving the capitol in Washington after the inauguration ceremony were seen the same day in Chicago. Photographs of the effects of the recent tornado in Southern Illinois also were transmitted.

Company officials declared that photostaic copies of signed wills, checks and the like, acceptable as evidence, would be a valuable part of the new business.

Stone From Solomon's Quarries For Masons

WINNIPEG, Man.—Seeking the lost secrets of Hiram Abiff, in addition to attending the opening of the new Hebrew university at Jerusalem, Max Steinkopf, of Winnipeg, has acquired a prospective corner stone for the proposed new Masonic temple here. The stone has been taken from King Solomon's quarries and will be shipped to Winnipeg. Mr. Steinkopf's official offer has been conveyed to the Masonic Temple board.

DEVICE TESTED TO STOP LISTENING IN Any Intrusion Can be Prevented by Pressing a Button.

REGINA, Sask., May 8.—Elimination of "listening in" on rural and party line telephones has been successfully achieved by a device tested on a circuit on the South Regina Telephone Company.

By simply pressing a button the caller on the rural or party line telephone system, equipped with the apparatus, can prevent any intrusion upon their private conversation.

This device which is the invention of Harry B. Sherman, construction engineer of the Saskatchewan government telephone system, is designed to insure the secrecy, long desired, in the operation of rural and party line service, and if the invention proves successful under further trials, it will have a far-reaching effect upon service of this kind throughout the entire world, it is said.

Like most successful inventions, the "lock out" device, as the telephone engineers call it, is simple in construction and can be installed at a nominal cost

REDUCE COMMONS.

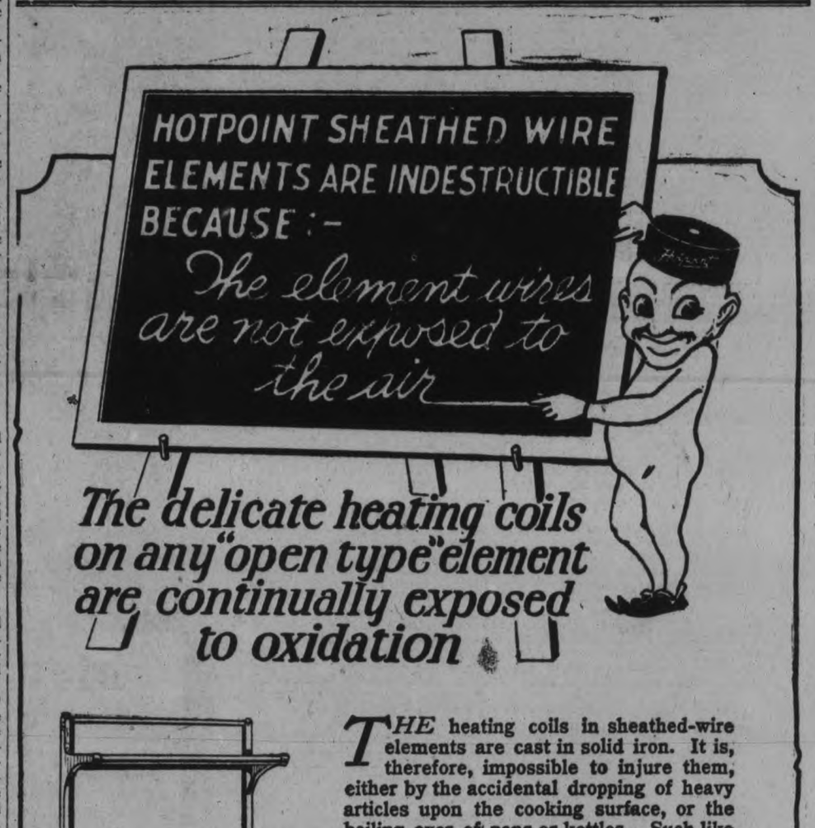
Senator Thinks There Are Too Many Members—Asks Reduction.

OTTAWA, May 7. — (Canadian Press).—Machinery of government in Canada had become overgrown, the country was infested with officials, the House of Commons' membership should be reduced to two hundred and the Senate was unnecessarily large, Senator Lynch Staunton told the Upper House in a speech on his motion calling for the reduction of the membership of the Commons yesterday afternoon. The debate was adjourned.

PRISONERS' RE-UNION.

First Comers to Vancouver Meeting in Vancouver.

VANCOUVER, May 8—Pioneers of British Columbia, many of whom came to this province 50 or more years ago from the prairies by the treacherous mountain passes, or by the sea from San Francisco, were gathering here yesterday for the Pioneers' Reunion, which will extend over until Saturday. Most of the morning was occupied with registration at headquarters, while at noon the visitors were entertained at lunch by the Canadian Club, later on proceeding to Stanley Park where a memorial to the steamer Beaver, the first steamship to ply the Pacific was unveiled.



The delicate heating coils on any "open type" element are continually exposed to oxidation

Model No. R25C

THE heating coils in sheathed-wire elements are cast in solid iron. It is, therefore, impossible to injure them, either by the accidental dropping of heavy articles upon the cooking surface, or the boiling over of pans or kettles. Such like every day accidents, coupled with the action of the air, which causes oxidation, resulting in burn-outs, have been the chief factors in the failure of open-type elements to withstand every day domestic service.

The spilling of thick liquids or syrups, which frequently causes short circuits on open-type elements, can no more harm a Hotpoint element than the top of an old time coal range.

FASHION'S PENDULUM

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 8.—(United Press).—The pendulum of fashion swings slowly, but it manages to keep swinging. Women themselves often hasten the approach of a style by demanding a certain thing before the manufacturers are ready to give it to them. For instance, it is like looking for a needle in a haystack to find a long-sleeved afternoon gown in New York. It is equally difficult to find a coat that is untrimmed by fur. Yet both of these things are desired by smart women. Short-sleeved daytime frocks are not nearly as smart as long-sleeved models this year. And coats with fur borders are done to death. Even women who like these fur-bordered models prefer to buy plain coats in the shops and use their own fur banding.

Just now one sees more black coats in cloth or silk than colored models. Often the black and white idea is suggested in a shawl collar-facing of white duvetyne or silk. Hats worn with black coats are usually black felt and the most novel one recently seen was a simple head-fitting affair with just a suggestion of a brim and with four long silk tassels falling from the top of the crown. Black bankoks with brim-facings of black velvet are very new. Black velvet is always flattering to the face, and if a trimming is used it is a rhinestone pin. The combination of straw and velvet in all colors is good this season.

* * *

The corsage has been placed almost everywhere from hip to shoulder, but lately it is placed at the back of the neck when the coat collar is an upstanding one. Thus, the white gardenia is worn at the back of the collar of the navy blue suit or coat.

In speaking of neck adorment, scarfs have a way of being individual of late. They are wrapped once about the neck with ends tied in a knot in the middle of the back. With the mannish topcoats, one sees plaid silk scarfs with fringed ends modishly tied in the middle of the back.

The tailored suit obtains an ensemble effect by having a felt hat of self shade faced in a colored silk and a scarf of silk matching the facing of the hat.

IT'S UP TO YOU

No mater how sweet or how tasty our dish, there always is something for which we can wish. Desire is the thing for which all people fall, which really makes plugging worth while, after all.

Whatever it is that you want, and then get, in some way or other the bill must be met. The hope for a thing you will find, will be lost, unless you are ready to settle the cost.

The pleasure would wane if we merely could take whatever we wanted, with no price at stake. 'Twould rob us of wishing. We'd ne'er have to yearn. It's really more fun when we get out and earn.

From young men and women till we grow up and gray, we're wanting and wishing for things every day. The people who get them, you'll fidn, never shirk for their wishes are really incentives to work.

Consider what keeps your ambition afire. It's merely the fight for the things you desire. It's easy to wish, but if wishes come true, they've got to be earned—and the job's up to you.

Why He Succeeded

From hard work on a farm to the study of medicine in Cincinnati, where he was graduated in 1862, was the course which Dr. R. V. Pierce took.

In his younger days he practiced medicine over a large district. It was then the new oil fields near Titusville, Pa. Finally he determined to put up some of his prescriptions in ready-to-use form in order to reach a larger number of families.

He thus early moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary, where he put up Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood as well as the Favorite Prescription for women, carefully preparing them from roots, barks and herbs and placed them with druggists everywhere.

During the last sixty years Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold in larger quantities by druggists than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive apparatus; an alterative in its action on the blood, liver and skin. It increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young and care free.

WEATHER DELAYS AMUNDSEN FLIGHT

Brief Messages From Spitzbergen Say Flight Has Been Delayed.

NEW YORK, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—Unfavorable weather is believed to be holding the Amundsen Polar Expedition to its base at King's Bay, Spitzbergen.

A brief message from that lonely point in the Arctic received by the Meteorological Observatory at Oslo last night, said the explorer and party had postponed the start which had been set for to-day. Previous advices said the weather conditions were unfavorable.

MODEST FRENCH WAY OF ADVERTISING

"The oil is of the best. The fish she is very small"—such is the naive way in which a certain brand of French sardines flaunts itself to the world at large.

The wording is typically French, but the expressions are modest enough. Extravagance in description is more often associated with the Gallic temperament than with that of the stolid Anglo-Saxon. Contrast such mild statements, however, with the flowery language in which a certain British firm talks about it caviare, for instance:

"People who understand food eat our large gray-grained caviare in silence and with half-closed eyes while the servants instinctively tiptoe about the room, unwilling to break the ecstasy. Those who only know the small black-grains variety can hardly realize the wonders of the large gray grain we import from the Volga. The breath of the sea slumbers in its sombre brilliance and the delicacy of its falvor defies the written word. Vandals have been known to squeeze lemon juice upon it, but people with hearts tuned to beauty eat it unsullied by the shrillness of lemons."

Instead of quoting ham at so much a pound, these people say: "A Devon ham, cunningly smoked"; a Stilton cheese, ripe and mellow"; or "a Dundee cake of size and importance."

Also, as the trade journal which comments on their flow of language goes on to point out, they do not speak of game patties "at so much per," but they say: "Gaze you never so keenly into the rosy depths of patty lying so snugly in her green terrines, you will not master the secret of its excellence, for that is one of our most treasured secrets. Taste it and you will say 'the flash of young grouse', and then again 'truffles or I am a Dutchman,' but the fashion of its blending will remain with us. It has been our recipe since the days of the Regency, and each successive Head Chef takes the following oath on assuming office: 'My finger wet, my finger dry, if I give this recipe away—I wish I may die.' The apparent lack of rythm in no way lessens its dread of efficiency, for the only Chef who proved unfaithful died within thirty years of breaking this oath."

WASHBOARD EFFECT MIGHT BE ELIMINATED

A suggestion to highway engineers on the elimination of the bumps which often land a cross-country tourist in the ditch as he hastens to reach the next town before dark is found in the Stockland good roads manual. The use of the cutting blade on the road patrol grader is recommended instead of the scraping blade which has left bumps and depressions to catch many an unwary dirt roads traveller hurrying to make up lost time. A cutting-blade will cut into the earth, leaving a smooth surface instead of the well-known washboard effect.

Now that the "de-touring" season is again with us, the motorist must keep an eye out for the treacherous ditch turnout and the sink hole. To negotiate a detour down a ditch and around a bridge undergoing repairs calls for skill in driving if an accident is to be avoided. Try to make it at right angles if possible. If the ditch looks sticky better take the time to put on your chains. This precaution will keep the car from getting stuck and gives secure traction when you need it most. In conditioning your motoring equipment for the summer season, check over carefully your non-skid chains. If the cross links are worn, invest in a box of extra chains and a pair of chain pliers. Remove the worn broken links and clamp new ones into place. Carry extra cross chains and the pliers on your summer trip. They will come in handy and may save you a garage bill or two.

To make possible the efficient use of four-wheel brakes, several motor car manufacturers are using cable to connect the front brakes with the braking device. The cable does away with the necessity for toggle points where rods are used and permits the free use of the front wheels. The only objection to this from the car user's standpoint has been the stretch in wire rope formerly used for this purpose. To eliminate this, the American Cable Company has perfected a cable for four-wheel brake use in which the constructional stretch is minimized through the performing of wire and strands to fit the place they must hold in the completed cable. No clamps nor splices are necessary, making a simple matter the adjustment of brake connections.

NEW ANAESTHETIC FOUND AT TORONTO

University Doctors Discover Properties of New Gas Propylene.

TORONTO, May 8 (Canadian Press).—The demonstration of a new anaesthetic, which, in the opinion of expert observers, opens up a hitherto unexplored field, by two local physicians*— Dr. W. Easson Brown and Prof. V. E. Henderson of the University of Toronto—was the revelation made yesterday before the Canadian Society of Anaesthetists.

At a clinic held in the University in the presence of anaesthetical authorities from Canada and the United States, the new anaesthetic, Propylene, was administered to Dr. Brown with complete success—one of the first occasions on which it has been applied to human subject.

The particular importance of ethylene as explained yesterday was in the possibility of using a third gas in anaesthesia. Hitherto it had been possible to use two only, such as ethyene and oxygen or nitrous oxide and oxygen, but propylene it was said because of its anaesthetical properties in such concentrations as 35 per cent. admitted of the introduction of a third gas.

PRINCE TO VISIT CHILE.

Will Make Tour of Country After Visiting Argentine Republic.

LONDON, May 8 (Canadain Press)—The Prince of Wales, it is officially announced, has definitely accepted an invitation to visit Chile upon the termination of his visit to Argentine. It is expected that the Prince will arrive in Chile about August 20 by special train from Buenos Aires.

GOSSIP INJURIOUS WESTERN CANADA

Prospective Settlers Are Turned Away by Misrepresentation.

OTTAWA, May 8 (Canadian Press).—The Department of Immigration has issued the following story as indicating how train gossipers intentionally or unintentionally injure the development of their own country:

"The injury with which Canada is threatened by thoughtless or malicious statements of persons living in this country is indicated by the case of Capt. Gore Hickman, one of the British settlers who recently arrived in Canada to take a farm in the Innisfree district of Alberta, under the Family Farm Settlement Scheme. As Capt. Hickman was travelling to his new home, fellow passengers on the trains, who were Canadians, gave him such discouraging reports that he was convinced he had been boosed. He determined to get on to the Edmonton office of the Land Settlement branch of the Department of Immigration and Colonization in order to give a piece of his mind to Major Gordon, the officer in charge there.

On arrival at Edmonton, he repeated to Major Gordon what he had been told by fellow passengers and demanded to know what the Canadian Government authorities meant by imposing on him. He would go back to England and expose the whole business.

Major Gordon listened to the story without comment and when the captain had finished produced a file from a desk.

"How would you like a farm like this?" the superintendent asked, and he then proceeded to read the description.

"That would be fine. I wouldn't look for anything so good," was the rejoinder.

"Well this is the farm that has been assigned to you from ... ," said Major Gordon.

"It is absolutely satisfactory in every way, and I am highly pleased," he said. "The rooms are large, the house is in excellent condition, and we are looking forward with the brightest hopes."

Thus has one case of misrepresentation been completely answered. But there may be many others in which the thoughtless or malicious falsehood is not so quickly run to earth. Canadians who libel their country at home furnish the occasion of misrepresentation abroad, and do great injury to the best interests of Canada.

INSURES JEWELS FOR KING'S RANSOM

Mlle. Regine Flory, one of the most beautiful of the French stage stars, has insured her jewels for 2,000,000 francs. In the photo she is wearing her tiara, in itself worth more than the total insurance as it is encrusted with diamonds and other precious stones.

PAINLEVE WAS A TEACHER OF MATHEMATICS

New Premier of France Has Been in Politics for Fifteen Years.

FAMOUS SCHOLAR

Was Well Known in Academic Circles Before Entering House.

LONDON, Eng., May 8 (Canadian Press).—M. Paul Painleve, the new French Prime Minister, is one of the few politicians who has raised his reputation during the war. He entered Parliament only in 1910, at the age of 47. Before that, his very fine intellect had been devoted to mathematics. A Parisian, the son of a lithographer, his origins were relatively humble, and he first raised himself from mediocrity by scholarship. After holding the professorship of mechanics at Lille University for five years, he became professor of mathematics at the Sorbonne. This office he continued to fill long after he had turned politician, and when he entered his first cabinet he already had a European standing in the academic world.

While he only took office at the age of 52, he had been early elected a member of the Academy of Science and had been the youngest member of of the Institute of France. But before he received his first portfolio, his influence has been felt on military and naval matters as one of the principal advisers to the Ministry of Marine, as "reporter" of the naval budget in 1912 and 1913, and on various committees a sketch of him by The Manchester Guardian comments. It was he who carried, against strong opposition, the policy of concentration of the Mediterranean fleet. It was he who joined with Jaures in trying to secure the defence of the Lille region—a weakness felt terribly in August, 1914,—and he came into conflict with the high command over the lack of heavy artillery for use in the field. One of Wilbur Wright's first passengers, he was for years before the war an active champion of military aviation.

War Minister in 1917.

This past justified his selection by M. Ribot as war minister in March, 1917 (he had previously been minister of public instruction and invention from October, 1915 until December, 1916. At the war office, M. Painleve was profoundly sceptical of General Nivelle's plan for breaking through in one rush, and the minister had General Petain on his side. That Nivelle's plan had failed was obvious from the beginning of the Aisne battle, and after a dispute between the government and the command, the operations were reduced to a modified scale and Nivelle was displaced by Petain.

In September, 1917, M. Painleve formed what has been called his "twilight sleep ministry," which was born in France's most awkward circumstances and died within two months. Feeling ran very high at that period owing to a series of affairs like the "Bolo" scandals and to the widening split between those who wanted peace without victory and those who preferred to carry on at any price. M. Painleve stood on the extreme left of the second group and he just failed to persuade the Socialists to join his ministry.

Regarded With Suspicion.

He was thus regarded suspiciously at once by the Caillautists and by the followers of Clemenceau. Such a position at such a stage in the war an impossible one. In November, M. Painleve fell and was succeeded by M. Clemenceau; the French sky had become "horizon blue."

From this brief episode under extremely abnormal circumstances, M. Painleve cannot be judged. Nor has he done anything since to give a clear index to his qualities as a statesman. He was defeated last year by M. Doumergue as candidate for the presidency and has since been president of the chamber. Thus his achievements as a director of military and naval policy remain his most effective public work. Judging by these, one can say that he possesses a judgment of unusual clarity, a power of understanding big issues in the rough. He is a thinker and not a rhetorician. But his ability to direct a political crisis has still to be tested.

TOURING LESS IRKSOME

European Countries Are Removing Restrictions and Helping Tourists.

GENEVA, May 8.—(Associated Press).—Promoters of toutist trade in Europe are going out of their way to make easier the movements of parties travelling in automobiles. Free-spending Americans are particularly invited to take notice, and to come and bring their cars and their money.

An international road traffic conference will be held in Paris next fall. It will then be proposed to issue double certificates, one for the driver and one for the car, so the driver can change to another motor without trouble. There are to be international driving certificates for 12 months, facilitating entering and leaving a country as often as desired. Standard road signs will be adopted, and explained to drivers, and interstate touring will otherwise be made safer and more agreeable.

BOARD PREPARES FOR EXHIBITION

Directors Make Plans For Bigger Peterborough Industrial This Year.

A meeting of the directors of the exhibition board was held in the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday for the purpose of hearing reports and transacting general business.

R. Denne, the president of the board, occupied the chair.

After a discussion during which two papers of suggestions were read, it was decided that radical changes be made as regards the procedure of gate management for the coming fair. It was reported that passes were abused and the gates committee was to take steps to remedy this defect.

Reports on the Fairs' Association annual meeting were heard, Mr. Shields giving his general impression, while S. Oke presented a comprehensive account of the programme.

The subject of "Hobby Horses" then occupied the attention of the board. The equines were purchased from the Toronto Skating Club and were intended to be used as suitable mounts for those of the board so fortunate as to receive one.

It was proposed and carried that the chargers be paid for when funds were available.

Plans were laid for the next month's meeting, which was to be a ladies' night, and Miss Galbraith of Toronto is to address the assembly.

PAPER COMPANY HAD GOOD YEAR

International Paper Will Make Extensions to Three Rivers Plant.

LARGEST IN WORLD

NEW YORK, May 8 (Canadian Press).—The Wall Street Journal carries the following in its news columns:

"Annual report of International Paper Company for the year ended December 31, last, which indicated net equivalent to $5.16 a share on the 200,000 common shares, does not give an accurate picture of the earnings result for 1924. The management saw fit—and properly—to set up a reserve of $1,168,000 for contingencies, which was included in the item of $1,168,000 for 'taxes and contingencies.' his reserve was in keeping with the conservative methods of the management; whether necessity for its use will arise, only the future can tell. If for purposes of analysis this charge-off, which is largely a bookkeeping matter, is applied to the common stock, there will be revealed an earning power of more than $10 a share.

"The contingencies against which the $1,000,000 was set up as a reserve were the possibility of a decline in woodpulp prices, any vicissitudes that might be incurred before the International's expansion in Canada becomes actually effective.

"Comparison of operating revenues for the last two years furnishes a clue to the real earnings. In 1924, although International Paper met with very real difficulties in the way of low water and consequent curtailment of operations, and lower prices for newsprint, operating revenue was $7,815,504 against $8,074,577 in 1923. This showing was better than would ordinarily be expected in view of the conditions with which the company had to contend, and was undoubtedly the result of more economical operations.

"Contracts have been let for the final enlargement of the Three Rivers Mill, which will give it a capacity of 700 tons of newsprint daily and makes it the largest paper mill in the world. Present capacity is about 330 tons daily.

"Plans are under consideration by the company for the electric development of two of its water powers in the United States. One of its paper mills is being surveyed with the idea of transition to the production of finer papers.

"At the end of 1924, International Paper had bank loans of around $7,000,000. Proceeds from the sale of $15,587,000 new 6 per cent. bonds provided cash to wipe these out and the company now has net working capital of over $30,000,000. Total current assets approximate $35,000,000, and current liabilities $4,50,000."

TEN LASHES FOR STEALING MONEY

Joseph Brosh Took $35 From His Landlady and Will Be Whipped.

SERVE ONE YEAR.

WILMINGTON, Del., May 8.—(United Press).—For stealing $35, Joseph Brosh, 40, white, will receive ten lashes at the whipping post and serve a year in the Newcastle County Workhouse. The lashes will be administered in the workhouse jail yard Saturday morning. Brosh stole the money from his landlady, and sentence was imposed yesterday.

"ATLAS" MUSSOLINI

Premier Adds Another Portfolio to His Cabinet Burdens.

ROME, May 8—The newspapers assert that Premier Mussolini shortly will add the portfolio of Minister of Navy ad interim to his already imposing list of cabinet positions. The newspapers say the Premier visited King Victor Emmanuel yesterday morning after the King had accepted the resignation of Admiral Thaon Di Revel as Minister of the Navy.

HAIRCUT COST DOUBLE TODAY

NOW 40 CENTS

Away back in 1910 on July 4th, Peterborough barbers caught some of the spirit of independence which wafted over the southern border and declared that from July 18 the tax on polls per cutting be increased from 20 cents to 25 cents.

A mighty roar of disapproval arose from the afflicted populace, all uniting in a protest against the high cost of tonsorial treatment.

The farmers were especially fierce in their denunciation and they averred that, as Saturday was the only day convenient for them to visit the city and as the price of a hair cut for children on Saturday afternoon was raised from 15 cents to 25 cents, they objected to the hold up.

Those days are gone forever. Now the taxpayer blithely hands out the minimum 40 cents, more often than not going through the ramifications of shampoo, massage, vibration and all other processes calculated to set the red blood corpuscles galloping about the system and drain the golden lucre from the tightly wadded wallet.

Now the farmer leaps lightly aboard his Fierce Barrow or Rolls Joltz and speeds to the nearby mart of trade, wherever it pleases him to do so.

The farmer no longer cultivates a flock of whiskers nor does he let his locks grow to an inordinate length. Complaints to the barbers are never heard so it can be concluded that prosperity and personal attention travel hand in hand.

North Monaghan Council

The North Monaghan Council had a special meeting at the Court House, Peterborough, on Monday.

John Whitfield, tax collector made his final returns of the collection of taxes for the year 1924. He secured judgment against a number of township ratepayers who had arrears in their taxes. The following is the statement:

Total of tax rolls for 1924	$35,509.04
Five per cent. collected	113.37
Errors and omissions in the assessment roll added to the tax roll	190.53
Total	$34,812.94
Total amount collected and paid over to the treasurer	$33,890.88
Total deductions for errors in assessment	112.34
Returned against land	813.79
Total	$34,817.01

A resolution was passed that the treasurer pay to the collector $3.07 on account of overpayment by the tax collector. Poll taxes not collected by the tax collector, $5.00.

Dog taxes not collected by the tax collector, $12.00.

A resolution was passed that the tax collector's salary be paid, $200.00. Balance for revenue stamps for tax collector, $14.88.

A resolution was passed that the clerk write the Department of Public Highways and ask for definite information as to whether special legislation was passed at the last session of the House, authorizing the township to set aside certain areas for the purpose of collecting statute abor rate. A resolution was passed that the clerk write the Ontario Municipal Association and call its attention to Section 460 in the Municipal Act in regard to the liabilityof municipalities for accidents on public highways. The clerk was instructed to write the Board of Works in the City of Peterboro and state that the Township of North Monaghan agrees to allow the City of Peterboro to construct a sewer main on Monaghan Road north of Chamberlain street, providing the road is left in good condition when the work is completed.

A resolution was passed that the taxes on Lots 2, 14 and 31, Plan 53 for $11.35 for the year 1922 be apportioned as follows:

Taxes on Lots 2 and 31 of Plan 53, $7.57.

Taxes on Lot 14, Plan 53, $3.78.

A communication was also received from the department of highways notifying the municipality that the grant for transports for 1924 as passed by the said department for payment is $854.99.

The meeting then adjourned.

POSTAL NOTES TOTAL $31,685

During the year ending March 31, 1924, 11,963 postal notes valuing $31,685.91 were purchased from the Post Office in Peterborough, according to figures just made available. In Canada 5,806,129 postal notes to the value of $12,657,724.05 were remitted.

Postal Notes are used for sending small amounts of money to points only within the Dominion and are available in over 10,000 post offices. There is no method of sending money which is as cheap and convenient as the Postal Notes and they may be obtained in sums ranging from 20 cents to $10.00.

The Postal authorities warn people not to enclose money in letters without registration and advocate the use of Postal Note Service.

No charge is made for issuing duplicates when postal notes are lost or stolen.

Made In Peterborough Fair Raises Interest

Much enthusiasm is displayed over the Made-in-Peterboro Fair, which will be held the first week in June, and takes the place of the usual Motor Show. Only a partial canvass of the manufacturers has as yet been made, but the following companies have already engaged space:

The Quaker Oats Co.
Barries, Ltd.
The Examiner.
The De Laval Co.
The Canadian Nashua Paper Co.
The Canadian Packing Co.
Duffus Motor Sales.
Wm. Lech & Sons.
The Peterboro Canoe Co.
The Peter Hamilton Co.
The Peterboro Pure Milk Co.
The Peterboro Lock Co.
The Peterboro Floral Co.
James Lynch.
The Western Clock Co.
Miller, Powell & Watson.
Gallagher's Remedies.
Adam Hall, Ltd.
B. F. Ackerman, Son & Co.
The Raybestos Co., Ltd.
J. J. Turner's Sons Co.

Many of the above named have engaged two booths, as one would not be large enough for the exhibit which they wish to put on, and applications from others who have not as yet completed arrangements for their reservations, are constantly coming in. Ten Health Association activity booths have also been spoken for. The size of the Armories may perhaps admit of a few more booths than can be filled by the manufacturers, and these few will be allotted to the merchants of the city in the order of their applications received. With the work of the Fair barely started, the number of booths already engaged constitutes a remarkable showing and gives an indication of the great amount of interest which the city generally is taking in the coming Fair.

MUSIC WEEK AT KIWANIS LUNCH

HERITAGE OF ALL.

The Kiwanis Club celebrated music week by having a musical programme at their weekly luncheon to-day. The speaker was Professor Rupert Gliddon, of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, who spoke on "The Value of Music to a Community." Eight members of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir were present and sang several numbers, which received hearty applause. Mrs. Pearl Kennedy of Toronto sang a solo in splendid voice, and as an encore sang one verse of "Mother Macree" in honor of Mother's Day.

Professor Gliddon said that music is receiving more attention than ever before. At one time it was a plaything for the rich, but now it is the heritage of every man, which, he said, it should be, as music plays a great part in his life from the first lullaby to the sweet and mournful notes at his death. Men of affairs are taking a great interest in music, and in many factories it is customary to devote a short time to music. A manager of a large factory, said the speaker, when asked if he did not think it a great loss of time, said it was one of the best paying propositions in the plant as the men worked better for it.

Whenever men of any class or race meet together they find enjoyment and expression in song. Primitive man sang, and from there to the first musical instrument, the pipe, was but a step. Music has taken a high place in the world's life. It has been linked up with history, and every period and race has its own music.

It is, said Mr. Gliddon, absolutely necessary to have music in a community. Most of the waking hours of men and women are taken up with the struggle to make a living; and nowhere can they secure more relaxation than through music. Music is a very fundamental of life. It can only be attained by hard work and sacrifice and in this connection the speaker mentioned the long months of practice that went to produce such music as that of the Male Voice Choir.

In conclusion, Mr. Gliddon announced the concert of the Symphony Orchestra, which takes place on Tuesday, May 19, and asked for the attendance of the Kiwanians.

Dr. J. J. Craig was the booster for the day, and each diner found a tube of tooth paste among the table cutlery. It was announced that the Belleville Kiwanis is holding its charter night on Friday, May 15, and about fifteen members agreed to go down. Thirty members of the club attended the Lindsay charter night last night.

The speaker next week will be Adrian MacDonald, of the Normal School staff, who recently published a book on Canadian men, and two weeks from to-night will be ladies' night.

SHOULD TAKE CARE.

TORONTO, May. 8.—(Canadian Press).—His conception of the duties of a bank director was outlined to the First Divisional Court this morning by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., special Crown prosecutor in the Home Bank case. He was replying to the argument of N. W. Rowell, K.C., for reversal of the conviction of J. F. M. Stewart, a director in the Home Bank, for alleged negligence in concurring in a deceptive annual report.

"All agree," said Mr. McCarthy, "that a director must be honest. All agree that he must take some active part in the management of the bank. I submit that in this case the directors should have used a reasonable amount of care, diligence and knowledge measured by what they would have used in their own business."

The Crown counsel will continue his argument this afternoon and the case probably will be adjourned to next week.

KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

Conflagration Brought Death and Destruction to Village in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Que., May 8 (Canadian Press) — Forty-five to fifty houses destroyed with a property loss said to reach $1,250,000 one man killed and one injured by a dynamite explosion and many miraculous escapes from death were some of the results of a conflagration which swept the village of St. Joseph D'Ama last night and this morning.

The fire broke out in Victoria theatre and was caused by a gasoline explosion. The flames spread to all nearby dwellings with amazing rapidity fanned by a high wind. The fire was brought under control this morning.

Joseph Pelchat was killed when he failed to get away in time when a charge of dynamite was set off to check the flames.

SOPHIA STREET SEES AFFRONT

WANT ACTION

Has somebody got a pick on Sophia street? If so, why? That's what numerous residents of this thoroughfare would like to know.

Everyone knows what a "pick" is. Children complain of it in school when the teacher doesn't like them because they come to classes with a sniffle or don't do their home work. But Sophia street, as far as anyone knows, is a well-behaved thoroughfare. It follows a more or less brief existence of about four blocks without doing anything out of ordinary, and it is beginning to wake up to the fact that it is being neglected.

If a resident of Sophia street contemplates the purchase of a motor car, for instance, he or she is compelled to face a prospect of having it bogged in the ruts that make the ups and downs of the causeway that divides the houses. The road, say the residents of that district, is not what a road should be. In fact, it is far from being anything like a respectable thoroughfare. It lacks finish, it is rough and uneven, in effect, it isn't at all refined and Sophia street people would like something better in the way of a road.

If any of the city aldermen don't like the name of the street, for example—if this is the reason for this indifference—it should be explained and a change made. Possibly one of the aldermen suffered a blight in his young affections from a Sophia long ago, and has been taking it out on the name ever since. But this may not be the case, as the Sophia street people say they have been objects of neglect for some years past. James street, they say, has been cultivated extensively, and other thoroughfares in the district. They even hint that more wealthy residents of Engleburn avenue get the preference instead of them when it comes to having a road roller sashay past your house once in ever so often, and the great question of class distinction promises to be a threatening element in the clouds that are slowly gathering over Sophia street.

Because the ladies and gentlemen who live on that street are clamoring for "action" and for "service", the great catch words of the present generation.

"Why don't you attend church?" asked the minister of a non-attendant.

"Well, I'll tell you, sir. The first time I went to church they poured water in my face, the second time they tied me to a woman I've had to kee ever since."

"Yes," said the parson, "and the next time you go, they'll throw dirt on you."

Never Trust any Wound!

INJURY to the skin means a breaking of the protective layer of epidermis and immediate liability to infection from dangerous germs that cause festering, inflammation and blood-poison.

Therefore, be ready to apply at once a piece of lint or clean rag smeared with Zam-Buk the great first-aid and skin-remedy.

Zam-Buk kills disease germs and takes all immediate danger out of any cut, scratch or wound. It ends pain and inflammation, draws off corruption and poisonous matter, and quickly ends a peril which even healthy people have to face.

You can always be sure of safe and rapid healing in accident or skin disease with a box of Zam-Buk close at hand. Proved by scientific test to be over 99% herbal origin.

Zam-Buk contains no rancid animal fats, or zinc, mercury, or other mineral drugs found in ordinary ointments and salves.

ENSURES SAFE HEALING

YOUR GARDEN

PATCHING THE LAWN—SODDING.

Worn out or badly worn spots on the lawn should be attended to before they become too prominent. Seeding will not be very satisfactory as it will necessitate keeping off the area for too long a time. The best method is by the use of sods. Remove the old turf, being sure to cut straight edges. Loosen the soil in the area and add a little fresh, rich loam. Lay the new turf, making it fit closely and then pound well so as to ensure a good union with the soil. Water the repaired areas thoroughly.

Sodding the entire lawn is a much more expensive method than seeding. It has this advantage, that it can be done at any time the ground is workable and an immediate effect is secured. The sodded lawn will, however, require more attention during its first twelve months of existence. Also it is difficult to get the proper union of the sods and it is liable to be streaky from using soil and grass seed in the cracks.

For the actual operation of sodding a turfing iron is necessary. Cut the sods with an edging tool a foot wide, along the straight edge of a board of convenient size for handling. Crosswise they may be divided to a foot square or to 3 feet long by the foot wide. Remove the sods to a depth of about one inch and a half, and if three feet, roll them.

The turves should be laid on well prepared soil, the surface of which has been raked loosely. Unroll the sod in position, endeavoring to procure as level a surface as possible as the work proceeds by repairing any little unevennesses of the ground or thickness of the sod. After the sods are laid as evenly as possible, the union should be filled with loose soil and a little grass seed sown in them. Then comes the very essential work of beating. This is really hard work as they must be beaten and pounded very thoroughly to ensure intimate contact with the soil below. If this is not done properly, the roots will not take hold and the grasses will die after a few days of dry, hot weather. When the work is completed, the newly sodded area should be watered copiously and it will be necessary to water freely all summer.

On terraces and banks, pegs, eight or ten inches long, should be driven into the ground to hold the sods until they become established.

It does relieve Constipation. That's why over Ten Million bottles are sold annually

BEAUTIFYING OF PETERBOROUGH SHOULD BE GENERAL AND CORDIALLY CO-OPERATIVE MOVE BY ALL CITIZENS OF THE CITY THIS YEAR

Much Has Been Done, But More Is To Be Accomplished.

IS INEXPENSIVE

That the laying of plans for the beautification of Peterborough is a timely matter for discussion just now is an opinion widely held. The near approach of summer, when nature is assuming her brightest garb, and the clear air and penetrating sunshine bring both the beautiful and unsightly to the eye. Clean-up and gardening days are calling for the attention of every citizen. The removal of untidy blemishes, of ashy approaches, of weedy patches seems to be a duty and should be a pleasure to every householder in a city that can be made as pretty as Peterborough permits. Much can be done by individual citizens as well as in a co-operative effort, to brighten, with blossom and greenery and carefully-kept lawns, the residential districts. The downtown business centres and offices may display some decorative floral tokens that spring, with its message of hope and optimism, is here.

Before any attempt at beautification can succeed there must be a thorough clean-up, and although Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, is proud of the cleanliness of the city in general, there is much that can be done to improve conditions now existing in almost every section. There are ash heaps, piles of tins, and acres of weeds that can be disposed of out of sight and in a sanitary manner. Dirty, unsightly avenues of entry to the splendid homes that grace Peterborough are not favorably impressive to visitors and tourists, nor can they minister to the pleasure and laudable pride of the residents. This fundamental clean-up overlooked, all decorative efforts are but as lace and jewelry bedecking an unwashed face.

First—Clean Up.

So, then, the first effort to beautify Peterborough is to clean up Peterborough. It is surprising how much of rubbish accumulates, hidden, in part, under the blanketing of snow and ice during the winter months. Driveways, lanes, lawns and boulevards should be carefully raked and last year's leaves and weeds burned with the permission of the Chief of the Fire Department. Before starting a fire, call 24 and tell Chief Gimblett of your intention.

Then the old, dead grass should be got out from among the new spring growth, and in cases where the sod has died out or been trodden down, grass seed should be sown, and both parents and teachers should explain to the children the need for their keeping their go-carts, and adults their bicycles, off the grass. Nothing is more disheartening to the beauty-loving citizen, nothing makes more for a slovenly appearance of the residential streets, than the all-too-common practice of using the boulevards and lawns as if they were playholes and gangways. And here it is timely again to call attention to the damage done to flower beds and other frontal beautification in the residential districts by dogs running at large. A lady from Rogers Street came to The Examiner yesterday to complain of this nuisance, declaring that in her section it is almost hopeless to maintain a garden.

Inexpensive Efforts.

It is not assumed or suggested that this is a good time for elaborate and expensive ornamentation and display, or for the removal of the hundreds of unsightly old shacks that disgrace some of the city's best streets, but it is confidently asserted that in an inexpensive way the public roads and private property may be made to bear testimony to the courage and confidence, the pleasure and pride, Peterboroughites have in their city.

Peterborough is a city easily kept clean, easily made beautiful. It is picturesquely situated amid alternating hill and valley; it has rich soil that made living here bountiful for the early settler, and will make flower growing easy for his more modern pioneer in a new field. It is a city blessed with more than usual shade trees, better than which no city can boast. The Otonabee, not half appreciated, winds through it like a silver thread. Its splendid parks and playgrounds, all bright and capable of being made more beautiful, add to an ensemble that makes visitors wonder why the citizens do not go the whole way toward making it the prettiest city in Canada.

Many people in every ward have already recognized the advantage in keeping their premises resplendent with flower and shrub in artistic designs. These pioneers in the work of making Peterborough beautiful, as a noble nucleus of order and beauty, have done so much in the past, and have influenced so many citizens to follow more or less closely their efforts, that it needs but a little more labor generally, a little more care and restraint, a little higher appreciation of the possibilities in this direction for every district to put on a festive and inviting appearance.

All Must Help.

But it is needful, if Peterborough this year is to look its best, that all should help. A few neglected houses on a street will break the beauty of the whole. It can be seen in a dozen places where a garden, fit for the gods, is sandwiched between ragged, unkempt, uneven, waste and weedy surroundings. Though such a beauty spot comes as a surprise and a joy, as an oasis in a desert, the surrounding confusion is the more depressing. Co-operation is of primary importance, and the uniting of all citizens in a civic association might be a means to secure it. Uniformity might be achieved without loss of originality and personal preference. The color schemes in closely adjacent gardens then need not be conflicting, though they need not be slavishly similar. One man delights in balance and perfection of order; another in that which is wild and approximate the more unscientific. Some love the delicate, some the gorgeous; some admire the simple, some the grand. And to co-ordinate all this, and yet leave full liberty of choice, should be the work of this civic association.

The Ontario Government, in subsidizing work of this sort, has deputed it to the horticultural societies, knowing that a big membership of interested flower lovers may co-operate most usefully and most advantageously. A citizen, well known for his long and wide association with efforts to make Peterborough beautiful, records his thought that Peterborough has not, in that respect, lived up to its many opportunities, and is falling behind many similarly situated Ontario cities.

Seize Opportunities.

Environmentally, Peterborough is The City Healthful. The low death rate and low infant mortality rate testify to this.

Artistically, Peterborough is The City Beautiful. Visitors to the city declare its homes among the most beautiful they have seen. Its tree-bordered streets add a beauty that is unexcelled anywhere.

An ugly thing can not be made beautiful by putting something beautiful on it. First, clean-up—then plant—and Peterborough will present to its citizens who love to admire it, and to visitors who come to criticize an appearance that will entitle it to the title "Canada's Most Beautiful City."

A PETERBOROUGH BEAUTY SPOT.

Inverlea Park, where a small effort has been made to beautify an already pretty spot. The trees, the river, and the bathing beach make this a popular summer rendezvous.

Floglaze

"The Finish that Endures"

A PAINT THAT GIVES GREATER SERVICE

25% Better Painting 25% Greater Paint Value

Floglaze EXTERIOR covers 500 square feet, two coats to the gallon, or 25% more than any other paint. It has 25% better covering and will last 25% longer. Here is the reason why:

Diagram 1.

The above diagram illustrates the faults of brush marks in lead and oil paint, and other mixed paints. Points A are weak spots in the film. Points B indicate where an excess of paint gives only surface drying, leaving a soft centre and producing surface cracking. Dirt and destructive fungi collect in the dales at points C, giving a dirty appearance and early destruction of the film. Light does not reflect a good gloss from such a rough surface. Too much paint is piled up at points D, which lessens its covering capacity.

Diagram 2.

The above diagram illustrates a typical Floglaze Exterior Surface

There are no weak hollows to destroy the film. Its self-levelling qualities produce a level, unbroken surface. There are no brush marks. Dirt and fungi cannot collect to mar or destroy the film. Light is evenly reflected, giving a glossy enamel finish on both interior and exterior surfaces.

It can also be seen that the length of the zig-zag line from X to Y in diagram No. 1 is much greater than the length of the line X to Y in diagram No. 2, which plainly illustrates why FLOGLAZE EXTERIOR actually covers from 20% to 25% more surface than any paint made with ordinary raw linseed oil.

There Is a Floglaze Line for Every Purpose

Porch and Veranda Paint for interior and exterior floors.

Velvet Finish for interior wall and ceiling decoration.

Lac Shades for furniture, woodwork and floors.

Auto Finishes and General Purpose Enamels

A TRUE LOVE ROMANCE NEEDED

By GENE COHN.

NEW YORK, May 8 — "Loveless Lois" they called her along Broadway.

She drew an Arctic circle about herself, the wisecrackers said, adding that she wore icicles for earrings.

Certainly it seemed that the face that launched a thousand courtships after it had won for its possessor six national beauty contests, would never come to utter the words 'I do' in the parson's presence.

The trouble has been, as Lois Wild now put it, that there have been countless loves, but no romances.

And what Lois wanted was a man who would do something more than write a mash note reading, "I saw your picture in the paper. I have $50,000 and a farm in Connecticut. I am lonesome. Will you marry me?"

So when romance of the screen and story book type came quietly stalking along the street of the gay lights, Lois was all but shaken out from under her attractive blonde locks.

The result is the announcement that the lovely Lois will soon wed Leslie Sheriff, son of a wealthy Washington (D. C.) family.

Listen, then, to the love story of Leslie and Lois.

From the day that Lois Wild was able to say "choo choo" it was an even bet that she would be a blonde beauty and a heartbreaker.

When, with her family, she left Los Angeles and headed east no one who knew her was surprised when she won the bathing beauty prize at Brighton in 1921 and followed this with the Atlantic City prize in 1923 and four prizes thereafter. This, of course, attracted Flo Ziegfeld, the magazine editors, and the photographers. For a time she posed for Howard Chandler Christy and, finally, signed a contract with the Follies.

There Leslie Sheriff first saw her.

Of course he wanted to meet her. But Lois was wearing icicles for earrings, as usual, and wasn't interested. Sheriff had a friend in theatricals, Brook Johns, an entertainer. Johns arranged an introduction, and that was that.

Leslie made up his mind to change her mind. But how? Now it happened that at college Leslie had learned to thrum a mean banjo and had been in amateur jazz bands. He learned that the Olson band was going to do a number in Lois' show. He did a lot of hasty practicing and applied for a job. He landed it. Thus each night he appeared at the theatre and made it a point to let Lois know he was there and intended to be there as long as she was. He wanted to be near her.

Now this was romantic enough even for "loveless Lois" and soon they were friends.

"And we talked it over when we dropped in at the supper clubs or when he took me home in a taxi, and decided to marry," she recites.

"Of course I will quit the stage and so will he. I wouldn't have a husband in the theatre business. That's one reason why I have refused to marry actors.

"I really was fed up on love. I came to believe that no man would go out of his way to win a girl. You'd be amazed at the thousands of men who think they merely have to write a girl that they have money or casually ask her to marry them. That's what made me cold on the whole business of love and marriage.

"I don't understand where men get the idea that a show girl can be approached on the marriage question in a matter-of-fact way that few men would think of using on a Main Street girl.

"I can do more than look pretty and dance. I can keep house and when we're married that's what I'm going to do."

FLIGHTS OF FANCY

Our hats have been so much alike for so many seasons past, that it is with great rejoicing that we usher in a mode which has two distinct types of smartness.

First of all is the high crowned little hat with the trimming jauntily perched on its topmost peak. There never was a hat more suitable for care-free insouciante youth. There is something so pert about them that they are just as attractive as can be.

The trimming is frequently a perky little bow of the very narrowest ribbon or two soft feather pompoms. However, the possibilities of many other trimmings so placed are infinite as this summer's hats readily show. In many a smart model a very atractive effect is gained by stitching a tiny fold in the top of the hat. Sometimes there is just one fold—at others two folds at right angles to each other.

Another Way of Trimming.

The other smart way for a hat to wear its trimming, is falling from one side of the brim so low and so close to the face that it almost brushes the cheek. In fact, on some of these hats, the trimming comes from beneath the brim. These hats are almost universally flattering.

Another clever type is the closely draped turban with the trimming either in the form of a feather fancy or flowers or fruit also placed very low next to the face.

But after all the smartest hat in the world looses its chic if it is not put on just at the right angle. The days when we tilted our hats at a precarious angle over one eye are gone. Of course, we do not wear them with too precise a straightness. But it is smarter to tit the hat forward and if it is more becoming that way—just a very little to one side.

Colored Felt Hats.

For early spring the brightly colored little felt hat has won the greatest popularity. And with the return of color to a grey and frozen world, how attractive they are. All shades of purple from a deep rich tone to a pale lilac, bright orange all the popular tones of red as well as a becoming French blue are greaty in predominence. All these felts are very soft, ready to be shaped to suit the face of the wearer. Some remind us of still warmer days to come by having the under side of the brim lined with straw.

These felt hats are so smart and so becoming that they are no longer relegated simply to the world of sports or strictly tailored hours. This season one sees them with the most elaborate of afternoon frocks, and worn to almost every function which demands a hat.

However, as soou as summer weather arrives straws and silks will lead the way to smartness. Many a smart model is of silk and straw combination either in matching or contrasting colors. These hats will sometimes be more delicate in tone than the flaunting gaiety of their spring sisters.

For Sports.

Of course, the first consideration In choosing a hat for sports wear is comfort and suitability. And the small soft felt hats which are being shown are the most practical ever designed. Without any stiffening whatsoever, they may be carried flauntily under the arm or pulled on the head into just the shape the fair wearer prefers. They are bright or delicately tinted as a rule for white has not the great popularity it enjoyed last season.

The trimming may consist solely of the tiny folds stitched in the crown or may be a tiny felt bow perched on the top of the bat. But whatever it is it is sure to be very simple for line, color and comfort are the three rules for smartness of sports wear.

It will be a simple matter this year to find as many charmingly becoming hats as you wish for they follow so closely the shape of the head and frequently add a little height which so many of us find most attractive.

Crane Arm Came in Contact With Live Wire, Causing Workman's Death.

TORONTO, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—While attempting to aid Robert Beck when a crane used in laying sewer pipes came in contact with a live Hydro wire yesterday afternoon, Petro Mincollo lost his life. Beck sustained a severe shock, but was able to continue his work later.

The crane had just deposited a heavy pipe in position in the excavation when the arm made contact with the wire and the electric fluid ran through the metal and held Beck to the cable. Mincolla, without hesitation, rushed forward to aid Beck, but as soon as his fingers touched the cable he received a shock which killed him almost outright.

Mincollo is survived by a widow and seven children.

PLANNING AHEAD

These are the days when we're planning ahead, and thinking of summer vacation. On work and the like we are really well fed, and the call is a bully sensation.

We look to our savings and count up our dough. We've pinched with our coin till it hurt. But now we are glad, 'cause we're ready to go—just to get out with nature, and flirt.

We write for the booklets—a dozen or more— to learn of the latest reports. We read about doings at this or that shore, and of various summer resorts.

We make out a list of the things we must pack, and dust off the trunk we will take. We really don't care if we never come back, when from work we can manage to break.

And whether the place that we finally pick out with all of the best things is blessed, we really can make it worth while, without doubt, if it just brings a change and a rest.

LONG TERMS TO YOUNG ROBBERS

Fifteen and Ten Years Given For Assault on Aged Sexton.

MURDEROUS ATTACK.

TORONTO, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—Mr. Justice Logie, in the Criminal Assizes last evening, dealt a staggering blow to two youthful criminals, Thomas R. Notley and George R. Tutty, convicted by the jury on charges of breaking into St. Barnabas Church and murderously attacking Courtney Hackaday, the aged sexton, when he committed them to Portsmouth Penitentiary for long terms.

Notley was sentenced to serve fifteen years, the term to run concurrently with the term of three years already imposed by the police magistrate for shopbreaking and theft. Tutty, who fared better than Notley, on account of his youth, was given a ten-year sentence, to run concurrently with a prior sentence of two years and nine months for shopbreaking and theft. Notley is 21 and Tutty 19. Robbery is believed to have been the motive of the crime.

Courtney Hackaday, who was so brutally assaulted, is 80 years of age and had to be assisted to the witness box to give evidence. The prisoners made a murderous attack upon the aged sexton while he was asleep in his bed in St. Barnabas Church Building. His jaw and nose had been broken, he said; his shoulder injured, all his teeth, save two, knocked out, and his forehead terribly bruised and cut.

Arrested.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—(Canadian Press).—What is described as one of the biggest counterfeiting plots on record, involving the production of spurious, war-saving stamps and revenue strip stamps, has been discovered, the secret service announced yesterday, following the indictment of eight men in Pittsburgh on counterfeiting charges.

The appearance of fraudulent stamps in small Ohio towns last fall led to the detection of the plot which centered in Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago.

Between forty and fifty persons are under arrest and spurious stamps bearing a face value of $'90,000 have been captured. Ten confessions are claimed.

FORD MILL ENLARGED.

Make Flour for Ford Employees From Wheat Grown on Ford Farms.

DETROIT, May 8.— (Canadian Press.)—The Ford flour mills at Dearborn, which manufactures flour to be sold to Ford employees from wheat grown on Ford farms, has doubled its daily production within the past three years, and increased its consumption of raw wheat from about 10,000 bushels in 1921 to 32,764 in 1924. It is furnishing the Ford Highland Park commissary with 75,000 twenty-five pound sacks of flour annually, while sending every 25 days a carload south to Stone, Ky., and Twin Branch, West Va., and the same amount north to Iron Mountain, L'Abbe, and Pequaming, Mich.

MAHER & WESLEY'S FIRST ANNIVERSARY

In observing their first business anniversary, commencing Saturday, May 9, and continuing for two weeks, Maher & Wesley are congratulating themselves upon having established at Charlotte street an exclusive men's clothing house, the success of which has exceeded their most sanguine expectations.

Thier policy of four-square business dealings, coupled with an indiscriminating courtesy and never-failing effort to give unqualified satisfaction to all, have won for them a city and country-wide reputation which has fostered business building. Starting in a small way, the always dependability of their merchandise and that super-service only acquired by years of experience, have rewarded them with the flattering confidence of a large and growing clientele. For whether it be ready-to-wear or made-to-measure, men's and boys' clothing, or furnishings, their patrons can rely upon getting exactly what they want when they want it, and also of receiving measure full in value no matter how modeate the price may be.

While young in business for themselves, both M. J. Maher and G. A. Wesley are long and favorably known in this city and district. Older citizens will recall the former as the Mr. Maher of Lang & Maher, men's clothiers in Peterborough, and with hundreds of others his reputation for reliability when subsequently manager of Oak Hall here for years is standing this new firm in good stead to-day. Mr. Wesley, associated with Mr. Maher as his chief assistant in Oak Hall, also stands exceedingly high in the estimation of this community and adjacent country for his comprehensive knowledge of and acceptable catering to the requirements of discriminating men who like to dress well, but economically.

Both these men know the gents' clothing and furnishings business from A to Z, and their faith in Charlotte street as a favorable shopping centre, and in Peterborough itself for business venture, has been amply repaid by a twelve months' experience of notable success. And in token of their appreciation of the splendid patronage enjoyed by them the past year, Maher & Wesley promise that the opening day, to-morrow, of their first anniversary sale, shall inaugurate a season of value-giving in men's and boys' clothing and furnishings which will appeal to all buyers who must practice economy.

Maher & Wesley's slogan of "Quality Our Policy" is a good one. They stand behind everything with their absolute guarantee of "Quality the best," and even when prices are reduced their high standard of quality is maintained.—(Advt).

Miss Irene Fitzgerald, nurse-in-training at Parry Sound Hospital has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Anne Fitzgerald.

TOO BAD HANNIBAL

By Jack Jungmeyer.

NEW YORK, May 6. — Had Douglas MacLean sustained throughout the picture the high level of oplite comedy achieved in the early reels of his latest, "Introduce Me," it would rate among the best pieces of screen fun ever done.

But in the end the plausibility of situation, which gave it reality and suspense three-quarters of the way, veers so sharply into wildest extravagance that the spell is broken and a fine effort somewhat mangled. And, it seemed to me, qnite needlessly—because of over-importance attached to the presumptive value of novelty "gags."

The Ending.

In this case the two final "gags," no doubt the pride of the producer, Arthur S. Kane, and the story authors, show MacLean masquerading as America's greatest mountain-climber, hurtling down a famous Swiss peak, encased in a huge snowball, breaking trees and bouncing off cliffs in a many-thousand-foot plunge to emerge unharmed beside his sweetheart as the snowball encases her and breaks to bits.

A very funny situation that, in itself, but not in tone with the rest of "Introduce Me." Despite the incongruity, however, the picture is still one of the season's best—highly entertaining.

MacLean as "Jimmy Clark," a reticent young American impelled by sudden love for "Betty Perry" (Anne Cornwall), allows himself to become the victim of mistaken identity. This forces him to reveal [illegible] masquerade and presumably lose the girl, or enter a hazardous mountain-climbing contest in the Alps. The real mountaineer is on hand to see that he does not fake the climb. Love impels him; danger appalls him. And the girl's father (E. J. Ratcliffe), stirred to rage by many unintentional offences, is a further burden upon the timid young American.

Up the Matterhorn.

Faint with terror, the boy who has never even climbed a hill, essays the ascent of the Matterhorn in a race with noted Alpinists. Pursuit by a bear—the more imminent of two evils—forces him up the peak in record time, and the aforementioned snowball, formed by his rolling fall, brings him down even faster.

At this point, where the bear enters the scene, "Excuse Me" becomes artificial, broad comedy. Instead of showing the bear and the youth in a possible although hazardous climb, the camera is tilted at an angle to make the violation of gravity plainly evident.

Balancing this fault in direction is a scene of high pathos which is a stroke of genius. It comes as "Jimmy" is on the moonlit veranda of an Alpine inn, asking the girl to marry him. Together they are glancing aloft at the towering Matterhorn, beautifully presented by the camera where on the morrow the boy feels he is to lose his life in payment for his love.

Here is the sublime, mystic, eternal pate of the great Alp looking down upon the puny human comedy, love and fear, enacted as in this movie, over and over again at its base. Some such feeling moves one as this scene flashes on, and there is no laughter at Jimmy's ludicrous plight. Perhaps, one is nudged to think, from that altitude all our fun is tragic, and all our tragedy comic.

To me this was the most effective novelty in the picture an unusual element in film fun, checking laughter for a moment, only to provoke it the more after the impresive contrast.

SENATOR ATTACKS PREMIER MUSSOLINI

Said That Italian People Would Defeat Government in Election.

ROME, May 8. — Stinging criticism was directed against the Mussolini government at yesterday's sitting of the Senate to which the premier himself listened with surprising calm.

Invectives were pronounced principally by Senator Luigi Albertini, owner of Milan 'Corriere Della Sera' the most influential of the opposition newspapers. He declared that if the Italian people were free to express their wishes at the polls without humiliation or intimidation the days of the Fascist regime would be numbered.

Senator Albertini waxed eloquent when he denounced Fascist government's repressive measure asserting that the liberty of the press which had always been considered the inalienable right of any people had come to be a joke under the fascist administration.

FELL FROM LADDER.

Brampton Man Met Death in a Peculiar Accident.

BRAMPTON, Ont., May 8. — (Canadian Press).—Albert Dolphin, formerly of Toronto, and a resident of Brampton for the past two months, met death suddenly yesterday afternoon. He fell from a piece of board, supported on ladders, on which he was standing to remove the paper from a ceiling, struck a rung and broke it, a fragment of the ladder penetrating his abdomen, causing hemorrhage.

Stopped!—by the "Giant Grip" of the Hercules

IT looked like a nasty fall! But the Little Brake that weighs only 29½ ounces saved the rider from plunging into the deep ditch.

It is in such emergencies the cyclist is thankful he has a Hercules Brake.

While ounces lighter than others, the new Improved Hercules has more actual braking service. It works the instant you back pedal. No slipping, no jerking. But a smooth, velvety "giant" grip that, when necessary, brings the bicycle to a dead stop with almost incredible rapidity.

The Hercules has only about half as many parts as the average coaster hub. The hub shell—the part that bears the strain—is not a malleable casting, but is turned from a solid steel bar.

There's no clumsy side arm on the Hercules to become rusted and hard to remove, therefore no time is wasted when removing the rear wheel for any purpose.

The new Improved Hercules is easier to adjust, and requires less adjusting than others. It can be adjusted more closely and still coast more freely and farther than the average coaster brake.

Having all these advantages, is it any wonder there are five times as many Hercules Brakes in Canada as all other makes combined?

As it can be attached to any bicycle, there is no reason why every rider should not have a Hercules.

All C.C.M. Bicycles are equipped with the new Improved Hercules Brake and the C.C.M. Triplex Hanger, without extra cost.

Prices Again Reduced

The new C.C.M. models are beauties. Prices have again been reduced. They're now $20 to $25 less than the after-war "peak" prices. The biggest values since pre-war days.

HATFIELD HAS NEVER FAILED TO PRODUCE RAIN ON THE DAY HIS CONTRACT REQUIRED

Scientists and the Weather Bureau Officials Scoff at His Claims.

HE GETS RESULTS.

Farmers Pay the Fee Without Worrying About Who Brought the Rain.

By JOHN B. WALLACE

Charles M. Hatfield, rain man extraordinary for the Pacific slope, resembles the well-known groundhog. That sagacious animal is reputed to emerge from his burrow in late winter, cast an eye at his shadow and, perceiving it, proceed to hole up for another 40 days.

"Rain-maker" Hatfield likewise periodically emerges from obscurity, takes a squint at Old Sol, and, perceiving it, proceeds to get busy; for it is only when the sun has been on the job too long, or in other words has worn out his usual welcome, that the general public gives two hoots about Hatfield.

When he is on the bill he is a headliner, and the newspapers use blackface type to tell of his exploits. But when Jupiter Pluvius is doing his daily dozen in accordance with schedule, Hatfield's news value is on a par with the price of coal in Arabia.

Drought Sections in the Valleys.

On the Pacific coast itself there is seldom need of artificial assistance to produce rain, but in the dry interior valleys on the eastern side of the coast ranges, the farmers do suffer from droughts. Though the heavens literally open and flood San Francisco and the coast, the ranchers in the interior may gaze upon their parching fields and lift up their voices for Hatfield. And Hatfield comes, and with him comes the rain.

Does it always come? Yes, gentle reader, it comes. For 22 years, it has always come. Sometimes not in the amounts called for in the contract, but in 7 tries, the exact number in which Hatfield has agreed to bring rain for remuneration, he has never failed to produce rain in appreciable quantities.

Time and time again he has predicted rain upon a certain day after he has set his forces to work. The predictions of the weather bureau for the same date would be "fair weather." The rain would come right on schedule.

Men of science scoff at Hatfield's claims. The weather bureau officials sneer at his results. However, results are something that are difficult to laugh off, and the farmers and stock raisers are content in the main to accept them without going behind the returns. They pay Hatfield his fee with loud cheers, and assert that whether he was responsible or not the rain came and was well worth the price.

There is one person who believes in Hatfield and his ability with all his heart and soul, and that person is Hatfield himself. No one can talk with him ten minutes without being thoroughly convinced of his sincerity and his faith in his system. If Hatfield were the charlatan that some assert him to be, he could be a very wealthy man today. Instead, it is doubtful if he possesses more than moderate means. If he is rich he certainly is successful in concealing it. Evidence of wealth, by the way, is sometimes hard to conceal from the public.

Hatfield a Kansas Product.

Hatfield comes of Quaker stock. He was born in Kansas in 1875. His parents moved to Minnesota, and then, when young Hatfield was about eleven, they came to Southern California. The first Hatfield farm in California was located in what is now Hollywood, and its site is now surrounded by motion picture studios and the mansions of film queens.

The farms in the valleys about Los Angeles periodically suffer from droughts and young Hatfield often heard his father complain about lack of rain for his growing barley and hay crops. While the other lads were hunting, fishing, or playing ball, the future "rain-maker" had his nose buried in books treating of meteorology, chemistry and kindred sciences. From his studies he evolved a theory that rain could be produced artificially. It became a hobby with him, a hobby which, by the way, his father did his best to discourage, as he considered it a foolish waste of valuable time. His mother, however, as is characteristic of mothers, had faith in her son, a faith which she still has, and which she believes has been fully justified by results.

Early Experiments.

Finally, after years of intermittent experimenting, Hatfield succeeded in obtaining a combination of chemicals which he hoped might bring about the desired effect. His father had purchased another farm at Bonsall, in San Diego county. In April, 90 , Hatfield took his apparatus down there, set it up on a windmill to give it the necessary elevation and touched off the chemicals. A fog had drifted in from the ocean and he succeeded in precipitating it into a .0 -inch fall of rain. He tried again the following month and raised his result to .04 of an inch.

Not yet certain whether the results were accidental, he decided to wait until July before trying again. July in Southern California is one of the entirely dry months of the year. Rain in July is almost unheard of, and it takes a prolonged search of the records to reveal more than an occasional fog for that month.

Therfore in July, Hatfield again mounte the old windmill with his pans, which contained a stronger mixture than he had used previously, and the result exceeded his fondest hopes. Rain fell to the extent of .65 of an inch—which, it must be admitted, is quite a shower to bring from a hitherto cloudless sky in a month supposed to be rainless.

The First Demonstration.

Came the year 90 , a very dry year. Hatfield was working for a sewing-machine agency. Crops were suffering, and merchants who depended upon these crops for their prosperity were as worried as the farmers. Of all merchants none are more pleased to see the farmer prosper than the sewing-machine salesmen, for it is then that he opens up his heart and allows the wife to invest in such things as sewing-machines. Hatfield's associates, therefore, took great interest in the weather, and it was during one of their daily discussions that he made them a startling offer. For $50 he told them he would agree to cause an inch of rain to fall within five days. They snapped up his contract at once, and the money was subscribed in five minutes. A boot merchant happened to overhear the offer, and insisted upon being included. He had been stuck for two years with a consignment of rubber boots, which no one had any occasion to use.

The $50 meant nothing to Hatfield, as it would cost him nearly that much to conduct his operations, but it gave him an opportunity to demonstrate his powers at no expense to himself.

The Sunday following the closing of the contract the churches held special services and prayed for rain. The next day a few fleecy clouds appeared. Tuesday it was again cloudless. Hatfield put up his tower that day and predicted rain for the following Thursday. The weather man predicted clear weather. Thursday it rained, and before the five days had elapsed .64 inches had fallen.

There was considerable argument as to whether the ministers or Hatfield had been instrumental in bringing the showers, but it was Hatfield who collected the $50. The weather bureau man had little to say.

Eight Inches of Rain for $1000.

Encouraged by his success, Hatfield then made an offer to produce 8 inches of rain for the season. The normal for this region is round 14 inches, but this being an exceptionally dry season the rainfall upon the date that the proposition was made was some four inches below normal. On the other hand, Northern California had been getting more than its share, being well above normal at that time. Hatfield's Offer, therefore, appe red preposterous, and great were the gibes and jeers. However, the merchants were willing to try anything, and as his offer was based upon the principle of full performance or no pay, $,000 was quickly subscribed and the "rain-maker" went to work.

Soon after his operations began there could be noted a change in the tone of the newspaper articles. Hatfield was making good. It rained and kept on raining. The papers began to take him seriously. They conferred the title of "Professor" upon him, and star reporters were sent up into the hills to interview him. At the end of the season the rainfall was well bove the stipulated 8 inches and Hatfield collected again.

A peculiar feature bout it was that while previous to the beginning of his operations Southern California was four inches below normal and at the close was four inches bove, Northern California, which had been bove normal when he began, closed the season four inches below. This is interesting, since Hatfield makes no claim to bility to "make" rain; all he says is that he can attract it to the vicinity of his operations.

This demonstration made the reputation of Hatfield on the Pacific coast. Farmers in the dry interior valleys sent for him year after year. In one section he continued his operations for four straight ye rs. His chain of successes was practically unbroken. Always after he set up his towers the rain followed within six days. Sometimes the amount was disappointing and other times more rain came than the ranchers wanted. Although he seems to be ble to turn on the water tap of the heavens at will, he has no way to turn it off again.

Flooding San Diego.

An instance in point is the famous San Diego affair. The Morena dam, which impounds the water supply of the city of San Diego, is located in the hills back of the city. The reservoir holds around 8,000,000,000 gallons when full. Due to a dry season in which San Diego county had failed to get its normal rainfall, the reservoir had fallen to ,000,000,000 gallons, and city officials were beginning to get alarmed.

While they were discussing the question, Hatfield one day appeared before the city council and made a proposition to fill the reservoir within one year for $10,000. The reservoir had never been anywhere near full since the dam had been built, and the council, taking it as a good joke, passed a resolution accepting the offer.

Hatfield went back into the hills and within six days there began the heaviest rainfall ever known in the country. It not only filled the Morena dam to overflowing but the overflow carried away a lower dam, the Otay dam, and caused great damage to the ranches below it.

The city of San Diego still owes Hatfield the $10,000. City officials privately admit that he fulfilled his contract, but if the city should pay him it would then be compelled to admit responsibility for the floods, and be faced with dam ge suits running into millions of dollars. On the other hand, Hatfield has refrained from taking his case to the courts for similar reasons, and also the fact that he might be compelled to reveal his secret to obtain a judgment.

The Bakersfield Contract.

Hatfield had just returned from a month's operation in Kern and San Luis Obispo counties when I interviewed him. His contract there called for payment up to $,500 fter the first inch of rain had fallen during the period between November 20 and December 20, 92 . For the first inch he was to receive nothing. Both the San Francisco and Los Angeles districts had beenrreceiving rains almost up to normal duting October and November, but the central districts had been losing out on the storms. That is why they sent for Hatfield.

At the expiration of the period of the contract the record of the gauges chosen for the test in the district where the "rain-maker" had been operating showed just under an inch; a fraction less than one-tenth of an inch under to be exact.

The newspapers heralded the fact that Hatfield had failed, and the writer intimated as much to him. His blue eyes fairly blazed.

"When I went up there," he replied, "the sheep and cattle men were desper ate. There was not a blade of green grass in sight. Everything was brown and pasturage was nil. When I left last week the grass was several inches high. The valleys were green and there is pasturage for several months. Would you call that failure?

"The mistake I made," he continued, "was in the contract, and the choosing of the gauges. The average normal rainfall for that district for the period during which I operated is .58 of an inch. I should have taken that for a basis instead of giving them an inch before my pay began. When I arrived on the scene they asked me about gauges. I let them pick the location for three of them and asked to pick the location for the fourth one myself. They refused to do this and instead selected one of the driest spots in the desert for the fourth gauge. The gauge I would have chosen showedmearly three inches, and the average would have won me the pay. However, I broke the drought, and that was what they wanted. They have all the rain they need for their present purposes. I lost and can take my loss like a good sport, but I don't call it a failure. Just watch my next test," he added.

Attracting the Rain Clouds.

This last operation is a good demonstration of the theory upon which Hatfield bases his operations. The storms had been coming in from the ocean and going north to the San Francisco region. The first storm that came in after Hatfield began work veered south and the heaviest precipitation was in the hills of San Luis Obispo county not far from the scene of his operations.

Hatfield's theory seems plausible, at all events. In brief, he asserts that droughts are caused by a static condition of the chemical constituents of the atmosphere. Anything that can bring about a change is conducive to rain. He erects large towers 24 feet from the ground upon the highest elevation he can obtain in the section in which he is operating. The height of the towers is not an essential factor, except that they must be off the ground. On top of these towers he places pans containing a mysterious compound, chemicals which he mixes himself, and which, he asserts, contain the necessary ingredients to bring about a change in atmospheric conditions.

Chemicals Are Secret.

In his own words "I thought it possible by surcharging the atmosphere with forces potent and powerful enough, and bearing upon conditions already working, that the influence so liberated would be able to induce rainfall. The forces set in motion from these operations never concentrate over a local territory but extend over large areas. That is where my system is more practical than the use of explosives, or the sprinkling of rain clouds with electrically-charged sand from airplanes, as now advocated. Both of these can cause rain over but a limited area, and clouds must be present.

"There is nothing mysterious in the proposition to one who has studied atmospheric conditions. Rain can be induced to move to certain sections, or be repelled therefrom, through varied conditions. By inducing a certain state of atmosphere the attraction of moisture to that section is the natural result. Nature herself is responsible for 99 per cent. of the influences used to promote rainfall. My operations might be said only to cause the turning of the scale."

Hatfield usually gets results upon the third day, although it has sometimes taken him longer. Six days is the maximum where conditions are especially unfavorable. There first appear light fleecy cirrus clouds in a hitherto unspecked sky, then heavier cumulus, and finally the nimbus or rain-bearing clouds.

MANY SHADES USED.

Many shades of blue are combined in one frock this season, the light Alice blue and midnight blue being the extremes.

LAST LESSON IN C.G.I.T. COURSE

PLAN MEETING.

The last meeting in the C.G.I.T. course for teachers which has been held at the Y.W.C.A. during the winter months took place last night, when Rev. Mr. McLeod finished his talks on "The Life of Jesus," and Miss M. Allison of Toronto gave the last lecture in the story-telling course.

A portion of the meeting was based on the code card and on the ways in which the girls may use their own books. A vote of thanks to Miss Allison and Rev. Mr. McLeod was passed, with expressions of regret at the conclusion of the classes.

Members of the board discussed plans for the Sunday School meeting on the 12th of this month.

Weddings

PEOPLES—BROWN

NORWOOD, May 8—On Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. T. M. Wesley, associate pastor of the Methodist Church, Miss Margaret Brown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Brown of Asphodel and Mr. George Peoples' son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peoples, of Asphodel.

STAPLES—SHEA

BETHANY, May 8—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized recently by Rev. A. L. Brown at the Queen Street Methodist Parsonage, Lindsay, Ont., when Beatrice Iola, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Shea, Fleetwood, Ont., became the bride of Mr. R. L. Clare Staples, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Staples.

The bride wore a smart navy tricotine suit with sand hat and fitch fur, the gift of the groom.

MARSHALL—LAPOINTE.

One of the most charming weddings of the current season took place Wednesday, May 6th, at St. Peter's Cathedral, when Margaret, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LaPointe, of 148 Park street, became the bride of Mr. Robert Bruce Marshall, of Toronto.

The bride, a vision of loveliness, becomingly gowned in a stunning creation of poudre blue georgette with a scarf of a more pastel shade trimmed with taffeta and crushed silk roses. She wore silver shoes and stockings, and a picture hat of black. Her bouquet was ophelia roses and lily of the valley.

She was given in marriage by her father.

The bridesmaid, Miss Kathlyn LaPointe, of Trenton, cousin of the bride, was dressed in sand satin faced canton, trimmed with cut velvet flowers. She wore a small sand hat. Her bouquet was Columbia roses.

Little Evelyn LaPointe sister of the bride, made a charming flower girl, in poudre blue. She carried a basket of mauve sweet peas and roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Joseph LaPointe, brother of the bride.

The Cathedral was filled to its capacity, which proved the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their many friends.

Later, at the home of the bride, a wedding breakfast was served for the relatives and friends of the bride and groom.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. Maxsted, mother and father of the groom, Miss Evelyn Marshall and Miss Edith Maxsted, sisters of the groom, Mrs. J. A. Large, aunt of the groom, all from Toronto, Mrs. M. Barnnett, of Havelock, grandmother of the bride.

Miss Hurley presided at the organ and rendered several charming solos, which were very much appreciated by those present

Is This Your Birthday

FRIDAY, MAY 8—If today is your birthday, you should be careful that you do not bestow your love on some one unworthy of it. The chances are that before you marry you will have the companionship of several undesirable persons. Your future happiness depends on making the right choice of this group for your husband and wife. You have an extravagant trait which you should curb as soon as possible.

You are born under sign of Taurus, the lion, and courage will be one of the outstanding traits of your character.

A POLKADOT PICTURE TIN LIZZIE

Navy blue georgette is trimmed with disks of light blue embroidery and worn over a slip of light blue georgette that just matches the varying sized dots. The bow in the front is also of the light shade. The sleeeves are much more comfortable for summer than the long tight variety.

REGULAR MEETING GRADUATE NURSES

Miss M. Deyell Reports on Session of Annual Convention.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Chapter of the Granduate Nurses' Association of Ontario was held yesterday afternoon in the club room of the Y.W.C.A., with a good attendance. The president, Miss M. Deyell, was in the chair.

An interesting portion of the session was the report given by Miss Alice Price, delegate from the Chapter to the recent annual convention of the Association, held in London, Ontario. At this convention, it was decided to change the present name of the organization to that of the Registered Nurses of Ontario. The next convention will be held in 1926 in Belleville.

Miss Lena Shearer, a missionary to China from the Presbyterian Church, now resident in the city, reviewed some of her experiences during her nine years' stay in a missionary hospital in the Orient.

The nurses decided to co-operate with the Peterboro Health Association in holding a booth at the Made-in-Peterboro Fair in June.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

LOSE WEIGHT.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 3 ounces boiled calves tongue, ½ cup diced beets with 1 tablespoon orange juice, 2 "hot-dogs," 2 tablespoons minced Bermuda onion, 1 cup ten-minute cabbage, 1 tomato sliced on 2 ounces watercress, 2 tablespoons lemon jelly with 1 tablespoon "diet whipped cream," 2 thin crisp slices gluten toast, 1 bran roll, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk.

This is an excellent menu for a warm spring day. As the weather grows warmer less food is needed and even the diet menu should be reduced.

Roast the wienerwurst in the roaster in the oven. Wash well and cut a thin slice from each end of each wiener. Put in the roaster, without water, and roast about 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve with Worcestershire sauce and minced Bermuda onion.

The "diet whipped cream" is nothing but the white of one egg beaten until stiff and dry with a whisk. Two to four tablespoons of sugar are beaten into the white and one-half teaspoon of vanilla is used for flavoring. This rule will serve six "normal" persons.

GAIN WEIGHT.

One-half cup stewed rhubarb, 1 cup rolled oats with 6 dates, 1 soft boiled egg, 3 ounces boiled calves tongue, 2 rice croquettes, ½ cup diced beets with 2 tablespoons orange sauce, 1 cup cream of bean soup, 2 "hot-dogs," 2 tablespoons mashed potatoes, 2 tablespoons minced Bermuda onion, 1 cup ten-minute cabbage, 1 tomato sliced on 2 ounces watercress with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 2 tablespoons lemon jelly with 2 tablespoons diet whipped cream and 2 tablespoons minced nuts, 4 tablespoons fig pudding with 2 tablespoons whipped cream, 1 toasted cornmeal muffin, 2 bran muffins, 2 long rolls, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 dessertspoon sugar, ¾ cup cream, 1 pint whole milk.

The orange sauce for the beets is made with melted butter, flour to thicken and orange juice to make a creamy sauce. Two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour and one cup orange juice makes a delicious sauce.

Extra butter should be added to the cabbage for the gaining diet.

The nuts added to the lemon jelly increase the fat calories and are not difficult to digest.

If cream instead of butter and milk is used for the cream of bean it will be easier to digest.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

2 cups flour.
2 heaping teaspoons butter.
1 cup cocoanut.
1 teaspoon soda.
4 teaspoons cream of tartar.
2 eggs.

Rub butter well into flour. Add sugar, cocoanut, soda and cream of tartar. Beat in eggs, to make a stiff paste. Take pieces the size of marbles and roll in paper with powdered sugar. Bake in quick oven.

LADIES' AID HAD ENJOYABLE TEA

St. Paul's Society Entertained at Home of Mrs. D. Jordan Yesterday.

MUSICAL PROGRAM.

A very charming afternoon tea was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Church yesterday afternoon, at the residence of the president, Mrs. D. Jordan, 815 George Street. Ladies to the number of nearly a hundred and fifty attended during the afternoon.

Mrs. Jordan was assisted in receiving by Mrs. T. C. Elliott and Mrs. C. A. White. Ladies pouring tea were Mrs. John McPherson, Mrs. A. McLeish and Mrs. W. R. Turner. Assistants in the drawing room were Mesdames M. McNabb, T. Gilgour, J. Garbutt, McKee, A. Cameron, Jackson, R. H. Hunter, S. Jordan, H. Gilgour, C. Blewett, Savigny and the Misses Lena Eakins and Hunter.

Mrs. H. Dodds and Miss E. Montgomery were convenors of tea room arrangements.

The floral decorations of the handsome rooms were beautiful. The drawing room was arranged with snapdragon and tulips, the tea table with roses and sweet peas. Tall ferns also added to the attractive appearance of the rooms.

During the afternoon, a pleasant musical programme was rendered, with an instrumental trio by the Misses Violet and Isabel Davidson and Margaret McCulloch; a pianoforte solo by Miss Florence Saunders; vocal selections by Mrs. Walter Byers, Miss Marion Clark and Mr. John Anderson, and a 'cello solo by M. Chenhall, Junior. Mrs. Walter Byers had charge of the programme.

"It's guaranteed pure—and purity means value in soap—" says Mrs. Experience, to housewives interested in saving.

"Of course, you know right away that I refer to Sunlight—because Sunlight is the only laundry bar soap made in Canada that is guaranteed pure. A $5,000 Guarantee of Purity goes with every bar; and according to the makers, this Guarantee has never once been challenged during the whole lifetime of Sunlight Soap.

"It's perfectly obvious, too, that when every particle of a soap is pure cleansing material—and not loaded with useless adulterants and hardening materials—then that soap has more cleansing power and does more work with less labour. A little of it goes a long way. In short, it's really economical.

"That's why I always use and recommend Sunlight for the laundry, dishes and general housework. Sunlight keeps my hands soft and comfortable, too!" Lever Brothers Limited, Toronto, make it.

G. A. BRETHEN WOULD PROHIBT REMARRYING OF GUILTY PARTY IN ALLOWING A DIVORCE PLEA

East Peterborough Member Has Question Sent to Law Clerk.

NINETEEN GIVEN.

The Private Bills Committee Spends One Minute on Each Case.

OTTAWA, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—Nineteen divorce bills were approved in 19 minutes by the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons this morning.

"I do not think the guilty party in a divorce case should be given the right to re-marry," declared G. A. Brethen, M.P., as the committee was about to adjourn. Mr. Brethen desired to see justice done, but he recollected a case where a person found in a divorce suit to have been guilty, re-married within a week's time after the divorce had been granted to the innocent party. He would refuse the guilty party of either sex the right to re-marry.

Hon. H. R. McGiverin, chairman of the committee, said the point had often been raised, and he suggested that the law clerk of the House be requested to furnish a written legal opinion fully outlining his views as to the right of the guilty party to re-marry.

The suggestion was agreed to by the committee.

SHORT CHANGE PROVIDES FUN IN COURT CASE

Fur Bedecked Lady Haled Before Magistrate Langley With Husband.

WARNED AND FREED.

J. W. Geraghty Was Too Astute to be Caught By Old Trick.

The officers and attendants of the Police Court this morninng were diverted by a ventilation of the devious manoeuvrings of short change artists.

The charge was laid by James W. Geraghty, a business man of the city, against Wm. Jas. Wythe, ostensibly of Hamilton and other points. Geraghty alleged that the wife of Wythe did attempt to increase his overhead to the extent of ten dollars and declared that she failed this time where she succeeded last year.

According to J. W. Geraghty, Mrs. Wythe entered his store at the corner of Charlotte and Park between the hours of seven and eight and, displaying a twenty dollar bill, bought articles netting in value about forty cents. Mr. Geraghty changed the bill and the lady went out to return a moment later to buy a few candies for the kiddie, which she paid for in small silver.

She then requested a $10 bill in exchange for bills of a smaller denomination and silver. Geraghty consented and said that she counted her money twice before he gave her ten and once after he had done so.

The accused then asked for the twenty note which she had given originally, and again Geraghty consented, but stipulated that the lady produce another ten. She did this, placed it on the counter and picked up the twenty along with another ten. Mr. Geraghty then called a halt to the transaction, drawing the lady's attention to the fact that an extra ten adhered to her palm. She then left the store, got in a car and drove away while Geraghty laid information at the station.

Evidently the Wythe's were then wised up to the fact that the police were anxious to meet them, so they made haste to shake the cloying dust of the city from their tires. They were halted, however, on the Lindsay highway and invited to remain longer.

After Mr. Geraghty laid his evidence, Mr. Wythe, with some assumption of legal lore, subjected the plaintiff to a series of questions calculated to confuse but which served only to make the case clearer.

Throughout the course of the entire discussion, the child accompanying the pair played with cute little five and ten dollar bills and took full charge of the family coffers.

Mrs. Wythe was strikingly attired in furs, silks, diamonds and cosmetics.

According to a despetch received from Hamilton, the pair have frequented courts for some time, having been arrested for short changing at Oakville, for vagrancy at Hamilton and having spent one year in the reformatory for harboring drugs in and upon their persons.

At various times their destination was changed, as they mentioned points which they intended visiting.

Mr. Wythe said that they were on their way to Barrie, and considering the fact that they had started from Hamilton, it would appear that they had drifted considerably from their course. Lindsay and Orillia were also mentioned.

Wythe pleaded guilty of vagrancy and they were released on suspended sentence and warned against a repetition of the offence in this jurisdiction.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Day by day now The Examiner is recording catches of fish; big fish, little fish; fish by the dozen and fish all alone. And every report makes some man's hand itch for the feel of a rod. The warm sunshine—scarce as yet, but nevertheless felt—the leafing trees, the softness in the air, the lengthening days, and this urge to go fishing, all combine to bring on spring fever and the vagrant longings to be lazy. Already young fellows in offices and shops are planning their summer vacations—and, by the way, Rice Lake will be popular this year—and girls are trying out the swing of their tennis rackets. More mature beings of both sexes are pricing golf balls and swotting up Chester Horton's lessons. And some are wondering whether they can manage to take a vacation and still buy next winter's coal.

In the midst of all this it is the man who can find in his heart the strength to stick at his task who will finally rise to the heights his profession allows. Spring fever is a test.

And that is just what the merchants of Peterboro, outstandingly, are doing. In the face of the last week's chilly weather — that it is hoped daily will be wafted on a summer breeze into the limbo of lost things—they have carried on. They advertise their goods. They dress their stores. They are determined to make business.

Manufacturers and merchants have come through a trying time—but those in Peterborough have come through with their heads high, and are now in full expectation of better business. Spring fever has not touched them, so far as their work shows.

When you are inclined to be influenced by your good opinions of most men and not by your disgust of all men, more dogs will wag their tails when they meet you.

It is true, as Peterborough boasts, that there is no slum district in the city. But there are a great many houses which, if they were gathered together in one street, would give a very realistic representation of one. The credit for the boast must not be given to others than the citizens with vision who have had the temerity to pull down old hovels and build the homes that give Peterboro renown. These are the people who have sent Premier King, Lord Byng and scores of other prominent visitors away in the last few years declaring that Peterborough is a city of homes. A tour of the residential district showed them the beautiful homes, but there are also to be seen mere shacks sheltering families—shacks that appear ready to fall with a push, hovels with crooked doors and sagging roofs. Maybe there's a good reason for their existence, but they don't help neighboring property and they don't look fit for human habitation—in a city of homes.

The man across the street is a poor husband, but he makes maw better contented with pop.

FOOD COUNCIL FOR ENGLAND

Royal Commission Would Give It Power to Intervene in Food Trade.

PROTECT CONSUMER.

(By Lloyd Allen, United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 8—Establishment of a government food council to maintain continuous supervision over staple food trades and intervene in behalf of the consumer when prices tend to become unreasonable was recommended in the first report of the Royal Food Commission, issued today. Under the chairmanship of Sir Auckland Geddes, former ambassador to Washington, the Royal Commission has spent the entire winter investigating the domestic and international food situation.

"A housewife's watch dog," is in effect, what the commission's voluminous report of 200 pages proposes.

Its main point is that a food council should endeavor to prevent further undue advances in the price of foodstuffs and keep an eye on both dealers and importers.

The council would be composed of 12 members, including "one practical housewife with domestic experience," four business men, one laboring man and one woman representative of Labor, a salaried, permanent chairman and a small staff.

CANADIAN VIEWPOINT.

LONDON, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—The Royal Food Commission which for many weeks has been hearing evidence regarding food prices, to-day issued its report, one majority and two minority.

The chief feature of interest of the majority report from a Canadian point of view is probably the suggestion which it contains for co-operation with the Governments of the Dominions regarding inter-Empire commerce in food supplies.

It may be desirable, the report declares, to discuss with the Dominion Governments the possibility of encouraging a flow of food to the markets in Great Britain in the interests of both producer and consumer. Suggestion is also made that port authorities of the Old Country give careful consideration to their port charges on wheat with a view, if possible, to making reductions in the near future.

The principal recommendation from the British consumers' point of view is the establishment of a food council to maintain supervision over staple food trades.

The minority report submitted by Mr. Ryland maintains that the real issue is Socialism versus the competitive system, and asserts that the proposal to constitute a food council is a definite advance in the direction of State Socialism. Mr. Ryland declares that the majority proposals provide all the setting for the creation of another government department of first-class dimensions which would be certain to be a burden on the taxpayers and entail the risk of seriously increasing the cost of the people's food. He believes that any useful action could as efficiently and economically be carried out by the existing departments.

The other minority report, signed by Walter Smith, suggests that the Government take open responsibility for the supplies and prices of food, that figures showing the stocks of meat in cold storage be regularly published and that the imports of wheat and flour be centralized in the hands of a statutory import board and meat imports similarly centralized.

This country, he holds, should acquire meat refrigerating works in South America as recommended by previous committees and the milling industry should be formed into a statutory corporation, the mill owners possessing the debentures and the government a majority of the ordinary shares. The local authorities should have power to open municipal bread and meat shops and a food control should be established strongly representative of the working class customers.

In his view evidence of the growth of producers' pools and the power of international wheat firms and meat combines clearly established that an emergency already existed and that immediate measures were consequently necessary.

BE FRIENDLY WITH YOUR JOB SAYS MAN WHO HAS SUCCEEDED

Rules for Success Given by Master Locomotive Builder.

FIND YOUR PLACE

Individual Responsibility is First Essential to Success, He Says.

Success is just a matter of succeeding, says Samuel M. Vauclain, who may be assumed to know something about it after rising from roundhouse hand to master builder of locomotives. Getting the next thing well done and not bothering with tomorrow's problems is the first principle of his doctrine. He believes that a man's job should be his joy, and when it isn't that condition implies someting wrong with the job or the man—usually the man, because a balky job can be turned into joy by the metaphysics of optimism.

"Almost anybody can accomplish almost anything if only he has the will to do it," was the way Mr. Vauclain expressed the matter, striding the floor in his spacious office at Spring Garden and Broad Streets, Philadelphia. It is an old-fashioned office of liberal size without any atmosphere of haste. The man striding the floor almost might be termed old-fashioned, a big man, more than six feet, wearing a cutaway coat and a black bow tie of long ago. He commands 18,000 other men every day but has the look of a leader who directs by understanding, not by mere right of authority. He has a contemplative air and a philosopher's creed.

"The hard thing in life is not to make the money needed for happiness, but to find the job you can do best," continued Mr. Vauclain. "I suppose that some men never really hit upon their vocation. But, broadly speaking, the right job for every man is the thing that he must do next. I doubt whether many of us ever pick our jobs; we just happen upon them, or they happen upon us. Presently we get acquainted with each other and both decide that the other fellow will do pretty well. That is the way to know your job. Make it your friend. Invest it with a personality and give your job the chance that you would give your friend. Do not cheat or skimp it; be loyal and zealous and your job will reward you with every joy of friendship."

Mr. Vauclain rapidly sketched this page from his creed, speaking with the off-hand emphasis of conviction. As he spoke, the 18,000 men were engaged for several blocks around in the fashioning of locomotives to haul the world's wares. It did not seem that chance alone could have picked out the leader to direct these many hands. Mr. Vauclain found no other explanation. A psychologist might have ventured upon some discourse about environment, but the locomotive builder described his start in life by the simple word—chance.

The Roundhouse School.

"My father ran the Altoona roundhouse of the Pennsylvania Railroad," he said, "and I began railroading before I was out of skirts. The roundhouse was my nursery and kindergarten, too. I can remember now the fascination of seeing those big engines come rolling in, tired and dusty after a long trip, to be cleaned and furbished for the next run. They were just like men, I soon learned. When well treated, they responded in the same degree. But bad treatment meant bad engines, slow trains and disorganized schedules.

"The roundhouse was a mighty interesting place. Even the men in the ashpits had a share in the success of the road. That lesson was borne in upon me early. It was a sight worth seeing when an engine dumped all its glowing ashes into one of the pits, the live coals still affre, and the pit crew went to work cleaning out the firebox. By the time I reached the age of pants I must have known every engine in the division and the men who ran them. They were real, upstanding Americans, those men, each one bearing his responsibility with dignity and loyalty. A boy might learn a better lesson in ethics playing about the roundhouse almost any day than he would be likely to learn in school.

"But I went to school more than most boys of my day and wanted to attend college. Also I wanted to be a mechanic. The entrance age was 17. A year earlier I entered the roundhouse as a helper in order that no mischance might prevent my admission. That was duly granted and I served five years' apprenticeship. During the last year or two of this time I was a kind of under foreman, drawing the pay of apprentice. It was my intention to enter college after completing the apprentice term. But no sooner had I become a full-fledged workman than they made me a foreman. Should I leave the road for three or four years of study? It was a hard problem and I considered it until they moved me up another peg and my college course went glimmering."

With such a beginning, Mr. Vauclain studied mechanical drawing at night and in the course of things came down to the Baldwin Locomotive Works on an inspection job. He stayed there a year, supervising the building of engines. This was a new and bigger world to him, the roundhouse magnified many times. He worked among all these cranes, furnaces and great forces with the sureness of a man who had found his destiny. Here indeed was the theatre of his efforts, an industrial forge of Vulcan, where big hammers beat upon colossal masses of steel, where fires blazed, men sweated and achieved.

Married on $8.40 a Week.

Having been married at 23 on a wage of $8.40 a week, the increased opportunity in the Baldwin works made strong appeal to Mr. Vauclain, especially when a substantial pay envelope went with the offer to stay. He stayed and before he was 30 had complete charge of the whole mechanical operation in one of the nation's biggest plants. He belongs to the 6 o'clock school of success—his regular rising hour—and reaches his desk by 7. Sometimes he stays there until 10 at night. He never has taken a vacation and doesn't feel the need of one at 68. Hard work, he believes, is the sinew of achievement and a surety of health. Besides, it is happiness.

In this day of efficiency it should be worth while to set down some of Mr. Vauclain's philosophy about men and the way to get results. He does not believe in time clocks and the yardstick method of business.

"During the last twenty years of so-called efficiency, great discontent has resulted from mechanical devices and uncounted systems that reduce the workman to the level of machine tools," he said. "I am opposed to time clocks. It is not the duty of a workman to record his comings and goings. His foreman should see that he is there with reasonable promptness and attends to his job. But rigid supervision is unnecessary. The workman's own responsibility is his best guide.

"Above all things, the workman wants to be an individual, not an atom. Old age pensions, insurance policies, price lists for fingers and arms should be avoided. Men permanently injured are entitled to continued employment at their full value before injury. Industry must encourage its workers to save, particularly by the payment of adequate wages. Let us beware of paternal measures, rules and regulations that deprive a man of self-respect. The American workman is a splendid citizen and does not require any coddling or patronizing. He wants his due and nothing more.

"I have no sympathy with reflections upon what is sometimes termed foreign labor. Only the bravest of those abroad come to our doors. I have no trouble with them and others will not when they are properly treated. Let us educate them to appreciate the life of a free people. Give them affection along with discipline and they will become true, staunch Americans.

Rules Written by St. Paul.

"This plant is run under the same rules adopted by Mr. Baldwin ninety years ago, when the business was started. But those rules can be found in much older records. I refer to St. Paul's Second Epistle to the Thessalonians, third chapter, sixth to fifteenth verses, which embraces some excellent examples for those who would compile rules for labor."

Mr. Vauclain quotes St. Paul frequently and extensively.

Speaking of his early career, he said that even before his apprentice days he determined his life never should be shaped by influence or preference. For that reason he declined to join any such organization as a church, society or lodge. When authority came to him he avoided these affiliations to escape that same influence, directed in another way. But he knows his St. Paul thoroughly.

Listening to Mr. Vauclain expound the creed of success achieved merely by doing the next job right and always being ready to put forth a man's utmost effort, it is not hard to perceive that one of the happiest periods in his life began with the war. That is to say, the necessity for large and intensive production was a challenge which struck sparks from his imagination.

During the whole period of the war the Baldwin plants produced seven locomotives each twenty-four hours, a record unapproached by any other organization in the world. The Baldwin forces also put up a plant that turned out 15,000 shells and 6,000 rifles every working day of twenty-four hours. That plant produced about half of all the rifles that American troops carried overseas. And the Baldwin locomotives had a large part in the hauling the uncounted tons of supplies that contributed to victory. It is not difficult to imagine Mr. Vauclain in those stirring days, up at 6 and going until the far hours, calm, self-possessed, seemingly tireless, with the energy of a man who works at high pressure but understands the regulation of his resources.

All of these impressions, and many more, crowd upon the observer, listening to Mr. Vauclain in his steady pacing of the office floor. He has the air of a man who merely is confirming what everybody knows—or something which everybody surely should have learned. The way to success is through the next job, and the way is not hard. Never consider the job difficult or unsatisfying. Make it your friend and take communion with that friend on what is best for both.

Believes in the Individual.

There are just a few principles that Mr. Vauclain believes essential. First in importance is the matter of individual responsibility. He has a high opinion of the individual and condemns committees. Committees to him are inventions of the devil in the fullest sense. He tells a story of the engine built during the war which it took a Government committee 100 days to decide upon and the Baldwin force 20 days to produce. So much for committees. They are deadly things in his catalogue of what should be avoided by the man upward bound along the road to success. Self-reliance is the cornerstone of character and industry, he maintains, and says that the Baldwin plant would run just as well without him—perhaps better—because it has been built on that basis.

Not a nation in the world possessing railroads lacks a Baldwin engine. It is one of the biggest selling organizations ever put together. And Mr. Vauclain enjoys the reputation of its prize salesman. Maybe that is somewhat unfair to the other salesmen, because his experience includes matters that could not possibly be known to the most expert of selling forces. But, allowing for this advantage, the head of the Baldwin organization is the sort of man who sits down with a memorandum pad and computes the cost of a dozen locomotives while the committee waits. There is the story of one committee that asked for a prompt bid on a number of locomotives badly needed, and he replied that some little time was needed to deliver an answer. "How much?" asked the committee. "Thirty minutes," said Mr. Vauclain.

He has definite ideas about this matter of selling locomotives and the world's other products. "It is better to sell an engine or two instead of a dozen or a hundred," he said, "particularly to new buyers, because they soon will need other engines, and being convinced that yours are the right proudct will easily buy again. The big orders are not really hard to get. Delivery and price and engineering are the questions involved and you have but a few competitors. When it comes to an engine or two, real salesmanship may be needed.

"I believe in pleasing customers. That is one of our best maxims. But sometimes a customer may need instruction. There was the case of a road which had bought ten locomotives from us. After a time we received a letter from the operating Vice President in which he said that the engines were no good. Now, I knew that the engines were excellent within themselves. It was an occasion to reach for your hat and go to see that customer. Before calling on him I dopped in at the roundhouse and looked over the engines. Not one of them had been properly handled; all were in bad shape.

"A locomotive is something like a horse with us. We get to love the things. And seeing those engines so badly treated was enough to make any locomotive man mad clear through. So I went in to see the Vice President. He received me with a glance intended to freeze. But I survived it and said to him: 'Look here, if you treated a horse the way you have treated my engines the society to prevent fair to handle our engines like that and write us that they are no good. It is your organization that isn't any good, or maybe its you. I don't know.'

"Well, sir, you should have seen his face. If his glance had been freezing in the beginning it was burning now. He repeated that the engines were bad and the organization all right. As for himself, he left me to draw my own conclusions. But I told him to get his coat and come down to the roundhouse. He had to go, under the circumstances. And one look showed him that the engines had been mishandled.

Taught a Customer a Lesson.

"We went back to the office much better friends and I said to him: 'See here, you need some passenger engines to put your trains on schedule and stop the public talk about how late they run. Shall I send you down a few?' He was surprised again, denied that his trains were late any oftener than those on many another road, and so on. But I told him that he wasn't working for other roads and not doing his own justice if he had delayed schedules for the lack of a few locomotives. So we had as fine a row as you ever heard and parted good friends. He was really a first rate executive but must have grown careless; got into a rut. We have been friends ever since and his trains are run on time nowadays."

Mr. Vauclain did not disclose just how long a letter that executive wrote in complaining about the engines, but the length would have been an interesting matter, because one of the few Vauclain rules is directed against long letters. He said that about half of all the letters reaching his desk required more than a page to state their contents—wasting his time and the writer's. It was not hard to deduce that such letters often had scanty reading. Like Pliny the Younger, Mr. Vauclain might well deplore a long letter for lack of time to write a short one.

The young man of today, the young woman, business as a whole, stand at the dawn of the greatest, happiest epoch of history, said Mr. Vauclain. So many improvements have been made in every aspect of life that he is convinced existing ills will be remedied wherever they exist, opening the way to a new and better day.

"Look back for comfort when you observe difficulties rising in the future," he said. "Read and ponder the methods of great men in the past, consider the difficulties that we have overcome, and the future will always be bright. We may enjoy blessings only when we have known adversity."

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, May 7. — At the recent convocation held at Wycliffe College, Toronto, T. W. Alvin Gray, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth Gray, Millbrook, was one of the students graduating in theology.

Dr. Taylor presented the prizes for oratorical debating, Alvin being one of four to win a silver cup in the series of contests.

Principal O'Meara, in his address referred to the fact that Mr. Gray had won the heartiest approval of the faculty and of all his fellow-students, during his four years at Wycliffe, and to his very great surprise, the latter was presented with a handsome, solid leather club bag, M. Adaye, one of the students, reading the address, which was signed by the staff, the students, and some of the clergy.

Decidedly touched by this unexpected evidence of esteem and affection the recipient of the gift made a brief but suitable reply.

It came as a surprise to the company generally when Principal O'Meara, in referring to the fact that Alvin will be especially missed in his capacity of college doctor during the past three years announced that he has volunteered for service in Palestine as a medical missionary. The date when he will take up his duties in the Near East is still undecided.

One of the outstanding features of the Commencement exercises was an inspiring address from the Bishop of Mackenzie River district. Two pioneer missionaries to the Eskimo, Mr. Gedes and Mr. Atkinson, were also among the speakers. The majority of the graduates are going as missionaries either to the Yukon, Baffin's Land or some of the outposts of civilization.

Mr. Gray is taking his final examinations in medicine in June of this year.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR BAD STOMACH GIVES QUICK RELIEF

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet — Famous but Simple Old English Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition, Banishes After-Eating Distress.

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system by following unnecessary starvation diets.

Never hurry your meal or overeat of anything, but within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will Keep their stomach sweet, clean and active and free from the souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a small amount of pure Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless and inexpensive form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist for only a few cents, will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

TENNIS OFFICERS ELECTED FOR YEAR

Central Ontario Association Meets at Port Hope—Raise Fee.

The annual meeting of the Central Ontario Lawn Tennis Association was held Thursday evening at Port Hope with Frank Briden, president, in the chair.

Officers were elected for the coming season as follows:

President, Archibald Cochrane, Cobourg.

Sec.-Treasurer. H. A. Cranfield, Peterboro.

Executive Committee, Frank Briden, Port Hope, and a representative from Oshawa, not appointed.

It was decided to raise the entrance fee from $2 to $3 and to add a mixed double event to each match. This will make a total of even events per match—2 men's singles, 1 men's double, 1 ladies' doubles, 1 ladies' singles, 2 mixed doubles.

The schedule is to be drawn up by the secretary-treasurer.

A tournament will be held on Monday, May 25, at Port Hope, and each club will enter: 1 men's doubles team, 1 ladies doubles' team, 1 mixed doubles' team. The entrance fee will be $1 per entry.

The regular schedule will start on June 13.

After the meeting the representatives from the different clubs were entertained at the home of Miss M. Leslie Ward, secretary of the Port Hope Club. The Port Hope club is to be congratulated on its sportsmanship and friendly spirit shown to all visiting clubs.

Cobourg Club is adding one court this season, making three courts. Port Hope has three courts, Oshawa, four courts, and Peterborough, four courts.

"Let's go to California"

EVERY day some tired, prosperous or otherwise travel-inclined man says to his wife, "Let's go to California!" And such is the power of advertising that, although neither of them may ever have been there before, they know just how to go, approximately what it will cost, and where they will want to stay.

The same with anything you may need or want. You already know all about it, by whom it is made, what it costs, and where it is for sale. Advertising is the modern intelligencer. It keeps you informed, advises you of new things, suggests new uses for articles you already own, and prepares you to-day for wise and useful purchases to-morrow.

It does all this for you, almost unconsciously, during the half-hour or so you spend each day with your newspaper. Little by little—the best and surest way to learn—advertising makes you informed of what is going on in the world that is useful to you.

Read the advertisements. Get ready for to-morrow.

DELORME CASE SETTLED.

MONTREAL, May 8. — Suit instituted by the Rev. Adelard Delorme against La Sauvegarde Insurance Co., to obtain payment of $25,000, which he claimed under the policy insuring the life of his murdered half brother, Raoel Delorme, has been settled out of court according to a statement made by the counsel for the company.

Counsel for the company would not confirm the report that the priest had agreed to accept $7900 in settlemen of the claim.

STRIBLING WON.

Georgia Boxer Defeated Chilean in First Bout as a Heavyweight.

BOSTON, May 8 (Canadian Press)—William L. (Young) Stribling, of Atlanta, Georgia, last night won his first fight in heavyweight class when he was awarded a technical knockout in the fourth round, over Quintin Romero, Chilean heavyweight champion. Although Stribling weighed in at only 179 to Romro's 192¾ pounds, he sent the Chilean to the mat twice in the third round with blows to the face. It was Stribing's fight throughout.

Says Peterborough's Dog Catcher Can't Be Called "Humane Officer" As Has Been Suggested

The general manager of the Humane Society of Toronto, in a letter to a department of this city, takes exception to the appellation of 'humane officer' which was used in reference to the dog catcher to be appointed by the Council.

He writes: "I would respectfully draw your attention to the fact that the title 'humane officer' indicates an officer referred to as being connected to a humane society, which is far removed from the position of 'official dog catcher'."

UNITED STATES ARMS OUTPOST

Plan To Make Hawaiian Islands Strongest in the World.

SEEK INFORMATION.

WASHINGTON, May 8. — Chairman Butler of the House Naval Committee said to-day he would urge legislation at the next session of Congress to make the Hawaiian Islands the strongest military outpost in the world.

Members of the House Naval Committee, he said, would leave early in June for the islands, to obtain first hand information on what would be required to accomplish this purpose.

ADVANCE TREATMENT OF GASTRIC ULCERS

Important Findings Outlined to Convention by a London Doctor.

TORONTO, May 8. — (Canadian Press).—What is expected to be an important advance in the treatment of chronic gastric and duodenal ulcers of the stomach was told of by Dr. D. H. Arnott, of London, Ontario, before the Ontario Medical Association to-day. Dr. Arnott reported that for ten years he has been experimenting on the treatment of the stomach with success instead of the hitherto recognized cure by the surgical knife. Dr. Arnott's treatment, in short, is diet and six months' medical treatment which enables the stomach to heal itself.

"For one year, the patient is given two meals in a day, spaced five or six hours apart. Nothing but water is allowed between meals. Fatigue must be avoided where living conditions permit.

"Tea, coffee, spirits, tobacco, wine, beer, highly spiced sauces or foods, bran, salads, raw fruit or cooked fruit with seeds are forbidden, and this diet is to be followed one year. Fowl and fish are preferred to heavy meats."

A.Y.P.A. MEETING.

District Council Met in St. Luke's Parish Hall—Social Hour.

The regular District Council meeting of the A.Y.P.A. was held last evening in St. Luke's Parish Hall. Representatives from St. John's Church numbered about seventeen, from All Saints' Church, twelve, and from St. George's Church ten. There were also several motor loads of young people from Millbrook, Lakefield, Omemee and Perrytown.

The president, Mr. Robert Stone, of Millbrook, had charge of the meeting, at which routine business was discussed. A social hour followed, with service of light refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at Lakefield, in June.

CAT CROP THIRD IN U. S.-REPORT

Bulletin Prepared at Washington Described Feline Species at Horse Feed.

WASHINGTON, May 8 (Canadian Press) — The Department of Agriculture has prepared a printed bulletin saying:

"The cat crop ranks third in importance. Cats traditionally constitute the banner horsefeed of the world and three per cent is used for human consumption.

The cat crop is subject to several diseases, chief of which are loose and covered smuts, stem rust and crown rust."

Then follows a discourse on wild cats, tame cats, broken cats and wilted cats.

The trouble was that the linotype operator consistently hit the letter "C" instead of the letter "O" and had turned a treatise on oats into one on cats. The bulletin will not be distributed.

BONDS RECOVERED.

NEW YORK, May 8.— (Canadian Press.)— Bonds that formed part of the loot of Gerald Chapman, convicted murderer and mail bandit, were recovered to-day with the arrest of John J. Phalen, charged with grand larcency for failure to meet the interest payment on a loan of $8,500 obtained from the First National Bank of Lynbrook, Long Island, on some of the stolen collateral.

Phalen who is 37 years old, was arrested in a cafe early to-day.

Nashua county authorities said the numbers on some of the bonds deposited by Phalen corresponded with those on the bonds stolen in the sensational lower Broadway mail truck robbery in which Chapman and two pals were charged with having escaped with $2,400,000 worth of loot.

Only a few hundred thousand dollars' worth of the loot taken in the mail truck robbery ever were recovered, the police said.

Chapman is under sentence to hang in Connecticut state prison at Wetherfield on June 25, but he has appealed.

THEATRES

DO YOU WANT TO WIN ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN ONE MINUTE?

Sounds impossible, doesn't it? But it isn't. It's just one of those nice, pleasant things that happen every now and then, and that seem to drop from heaven.

Associated Arts Corporation (Goebel & Erb unit), producers of "On the Stroke of Three," a motion picture featuring Mary Carr, Madge Bellamy and Kenneth Harlan, in connection with Film Booking Offices, the distributors of the film, are offering cash prizes amounting to $3,000.00 for a better title for this production. Think of a good title, send it in to F.B.O. and win the prize!

In order to enter this contest, it is not necessary to see the picture, but if the synopsis of "On the Stroke of Three," is secured at the box office of the Regent Theatre, and read, the contestant is eligible.

If you don't win the first prize, $1,000.00 in cash, there are 150 other prizes. The second prize is $250.00 in cash; the third $100.00; the fourth $75.00; the next seven $50.00; then will come five prizes of $25.00 each; then five of $20.00; and seventy prizes of $10.00 each. The sixty next best will receive $5.00 each in cash. 151 opportunities to win a cash prize, whether the picture is seen or not.

The picture, "On the Stroke of Three," is now playing at the Regent Theatre. Of course, it will be much easier to suggest a title if you see the picture, but that is not necessary. A synopsis can be secured at the box-office. Perhaps you'll be the lucky one—who knows?

AT THE ROYAL

"CODE OF SEA," GRIPPING MELODRAMA WELL DONE

If it's action you are looking for, here it is—PLUS in the Paramount picture, "Code of the Sea" which opened at the Royal Theatre last night. Rod La Rocque and Jacqueline Logan are featured in the principal roles of the production, directed by Victor Fleming.

After "The Ten Commandments" and "The Dawn of a To-morrow" it's a pretty hard thing to find more popular combination than La Rocque and Miss Logan. Any picture either of this pair appear in is certain to be a sure-fire hit and judging from the reception accorded it at the Royal, "Code of the Sea" is more of a knockout than a hit.

There's not a moment during the running of the picture when you're not sitting on the edge of your seat—open-mouthed, wondering just when a big wave is coming down upon La Rocque in his small boat and send him hurtling into the sea or when you are not trying to decide just when this same player is going to 'snap out of it' and show these 'clever' seaman a thing or two. He's a coward, yes, just as his father was before him, but when the 'only girl in the world' tells him that she believes in him—that she knows he can and will overcome his cowardice — then things begin to happen.

If it's action you are looking for, here it is—PLUS!

FREE ICE CREAM AT ROYAL FOR KIDDIES SATURDAY MATINEE.

A large size cone of Ice Cream will be given free to every child attending the Saturday matinee to-morrow. This is not the only treat in store for the kiddies. Dinkey Doodle in "Cinderella" and Baby Peggy in "Jack and the Bean Stalk" and also "The Iron Man" are all in the same programme. The usual ten cent admission prevails.

BEST AMATEUR NIGHT YET AT THE ROYAL LAST NIGHT

From every standpoint the offering of amateur talent at the Royal last night was the best of the series.

Following is the order of presentation:

Mary Tobin and Isabel McBride in Irish Jigg; in Irish costumes the girls started the applause.

Grace Davis sang Honest and Truly and as an encore "I'll See You in My Dreams."

Lilly Groombridge and Olga Reynolds in "Pal of My Dreams" accompanied by Irene Foster on the piano. This number was rendered with real harmony and deserved the enthusiastic applause.

Ronco and O'Toole, mouth organ and step dancing, responded to an encore; while the applause hit of the evening was Jerry Collins and Ulleric Brioux with mouth organ and violin.

Last night's audience could not get enough of their offering.

Mr. Harris with Rebecca from Mecca and a burlesque recitation was a hit and brought this part of the program to a close.

AT THE CAPITOL

CORRINNE GRIFFITH BEHEADED—IN FILM

But the Producers Spare the Pretty Star Until the Last Scene.

Shrewd producers! They saved Corinne Griffith to the last. Then they beheaded her. On the last day and the last hour of work on her ltaest First National picture, "Declasse," coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday, they laid the beautiful star's head on a block and — swish! But by "swish" is meant "cut," and by "cut" is meant merely the technical cut, "fade out" before the blade had touched the milk-white neck of the screen heroine.

The scene occurs in a "retrospect," fading in while Miss Griffith as the heroine of "Declasse" looks upon an ancestral portrait and recalls what happened to one of the heroine's forebears who upheld the family motto, "Death before dishonor." Miss Griffith herself appears in this "retrospect" as the ancestral martyr.

Floyd Hughes, Clive Brook and Louise Fazenda head the big supporting cast in "Declasse." The picture was adapted from Ethel Barrymore's stage success of the same title and hinges on a scandal in London society.

"HE WHO GETS SLAPPED."

There was a gentleman who was asked on one occasion to review a certain book. He returned the volume with the comment, "Anyone who likes this type of literature will enjoy this book very much."

Anyone who likes the type of picture exemplified in "He Who Gets Slapped," will probably enjoy it very much. For one thing, it is distinctly out of the ordinary, and for another, the characterizations are superb. Lon Chaney, who made such a success of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," is the hero, the half-mad scientist whose ideals of life are smashed by a faithless wife and a false friend, and who hides his woes under the guise of a circus clown, making his fellow-creatures laugh while he suffers desperately.

That is the lesson of the feature: the moral that an aching heart has no place in the estimation of the world. Paul Beaumont, instead of choosing the easier way of moodiness and regret, takes on himself the suit of the laugh-maker of the circus. That he gets his laughs by way of slaps, that a thoughtless world looks on to applaud while the merry-maker suffers—and always laughs, at the same time, is the rather subtle moral of "He Who Gets Slapped." To bring the idea to a pleasanter conclusion might have been the mode of another producer, but the makers of this picture give the clown an opportunity, before he dies, of wreaking revenge on his enemy and saving the loves of two innocent people.

It is an odd production. Behind it are many phases of thought. Possibly an actor with less stagginess than Lon Chaney might have pointed the moral a little more plainly, but this hero of "The Hunchback" takes the stage at all times, to the exclusion of minor characters. In his efforts to laugh at all times behind the hideous white mask of the clown, he strains slightly for effects. The peculiar atmosphere of the whole production tends to minimize the point striven for; that a suffering heart may be masked behind the fool's garb, and the world look on and applaud while a fellow-creature dies in agony.

The cruelty of human intercourse colors the scenes. While the clown, discovering his victorious enemy in the audience, jibes and capers, while he tries to word his passionate anger, his fellow clowns buffet him, and the crowd laughs. While a lion slowly tears to pieces the two villains of the piece and the clown watches with his painted smile, the crowd laughs again, and they applaud with mirth his agonized pain in the arena, while a sword thrust drains his life blood. To the last, however, the clown laughs. It is his one stand against life and fate, this laugh of his, and it never forsakes him. Whether his mode of life was sensible or not, it was his, and Lon Chaney does some wonderful work in the role of the man who gets slapped—and continues to laugh.

The comedy that arouses plenty of amusement of a healthier sort is the Larry Semon uproar, in "The Dome Doctor," with the white-faced comedian at his best as a beauty doctor, whose efforts to beautify the populace lead to manifold and side-splitting complications.—Jeannette.

92, WEDS ON SIGHT

Nathan Levitt, 92, of Cleveland, may be getting a little grey-haired, but he's a fast worker when cupid beckons. He introduced himself to Mrs. Lillian Choras, 62, when she walked into a grocery store where he was buying food. One hour later they took out a license and within 12 hours they were married. "I know a good woman when I see one and she's it," said Levitt. It is his sixth matrimonial venture.

UNASSISTED TRIPLE PLAY WAS FEATURE OF PITTSBURG DEFEAT

Glenn Wright at Short Retired Cardinals But Pirates Lost Slugging Match.

GIANTS CUT LOOSE.

Swatted Phillies For 22 Hits—Braves Beat Brooklyn.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 7.—St. Louis came from behind today and, scoring six runs in the eight, defeated Pittsburgh, 10 to 9. The feature of the game was a triple play, unassisted, made by Glenn Wright, Pittsburgh shortstop, in the ninth inning. With Cooney and Hornsby on base, Bottomley hit a liner into Wright's hands. He touched second, retiring Cooney, who had started to third, and then touched out Hornsby, who had dashed for second. Score:

St. Louis	000301060	10	20 1
Pittsburgh	004230000	9	15 1

Boston, 7; Brooklyn 3.

BOSTON, May 7.—Johnny Cooney pitched the Boston Braves to a 7 to 3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today. In the fifth inning the Braves bunched four hits off Thormahlen and Hubell and with the aid of three errors, scored four runs. Score:

Brooklyn	002000100	3	9 3
Boston	01014100x	7	12 1

Hubbell, Osborne and Taylor; Cooney and O'Neil.

New Yorok, 11; Phillies 8.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The New York Giants went on a batting bee in the ninth and scored nine runs today, overcoming a six-run lead of the Phillies and winning the game, 11 to 8. Score.

INDIANS BACK IN TRIPLE TIE

SISLER GETS HIT.

CLEVELAND, May 7. — Cleveland batted two Chicago pitchers hard enough today to defeat Chicago 7 to 5, and climb back into a triple tie with Philadelphia and Washington for first place in the pennant race. Score:

Chicago	000002300	5	14 2
Cleveland	00403000x	7	10 3

St. Louis 6; Detroit, 5.

ST. LOUIS, May 7.—The St. Louis Browns gained an even break in their series with the Detroit Tigers by winning today in the final game, 6 to 5. George Sisler, Brown playing manager, hit safely in his twenty-second consecutive game of the season. Score:

Detroit	103000100	5	10 2
St. Louis	020110011	6	12 0

MATTY ILL

CHRISTY MATHEWSON

Christy Mathewson, famous pitcher of the Giants years ago and now president of the Boston National League club, is back at Saranac Lake, convalescing from a heavy cold he caught at the opening game of the season. It was at the same resort that Matty made a great uphill fight for health two years ago. Entire fandom is pulling for his early recovery.

KELLY'S HOMER CLEARED BASES

PITCHERS WILD.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 7.—Wildness of both Earnshaw and Jackson contributed to the defeat of Baltimore at the hands of Buffalo in the first game of their series, the score being 8 to 4. Proffitt pitched steadily and had sensational support. Boley hit a homer with one on, while Kelly slammed out a four-bagger with the bags all occupied. Score:

Baltimore	000210001	9	2
Buffalo	01200410x	8	9 0

Earnshaw, Jackson and Cobb; Proffitt and McAvoy.

Errors Help Skeeters.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 7.—Jersey City defeated Rochester here today in the first game of the series by 5 to 4. Errors behind Pitcher Horne, of the Tribe, caused his defeat. The score:

Jersey City	120010001	5	8 1
Rochester	000100030	4	10 4

Syracuse 6; Reading, 1.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., May 7.—Syracuse defeated Reading here today by a score of 6 to 1. Home runs by Griffith and Roettger of the locals feature. Boyd pitched a masterly game and was never in danger. The score:

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Since it is always observable at tournaments that the expert golfers play with the utmost ease, it is obvious that good golf should be devoid of great physical effort. This means, stand straight, stooping only so much as is required to make shaft and hands meet. Keep relaxed during the address. The club weighs only 13 ounces and certainly it is going to take any struggle on your part to get it up. Keep the muscles free and easy during the back swing. Lead the club back with the hands as you would draw back a whip to crack it. Let the club wind you up. Your muscles then will be full of the springiness that puts zip into the clubhead when it comes down to the ball.

IOWA ATHLETE OUTDOES 'RED' WRITES POEMS

IOWA CITY, Ia., April 8.—Lowell Otte, All-Western end from the University of Iowa has gone the famous "Red" Grange one better, it seems.

Whereas Crange toiled as an iceman last summer, Otte worked in the Omaha stock-yards during the winter. And while there jotted down his experiences as a "flogger."

Recently he completed a book of peoms based on his activities in the yards and is now having it published.

COLLINS AND HIS WHITE SOX SPRING SENSATION

The spring sensation of the American League is unquestionably Eddie Collins and his White Sox

The showing of the White Sox in the first few weeks of play has been as much of a surprise as that of the Detroit Tygers has been disappointing.

No one figured Chicago, a poor tailender last season, while Detroit was highly regarded by all the experts. Yet in the first 15 games played, Chicago won nine, while Detroit captured only three of its first 14 starts.

It is possible that the Chicago White Sox are playing over their heads, but I doubt it. And, while no one picks Collins and Co. to win the pennant, the club is going to prove troublesome.

Why should a club that finished last in 1924 show such a complete reversal of form in the spring of the following season?

Six letters—MORALE—tell the whole story.

The Chicago White Sox of this season are a happy family, every player giving his best efforts. They are out to win every ball game possible.

Have Respect for Leader.

The players have the highest regard for their manager, Eddie Collins. His remarkable record as a player commands respect. His methods as a manager meet with the hearty approval of his charges.

In other words, they are for their manager strong. That explains the changed morale of the club.

However it takes other assets aside from the proper morale to win ball games. Having umpired with the Sox during the first few weeks of play and carefully dissected their play, it is apparent to me that smart baseball has been the greatest contributing factor to the club's early success.

Here are some of the ways the White Sox have put over the necessary run or runs to win ball games:

Worked a double steal of second and third with one out putting the men in position to score on a long fly to the outfield.

The runner from third scored easily and the runner on second seeing the throw was wide continued on to the plate and made it on a close play.

Those two runs were just enough to win by a one-run margin.

On three other occasions a steal of second had placed the runner in position to score the winning run on a base hit and the batsman delivered in each instance.

Smartness Is Winning Games.

In two games baserunners have tried to score from second on long flies to the outfield. Ty Cobb was one of the last players to pull such a stunt and he hasn't performed it for years. The play failed but only by a scant margin each time.

In another game with runners on first and second and no one out, everyone expecting a bunt, Pitcher Robertson pushed the ball past the third baseman, proving the turning point in the game.

As an illustration of the improved morale, Johnny Mostil, who stole about seven bases last season, pilfered that many in a week this year.

Chicago is winning because it is playing smart baseball under a smart manager. It is going to be an interesting ball club, no matter where it finishes.

PETES TO OPEN WITH COBOURG

If the weather conditions are favourable, tomorrow will see the ushering in of what promises to be a most successful local baseball season, the 1925 start being marked by a game between the Cobourg Durham and Ontario League team and the Peterborough Central Ontario Leaguers, the latter starting with a lot of new talent and under a new manager, the well known "Shiner" Johnston.

The game will be staged at River —beg pardon— James Stevenson Park and "Play ball" will be sounded in the silvery tenor of Umpire Alex. Kay at 3 o'clock sharp.

For the first time in a number of seasons all the available talent in Peterborough is at the service of the Central Ontario League club. A satisfactory arrangement has been made for the use of James Stevenson Park and the outlook for the season is such as to give the local management reason to be optimistic.

Just now the Petes with a home brew line up look to be considerably stronger than last year. The outfield has been strengthened by the return of Herb. Wolfe, who led the Central League in hitting in 1923 and who was with the C.G.E. last year. In addition, Ashe, formerly of the Lakeviews, who hit and fielded splendidly in the junior ranks last year is with the squad so that the gardens will be well taken care of in every department.

With Ray Ros back at second base the Petes have added a fast fielding and hard hitting middle sacker. Young Marchen looks to have the call at short stop and defensively promises to be of big assistance, while first base will be taken care of by Hap Harrison. There is a fight for the red light corner, for which Scotty McPherson, last year's C.G.E. third baseman, will make a big bid.

With Heckman and Whitehouse doing the heaving and Swanston, Gartner and Ross available for the backstopping, the Petes are miles ahead of other years in the battery positions.

Whitehouse, leading pitcher for two years among the Ontario juniors, is ripe for the faster company, despite the fact that he is still eligible for the junior series. He has everything that goes to make up a winning box artist, his control being remarkable in view of the fact that he throws from the fork side. He will be in action to-morrow against the Cobourg invaders.

Cobourg will be at full strength for tomorrow's tilt and will bring along a team of seasoned players who will give the Petes the very best kind of a workout.

The Central League opening is less than two weeks away and Saturday's game should be of great benefit to Manager Johnston's crew.

The parks committee is giving the club the grounds tomorrow free of charge and a good crowd will give the Petes a fine start financially. It is needed too because the schedule calls for the locals to play three out of their first four games away from home.

Mr. Ringling's new imported India-rubber man ought to be good on the track, especially in those stretch finishes you read about.

TWO SOCCER GAMES ON SATURDAY

Thistle vs. Quakers at K. E. Park and Juniors at the Oval.

The soccer fixture in the senior league for tomorrow afternoon is Thistle versus Quaker Oats on King Edward Park. Kick off at 3 o'clock. Referee, William Rickard.

Since the season opened, the Quaker Oats have unfortunately met with two defeats although the brand of soccer played was up-to-the-standard of tactics. There is one advantage that the porridge boys have over their opponents—Thistle—that they have an abundance of players to pick from. While the Jags have just got the necessary eleven to do duty for them.

League Standing.

	W.	L.	D.	P.
Can. Woollens	2	0	0	4
Quakers	0	2	0	0

Two points for a win. One for a draw.

Juniors Open League.

In the junior series, the C.P.C. will meet the old reliables—DeLaval—in the opening fixture at Nicholls Oval on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It is two years ago since the De Laval had any team, but they anticipate a good season and with some luck may obtain some of the silverware which the C.P.C. have held the last two seasons.

The Thistle executive have selected the following players for Saturday's game: Brown, goal; Anderson and Wade, full backs; Carmichael, Wade and Doherty, halfbacks; Lauchlin, Hutton, Richmond, Williams and Wilson, forwards. All other players reserves.

Canadian Woollens Juvenile team vs. De Laval on Saturday: T. Walsh goal; C. Rose and J. Johnston, backs; R. Dundas, A. Pammett and T. Markham, half-backs; Dallin, Walton, Dorrington, Mitchell and Sturgeon, forwards. Reserves: Kellar, H. Walsh and Page.

VANCE, DODGERS' ACE, MAKES GOOD START

Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's great pitcher, got away to a good start in the 1925 major league chase. He not only won his first game, but set down eight of the Phillies on strikes. From present indications he should have a splendid season.

Terrible As He Is, Mr. Mike M'Tigue Ought to Avoid Knockout Punch by 'Paul the Paralyzer'

By JOE WILLIAMS.

NEW YORK, May 8.—Well, now that they are matched, what will Paralyzing Paul Berlenbach do against Mike McTigue, the world's worst fighter?

At first blush (and you are entitled to a blush when you mention Mr. McTigue) you would conclude that Paul the Paralyzer is in for something exceedingly soft. And maybe he is.

Certainly he has little to fear from the brittle hands of the light heavyweight champion of the world, as Mr. McTigue is still humorously labeled. Mr. McTigue cannot hit hard enough to disturb the lather on an unbarbered chin. Whereas Berlenbach the Bruiser hits hard enough to drop an iron hitching post with a punch.

His prospects of winning on points are not discouraging, and a win on points, with the title at stake, is sufficient to bring him the championship. But winning on points from a bird like McTigue hardly rates as a gaudy achievement.

Can Berlenbach stop him?

Well, Mickey Walker couldn't, and Mickey, though smaller, is a better fighter than Berlenbach ever will be.

McTigue Is No Dumb-bell.

It wasn't Walker's fault that he didn't stop McTigue. Surely he tried hard enough. But McTigue was too cagey for the "White Walcott."

There is one ring quality in which McTigue is skilled to a high degree, and that is defensive ring generalship.

All his career McTigue has been a defensive fighter. If he doesn't want you to hit him you aren't going to hit him—and careful Mike never wants you even to come close to hitting him. Where most fighters concentrated on offensive tactics McTigue set out to be a defensive star.

Of course, sooner or later somebody is going to nail McTigue, careful as he is. It may be Berlenbach. We don't think so. There is little finesse about Berlenbach. He is just what you'd suppose a reformed wrestler would be. There is no diversity to his attack. With him it is slug, slug, slug.

Berlenbach May Wear Him Down. McTigue, particularly in his legs. (Mike was pretty leg-weary in the closing rounds against Walker.)

Reduced to a state of physical fatigue where his legs no longer respond to the urging of his alert mind, Mike the Myth would be an easy target, an open target, for one of Berlenbach's crushers.

And that's what Berlenbach demands to score a knockout against anybody—an open target. He isn't smart enough to manoeuvre himself into a position to score one against an agile thinker, and McTigue (whatever indictment you care to place against his fair Celtic name) is all of that.

We saw him against Augie Ratner a year ago. Ratner is another McTigue for craftiness and offensive capabilities. And he was further gone than is McTigue, even now. Still the Paralyzer could do nothing with him. Not once did he land a solid blow against the fading Ratner, and not once, naturally, did he score a knockdown.

Berlenbach's chief hope for a knockout against the champion (to get comical again!) lies in his youth and stamina. From the start he will wage a relentlessly aggressive campaign. In the end this may tell on

After a game in which Collins was forced to make four pitching shifts to win a game in which his club scored 11 runs, he remarked to me:

"Now I can unerstand what managers meant, when after a tough game they remarked, that battle just took a year of my life.

"While I have always realized the great importance of pitching, yet it is never quite so apparent to the mere player as manager.

"In a ticklish situation you are confronted with many conflicting doubts. In an effort not to burn up your pitching staff you want to gamble as long as you can with a wavering pitcher.

"And regardless of what you decide to do the second guess, in a great many instances, makes your judgment look faulty.

"It is already evident to me that my job of handling pitchers is perhaps more important to the success of the Sox than my second base play."

* * *

The Chicago White Sox finished last in the American League in 1924. It isn't going to land there this season if Collins gets any kind of pitching.

* * *

It would occasion no great surprise if Bib Falk's brother, "Spot," followed in the footsteps of the brilliant White Sox outfielder.

Bib came to the Chicago club as a pitcher. He early showed that he could hit the pill and was very fast. He was made into an outfielder and is now one of the best in the American League.

Bib's brother is a member of the St. Louis Browns. This is his first year in the majors. He is taller than his older brother, but built along the same lines and has a similar style in the field and at the bat.

* * *

The younger Falk comes to the majors as a pitcher. Like Bib, he can hit the ball. So it is not unlikely that he will some day be gracing the outfield of the Browns. Hitters are always in demand as regulars.

SECOND MOTORIST DIED OF POISONING

Succumbed While Funeral of Companion Was Being Held.

OTTAWA, May 8. — As the funeral of Sydney Morgan, of this city, the victim of monoxide gas poisoning was being held here yesterday afternoon, Thorpe Brown, aged 28 of Kazabazua, Que., one of his companions, died in a local hospital.

Gilman Brown, a brother, who was the third victim, is expected to survive.

The three men were overcome by gas on Saturday afternoon while driving in the Gatineau Hills, due to gas leaking from the exhaust heater into the car. They managed to get out of the car and fell unconscious in the road.

DISAPPROVE REVISION.

Civil Service Employees to Take Action in a Body.

OTTAWA, May 8 (Canadian Press.)—Disappointment at the new Civil Service salary schedules is expressed by officials of the organizations representing the Civil Service employees, on the ground of discrimination and violation, it is claimed, of the principle of equal pay for equal work.

J. H. Ryan, president of the Civil Service Association of Ottawa, said a meeting had been called for Monday night of the general council of the association, when action would be taken regarding the new schedule.

MICHIGAN HAS STAR ATHLETE IN DOYLE

Michigan has a great two-sport star in Dick Doyle, a junior. Doyle plays a nifty game at center in basketball and shines in the weight events on the track team. He is one of the best "double athletes since the days of Harry Kipke.

FORECASTS APPOINTMENT

Report Says A. L. McPherson, of Brantford, Will Be Prison Inspector.

TORONTO, May 8 (Canadian Press).—A Toronto newspaper today forecasts the appointment of A. L. McPherson, of Brantford, to the position of inspector of prisons and charities for Ontario, in succession to W. W. Dunlop, who with his assistant, Fred C. Williams, is now awaiting trial on charges of theft of public monies. Mr. McPherson was some months ago appointed to thme provincial secretary's department.

BIG PROGRAMME.

Liberal Party Caucus Decides Legislation to Be Brought Down.

OTTAWA, May 8 (Canadian Press).—The legislative programme of the Government was discussed at a caucus of the Liberal party today. It was intimated afterwards that legislation in respect to relief for Home Bank depositors, alternative vote, grain act, rural credits, freight rates, anti smuggling and possibly the Australian treaty would be brought down in the House this session.

BEER REGULATIONS.

Finishing Touches Being Put To Plans—Few Grocers Apply.

TORONTO, May 8. — The finishing touches to the 4.4 beer regulations prior to ratification by the Cabinet this afternoon, were made by Hon. W. F. Nickle, the Attorney-General all this morning.

It is reported that the license fee has been fixed at $10.

In the last few days there has been a marked increase in the number of applications for permits to sell but it is understood that very few of them are grocers.

ROWING INTEREST RUNS HIGH AT YALE.

Rowing interest is booming at Yale. More students are out for the sport in the school's history, the sport this season than ever before in the school's history. The great success the Blue had on the water last year is no doubt responsible for the unusual display of enthusiasm. It takes a winner to bring them out.

POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS SCHEDULED FOR JUNE

The intercollegiate eastern polo championship will be decided in June, according to latest reports. Last year it was run off in May but due to inclement weather, several postponements were made. This season the association hopes to avoid such delays by staging the event later, when better playing conditions are more certain.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

There are a lot of clean ball players yet we never saw one that would not give an umpire a dirty look.

..The ovis poli is said to be the Asiatic goat And it may even be related in some way to Jimmy O'Connell, the goat of the Giant's scandal.

It must be true that Rogers Hornsby is a "different" sort of ball player....He was hit in the head by a pitched ball and it actually hurt him.

One of the National League club owners has been arrested for possessing real beer It would be impossible to arrest some of the owners for possessing real players.

IF IT IS TRUE THAT NURMI HAS BEEN GETTING $1000 FOR HIS RACES, THEN HE IS A BETTER AMATEUR THAN OUR AMERICANS IN MORE WAYS THAN ONE.

Lefty Groves of the Athletics got off to a bad start, losing three straight games, if you call that a bad start for Philadelphia player.

It is one of the curiosities of the game that a pitcher is never in hot water when he has plenty of steam.

The new bantamwenght champion, Mr. Rosenberg, promises to be the choice ham of them all The others would at least weigh in.

WE HAVE NEVER LEARNED TO PRONOUNCE PAAVO NURMI'S FIRST NAME . . . BUT WE ARE BEGINNING TO SUSPECT IT IS PRONOUNCED AS IF SPELLED PAYMORE.

They say Babe Ruth still looks sick .....But it was the doctors not the pitchers who made him look sick.

Mascart, the French fighter, was beaten by a second rater in his first bout in the United States——Ashcart is what they'll call him from now on.

Pastramaghief is the name of a military leader in the Sofia disturbance, not of a Pullman car, as you might suspect.

Bare legs are the newest fashion fad in Hollywood and Mr. O'Goofty touring there, writes he can barely stand them.

The three leading hitters in the American League at the start were Hale, Wingo and Cochrane ..... Shades of Speaker, Cobb and Ruth!

"You can't keep a good man down," murmured the elevator boy as he turned on the juice and answered a buzz on the nineteenth floor.

It is said that Ralph De Palma is the most remarkable auto racer in the game ....Any auto racer who lasts as long as De Palma can't miss being remarkable.

Reporters who observed the spectacle insist that Mr. Coolidge showed just as much stuff in throwing out the first ball this spring as he did last fall at the world series ....In other words, the old kid ain't gone back any.

By his comeback Sande proves he is still the greatest rider in the world, barring John McGraw of the Giants, of course.

Paddock and Murchison are going around the world, but you'd hardly call fast guys ike them globe trotters.

Billy Evans Says

UNCERTAINTY.

Baseball thrives on uncertainty. That one angle of the game is perhaps the greatest asset in its bid for popularity.

It is doubtful if any opening day series in the majors ever better illustrated the uncertainty of the national pastime than that staged between Cleveland and St. Louis at the latter city.

Two perfectly conditioned ball clubs staged a real burlesque. The score was 21 to 14, a regular gridiron total with each team kicking all the goals after touchdowns.

Cleveland got away to a six-run lead in three innings. The Browns evened the count at nine at the close of the fifth and then proceeded to take a four-run margin in the sixth.

It seemed that after a bad start for the home clubs the breaks had shifted to them.

Then to climax one of the wildest opening day games ever perpetrated, Cleveland made an even dozen runs in the eighth inning.

* * *

The Browns made 10 errors in the wild west affair, four of them being charged to the greatest of all first basemen, George Sisler. Four errors is usually George's quota for the season.

* * *

THE ACID TEST.

It was a tough break all around for Sisler because fandom has a habit of blaming the failure of the individual player on the manager.

It so happened that Sisler started Joe Bush on the rubber. Joe had figured in the winter trade for Shocker, former ace of the Browns staff. The fans were out there to give Bush the critical once over.

After the game Bush remarked to me that never in all his life did he have less stuff. After Cleveland had made seven runs in less than three innings, Joe took himself out.

Another player who was getting the acid test from fandom, was Outfielder Bennett, subbing for Bill Jacobson, holdout. Bennett had the unfortunate experience of making three errors.

Manager Sisler took the inauspicious opening philosophically. "The opposition circled my end at will," was Sisler's only comment on the football score of 21-14. "It's a good thing to rid the system of the bad baseball early."

* * *

Then to prove the uncertainty of the game and the wisdom of Sisler's remark, the next two games staged by the same clubs were mid-season exhibitions of superlative baseball, only four runs being scored in both contests.

* * *

FORM REVERSAL.

While the Browns lost both games, 2 to 1 and 1 to 0, Vangilder and Gaston pitched the kind of baseball that will win nine times out of ten.

In the opening game each team made as many base hits as both teams did in the two final games. From burlesque play the Indians and Browns went to real drama.

It is impossible to explain how two big league ball clubs can look so badly one day and the next time out perform faultlessly in every department of play.

"Just one of those bad days," is the way ball players explain a general slump by the entire team. No logical explanation is ever offered.

It would be incomplete not to finish this story with a retort courteously made by Outfielder Bennett, who subbed for Jacobson, the holdout, and made three errors.

Business Manager Bill Friel of the Browns, meeting Bennett after the game and, desiring to be real friendly, said: "How's everything, Benny?"

* * *

"Everything's all Jake," he answered as he went on his way.

American League pitchers tell you that the low ball is the present weakness of George Sisler at the bat.

They emphasize the fact that the curve, broken inside and at the knee, is the pitcher's greatest weapon to curtail Sisler's batting prowess.

George Sisler is being fed a diet of low-ball pitching, inside and outside. Despite this, he is hitting the ball consistently and seems to have much more power to his drive than last season.

In a recent game, after Sisler had twice hit safely in successive times at bat, connecting with the low curve on the inside, I remarked:

"The pitchers seem to think you don't like the low ball, George."

"They have another guess coming," he replied. "You know as well as I do that the low ball is troublesome to any player. It is a hard ball to hit squarely.

"However, if the pitchers continue to pitch low to me all year I am positive I will bat well over .300.

"You know it is much easier to hit when you know just what to expect. When I step into the box I am reasonably sure the pitcher is going to pitch low, unless he loses control."

* * *

If Sisler continues to hit the low ball as he has during the first few weeks of play, American League pitchers will be forced to revamp their system.

If Strikers' Pickets Interfere With Maintenance Men in Mines.

PROTECT PROPERTY.

SYDNEY, N.S., May 8 (Canadian Press).—What is being generally interpreted here as a hint to the executive of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, that the Government is prepared to send military or provincial police into the Cape Breton coal fields as guards for the maintenance men at the various collieries, should picketing operations now being carried on by the various local unions in the southern area jeopardize public property, is contained in a telegram from Premier E. H. Armstrong, received yesterday afternoon by district president J. W. McLeod. Coming directly on the heels of trouble at the reserve yesterday morning, when P. E. Ogilvie of Glace Bay, chief employment clerk of the Dominion Coal Company, was struck on the head with a piece of stone.

The Referee

Who is considered the best all-round athlete in American universities and colleges today?—F. T. F.

That's rather a broad question, though Emerson Norton of Georgetown probably ranks with the greatest.

How long has 'Whitey' Witt been in the majors and with what clubs has he played?—F. R. E.

Since 1916 and has played with the Athletics and Yankees.

With what clubs has Dutch Reuther played?—G. T. R.

Chicago, Cincinnati and Brooklyn in the National League and this season will find him with Washington in the American.

Rommed won 27 tilts that season.

When was the Kentucky Derby race first run?—T. F. H.

OBITUARY

LUCY ELIZA EGO

The death occurred today at the family residence, 93 Gladstone Avenue, of Lucy Eliza Ego in her thirty-third year.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing father and mother, and one brother, Gordon of Brooklyn, Ontario.

The funeal will be held from the family residence on Saturday, May 9, at 3.30 p.m., with the Rev. M. C. Mackinnon officiating.

JOHN J. LYNCH.

Announcement of a death that shocked the community this morning was that of the sudden passing away last night of John Joseph Lynch, of 452 Elm street.

The late Mr. Lynch, who was in apparently excellent health yesterday, was spending the evening with his wife and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. McFadden, 555 Weller street, when he was seized with a sudden attack of heart trouble, shortly after eleven o'clock, and passed away within half an hour.

A circumstance in connection with the death of Mr. Lynch is the fact that he was engaged at the time of its occurrence in the carrying on of one of the most effective, as it is also one of the most quiet and least known, of community and charitable services in the city. During the war years, the West End Knitting Club was formed, among a small group of the senior members of St. Peter's Cathedral parish, the women knitting socks and other woollen articles for the soldiers, the men supplying the yarn. After the war, the same work has been carried on unceasingly by the men and women interested, the articles being given to needy families. Mr. Lynch was one of the most energetic members of this club, whose meetings took the form of social gatherings at the homes of different members. It was at one of these meetings that he passed away last night.

The deceased was also a valued member of the Separate School Baord, to which he had given long and untiring service in the capacity of truant officer and Life Member, a member of the Local Council of the Knights of Columbus and the Catholic Order of Foresters. He was in his sixty-fourth year, and was a life-long resident of this city of his birth, carrying on a grocery business on Park street for over thirty-five years.

Besides his sorrowing wife, he is survived by one daughter, Agnes, at home, two sons, Reuben J., of Rochester, N.Y., and Frank, of Peterborough, two sisters, Mrs. W. E. Baker of Lindsay, and Miss Margaret of Peterborough, and two brothers, James J. and George, also of Peterborough. Another brother, Edward, died about ten years ago. The late Mr. Lynch was the son of the late well-known John Joseph Lynch and Mrs. Bridget Lynch, among the old residents of the city.

The funeral will take place on Sunday, at 2.30 p.m., from the late residence, 452 Elm street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

T. A. TULLY

The funeral of T. A. Tulley, Millbrook, who died Thursday morning, will be held Saturday afternoon at 2.00 o'clock from the family residence to Millbrook cemetery.

'CAVE MEN' RULE AMONG ESKIMOS SAYS EXPLORER

Majority of Males Are Murderers—Kill Husbands to Get Wives.

NEED EDUCATION.

MONTREAL, May 9.—It cost the Canadian Government between $50,000 and $75,000 to execute two Eskimos at Herschell Island about a year ago, said Dr. Knut Rasmussen, world-famed Danish explorer, in an interview here Friday, and it was figured that medical missionaries at around $1,000 a year would do much better work among these primitive people than hanging them for infraction of laws of whose moral import they were totally ignorant.

Dr. Rasmussden was here from Ottawa where his advice had been sought by the federal government in regard to projects for the education and elevation of the living standards of the Canadian eskimos.

Many interesting features of Dr. Rasmussen's twenty years of investigation among the inhabitants of the far north were revealed by the distinguished explorer. He spoke of traces he had discovered of the ill-fated expedition of Sir John Franklin which was lost in Victoria Straits in 1843, and of conversing with natives whose forebears had told them of the destruction of the Franklin party. He himself had seen skeletons and parts of clothing that had belonged to Franklin's men.

Sagas of the Arctic.

Eskimo folk-lore had been collected by Dr. Rasmussen to the extent of 2,000 different legends and songs, and in regard to these the explorer said that the natives of the interior of the Canadian northland had the same sagas and the same speech as the Eskimos of Greenland and all over the fringe of the Arctic Circle. An interesting point stressed by Dr. Rasmussen in this connection was that none of the legends or poetry dealt with the sea, indicating, he believed, that the Eskimos were originally an inland people.

Dr. Rasmussen painted a depressing picture of the social life of these people and their summary manner of disposing of surplus population. Their practice is to kill female children, he repeated, but this works adversely on the social system of the Eskimo, for it tends to a surplus of men in the community, hence when the male Eskimo of marriageable age desires to espouse himself, his chief part in the ceremony is to murder the husband of the woman he wants to marry. In one community he visited, he had estimated that 65 per cent. of the males were murderers.

To Teach Them Law.

The federal government desires to do something for these people, and to this end the project of importing herds of reindeer from Alaska has been mooted. It is also intended to maintain trading posts throughout the country, and to have mounted police station established at frequented places so that law may gradually be taught the Eskimo. At present, the great northern plains still produce great herds of caribou, which are hunted by the Eskimo in addition to fishing and seal-hunting.

Dr. Rasmussen thinks that the Eskimo population is decreasing.

STEERAGE USED FOR CATTLE ON RETURN VOYAGE

OTTAWA ENQUIRY.

OTTAWA, May 9 (Canadian Press).—Low ocean rates and insufficient business have resulted in the Donaldson Steamship Line laying up one of their passenger steamers, ordinarily engaged in the United Kingdom-Canadian service, at the very outset of the present season. This was the information given to the special parliamentary committee on ocean rates yesterday by David Hosie, a director of the firm of Donaldson Bros., Ltd., Glasgow, who was called to the witness stand by G. H. Montgomery, K.C., counsel for steamship companies. Mr. Hosie stated that he could not recall a passenger boat having been laid up by his company at the outset of the season heretofore, although this had happened at midsummer of last year.

"Have the years 1923 and 1924 been profitable ones?" asked Mr. Montgomery.

"No, they have not," was the reply of the witness.

"Are you taking off this boat because the rates are too low, or because business is insufficient," asked William Duff, of Lunenburg, a member of the committee.

"Both, I would say," replied Mr. Hosie.

Steerage Both Ways.

The witness caused some amusement in the committee when, during the course of a statement on the cattle trade, he informed the members that from the year 1900 to 1912 it had been the practice for the steamship lines to carry cattle on the eastbound voyage, and third-class passengers in the same space on the westebound trip. Fittings which were put in for the trip on which cattle were carried, were removed when the accommodation was required for third class passengers. Conditions had changed since 1912, however, and third class passengers no longer consented to occupy the space which had previously been used for cattle.

Questions put to Mr. Hosie by Mr. Montgomery in regard to whether or not the steamship business had been profitable, drew strnuous protests from H. J. Symington, K.C., government counsel. Mr. Symington pointed out that, while witnesses for the steamship companies answered such questions by saying the trade was unprofitable, they refused to give figures in the open committee which would substantiate their statements. If they were to be permitted to say that the business was unprofitable, and have this statement "broadcast" all over the country, counsel should be allowed to question them in order to prove the accuracy of their statement, and have the result of his examination also made public.

General Charges Made.

Mr. Montgomery retorted that very general charges had been levelled against the steamship companies, and he thought they should be permitted to deny them through their witnesses.

Chairman Macmaster said he appreciated the difficulties of counsel. It is possible that some of the future sittings of the committee may be held in camera so as to go into the details of voyage accounts, etc., without the private business of the companies being given to the public.

One of the general statements to which Mr. Symington took exception, was when Mr. Hosie stated, in answer to Mr. Montgomery, that his company had made a loss on trans-Atlantic business at the end of 1923, and but a small profit at the end of 1924. Mr. Symington declared that the auditor was not yet in possession of the voyage accounts of the Donaldson Steamship Lines.

The committee concluded examination of J. P. Doherty, traffic manager of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. Mr. Doherty told the committee that he would not want to put to more merchant marine ship in the trans-Atlantic trade. This trade had not proven sufficiently profitable.

Cattle Buyers' Fund For Protection of Farmers

OTTAWA, May 9 Cannadian Press).—An amendment to the livestock and livestocks products act, to protect the farmer from livestock buyers issuing worthless cheques, was introduced in the House of Commons Friday afternoon by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, given second reading, and sent to the parliamentary committee on agriculture.

The minister explained that the department had endeavored to meet the situation two years ago by creating a trust account for this purpose. It was found that this could not be done, under the laws affecting the administration of trust accounts. The proposed amendment created a "shipper's livestock commission account," in which the buyer was required to deposit funds before making purchases from the farmer.

HOUSE ALLOWED DREDGING VOTE AFTER DISPUTE

Increase of $700,000 For Work on St. Lawrence River Ship Canal.

MUCH OPPOSITION.

Minister Justifies Expenditure to Deepen Channel to Depth of 33 Feet.

OTTAWA, May 9 (Canadian Press).—A vote for $1,663,000 covering the cost of maintenance and operating a dredging fleet, on the St. Lawrence River ship channel, occupied the attention of the House Friday afternoon.

After opposition to the increase of several hundred thousand dollars in the amount of the estimate had been expressed by Conservative and Progressive members, the item was allowed to stand.

In reply to questions from L. J. Ladner (Conservative, Vancouver, South) and E. J. Garland (Progressive, Bow River), Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, declared that this year's estimate, although $700,000 in excess of the vote last year, was justified "in the national interest." Serious complaints had been received by the Department in respect to the condition in the channel; and if a vessel leaving Montreal, for instance, became stranded as a result, great responsibility would devolve upon the department. It was proposed to deepen the channel to a depth of 35 feet, stated Mr. Cardin and, in his opinion, the expediture was fully justified. If the channel were not put into proper condition, there was great danger, and also a reason for insurance companies to charge high rates.

Stubborn Opposition.

Stubborn opposition from both Conservative and Progressive benches developed to the increase in the vote. The chief Progressive spokesmen were Robert Forke, the leader, and J. L. Brown, of Lisgar. They could not see why so much money should be spent at this time when it appeared very dubious if the rest of the St. Lawrence ship channel would be deep enough to make the through journey navigable at all times. Several Quebec members spoke in support of the vote, explaining that it was only during limited hours of the day that there would be a danger of the channel below Quebec not being deep enough for the passage of the bigger liners.

Discussion in committee went on, the minister answering innumerable questions from all over the Opposition benches about technicalities bearing on the vote.

Inconsistent, Says Drayton.

Sir Henry Drayton considered it was illogical on one hand for the government to contemplate proceeding with a scheme to deepen and widen the channel, so as to permit vessels of a very large type to proceed to Montreal, and at the same time subsidize vessels of a type which could proceed along the St. Lawrence without the necessity for the proposed dredging operations.

"I wonder if my honorable friend, who is a member of the shipping committee ,is passing judgment?" asked Hon. E. M. MacDonald, Minister of National Defence.

"I am not giving judgment, I am asking questions," retorted Sir Henry Drayton.

Continuing, Sir Henry Drayton asked, "Have the Department of Trade and Commerce and the Department of Marine and Fisheries consulted together in connection with these apparently different government policies?" The increase might be proper, but he thought the House was entitled to a full explanation.

COMPANION OF MISSING LINDSAY BOY RETRACTS DROWNING STORY AND AVERS IT WAS 'PACK OF LIES'

Police Without a Clue in the Mystery of Charley Hodges' Disappearance.

LAST SEEN MONDAY.

Detective Likely to be Employed to Assist Police and Citizens.

LINDSAY, May 9. (Special.) — This is the sixth day of the Hodges' mystery, which took somewhat of a sensational aspect yesterday owing to a statement made by a boy eight years of age, to the effect that he was at the town wharf with Charley Hodges on Monday night, when he fell off the structure, and was drowned. Young Scott, who is only eight years of age, lives with his widowed mother in an apartment on Kent St., one block from the wharf. The little fellow first told his story to some of his companions at the Central school and it finally reached the ears of the authorities.

Chief Umphrey visited the Central School yesterday and young Scott accompanied him to the office of Ald. Moore, chairman of police, where he was interrogated for several hours.

The boy told a plausible story. He stated that he was with young Hodges on Monday night. They were both fishing off the wharf. Charley Hodges had caught a couple of minnows and had placed them in his (Scott's) little waggon. He then resumed his fishing lying on the concrete wharf and looking into the water. When he got up he staggered as if he was dizzy and fell in the river. Scott says he attempted to grab him, but tripped. He threw him a small piece of rope he had in his wagon, but his companion sank from view.

Boy Denies Story.

Asked why he did not notify the authorities, Scott replied that he had been advised by his mother to say nothing about it, or not to tell two stories. Scott, after the interview, stated to a citizen that there was nothing in the story that he had just told.

Ald. Moore was interviewed in connection with the boy's story. He stated that it was plausible, but that he could not understand why the boy should contradict it after the telling.

Told "Pack of Lies."

Mrs. Scott was interviewed last night relative to her son's story, and she was indignant when she learned that the authorities had given him a grilling. She said that the boy had been in delicate health for some time and was of a highly nervous temperament. On the night that young Hodges had disappeared, she states, the boy met her at six o'clock on Kent street, and asked her if Bobby (her son) could come out to play? She replied that he could not go out after supper. He did not leave the house that night. The story told the authorities relative to having seen young Hodges fall off the wharf was characterized by Mrs. Scott as false in every particular. Her son had informed his mother at the close of the interview with the authorities that he had told a "pack of lies."

Chief Umphrey did not place very much credence in the Scott story and said that the disappearance of Charley Hodges was as deep a mystery as ever.

This morning at 9 o'clock the boys of ten years and over attending the local schools gathered at the armouries and were organized into searching parties. On Sunday morning citizens with automobiles and motor launches will assist in the search. The father of the missing boy, who is a hard working man, has offered a reward of $50 for any information that will lead to his recovery.

Visited "Fortune Teller."

On Thursday afternoon a citizen, who represented himself to be a detective visited the aged fortune teller in Fenelon Falls and interrogated her relative to the boy's disappearance. She informed him that the boy had been spirited away, but that he would return in four——here the woman hesitated, and admitted that she did not know whether it would be four days, four weeks or four months.

Chief Umphrey returned Thursday night from his visit to Coldwater, where he interviewed a former employee of the Hodges restaurant. He announced this morning that he had obtained no information that would give him the slightest clue to the boy's whereabouts.

There is nothing talked of on the streets but this strange mystery.

The local authorities are baffled, and it is understood a detective will be placed on the case.

Historic Monument Will Mark Frog Lake Massacre

OTTAWA, May 9 (Canadian Press).—On the recommendation of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, the site of Frog Lake Massacre, in Alberta, where one of the notable events of the Northwest Rebellion of 1885, took place, will be marked by an historic monument. An area comprising twenty three-hundredths of an acre on the site has been set aside by Order-in-Council in order that a record of the incident may be preserved.

BRUTAL MURDER OF STOREKEEPER

Man Aged 70 Killed With a Club By Younger Man.

ROBBERY MOTIVE.

ST. GEORGE, N.B., May 9. — (Canadian Press.)—A. Hanselpecker, 70 year old storekeeper of Bethel, a small settlement five miles from here, was brutally murdered outside his own home yesterday afternoon, and the police and others are scouring this section of Charlotte county in search of an unnamed young man who is suspected of committing the crime. Hanselpecker's head was smashed to a pulp. Apparently the murderer used as a club a piece of beechwood found near the door of the victim's barn. Blood and fingerprints were noticeable on this weapon. The young man sought passed through Bethel about 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was seen entering Hanselpecker's store. After murdering Hanselpecker the young man rifled the small cash drawer and fled.

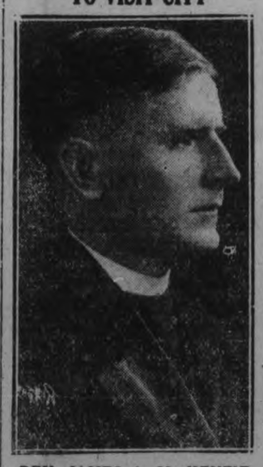
O'LEARY, V.C., IN JAIL.

Indicted at Buffalo For Smuggling Aliens Into United States.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Michael O'Leary, of Bridgeburg, Ontario, holder of the Victoria Cross, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury yesterday afternoon on a charge of smuggling aliens into the United States.

O'Leary was arrested on January 30, and has been a prisoner in Erie county jail ever since then.

TO VISIT CITY



REV. JAMES A. MacKENZIE.

of Guelph, who will preach at Knox Church on Sunday. Rev. Mr. MacKenzie is well known in Peterboro, having been minister of Knox Church eight years, immediately preceding Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, the present pastor.

Mr. MacKenzie's messages will be of interest to everyone, he having won a great reputation as a preacher.

On Monday evening, at the annual choir concert, Mr. MacKenzie will sing "The March of the Cameron Men" and "Tally-Ho." He has a fine baritone voice that lends itself well to such interpretations, and friends of Knox Church will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing Mr. MacKenzie both in his role of preacher and in that of singer.

STOLE FROM EMPLOYERS.

Two Western Men Betrayed Trust as Treasurers.

CALGARY, Alta., May 9. — George B. Bond, pleaded guilty to stealing $4,494 from his employers, the Farm and Ranch Review, while engaged there as treasurer, when arraigned before Judge Winter in the district court Friday.

He was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labor, and a fine of $100, with an option of an additional two months.

FINNS ADHERE TO COMMUNISM

'Red" Element of Foreigners Near Fort William Celebrated May Day.

COURT AFTERMATH.

FORT WILLIAM, May 9.—A May Day celebration held at the Finish settlement, 35 miles from Fort William on the Duluth extension of the Canadian National Railways, had its aftermath in court here Friday, when "red" and "white" elements of the community lodged charges and counter charges, resulting in one man being fined for being drunk, and another remanded on an assault charge.

Incidentally, it developed during the hearing that the "red" Finns are affiliated with the Communist party and other similar organizations in Canada.

Anson Kosko, a "white" farmer, who alleged that he was set upon and beaten by the "reds," led by Jack Hutta, president of the Communist society, was fined $15 for being drunk. Hutta was remanded on the assault charge.

NEW FIRE TRUCK IN PETERBOROUGH

Replaces Small Hose Wagon Wrecked Last Week—From Windsor.

The new Reo speed wagon chassis for the Fire Department, which is to replace the old Studebaker wrecked in the collision on George and Dublin corner, arrived in Peterboro after being driven from Windsor by Engineer Carr. The speedometer registered 328 miles.

The Brewer Motor Sales effected the deal, and the car was driven to save transit expenses as well as to wear off the rough edges and have it broken in ready for active service.

The Reo consisted of the bare chassis, equipped with a rough and ready wooden seat, the hardness of which was relieved by an air cushion. This was perhaps responsible for the healthy condition in which the engineer returned. The route followed was from Windsor, through Tecumseh, Chatham, London, Paris, Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto to Peterboro. "Throughout the whole distance," Engineer Carr said, "the Reo ran without a squeek or a sign of protest."

The body from the wreck of the Studebaker has been repaired and will fit perfectly on the Reo. The entire car will be repainted a brilliant red so as to be plainly visible. The new car has a four - cylinder engine of 27.2 capacity, 128-inch wheel base, and 35 in. by 5 in. cord tires. The chassis weight is 1½ tons, and can carry a gross weight of 5,000 pounds.

It has a remarkably quick pick-up and get-away. The starter worked perfectly on the first impulse, although the engine was cold from standing over-night.

The Fire Department is proud of its new steed, and it will repay the city by the more efficient service rendered.

FLIGHT HELD UP.

Heavy Snow Storms Prevent the Amundsen Expedition From Making Start.

NEW YORK, May 9 (Canadian Press).—The Amundsen flying expedition to the North Pole will probably be delayed in starting several days more, due to weather conditions, according to the last word received from the explorer's base in Spitzbergen.

These advices, through the Norwegian capital, Oslo, said a continuous snowfall was expected over the archipelago for the next few days. It is assumed that Capt. Amundsen's two planes will not take to the air until the weather clears.

MILLLION DOLLAR FIRE WREAKED HAVOC IN BUSINESS SECTION OF ISOLATED QUEBEC COUNTRY TOWN

Factory, 23 Stores and Residences, Three Movies and Bank in Ruins.

ONE MAN KILLED.

Bucket Brigade of St. Joseph D'Alma Helpless—Stopped By Dynamite.

QUEBEC, May 9 (Canadian Press).—Twenty-three stores and residences, three moving picture houses, the offices of three doctors, one bank and one factory constitute the toll of the conflagration that swept the town of St. Joseph D'Alma, 125 miles north of here Thursday night, and news of which reached Quebec yesterday. Achilas Pelchat lost his life, while two other men, Etienne Desbiens and M. E. Harvey, were seriously injured. The monetary loss at present available estimates exceeds $1,000,000.

The town comprised about seventy-five buildings and over half of them have been either destroyed completely or seriously damaged by the flames.

The blaze stated in the Victoria moving picture theatre shortly before 8 o'clock Thursday night. Fortunately there was no show in progress and the place was consequently empty. Handicapped by scarcity of water and the lack of adequate fire-fighting facilities, the citizens were obliged to resort to bucket-brigades, but this had little or no effect on the flames, which spread rapidly to the neighboring buildings.

Telephone communication with Roberval ceased shortly after the outbreak, as the exchange was consumed by the flames.

Buildings Dynamited.

For eight hours the inhabitants of St. Joseph D'Alma strove to master the progress of the fire, but were unable to get it under control until about three o'clock Friday morning. Meanwhile in an effort to prevent a spread that would have destroyed the entire town recourse was made to dynamiting buildings. It was during one of these explosions that Pelchat was killed. The house of Thomas Louis Collard was being blown up when Pelchat, unable to escape before the detonation, was buried in the ruins, while trying to save some of his household effects; Etienne Desbiens was gravely injured; while M. E. Harvey was also seriously hurt.

St. Joseph D'Alma is the commercial centre of the agricultural district of Lake St. John and is situated near the Grande Decharge" where the Quebec Government is developing hydro-electric power.

List of Victims.

The sufferers from the conflagration are: Stanislas Gaudreau, store; Le Grand Nord, store; Gagnon et Frere, store; P. Alichon, store; L. H. Gosselin, pool room; Harvey and Girard, Ltd., store; Elizear Harvey, store; J. A. Harvey, store; Le Bon Marche, store; J. B. Savard, Dr. Bouille and Dr. Tremblay; The Banque Canadienne Nationale; M. Innocent Looking Youth Burglar For Five Years

WINNIPEG, May 9.—Immaculately dressed and looking anything except a criminal, Hollis Walker, 17-year-old Winnipeg youth, just out of school, pleaded guilty to a series of robberies, in police court here today. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Stony Mountain Penitentiary, by Magistrate Sir Hugh John Macdonald, despite a plea for leniency on the part of the accused. He confessed to "Lone Wolf" burglarly, extending over a period of five years.

KILLED MAN IN BOX AT THEATRE

Woman Fired Six Shots During Chorus at Vienna Opera.

TWO WOUNDED.

VIENNA, May 9 (United Press) —While the Burg Theatre was ringing last night with the chorus of the fifth act in Peer Gynt, a woman arose from the audience and fired six shots toward a nearby box, killing one man and wounding two others.

The woman was identified as Menia Karniciu, aged 23. The man killed was Todor Arnautovitch-Anizza, aged 46.

The sound of the shots was almost drowned out by the swelling chorus and most of the audience did not know what had happened until the lights were turned on and they saw blood streaming from the bodies of the dead man and the two wounded.

The woman attempted to escape after the shooting but was arrested.

She old the police she was avenging murders committed in Bulgaria in 1923 The Bulgarian Ambassador made a statement saying neither the woman nor the man killed was known at the embassy. He expressed the belief that the man was a Jugo-Slavian and the woman a Roumanian.

FRANCE AND SPAIN ACTING IN CONCERT

Two Nations Are Preparing Strong Offensive Against Riffian Tribesmen.

PARIS, May 9 (United Press)—France and Spain are acting in concert against the Riffian tribesmen, harassing the French and Spanish zone in Morocco.

Premier Painleve announced today that the two nations were preparing a strong offensive against the Riffians.

England, the Premier said, was in accord with the plan.

WEATHER

Saturday morning showed that a temperature of 26 degrees, or six degrees of frost, had been reached during the night. Thick ice on exposed water also bore witness to the truthfulness of the self-registering device of the official thermometers. There was also an unusually heavy white frost. If the customary thing follows white frost, umbrellas will again be in demand. A few mornings ago I mentioned that while the thermometer was about the freezing point, I did not see any ice. Another gentleman informed me that at his place the newly dug garden had a crust on it, and an Ashburnham gentleman said that at his residence there was noticeable ice. This only goes to show that some spots are colder than others.—W. P.

HAND KNITTING AGAIN IN STYLE

Golf Vests Have Returned to Fashion's Favor—Tapestry Coats.

SCARF IMPORTANT.

A severe, rather mannish type of suit is apparently destined for another season of popularity which brings into the foreground the hand knitted waistcoat, or golf vest, as it is sometimes called. The golf vest has long pointed fronts, often knitted in stripes, with a plain short back. Many are sleeveless. The same model also has sleeves which as a rule are in a solid color matching the predominant shade of the pattern. The golf vest is a swankish garment which appeals to the woman who likes sports clothes.

Tapestry Coats.

Among the most interesting of the new modes are coats made entirely of yarn in multicolors. Some are hand knitted in designs resembling old tapestry patterns but others are done in the regular tapestry stitches on a background of very light weight canvas. Lined with crepe de chine and frequently bordered with fur, or hand hooked rim, they are distinctly and strikingly effective.

Scarfs Loom Large in Importance.

The hand knitted scarf of gay wools continues to hold its own as one of the most important accessories of the sport ensemble but in its newest version it is somewhat narrower and considerably shorter than those of last season. On several models each end is furnished with a pocket to hold the vanity, the tiny handkerchief in bright colors, and other trifles equally necessary.

Brother and Sister Fashions.

A mode that is copied from Europe fashions is that of dressing the small brother and sister in similar costumes. Nothing more distinctly individual could be chosen than a hand knitted jumper suit for the boy and a smock frock for the girl. The suit has a striped jumper and the briefest of trousers while the dress is a slim straight model with a striped border in pastel colors and lines of color edging the turn back collar and tight cuffs. Socks are knitted to match the color scheme.

The One a Day Sweater.

Its name needs little explanation for that is exactly what it is a sweater that can easily be made in a day. It is fashioned of light weight wool, hand knitted in a lace stitch on very large needles and is designed for wear over simple little frocks of crepe de chine.

Jumper Frocks the Frock.

Few models have so quickly caught the popular fancy as the two-piece costume of balbriggan in the subtle pastel shades or the more vivid sport colors. This consists of a jumper, and skirt having an inverted pleat in front. Although the original model, when hand knitted, is far from reasonable in price, so simple is the pattern and so plain the stitch, that a costume of this type is within reach of every woman who is willing to spend a little time in knitting one. The result is well worth the effort for fashion experts say that this type of frock will be worn all through the spring and well into the summer.

New Use For Lacy Shawls.

Fragile and delicate as they are in appearance there is considerable warmth in hand knitted shawls of the open lace stitch. One clever designer has utilized two hand knitted shawls or scarfs as a lining for a delicate pink negligee of chiffon. The filmy texture permits a faint suggestion of the design of the knitted ling also of the delicate pink tone to show through the chiffon. Narrow bands of marabou which match the tone of the chiffon outline the edges.

The Vogue of Stripes.

The newest and the smartest hand knitted sweaters are very much simpler than those of last season. They are quite as colorful and with certain individual details such as a distinctive neckline, a becoming scarf collar, or a novel arrangement of stripes in candy stick or the graduated Roman shadings. Frequently a close fitting hat and a scarf repeat the striped design and form a sport set as smart as it is distinctive. Most of the hand knitted sweater outfits being shown can be reproduced by anyone with even a rudimentary knowledge of knitting for the stitches are the simplest and the designs, if any, not intricate.

GIRL BURNED IN EFFORT TO HELP

Was Cleaning Stove to Assist Mother and Cleaner Exploded.

PARENTS AWAY.

CHATHAM, May 9. — Evelyn, the 10 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs Paul Rivard of Tilbury, died yesterday afternoon in St. Joseph's Hospital, as a result of terrible burns that she received in her home. The little girl was left in charge of two younger children by her parents, when they went to attend a special service in the Roman Catholic church at Tilbury. Thinking that she would be of help to her mother by cleaning the kitchen stove, she applied a cleaning preparation. The stove being hot an explosion occurred, which enveloped her in flames. Her clothing was burned from her body when the neighbors rushed into the house.

BAPTISTS HEAR OF MISSIONARY WORK IN WEST

Annual Meeting of Mission Circle Held in Lakefield on Thursday.

OTHERS PRESENT.

Letter From Peterboro Girl Engaged Among People of Saskatchewan.

LAKEFIELD, May 9—The annual meeting of the Mission Circle of the Baptist Church was held on Thursday afternoon in the church and was largely attended by members of the Circle, and also a number of members of sister societies of the village. The programme was excellent, and was in charge of a delegation of ladies of the Mission Circle of Murray Street Church, Peterboro. In the absence of the president, Mrs. (Dr.) Scott, and the 1st vice-president, Mrs. (Rev.) C. W. Rose, Miss M. A. Nicholls was in charge and very fittingly, as her father, Mr. Nicholls, was one of the pillars of the Lakefield church from its beginning until he removed to Peterboro.

Christian Stewardship.

After the opening exercises, Miss Nicholls gave a thoughtful paper on Christian Stewardship, which was inspiring to all.

"We are the stewards and God the holder, we are bought with a price, and are belonging to God, Who gave us all we have, and to Him we must give an account of our works. The constantly recurring days and nights are reminders that we are God's, and that one-seventh of our time belongs to Him, and for the rest we are but stewards. We are often apt to confuse possession with ownership, but our time, our money and our talents are all from God, and to Him we must account for our use or our misuse.

"According to what a man hath so shall he give, but one-tenth of all we have is God's by right, and in withholding any part of this we are robbing Him.

"We have our message to give as had the prophets of old, who with set faces and tense nerves, passed on the word God gave them. We are also messengers, and though the King's business needs haste, how are we going about it? There are millions in the world who have not yet heard the whisper of the Gospel, yea, even in our own land there is a great need, as in the Far West, many little children have never heard Christ's name save in profanity. We are responsible for this, as our dear land is our trust. God wants the message of the Gospel known to all the world, and we are privileged to be co-workers with Him. Let us make it a personal question, are we each doing our best as stewards; let us take this question home."

Life of Mrs. Churchill.

Mrs. A. Scott led in prayer, after which Mrs. Westbrooke gave an interesrting paper on the life of Mrs. Churchill a recently deceased missionary, who had done a great work as one of the pioneer foreign missionaries.

Mrs. Churchill was born 84 years ago in Nova Scotia, and at the age of 14 was converted at a meeting held by a curious coincidence at the home of Mrs. Rose's parents. She was anxious to be a missionary, and while teaching school gave half her salary to the supnort of a student in the field, and also did a great deal of good work in a negro mission. She married Mr. Churchill in 1873, and her desire to be a missionary came true; they went to Burmah and Siam and later to India. Shortly after their arrival in India, Mr. Churchill had a severe breakdown, necessitating a sea voyage, and he left his wife and infant son and sailed for Australia. He recovered, and for 29 years they worked in India. Mrs. Churchill organized girls' schools and a Bible school for Sundays, and worked with greatest zeal in spite of the fact that her daughter, Bessie, was far away in Canada receiving her education, and that death had taken her two sons, Willie and George, when they were very young.

After eleven years' work they enjoyed their first furlough, returning in 1886 to India. The Government began to recognize the work done in the school and gave a grant towards its unkeep, and to a teacher's salary. In 1899 they had a second furlough, and Bessie, now a graduate of Acadia College, N. S., returned to India with them. Mrs. Churchill gave generously to the work, both in time and in money, and worked on after Mr. Churchill's death in 1908. In letters to friends, she spoke of these three texts which had been a source of comfort and strength to her in her strenuous life: "My times are in Thy hands," "Lo, I am with You always," and "Thou shalt supply all my needs." Mrs. Churchill passed away recently in Toronto.

Work in the West.

Miss Aldrich read a paper which was sent by Miss Garbutt, who is now doing missionary work among Ukrainians in Saskatoon.

Miss Garbutt is a Peterborough girl, and is the grand-daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Garbutt, who were pioneers in the Lakefield Baptist Church, and also a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Mann, whose descendants form a large and important part of Gilmour Memorial Church.

Miss Garbutt grew up with a keen desire to be a foreign missionary, a wish which is partially fulfilled, as she is a missionary to foreigners in Canada. She is a graduate nurse, and was trained as a missionary in Toronto, taking a post-graduate course in Moodie Institute in Chicago. For some time she worked among the employees of the cotton mills in North Carolina which supply Marshall Field's store in Chicago. Later she worked in Toronto among the Chinese, and is now in Saskatchewan, with headquarters at Saskatoon, working among the Ukrainian women and children.

It is rather a startling fact that 46 per cent. of the population of Saskatchewan are non-English. In Miss Garbutt's great field in the country round about Saskatoon there are no ministers of the gospel as we understand it, but there are Bolshevists, Russellites, Seventh Day Adventists, and the need of male missionaries is very pressing so that the gospel may be preached to adults. Miss Garbutt's training as a nurse is invaluable and affords her opportunities of giving tracts and speaking of the gospel. The meetings are held in a hall and not in a church and consist of lantern lectures, Bible classes, etc. She has instituted a Sunday school by post with seventy members which is very successful. To these scattered children she sends tracts, quarterlies and lists of questions; from these she receives answers and has had some good results.

Among the Ukrainians.

In the summer Miss Garbutt goes to Ukrainian conferences and gathers the children together out and teaches them while the parents are outside at their own service which is conducted in their own language. Her summer field includes the district between Grand View, Manitoba to Kenora, Ontario and her work has been so successful that the adults do not want her to return as they fear the children may be turned from their own religion.

Miss Garbutt also teaches English to German girls in the Y.W.C.A. which is especially useful there and the membership is large. Miss Garbutt pleads for a realization of the great need of the gospel in this enormous field.

Miss Constance Lewis sang very sweetly a solo entitled "Help Somebody To-day."

Mrs. (Rev.) C. S. Reddick thanked the Baptist ladies in behalf of the members of the W.M.S. of the Methodist church for giving them the opportunity to be present at the meeting.

Mrs. (Rev.) P. L. Jull expressed the thank of the Presbyterian ladies present and assured them of the privilege they felt it to learn of the work of other women in the mission field.

Rev. W. W. Howard pronounced the Benediction after which the ladies adjourned to the school room and spent a social hour, the guests of the Baptist Circle. Tea was served by a competent committee.

Personal Phases

The meeting had besides being a most enjoyable and interesting gathering a few interesting links with the past history of the Baptist Church in Lakefield. Miss Nicholls who presided, was the daughter of one of the pioneers and was herself a member of the church as a young girl and she has tender memories of those early days when she, as a small child, accompanied her grandmother, the late Mrs. Wallace, to Church, recalling the old fashioned collection bags which were carried about on a long pole. The late Isaac Garbutt, Senior, was always one of those who took the offering and ocasionally (in the absence of a regular minister) preached the sermon and conducted the service.

Mrs. (Dr.) W. A. Baker of Peterboro, who played the organ during the afternoon, was also a member of the Baptist church during her residence in Lakefield.

QUITS IN DEBT

Colonel Guy R. Moloney is stepping out as police chief of New Orleans. And with his leaving office on May 1 comes to light one of the most famous mortgages in the history of the city. It is a $1500 mortgage on an $8000 home. The same mortgage was on that home when he took office eight years ago. New Orleans has seen many police chiefs retire to look after their investments, but this is something new.

FINAL DRAFT OF 4.4 REGULATIONS

Breweries Outside Ontario Must Pay License Fee of $5,000.

LICENSE FEES.

TORONTO, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—Following a Cabinet meeting which lasted from three o'clock in the afternoon until midnight, with a recess for dinner, the Ontario Government finally approved the regulations for the sale of 4.4 per cent. beer. In substance they were largely as heralded, their only feature of note of which no previous intimation had been given being the provision that brewers from outside the province must pay a $5,000 license fee for transacting business in Ontario.

The regulations provide for the sale of the new beer by breweries, standard hotels, restaurants and grocery shops. Breweries must pay a license fee of $200, their warehouses fee of $50, and all other interests a license fee of $10.

Fees of $1 must be paid for each employee engaged in the sale. Restaurants must have windows giving a clear view of the interior. Sale in clubs must be to club members only.

No bars will be permitted, and if any are located in the premises used as beverage rooms they must be boarded up.

OMEMEE PLANS HOLIDAY GAMES

Athletic Association Taking Lead in Celebration of Victoria Day.

OMEMEE, May 9.—Plans are well under way for the annual celebration in Omemee on Victoria Day, under the auspices of the Omemee Athletic Association.

The meeting held on Wednesday evening in the Council Chamber for the purpose of organizing for the annual celebration was well attended and full of enthusiasm.

All the committees were appointed and everyone present agreed to put their "best" into the work, and lend a helping hand wherever needed. The Executive of the O. A. A. are after "A Recreation Park Free From Debt," by the evening of May 25. This means the gathering in of some $300 clear of all expenses on that day.

Since the O. A. A. purchased this field, some five years ago, they have never lagged in their efforts to reach the objective for which they started. Some $1500 has been spent in the rink and other improvements, besides the planting of over fifty trees in different parts of the field. These trees are all "doing their bit," as practically every one of them has the "spring fever" at present.

Plans are now being made to place a handsome entrance gateway to the grounds, and the village Council are grading and improving the street leading to the park.

The executive are asking every citizen of Omemee and surrounding district to make 1925 an "over the top" year for the O. A. A. It is everybody's playground. It is, and always will be, open to all, and in a very few years, it will be a "beauty spot" of which you will all be proud.

Keep Victoria Day in mind and lend your support, so that the mortgage may be burned.

Chicken Thieves Active.

Chicken thieves have once more paid a visit to a couple of farmers' henhouses in this vicinity. Mr. Robert Johnson, who resides near the Omemee Junction, had the misfortune to lose about fifty thoroughbred white Leghorn hens last week. Mr. Johnson has a large flock of hens, and the loss was not missed until the following evening when the eggs had been gathered and only about one-third of the usual quantity were found.

Mr. Harold Laidley also had about twenty-five or thirty stolen a week or so ago. This is a quick but a very poor paying way of disposing of fowl after having wintered them, and it is certainly discouraging to the busy housewife to commence raising more chickens for the benefit of someone else.

STRIKER ARRESTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Connected With Attack on Mine Official by Strikers' Pickets.

SYDNEY, N. S., May 9.—(Canadian Press).—The first arrest to be made for a breach of the peace since the United Mine Workers adopted the policy of picketing the various mines in the southern districts of Cape Breton to prevent maintenance men other than officials from doing protective work was made yesterday afternoon at the Reserve Mines, when Simon Gallant, a striker, was taken into custody on a charge of assault in connection with the attack on P. E. Ogilvie, chief employment agent of the coal company by pickets at Mackay's crossing. Gallant was taken to Glace Bay, where he was later released on $1,000 bail.

SCHOOLS TOO SMALL.

Doukhobors Are Flocking to Public Schools in British Columbia.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 9.—(Canadian Press).—Doukhobors are now flocking to the public schools in the interior at such a rate that all available school accommodation is now taken, reports to the Department of Education indicate.

The schools in the Doukhobor area, which were burned by the Doukhobors in their "war" with the Provincial Government are to be rebuilt at once.

POTASH COMBINE.

French and German Mine Owners Agree to Eliminate Competition.

PARIS, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—To gain control of the potash industry, French and German mine owners put aside war enmity and signed an agreement to eliminate competition and unite in selling potash over all the world.

DIVISION COURT AT CAMPBELLFORD

Case of Radio Heard Before His Honor Judge Huycke.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 9. — His Honor E. C. Huycke of Peterboro presided at the May session of the Division Court yesterday afternoon. Of the five cases on the docket, only one was heard, the remainder being either adjourned or settled out of court.

Cairns and Hind, who conduct a business on Front Street, sued Robert, better known as Bert, Stillman of West Seymour for $170, the price of a radio outfit that the firm installed on the latter's premises last December. The hearing of this case occupied the whole of the afternoon as a number of witnesses testified on each side. Dr. J. Lynch appeared for the plaintiffs, and G. A. Payne for the defendant.

The point at issue was whether a bona fide sale of the radio had been made. The witnesses of the plaintiff swore that the machine had been put in with the understanding that if it worked satisfactorily for two weeks or until after the Christmas holidays, Mr. Stilman was to retain and pay for it. He kept it beyond that period, taking the batteries to town several times to have them charged, but early in the year gave the firm verbal notice to remove it. This Messrs. Cairns and Hind refused to do on the ground that Mr. Stillman had kept the radio beyond the allotted time and should pay for it.

The witnesses for the plaintiffs were the members of the firm, both of whom testified that they would have taken the radio out if they had been notified to do so within the specified time. Harry Vickers, an electrician who helped to install the machine, and James Hind, son of the plaintiff of that name.

For the Defence.

Bert Stillman, his sister and Miss Leona Murphy, who resides with them, and George Stillman, a brother, all testified that the firm had been granted permission to put the radio into the Stillman house in order to demonstrate it, and had been told at the start that Mr. Stillman had no intention of purchasing it.

Action is Dismissed.

In giving judgment, Judge Huycke said that in the absence of any written agreement, the plaintiffs had failed to make out a case, and for that reason, he would have to find for the defendant. He stated further that Mr. Stillman had kept the radio an unreasonable length of time, if he had no intention of buying it. The evidence was so contradictory, Judge Huycke said, that he would make no order for costs. He hoped that Mr. Stillman would pay for the charging of the batteries as he had offered to do when he asked the firm to remove the outfit.

When court adjourned, Mr. Stillman paid the plaintiffs $6 for the use of the machine and the charging of the batteries, while it was in his possession.

Mr. Hind autoed to the Stillman home last evening, and removed the outfit.

The Other Cases.

The other cases on the docket with the disposition made of each were as follow: City Sponging Works vs. J. Lofchy, adjourned from last court; again adjourned; Bank of Montreal vs. Herb. Leonard, settled out of court; Pullman vs. McNutt, settled out of court; Bidgood vs. the Town of Campbellford, adjourned.

MAKE CARE OF BABIES EASIER

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies and young children. When the baby is cross or irritable the mother should not resort to so-called soothing mixtures to correct the trouble, for in the majority of cases these mixtures simply drug the child into an unnatural sleep. What is needed is a gentle laxative that will sweet the stomach and regulate the bowels. Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are easy to take and are guaranteed to be entirely free from opiates and narcotics. Concerning them, Mrs. Jos. Tousaignant, Ste. Sophie, Que., writes:—"I would like all mothers to know that I feel there is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets. I always keep a box in the house and their prompt use never fails to restore my little ones to health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SATURDAY, MAY 9, 1925.

LET THE STORY BE TOLD.

All the "sob sisters" who pretend to be afraid of the development of a militaristic spirit are not confined to Canada.

In this country we have individuals and organizations opposed to cadet training in the schools, and viewing with alarm the hanging of war pictures in the schools.

We even have people who object to any recital of the deeds of Canadian soldiers in the World War being given in school publications.

But the Labour Government of South Australia has gone us one better.

It has gravely decided to ban school celebrations of Anzac Day held in memory of the landing of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps at Gallipoli.

The Secretary of Education, in announcing the decision, sapiently declared that "any dissemination of militarism" would be out of harmony with the spirit of the times.

What piffling nonsense!

Few more glorious pages are to be found in the history of the war than the epic story of the heroic fighting of the Anzacs in the ill-fated Dardanelles adventure.

And now, a few years after, a hysterical Labour Government wants to hide the story from the new generation as if these gallant lads who fought so bravely and died almost blithely had done something of which their countrymen would forever after be ashamed.

Let young Canada hear of what the Maple Leaf troops did at Ypres and the Somme and Paschendale and in the breaking of the Hindenburg line; let young Australia know of the valour of the Anzacs at Gallipoli.

They'll grow up better Canadians and Australians, better citizens, stronger men and women, with a pride in their country and in their breeding for the hearing of these things.

MOTHER'S DAY.

Tomorrow is Mother's Day, the day set apart to pay tribute to mother-love.

It is sometimes complained that the custom originated in a purely commercial spirit—but what of that? It remains a beautiful custom nevertheless.

More than two hundred years before Christ a powerful Egyptian ruler named Ptolemy II. built a marble tower four hundred feet high on the island of Pharos. Near the top he had placed on a marble tablet his name. For many years the name of the royal founder stood out conspicuously. But it was written on mortar made to imitate marble, which was spread over the tablet.

Time gradually removed the inscription, the mortar, crumbling, fell. Then it was seen that, carved in the enduring stone, was the name of the Greek architect, Sostratus, who had taken this course to perpetuate his own name as the real author of the beauty and grandeur expressed in this lofty pile.

So, many an eminent man, at the pinnacle of his fame, is regarded as the product of some party or system or method of education. But, with time the label disappears, and there stands out in that life the deeply engraven name, "Mother," often all unknown to the multitude that honors her son.

More and more, men and women are coming to acknowledge the mother-power that lies behind their name and fame. The first act of President Garfield after taking the oath of office was to kiss his aged mother and proclaim that all he had become was due to her sweet influence. The great Benjamin West said: "A kiss from my mother made me a painter. If the whole world were put into one scale, and my mother in the other, the world would kick the beam."

Not long ago there used to be a popular wall motto: "What is Home Without a Mother." It might provoke a scream of laughter in this day to resurrect such a legend. Yet the world today needs millions of just such old-fashioned mothers who realize that the greatest gift in the world is motherhood, and that the mightiest institution on earth is the home.

Too often the mothering of the child is left to the public school and to the uncertain influence of the street and the movie. This leaves the mother free to dress, to gossip and to attend functions which Oliver Wendell Holmes aptly described as "giggle, gabble, gobble and git."

God could not be everywhere, says a wise man, so He made mothers. As the whole visible universe can be reflected in miniature in a drop of dew on a blade of grass, so the whole moral and spiritual plan and scope of God is mirrored in the heart of a true mother.

THE SALVATION ARMY APPEAL.

Peterboro people are being asked to contribute to the Salvation Army Self-Denial Fund, and the appeal will doubtless, as usual, be generously answered.

The work done by the Salvation Army is by this time too well recognized to need much emphasis.

Most Canadians agree with Lord Byng's declaration that the Salvation Army "puts humanity into its religion as well as into its work."

One branch of activity of the Salvation Army that seldom comes to public notice, however, is its work among the inmates of the various prisons. For the year just closed the annual review of work in prisons shows that Sunday servies and interviews with inmates were held weekly in Langstaff Jail Farm, Mimico Reformatory, Concord Women's Jail, Don Jail, Mercer Reformatory, Guelph Reformatory, Burwash Reformatory, Kingston Penitentiary, Hamilton City Jail, and in twenty-nine other jails and penitentiaries in Canada East.

Besides the gospel services, entertainments were provided periodically, consisting of music and song by the Salvation Army bands. Sometimes, by arrangement with the prison officials, inmates themselves took part in the programmes.

Many letters were written and many reconciliations between prisoners and their families were effected.

Often the prisoners are assisted by the Army on their discharge. Sleeping quarters are provided and jobs found for them and every effort is made to keep them from again falling in with criminal associations and to restore them to self-respect and usefulness.

The statistics of the Army's prison work for the year are interesting. 16,563 interviews with prisoners were held; 1,691 prisoners were met on discharge; employment was found for 448; 1,455 meetings were held in prisons, with a total attendance of 15,017. 403 prisoners professed conversion, and 904 signified a desire for prayers on their behalf. Ex-prisoners were supplied with 18,411 meals, and 5,193 beds were provided, while 1,374 were provided with clothing. In Toronto alone 857 prisoners' families were supplied with food, while at Christmas time 1,765 gifts were distributed to prisoners and their children. 5,715 letters and 'phone calls for prisoners were written or made, and 1,745 visits to prisoners' families were made.

THE HUDSON BAY DELUSION.

The annual outburst of mingled advocation and objurgation by Western proponents of the Hudson Bay Railway project has been heard in Parliament. It was characterized by the usual misrepresentation as to the motives of those who cannot see anything but folly in the enterprise, and it disclosed no reason why opponents of the project should change their minds. The fact that upwards of twenty millions had been spent upon the uncompleted line when construction was stopped affords no sound justification for throwing away more millions, particularly at a time when the financial state of the Dominion, and especially of the Dominion's railway system, calls for the exercise of the utmost prudence and the most rigid economy. The country already has more railways than it knows what to do with, more railways than it can support by other means than taxation, and it would be a crowning act of stupidity to aggravate this condition by sinking more money in additional mileage in order to experiment with a route which capable engineers and navigators have condemned. The possibility of opening up a shorter and cheaper route for the export grain of the middle Western Provinces is an old delusion. Unfortunately, politicians of both parties in past years did not hesitate to encourage this delusion for the sake of party advantage, and the country has already paid a heavy price for the mischief wrought in this way. One Government after another has played with the Western vote, first by promises of, then by plans for, and later by actual expenditures upon work of construction.

The undertaking has never promised anything but loss and disappointment. The construction of terminal works at Port Nelson has been attended with serious engineering difficulties and costly misadventure, and now we have no less a person than the Minister of Agriculture declaring that a mistake was made in the selection of Port Nelson, where, at the best, a harbor can be provided only by artificial means, whereas Fort Churchill has a natural harbor ready for use. Mr. Motherwell has been taken severely to task for his statement as tending to injure the whole Hudson Bay Railway scheme, but the Minister has been guilty of nothing worse than candor. As a matter of fact, the scheme stands discredited without regard to the faults of Port Nelson. If the finest natural harbor facilities in the world were to be found at Port Nelson, that would not solve the problem of navigation through the bay and strait; it would not obviate the necessity of storing grain from the period of harvest until the reopening of the short period of navigation in the following year. The whole trouble is that the route is not feasible, and no dark hints of secession, no allegations of a dark conspiracy, and no evidence of uncommercial travellers will ever make it any better than it is. The suggestion put forward in the House of Commons that those who oppose the Hudson Bay route do so because they are afraid it is arrant nonsense, and only the most hard-pressed supporter of a miserably weak case would resort to such piffle. The route is opposed because the brief season of difficult and dangerous navigation does not correspond with the crop-moving period, because the engineering problems are too great, the navigation hazards too many and formidable, and the economic advantages, therefore, nil.

It is questionable if those who clamor so insistently for a policy of throwing good money after bad really express the conviction of thinking people in the Western Provinces. Alberta is sending out more and more of its grain to the Pacific, and Western Saskatchewan looks also in a westerly direction. The demand for the Hudson Bay route, with its great outlay on railway completion, terminal facilities and aids to navigation, comes from part of Saskatchewan and Manitoba and is kept alive by an organization whose activity may have a political value. The promise of the Minister of Railways that the railway will be completed sometime, was made, of course, with full consciousness of this political value, there being an election in prospect; it is a promise made in accordance with the rules of the old political game in which development of the Hudson Bay route has been the bait and the winning of Western votes the profit. The trouble is that this game has now to be played with real money, the money of a people already stooping under the burden of railways and railway taxation.—Montreal Gazette.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As one of Octavius Roy Cohen's characters would express it, "If the Hudson Bay Railway never operates it will be twice too soon."

If the 4.4 beer is as flat as some of the jokes that have been made about it, the revenue from its sale may not be as large as Mr. Price expects.

Baseball umpires will be glad to learn than the new beer will not be sold at ball parks. A 4.4 bottle is not the kind of missile the average arbitrator appreciates.

If the City Council is determined to have gasoline pumps on the streets, why not insist upon them being "staggered" and kept illuminated all night, thus solving the street lighting problem?

The sewage disposal plant having been a tender point in civic circles for a decade, has at last reached the tender stage.

What Mr. Nickle meant was that not only the beer but the drinker is to be placed in the front window.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

The disappointment early in the week, due to the failure of the export cattle demand to come up to expectations, resulted in a lowering of prices in Monday's market. There was a heavy run of cattle offering, and the bulk of the exporters had to be carried over for the week. These cattle, about 10 or 12 loads, were taken late in the week by Rogers and Maybee at the reduced prices, ranging from $7.60 to $8.10. With the cattle already bought in the market, and billed through cattle, requirements for next week are partially filled, and commission men are advising shippers not to send too many heavy cattle in for next Monday's market.

The hold over of heavy cattle proved a drag on the rest of the market, and butcher cattle were generally easier in consequence. The decline on good butcher cattle was about 25c, and on some of the medium and common 25c to 40c was taken off. With these declines the market generally held steady, and all butcher stuff was well cleaned up by the end of the week.

Fat butcher cows were an exception in the general decline, and were held firm all through the week up to $6 and $6.50 for the choicest offerings.

The heavy runs of poor quality calves has continued, and prices generally easier, few tops going up to $10, the buk going from $6.50 to $8.00.

With light offerings of sheep and lambs the market was practically steady at $8 and $9 for choice wool sheep, and $6 to $7 slipped. Spring lambs $11 to $14 each.

Hogs steaded at the early week's decline to $11 f.o.b., the market closing unchanged, but unsettled, with Chicago and Buffalo quotations showing a higher tendency.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, May 8 — Prices continue steady for the higher grades owing to the fact that packers are absorbing all surplus supplies coming forward for storage purposes. Seconds are more plentiful on account culling for storage and for this grade prices are lower.

Toronto Jobbing Special 35, extras 33, firsts 31, seconds 27.

Quebec Jobbing Extras 33 to 35, firsts 30 to 32, seconds 29 to 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 8 — Decidedly higher prices here for wheat resulted today from an unexpected advance in Liverpool quotations and from an unofficial extreme low estimate of the probable yield of domestic wheat, as well as from an incorrect genera belief that the United States Government crop report this afternoon would indicate a winter wheat harvest of 435,000,000 bushels or less. Closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 2½ to 4¼ cents net higher, May $1.68¼ to $1.69 and July $1.56 to $1.56¼, with corn 1¼ to 2 cents up, oats showing 1 cent to 1¾ cents gains, and provisions varying from five cents edcline to 30 cents advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 8 — The demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was good and as cables were stronger at advanced prices, the volume of business accomplished was larger than for some days past and the market was fairly active.

The feature of the domestic cash grain market was the improved demand for oats from exporters and sales of several round lots were made including No. 2 Canadian Western at 13½ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May Option, No. 1 feed at 3¼ cents per bushel over, and No. 2 feed at 1 cents, 1¼ and 1½ cents per bushel over, c.i.f. Montreal the market for car lots of oats on spot was stronger and prices were advanced one cent per bushel. The demand from local and country buyers was limited and business in this respect was quiet.

A fairly active trade continues to be done in eggs in a wholesale jobbing way, there being a steady demand for supplies to meet immediate wants and the tone of the market was steady. The receipts

A THOUGHT.

MOTHERS' DAY.

For our Sainted Mothers, passed away
To their eternal rest,
A snow white flower, we wear today,
And own their memory blest.

For those, kind Heaven still deigns to spare,
We offer tribute high—
And in token of devotion, wear
A flower of crimson dye.

Even Heaven itself, could never send,
To bless us, such another,
Devoted, true, unselfish, friend,
As now, we honor; Mother.

And, not one day only, may we show,
Our filial love sincere,
But with brighter luster, may it glow,
Each day, throughout the year.

GROCER FINED $3,003.

MONTREAL, May 9.— Six breaches of the Quebec Liquor Act cost J. H. Leduc, grocer of this city, $3,003 here yesterday in the liquor court.

$23,000 STOLEN.

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., May 9. —F. H. Courtnell, pleading guilty to a charge of [illegible] own use $8,200, the property of the Town of Redcliffe, of which he was secretary-treasurer, was yesterday sentenced to four years in the penitentiary.

The thefts extended over a period of eight years and the defence acknowledged that some $23,000 had been taken in all. Courtnell, it was declared in court, lost the money in farming operations and at the "card table."

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

Dick walked past her. He stood, scowling and threatening, before Wayburn. The actor rose and faced him.

"Well, what's the trouble?" Stan asked.

Glory rushed to him.

"Stan, please don't quarrel with him! Can't you see how sick he is? . . . He doesn't know what he's doing!" she pleaded.

Dick laughed contemptuously.

"Oh, I know what I'm doing all right," he said. "Don't worry about me! . . . What I want to know is what this fellow is doing in my house! Who asked him to come here . . . you?"

He turned to Glory and seized her with one hand. His fingers hurt her flesh. She could feel that he trembled violently.

Glory tossed her head wilfully.

"Yes, I did ask Mr. Wayburn here!" she answered. "Was that such a terrible thing to do? . . . To have a few friends in to cheer me up? You hike off on a business trip, never suggesting that I go along! Never thinking that I might possibly be lonely here! And then you get sore because I don't spend my time crying over it!"

She pulled herself away from Dick.

He turned toward the hall. May and Jim stood there, still, waiting to see what was going to happen.

"May, this is your doing," Dick said, his voice trembling. He put one hand on the back of a tall Jacobean chair to steady himself.

"You know that everybody in town is talking about you and Jim," he went on, "so you want to drag my wife down to your own level. . . . Well, you're not going to do it! I forbid you ever to come here again! You, or your lover, either! Now get out . . . both of you!"

May burst into careless laughter.

"Oh, we're going, but not because you say so! We were just leaving when you came," she cried gaily. "And don't you be so sure that I framed this little party to-day. Ask your wife whose idea it was! . . . Come along, Jimmie."

The pair of them went, leaving a dead silence in the house behind them.

At last Dick broke it.

"Glory, I wouldn't have believed it of you," he said, mopping his damp forehead. His eyes were fixed on his wife. Glory, with bent head, stood in the doorway.

Both she and Dick seemed to have forgotten that Stanley Wayburn was still in the room.

"I don't see what there is to make such a fuss about," Glory said, pouting childishly. "There's nothing so disgraceful about my having two or three people in to tea, in broad daylight, is there?"

"Tea?" Dick gave a short laugh. "The house smells like a distillery, not a tea-room! . . . Was it tea you were drinking from those highball glasses?"

He indicated the two empty ones that stood on his smoking stand.

"Oh, Jim brought that stuff along. You know how he thinks he has to drink every five minutes or he isn't having a good time!" Glory said easily; "Stan and I really didn't want any of it."

Stan and I! . . . Dick turned and looked intently at Wayburn as if he had just seen him for the first time in his life. Under the cold steady gaze, Stan shifted uneasily in his chair.

* * *

He put out one hand, and chose a fresh cigaret from the silver box beside him. With seeming carelessness he struck a match to it. He leaned back, puffing idly.

But his wary eyes never left Dick's face.

Glory felt as if time itself had stopped. She held her breath.

Her eyes went first to one man, then to the other. She could see that each was taking the other's measure . . . like two prize fighters in the ring.

Suddenly she remembered that Dick had once told her that he had a savage temper. He had said that the reason he never fought with people was because he was afraid of his own physical violence when his blood was up . . . because he was afraid he might injure his adversary without fully knowing what he was doing!

She had scarcely believed him then. She saw now that it was the truth that he had told her about himself.

His hands were tensed so that they had whitened along the knuckles.

Glory could tell from the set of his jaw that his teeth were tight-clenched. His face was ashen.

She saw that he was deaf, blind and numb to everything but his own anger . . . that he was quite capable of killing Wayburn then and there!

She could scarcely recognize in him the quiet, self-contained Dick she had always known . . . the husband who had pampered and spoiled her.

With a kind of horror, Glory watched him slowly cross the room and stand before his own arm-chair, where Wayburn sat smoking. Fascinated, she waited, not daring to move a muscle.

What was he going to do?

But Dick did nothing. He stood perfectly quiet, looking down at the actor. Glory saw that the hand that held Wayburn's cigaret was shaking.

"Wayburn, you . . . well, never mind what you are! But I know, and so do you! And I know what you're doing here!" Dick said. "I know what my wife's doing here with you! And that's all ended!"

* * *

Stan's mouth went up at one corner in his crooked smile. He flicked the ash from his cigaret before he answered. But Glory could see that he was terribly afraid . . . that he needed all his acting ability to carry him through this crisis.

"Is that so?" Wayburn asked carelessly.

Dick turned to his wife.

"Go upstairs while we settle this thing!" he ordered her.

Glory braced herself. She shook her head, slowly.

"No, I won't go upstairs!" she said. "All this concerns me as much as it does you. . . . Only you're so silly to make a scene about such a trifle! Why, I don't begin to see as much of Stan as you do of your Miss Briggs every day! . . . How do I know you started away on a business trip at all? How do I know that you weren't somewhere with her all day? . . . It looks pretty queer to me—your rushing back here when you were supposed to be out of town! Mighty queer!"

Dick's mouth tightened.

"Get upstairs!" he said savagely. His voice was like a whip.

Without another word Glory went.

She fairly flew up the long flight, and stopped at the top to listen. There was no sound from the floor below.

In sudden panic, she flew into the room that she and Dick shared and locked the door behind her.

There was a high excitement in her.

It was the sort of thrill that a cave-woman might have felt thousands of years ago, as she watched two stone-age warriors fighting to the death over her.

She laughed wildly and hysterically.

"Oh, if he were only like that always!" she thought. She shivered at the memory of Dick's righteous anger . . . the cold fury in his eyes when he had ordered her upstairs. He had never seemed so splendid!

And she had obeyed him! . . . For the first time in her life she had obeyed him! . . . She was mortally afraid of him, too!

* * *

"Hello, dear." It was May's voice. "I just called up to see if you were all right. Has your lord and master calmed down yet?"

"No; he's still ranting around, downstairs," Glory answered, "but I think he's awfully sick . . . really I do, May. He looks it. I think that's how he happened to come home ahead of time. He said this morning that he was going to be gone two or three days."

"Don't kid me, Birdie. . . . I'm simple," May answered in her cheerful slang. "I'll bet you a new spring hat that he had a hunch you'd throw a little party as soon as he was gone, and he came home unexpectedly to find out. . . . Well, you didn't disappoint him, did you, dear?"

She laughed. Nothing in the world was serious to May but her clothes, her complexion, and her good times!

"No, you're wrong for once, May," Glory gravely told her. "Dick would not spy on me. He's too honest and above-board, himself. . . . I'm sure he's sick. Will you please ask Dr. John to come over and have a look at him? Dick's never been quite well since he had the 'flu before Christmas, you know."

"John's not at home, although I expect him any minute," May answered. "You might try to reach him at his office."

"Will you stop in here to see Dick for a minute on your way home?" Glory asked him. "He came home sick a while ago."

There was a long silence.

"I don't understand, Glory," Dr. John said at last. "I just saw Dick half an hour ago. He stopped in at my office on his way from the train, looking pretty shaky. I told him to go home and go to bed . . . and that I'd look in on him again, after dinner."

"Oh, I didn't know that," Glory faltered. "Well, come now, anyway, will you? Please!"

She was afraid to be alone in the house with Dick after Wayburn had gone. She wished that she had not given Ranghild the afternoon off.

"I'll be there inside of fifteen minutes," Dr. John promised. Glory could tell he was puzzled.

Swiftly she took off her blue gown and slipped the silver band from her hair. She tool a plain black dress from her closet and put it on. For she fervently hoped that Dick had not noticed how she had decorated herself for Wayburn's visit!

Glory picked a buffer up from her dressing table and ran it idly across her shining nails.

She was thinking hard. She began to wonder if Stanley Wayburn was worth all the trouble that he brought into her life. . . . the heartbreak, the jealousy, and the lies. . . .

* * *

He had seemed a despicable coward downstairs just now, when Dick had faced him with that deadly anger of his. Glory had seen the fear in Stan's eyes, even when his lips were curled into a sneering smile.

Here she was . . wishing everything to be with him, and she wasn't even sure that he loved her. She couldn't make him say that he cared for her!

Despair swept over Glory.

Ah, if she only knew! If she could only be sure that Stan loved her . . . nothing else would matter to her then! Nothing!

Glory threw the buffer down among the silver boxes and brushes on her dressing table. She unlocked the door of her bedroom.

Without making a sound she crept down the stairs to the landing. She leaned over the bannisters and listened.

The two men were just coming out of the living room. Dick was talking in that same cold monotone. Glory caught the end of a sentence.

". . . never again, so long as you live," he was saying. "And now, get out!"

Wayburn came into Glory's range of vision. She could see that he was still smiling. Outwardly he was debonair.

"Very well, I'll go," he said in a slow, leisurely way.

Glory heard the front door close behind him.

"STOMACH PAINS WERE DREADFUL"

Operation Prevented by Fruit Treatment "Fruit-a-tives"

"For years I was a sufferer from Chronic Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Constipation; the stomach pains were dreadful. I was advised that my condition strongly resembled cancer of the stomach. Dreading an operation, I consulted my physician, but grew steadily worse. Then I decided to try "Fruit-a-tives". Immediately my condition began to improve and soon Dyspepsia and Constipation were things of the past"—Mrs. Annie Glover, 16 Henry Street, Ottawa.

There is no other medicine like "Fruit-a-tives". The effect of this fruit treatment in all cases of Constipation is wonderful. 25 and 50 cents everywhere.

MARY PICKFORD TURNS BACK TO RAGGEDY ROLES

Turns Back to Old-Time Parts at Age of Thirty-two.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Celebrated Day by Gang Fight in Filming "Little Annie Rooney."

By LINCOLN QUARBERG
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.—(United Press).—Mary Pickford, at the age of 32, has returned to the ragamuffin screen roles which made her world-famous yars ago.

Mary recently celebrated her 32nd birthday. She spent the day at work on her new production, 'Little Annie Rooney.' She threw bricks, tomatoes, and other back-yard missiles in a "gang" fight with a crowd of "East Side" youngsters. She was hit on the head with an old boot, knocked out of a chimney and rolled off a roof to the ground.

Aftr a strenuous day's work on the lot she returned to her studio bungalow, bruised and battered.

"It was the happiest birthday I ever had," she declared.

In "Rosita" and "Dorothy Vernon," Mary won iame as "America's sweetheart." "Little Annie Roonie" marks her return to the raggedy roles which first elevated her to stardom and which she enjoys playing most. She plans to make three pictures the coming year, and in each will portray the part of a ragged, curly-haired back o' the yards' girl.

"I never had any real childhood," explained Miss Pickford, "so I get my fun playing in the pictures that give me a chance to be a girl again.

"I was on the stage at the age of five, and from that time on my time has been the public's and not my own. When my little friends were romping or playing, I was busy with rehearsals,or at the theatre playing a matinee.

Mary is the only girl in "Little Annie Roonie." The other characters are boys. There are 30 of them, and they are black white, yellow and freckled. Mary plays the part of a 12-year-old daughter of an East Side cop at the head of this motley gang of youngsters. She fights with them and against them injecting a vivid Irish spirit into the story.

The players who support Miss Pickford in "Little Annie Roonie" are nearly all appearing for the first time before the cameras. Hugh Allan her leading man, has been in pictures but six months. Gordon Griffith, Los Angeles high school student who will captain his football team next fall has an important part. The others are all new in pictures.

"I wanted the players in 'Little Annie Roonie' to be typical of their parts, and they were chosen for their fitness, and not because of something they did in other pictures," Miss Pickford said.

The story, "Little Annie Roonie", was inspired by the song of that name, and was written for Miss Pickford by Katherine Hennessey.

Rudolph Valentino has presented John Barrymore with a medal for his screen acting in 'Beau Brummel' The Valentino badge was awarded for the best film performance during 1924, on the basis of a poll of newspaper and magaine critics throughout the country. The fim sheik plans to make the presentation an annual affair.

Norma Talmadge was second choice of the critics for her work in "Secrets." Others who rated high were Douglas Fairbanks, Lon Chaney, Milton Sills, Lillian Gish and George Billings.

Emi Harder, Hollywood director who recently made a screen version of "William Tell", in Switzerland, is planning construction of a million dollar studio in the Alps.

The project has the official sanction of the Swiss government.

Hadrer is returning to Hollywood in April to direct "The Danger Sign." When this production is completed he will return to Switzerland, taking an American cast with him for a series of pictures at the new Swiss studio.

Warner Brothers recently increased their production scheduled for the current year fom 26 to 40 pictures after signing a number of new stories and buying a fresh set of scenarios.

New players added to the Warner staff include John Barrymore, Syd Chaplin and Lowell Sherman.

"The Plastic Age," one of last season's "best sellers" at the bookstores, is to be translated to the screen by F.B.O. Studios. It is a story of college life by Percy Marks.

BANK EXPECTS IMPROVEMENT

Business Wlil Become More Active With Arrival of Spring.

EXPORTS HIGHER.

MONTREAL, Que., May 9.—(By Canadian Press).—"With the arrival of spring, business will become more active. It remains to be seen whether the improvement this year will be only seasonal or whether certain funuamental improvements in the business situation have really taken place. We are inclined to believe that the latter is the case," the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada for May says.

The volume of spring building has not developed to a point warranting either optimism or pessimism, the letter states in reviewing the Canadian situation. Reports of slight increases in the volume of manufacture do not conceal the fact that most factories are working on a part time basis which is not profitable. The eastern coal strike and the low price of coal are factors complicating the mining situation. Lumbering operations during the winter were generally satisfactory and there have been inquiries for substantial qualities of lumber, but few orders have been booked and prices are unsatisfactory.

"On the favorable side British Columbia reports the second best halibut catch in her history; in the Prairie Provinces the livestock have wintered well, and from the East comes news of record breaking woodpulp production."

The letter notes that Canadian exports of non-ferreous metals have risen from a value of $42,000,000 in the year ending February, 1923, to $88,000,000 in the year ending February, 1925. Gold finds in Northern Ontario account for a large part of this increase, and new finds this spring indicate that it will not be long before Canada is mining more gold a year than the United States. The last named country took $57,000,000 of these metals last year; Great Britain $17,000,000, and Japan $5,000,000.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 6

Appearance of Tea No Guide

The only way to test tea is to taste it. Many people have the idea that a finely rolled and tippy tea is superior in flavour to a large rough leaf. In reality this is not of necessity the case. The altitude at which the tea plant grows determines the amount of essential oil and alkaloid theine in the leaf. The essential oil gives tea its flavour; the theine contributes the stimulating value. The only way to insure always receiving a uniform quality is to insist upon a skilfully blended and scientifically sealed tea like "SALADA" whose reliability, goodness and delicious flavour have become a household word.

"SALADA"

LOCAL PERMITS MAY NUMBER 17

ONE TO 1270

According to the regulations issued by the attorney-general's department, no limit is set upon the possible number of hotels, restaurants, cabarets and stores handling the new beer. This will be governed entirely by the judgment of the license board and local inspector. Those who are interested, however, have looked up certain facts and figures which they believe procide an indication of the probable number of beer permits to be issued in Peterborough.

They point out that, in the old license days, there were some 13 licensed places here. The population at that time was approximately 16,410, which meant one bar or licensed liquor store to every 1270 population. Should the same approximate ratio be preserved in the case of 4.4. it will mean that Peterborough will have seventeen or eighteen beer permits issued. There are eleven hotels in the city, and if each of these takes a permit there will be six permits left for clubs restaurants and stores. There is no limit fixed, of course, and this approximate figure may be greatly exceeded. The indications are that it will not be reduced.

TOURISTS' CAMP ON PIGEON RIVER

Picnic Grounds Much Improved by Mr. K. Griffin, of Bobcaygeon.

OMEMEE, May 9.—Carroll's Landing one of the picturesque spots on Pigeon River, which has long been the favorite camping and picnic grounds of this community, is rapidly being transformed into an alluring tourist camp. The property, eight acres, was purchased last fall by Mr. Kenneth Griffin, of Bobcaygeon. A splendid gravel driveway has been made for motorists from the road to the camp, trees have been trimmed, woods cleared and pretty driveways made. The landing, now known as "Keneden Park," has been marked off into building lots one of which has been secured by township Councillor George Griffin, on which has been erected a fine large building for the accommodation of tourists. The new house has eight bedrooms and a screened sleeping porch, large airy dining-room, kitchen and one bedroom downstairs, with screened verandah. The contract for the building is in the hands of Mr. S. Mills, local contractor, who will soon have it completed.

BETTER AND BETTER

Dependable ten years ago, and five years ago, and more dependable than ever today, Dodge Brothers Motor Car simply represents the latest phase in a process of continual betterment.

The first cars Dodge Brothers built established a world-wide reputation. The cars they are building today incorporate the accumulated refinements of those ten intervening years.

That important improvements in the comfort and appearance of the car are made from time to time, implies no basic departure from Dodge Brothers traditional policy of progressive rather than seasonal development.

NOTED SINGER AT ALL SAINTS'

Mrs. Pearl Kennedy, of Toronto, Will Sing at Both Services.

OLD TIME HYMNS.

Mrs. Pearl Kennedy of Toronto is visiting in Peterborough over the week-end and will be soloist in All Saints' Church both morning and evening on Sunday. Mrs. Kennedy has an unusually sympathetic personality and choice for church work and she has had wide training and experience in this line of singing. Although often urged to undertake general concert work she has devoted all her energy and talents to evangelistic work and to hear her rendering of the old time hymns and camp songs is a revelation of what can be done.

Sang to Soldiers.

During the war she was singing with various evangelists in France. Last summer found her back again in Glasgow and she comes to Peterborough at the conclusion of a two weeks' campaign in Toronto where she was singing her gospel songs twice daily.

She was the guest of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly lunch on Friday and her singing was much appreciated by the members.

On Sunday afternoon she will tell the story of her hymns and her travels to the girls' Bible Classes of All Saints.

SMELTER RUNS DAY AND NIGHT AT ALL TIMES

Little Fluctuation in Demand for Silver Produced at Deloro.

PROSPEROUS TOWN

By-Products Plant Only Part That Ever Works on Short Time.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

DELORA, May 9.— The woolen and other manufacturing indutries of Canada have their periods of prosperity and depression, the price of grain and other farm produce fluctuates from time to time, but that of gold remains practically stationary as the standard of value and that of silver nearly so. The smelting plants of the country carry on from year to year immune from the effects of a commercial panic or industrial stagnation. Employees are seldom troubled with the fear that they will lose their jobs or that the plant will either close its doors temporary or put the working staff on short itme.

The three hundred employees of the big plant here are still working full time, three shifts a day, of eight hours each. Train loads of ore from the mines of Cobalt are arriving daily and this ore is dumped at one end of the huge plant and put through the different processes until the silver bars emerge from the furnace at the other end and are carefully stored in the fire proof vault to await shipment.

Big Shipment.

On Wednesday night there was stored in this vault silver bars upwards of $100,000 in value, some of it fresh from the furnace, and this was shipped on Thursday to Catto, the famous silversmith in London, England. No other product, so valuable and yet taking up so little space, is exported from this country. The silver bars are about the size of an ordinary building brick and the average weight of each is 90 pounds. Silver to-day is quoted at 60 cents an ounce Troy weight, 12 ounces to the pound. A pound of silver at that rate is worth $7.20 and a bar of the average weight would be valued at $648.00. Any person with an idea of the space occupied by 150 building bricks can readily compute the amount of room occupied by a shipment of silver bars valued at $100,000.

The Famous Keeley Mine.

Some of this silver was taken from ore dug in the Keeley mine, the famous "hole in the ground," the purchase of which by inexperienced but enterprising directors, caused the wreck of the Farmers' Bank and brought thousands of shareholders and depositors to the verge of, if not actually into the very midst of ruin. When first worked by its banker owners that mine proved a dud, but later it turned out something of a bonanza. Ore from this "hole in the ground" is received here and sometimes it yields between five and six thousand ounces of silver to the ton, although the usual run is about one-tenth of that amount. Other smelting plants in Canada are handling their ore, as the Delora company is chiefly engaged on the ore that comes from its own property, the O'Brien mine at Cobalt, the chief owner of which is Senator O'Brien, of Renfrew. It is nothing other than a conservative estimate to say that the Keeley mine has produced enough silver to not only save a bank from ruin, but to place it firmly among the solid financial institutions of the world.

Tons of Poison

The most valuable by-product yielded by the ore is the arsenic which is separated from the raw material in one of the furnaces and is carefully collected. This poisonous substance forms the stock in trade of a separate industry which is known as the Deloro Chemical Company and where tons of Paris green and other deadly materials are turned out. In this plant the employees wear masks and air tight clothing that keeps the poisonous fumes from their lungs and from touching any part of their bodies. Canadian workmen are not inclined to take up this line and the men employed as laborers in this poison factory are Roumanians or other foreigners who gladly accept the extra compensation which is allowed for their dangerous calling.

Large quantities of Paris green are required every year to save Canada's potato crop from destruction by the Colorado beetle and a large part of the annual supply is manufactured at Deloro. Other poisonous chemicals are also turned out; one of these being extensively used in the Western Provinces to check the plague of grasshoppers. Up to last year the Government of Saskatchewan was the company's largest customer but for some reason or other the demand last season was not equal to the supply and the chemical plant this spring has a large stock of poisons of various kinds on hand and is the only branch of the plant that is not running to capacity.

A Flourishing Village

A large percentage of the men employed in the smelting works reside with their families in Deloro, a flourishing young village where the unemployment question is seldom heard of. Deloro takes a prominent part in athletics, its baseball team winning the championship in the Trent Valley League last season and the players are getting in shape again to repeat the performance if possible.

To Build Power House

The Deloro plant is equipped with a sprinkling system which renders it practically immune from the risk of fire. It is one of the Hydro's best customers as a vast amount of power is required to keep the machinery in operation night and day. As stated in The Examiner some time ago the company plans to build a dam at some distance from the village on Crowe River and to erect a power house in which to generate its own electric energy.

Seymour West Institute.

The regular monthly meeting of the Seymour West Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Longmuir, with a good attendance. The meeting opened by singing of the ode and prayer.

The secretary was asked to communicate with Norwood Institute, asking them to assist with the programme at the June meeting to be held at Bethel Church.

The following committees were appointed for this meeting:

Life Committee: Mesdames Roy Fleming, D. Stillman, Robt. McCulloch, Reginald McCulloch, Chas. McArthur.

Programme Committee: Mesdames McKee, Geo. Vanvolkenburg.

Tea Committee: Mrs. Chas. Macoun, Mrs. Wm. West.

Ice Cream: Miss Jessie Anderson, Mrs. Douglas Rutherford, Miss Mae McArthur.

The secretary, Miss Mae McArthur, read a very gratifying report of the year's work, after which the annual election of officers was held, as follows:

President: Mrs. Geo. Vanvolkenburg.
1st Vice-Pres.: Mrs. David Stillman.
2nd Vice-Pres.: Mrs. Roy Fleming.
3rd Vice-Pres.: Mrs. Chas. McArthur.
Secretary-Treasurer: Miss Mae McArthur.
Asst. Secretary-Treasurer: Mrs. Douglas Rutherford.
Directors: Mesdames McKee, Geo. Brown, Wm. West.
District Director: Mrs. Thos. Dunham.

Lunch Committee for summer months: Mesdames Geo. Brown, McKee, Lloyd, Vanvolkenburg, Chas. Davidson, Misses Jessie Anderson, Mary McArthur.
Flower and Sick Committee: Misses Jessie Brown and Mae McArthur.

The hostess then served very dainty refreshments, after which the meeting dispersed.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS

LAKEFIELD, May 9. — Mrs. Graham C. Bromley and family, who were in quarantine with chickenpox and scarlet fever, have been released from quarantine.

Mrs. MacDonald and child of Calgary, arrived in the village this week and will spend the summer with her father-in-law, Mr. W. MacDonald.

Mrs. P. L. Jull and Mrs. J. H. Chant, were elected delegates from the W.M.S., of the Presbyterian church to the convention being held this week in London.

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. of Peterboro, are putting on the play, "The Troubles of Grandpa," in Lakefield town hall on May 26th, under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's, Lakefield.

Lakefield Relief Fund.

In the account given of the Relief fund to the Pattrick and Pringle families after their fire, there were a few erorrs which we would like to correct: Mr. S. W. McKibbon's donation was $2 not $1 as stated, and the account of Theo. Crawford for clothing, moccasins, etc., was $11.75, not $20.07, as stated. The latter sum was the amount of Spence & Son's account for groceries.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Missionary work in the east will not be considered very successful if the following telegram to the Globe is any indication of what is looked upon as the beginning of the war of East against West, so long predicted. The despatch referred to is:

Chang and Feng at Odds.

"The issue is between Chang Tsolin, the Manchurian war lord, who is controlling the seaports and Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian General, who holds Pekin. Feng is receiving munitions from Russia through Mongolia, which, the British Legation is informed, were conveyed by the Russians almost to Kailgan Pass.

The indications are that Feng Yu-hsiang has become allied with the Communist faction in Pekin, thus getting the aid of the Russians."

READER.

Sporting Editor, Examiner:

Dear sir,—In your report of the game between Masseys vs C.P.C. soccer teams, in last night's issue, you have on the C.P.C. line up Smith, goal. This is a mistake, Thos. Montgomery plays goal, we have no Smith on our team. Would you please make a correction.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

Yours truly,

JOHN CREIGHTON,
Manager C.P.C. Football Club.

GASOLINE PUMPS.

Dear Sir,—In answer to one who signs himself "Motorist", regarding gasoline pumps on busy corners, such as Smith and Water streets, I may state that regarding the danger of people stepping from street cars, it is very slight. The corner of Smith and Water is one of the widest and is over 40 feet from the street car track to the pump, and another thing, the same corner which was a very dark one regarding light, is now lit up from the same source as "Motorist" complains, and is now one of the safest corners in the city of Peterborough.

I remain, yours truly,

P. J. HARRISON.

MORE FISH FRY FOR PETERBORO

Re-stocking of Local Waters Efficiently Carried Out— 1,487,500 Placed.

CARE NEEDED

During the past year there were placed in Peterborough waters 1,487,500 fish fry, which were intended to add to the already well stocked streams. Pickerel, bass and salmon trout were the fish selected and it can well be imagined that within a very short time the lakes and streams will constitute a veritable Arcady for the would-be nimrod.

The fish fry is obtained from the various hatcheries in the province by local representatives of the Fish and Game Association, and it is carefully placed in the waters intended to be so populated. The fry resembles curdled milk and it is commonly known that much of it, possibly 50 p.c., is eaten by the fish. However, sufficient remains to stock the lakes and streams and allure the tourist.

Men are appointed by the Fish and Game Association to protect the fish as much as possible from the depredation of unwise persons, who insist on fishing during the spawning season. It is estimated that one fish killed in the spawning season means the loss of hundreds as that game is very prolific.

Below is a list of waters, with the varieties and quantities of fry deposited by the Fish and Game Association during the year 1924, much good work in assisting having been given by W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.:

Swamp Lake— Bass 5,000, salmon trout 10,000. Total 15,000.
Pigeon Lake—Bass 10,000.
Stoney Lake—Bass 5,000, salmon trout 50,000, pickerel 250,000. Total 305,000.
Clear Lake—Pickerel 250,000.
Belmont Lake—Pickerel 100,000.
Chemong Lake — Bass 5,000, pickerel 500,000. Total 505,000.
Round Lake—Bass 2,500.
Gull Lake—Pickerel 100,000.
Loon Lake—Pickerel 100,000.
Otonabee River— Pickerel 100,000.
Grand total—1,487,500.

PAVILION AT CROW LAKE BEING REBUILT

Owners of Summer Cottages Are Already Preparing for Summer.

By a Staff Reporter.)

MARMORA, May 9.—T. Neal, owner of an hotel in this village, has commenced the rebuilding of his pavilion at Crowe Lake, which was destroyed by fire some time ago and expects to have the new structure open for business by June 1. From present appearances this popular resort is to be atronized to a greater extent than ever during the coming summre. Toronto and other owners of cottages on the lake shore have already commenced getting them in shape for the coming of hot weather, when this place is usually one of the busiest resorts in Ontario.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

EARACHE CAN BE RELIEVED.

Many mothers are able to determine whether or not their babies have the earache from movements of the baby's hands.

Often the baby, even when at a very young age, will attempt to get his hand to the ear when pained by earache.

Heat is one of the simplest and best remedies. The child should lie with the ear against a hot water bag, or a warm flannel cloth. Be careful that the heat is not enough to burn.

If this does not help, syringe the ear with warm water. It should be about 105 or 110 degrees Fahrenheit.

When a pea or bean becomes lodged in the ear, DON'T pour water into the ear. It will cause the seed to swell.

Water is an excellent remedy when insects crawl into the ear. Usually there is wax in the ear, through which an insect can not pass. Even if it does, there is a membrane which prevents insects from entering beyond a point where they may be reached.

Call a doctor if you are not successful in removing an object from the ear.

The Fine New
WILLYS-KNIGHT SIX
A Powerful, Luxurious Car

For those who want the finest—the new Willys-Knight Six is more than a beautiful new car with a six-cylinder engine.

It far exceeds your greatest expectation of high powered six-cylinder performance, because it has the greater smoothness, power and acceleration that comes only from the Willys-Knight sleeve-valve motor. It is powered with the only type of motor that actually improves with use.

The price of the new Willys-Knight Six is perhaps the most amazing thing about it. That a car of such extraordinary quality, powered with a six-cylinder sleeve-valve motor, can be priced on a level with the best poppet-valve sixes is the supreme accomplishment.

The new Willys-Knight Six now awaits your approval.

Neuritis
Neuralgia—Sciatica—Rheumatism

NEURITIS is inflammation of a nerve. The pain is burning and tearing, not darting as in neuralgia, and is increased by movement.
There may be swelling and sensitiveness to touch, and sometimes redness of the skin.
Your experience will tell you that neuritis, like neuralgia and sciatica, only bothers you when your nervous system gets run down.
Restore energy and vigor to the nerves and you remove the cause of these torturing ailments.
The nerves must be nourished back to health and vigor by the use of such restorative treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. John Woodward, Lucan, Ontario, writes:—
"I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way, through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. Almost at the point of despair, I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I feel it my duty to tell you of the benefit I derived. I am more than proud to say that after taking over twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

Mrs. Wm. Mapletoft, Mount Forest, Ont., writes:—
"For about three years I suffered from neuritis in my right side. I had pains through my back and twitching of the nerves and muscles. I had also been operated on for appendicitis, and it left me a nervous wreck. I was very restless and uneasy, and bothered with frequent neuralgic headaches. My appetite was poor and I sometimes took weak spells. I commenced a treatment of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and in a very short time I found relief. This medicine has done me the world of good and I can recommend it to all suffering as I was."

Through the Gates of Fairyland

Rip Van Winkle

By C. S. and A. G. HAMMOCK

One of the most beautiful sections of our country is that part of the Hudson Valley in New York State, where one may look westward and see the Catskill mountains.

This section was settled by the Dutch, whose villages of quaint little houses built of yellow brick, with latticed windows and gabled fronts, were very pleasing to the eye.

Nearly two hundred years ago there lived in one of these villages at the foot of the Catskills a man named Rip Van Winkle. Rip was a good-natured fellow who was liked by all the villagers. His wife had a very sharp tongue, and as Rip was too lazy to work, he often felt its sting. To avoid her he would take his dog and gun and wander off into the mountains.

On one of these trips, becoming tired from much walking, he lay down under the shade of a tree on the mountain and fell asleep.

As he woke along about dusk, he heard a voice from a deep glen calling, "Rip Van Winkle!"

Rubbing his eyes, he was much surprised to see a small man climbing the mountain with something very heavy on his back. Thinking it was some neighbor in need of help, he went down into the glen. There he met a stranger, dressed very oddly in the old Dutch style, carrying a barrel of liquor. He motioned to Rip to help him and they took turns carrying it farther and farther up the mountain, walking in silence.

After climbing up the dry bed of an old stream farther than Rip had ever been before, they came to a large level open space, where Rip saw a strange sight.

A company of the queerest old men he ever saw were playing ninepins. They had long beards, big noses and were dressed in the most outlandish style. Every time a ball was rolled it made a sound like thunder.

Rip was startled, but had little time to reflect upon what it meant, as his guide now poured out the liquor into flagons and beckoned Rip to serve it.

The players drank their liquor and went on with their game without speaking a word.

When no one was looking, Rip tasted the liquor and, finding it very much to his liking, drank again and again, until his head swam. He sat down by a tree, nodded, then fell asleep.

When Rip awoke, he was surprised to find that it was morning, and that he was back where he had first heard his name called the night before.

Worrying about what his wife would say, he arose to his feet, but found that his joints were very stiff. His dog was gone and he reached for his gun, but found only a rusty old thing falling apart. However, he picked it up and started for home.

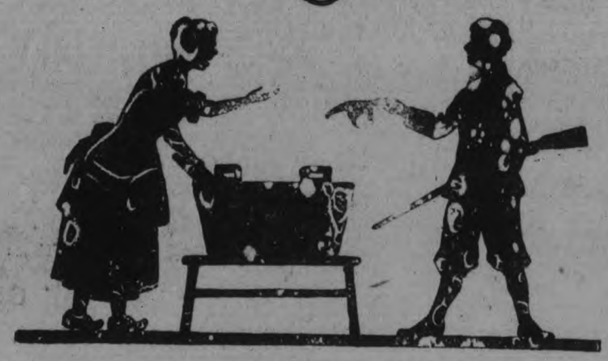
Soon he began to meet strangers, which surprised him, for he thought he knew every one for miles around. On putting his hand to his chin, he found that his beard had grown a foot long. He remembered the flagon, and now wished that he had never drunk the liquor which had turned everything topsy-turvy.

Arriving at the village, he approached his home cautiously, fearing the temper of his wife; but he found only an old deserted house falling to pieces. Thoroughly bewildered, Rip passes along to the tavern where his old cronies always gathered, but again he found only strangers. The very houses had changed. The tavern had been replaced by a larger one, and on the sign King George's picture had been changed for that of General Washington.



Where Rip expected to see only a few old friends, he now met dozens of strangers; but no familiar face.

A very important looking man rushed up and asked Rip: "What do you mean by coming to the election with a gun? Do you mean to start a riot?"

Rip was dumb with surprise.

"Who are you, anyway?" asked the other.

"I'm Rip Van Winkle," he replied.

"That can't be, there's Rip Van Winkle," pointing to a youth who was leaning against a tree.

Rip saw the exact image of himself as he was yesterday. "Yes," said he, "that's Rip Van Winkle, so I must be some one else. I am a peaceful citizen of this town who went hunting yesterday in the mountains. I fell asleep and stayed there all night; but today, everything is changed."

He asked for several of his old friends. Some had died years before, others had gone away and nobody knew him. Plainly, they thought him crazy.

He was about to agree with them when he saw a young woman pressing through the crowd to get a peep at him. She carried a chubby babe, and as it began to cry, frightened by his looks, she said, "Hush, Rip, hush. The old man won't hurt you!"

The name of the child and the look of the mother caused Rip to ask, "What is your name, my good woman?"

"Judith Cardenier."

"And your father's name?"

"Ah, poor man, his name was Rip Van Winkle, but it's twenty years since he went away with his dog and gun and we never heard of him again. My mother died not very long ago."

Then Rip took her into his arms, saying, "I am your father."

An old woman tottered out from the crowd and looked at him closely. "Sure enough," she said, "it is Rip Van Winkle. Where have you been these twenty years?"

Rip's story was soon told, for the whole twenty years had been to him as one night. The neighbors stared when they heard it, winked at each other and shook their heads.

A very old man came along just then and they asked what he thought of it.

He told them that it was a fact that the Catskill Mountains had always been haunted by strange beings. He said that the great Hendrick Hudson, who had first sailed up the river, kept vigil there every twenty years, with his crew from the Half Moon, the ship in which he sailed. They came once in twenty years to see the old place and to play ninepins in the mountains.

Rip's daughter took him home to live with her and he found that her husband had been one of the village urchins who used to climb upon his back.

Rip lived in peace and idleness for many years, and spent his time sitting in front of the tavern, smoking his pipe and telling his story over and over again until every one knew it by heart.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By M. B. LEVICK.

The young woman at the attendant's desk looked down the rows of green amps along the library tables. A sudden sense of boredom made her feel tired. Maybe because it was near the end of the evening shift. It was just like being a school teacher, sitting here at the desk all by itself in front of the other desks. Only she couldn't make them stay after school if they didn't behave. She wondered what would happen if she told the old man with white whiskers he would have to copy a hundred lines before he could go home. She saw how he would look up at her as she told him.

Nothing ever happened in a library. The young woman told herself that, and she thought of all the years of her life that would be spent in public libraries with nothing ever happening. The prospect was too distressing; she fell back on her game for dull evenings. When somebody came in she would try to guess what they were going to ask for.

But they all came for adventure. They came to a library for adventure. The old man, for instance; he had come every night for a month to read abstruse notes to an ideal world invented and patented by Plato. That was his adventure; he lost himself in Plato's world as he might lose himself on some imaginative jaunt among the stars. And the boy over there—he was absorbed in shipwrecks and cannibals. This youth just coming in: what was he going to ask for? She bet poetry. No, either poetry or a translation. He wanted Balzac. Third shelf on the south wall. Well, that was half a point in the score of her game, anyhow. Here's another. No translations for him: he'd think Balzac was some kind of Bulgarian sour milk. How to build a chicken house? She led him to the mechanics section.

* * *

When she had come back to her desk a man was standing before the card index. Now what? He was looking toward the end of the E drawers. A slim young man, maybe 30; very alert. A cool, calm and collected sort of fellow. That was the Europe drawer; the light fell on the hand and she noticed a yellow stain. Acid, maybe. Was he after Evolution? He pulled out the drawer she knew, from its position, to be labeled Exe-Exp. Exegesis? No; she gave it up.

She forgot him for a moment, wondering why she could find no adventure here, where everybody else did. To all these others the books were full of wonders—voyages, miracles, no end of things—but to her the books were so many bricks. The adventure hunter would write out a call slip and she would give him a neat little package of adventure, guaranteed to contain no artificial preservative, and then he lost himself in it as men lose themselves in dreams. But these books were only bricks. The young woman considered the lore of bookmen. Men who handled books of their own or books that were theirs for the time being—they got a sense of spiritual adventure from it. But library books are different, impersonal. You want to handle them in a hod.

The self-contained young man with the stain on his hand was standing before her desk. She looked at the title on the slip he proffered. So; it wasn't Exegesis after all. Must have been Explosives. Now what kind of adventure for the soul does a man find in explosives?

The old man with Plato looked up, jealous of his space, but the young man went to the furthest seat, by himself. The page to which he opened had "Nitro-glycerine" printed at the top, but to the young man it showed a vision of a prairie. A dusty and ragged man was in this vision, leaning over a little fire; in the flames was a tomato can, and into the can the ragged man dropped little pieces as he shaved them off a stick of dynamite. This is soup and when you have syringed the scum off it you can knock a box car upside down. Or a safe. The young man thought in terms of a problem. X is to Y. Let X be soup and Y a Maxim silencer, how could you explode nitroglycerine without a noise?

* * *

The young woman at the desk watched him as she pondered on his adventure. Sometimes the game was harder after you knew the desired book than before. She remembered a book, "Tramping With Tramps." The man who wrote it, Josiah Flynt, had turned tramp. But this man with the explosives book was no tramp.

After she had watched him for some time she walked past his table and her sleeve brushed the call slip from it. As he stooped to pick it up she observed the bulge at his hip pocket.

It was a few minutes after she went back to her desk from the telephone booth in the hall outside that some more men came into the room. This time the the young woman did not ask herself what their adventure would be. She was waiting for them, a bit breathlessly. She nodded. Three roamed along the shelves on the wall. The young man was still reading. The old man with Plato looked up, afraid the newcomers might take some of his space. He watched them pass. Then the old eyes which had been contemplating an ideal world saw two of the newcomers, big men both, pounce forward, and the hands of the young man were pinioned one on each side of the pages headed "Nitroglycerine."

The young man looked up, shrugged once, and laughed. "Well," he said, "a guy'd think you elbows had a meet with me here."

One of the five detectives took from the young man's pocket first a pistol and then two automatics with silencers.

"Say," he said to the young man, "couldn't a wise grifter like you find out how to blow a peter without reading about it in a book? I guess we got a fall on you this time, Ferneke."

The young man thought Saunders had put the finger on him to get hunk because he stole Saunders's girl. But the young woman at the desk merely went back to work, wondering about libraries and adventures.

Henry J. Ferneke, sought three years on a charge of killing two men in a bank hold-up at Pearl River, N. Y., was arrested in a Chicago public library when a woman attendant, noticing his pistol pocket and his book on nitroglycerine, asked the police to come and look at him. Ferneke is accused of a dozen big robberies aggregating $1,000,000. Ostensibly an electrician, he lived for a time near Pearl River with the wife of an accomplice, Saunders, who is now in prison in Illinois. The hunt for Ferneke was started when a Rockland County school teacher told of the supposed electrician's confusion when she mentioned the bank murders.

Increased output for the Dairy Farmer

EVERY time a dairy farmer increases production he increases profits. Increased production is largely a matter of improved and augmented herds, modern equipment, time and labor-saving machinery and better, all-round production facilities.

All this, of course, costs money. But it is money which the Bank of Toronto may readily advance to desirable applicants.

If you plan to increase your outfit and require a loan, you can do no better than to see the branch manager of the Bank of Toronto and discuss your problems with him.

Two-Piece Jumper Frocks Worn by Golfers—Dance Frocks.

SOME UNUSUAL

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 9 (United Press).—Golfers about New York are wearing two-piece jumper frocks in tan or natural shades and adding colorful scarfs which they tie carelessly about the throat. Yellow, lavender and green are the season's favorite scarf shades.

White chiffon evening gowns are more popular than any others for evening wear. Many of them are beaded sheath types, while others flare at the hemline

Horschair hats in tan shades will be popular as summer advances. Black horschair shapes are less popular than these neutral shades. A favorite trimming is the lacquered gardenia. Ostrich in band effect is also a popular trim.

Bankok hats trimmed in velvet are numerous among the new models. In buying bankok it is well to know that bankok can be creased into any shape desired when it is wet. Since the bankok hat usually has a large crown it can be formed in creases and pleats to fit the head. One seldom sees a plain crown these days since folds and creases are favored rather than simple headshapes.

* * *

One of the most striking dance frocks seen this season was worn by a young woman at a hotel ballroom last week. The slightly-fitted, long-waisted bodice was made of green tulle posed over a foundation of green chiffon of darker shade. The skirt was seven layers of ruffles of alternating shades of green. Large pink silk roses were used as a corsage and smaller buds were placed here and there on the ruffles of the skirt. The front and back V neckline was used. Though this gown could have been made by the home dressmaker at little expense it stood out among the more elaborate gowns.

Women who are sufficiently slender are wearing a suggestion of waistline again. Although most of the day and afternoon frocks are straight-lined, evening frocks of newer type have a fitted or semi-fitted bodice with the skirt shirred on just below the normal waistline. One must be slender to wear such a frock well, however.

Conforming with the tunic frock, many evening models used the scalloped hemline with tiny rows of shirred lace forming the slender slip which shows beneath the scallopes of the overskirt.

There are many lavender evening frocks this season but the prettiest of these are combined with bluish lavender ribbon or chiffon in some manner. Lavender in itself is apt to be a tiresome color but combined with a certain shade of blue it is distinctive. Often a huge, soft ribbon bow with long ends is placed at the left-front of the frock to add color.

For the girl who wishes a sports costume that is unusual and inexpensive one would suggest a little jacquette of hopsack with a skirt of harmonizing plaid. In the upholstery departments of the stores one finds this sack weave in an assortment of colors. After this material is washed, it is soft enough for jacquette material. The effect of such a costume is quite striking.

Most designers are sponsoring the ensemble suit for fall wear, so one need not hesitate about buying one for the spring season since it will undoubtedly remain in vogue for fall.

Black taffeta frocks are favored for Spring and Summer. Batiste and lace trims many of these in apron effect.

* * *

Satin and ribbed silk coats will be leaders this summer. Black, tan and gray are the favored shades combined with fur hemborders of self shade.

Jacquettes of velveteen will be worn for sports wear with white skirts.

Flannel is favored for sports frocks and suits in plain pastel shades. Sports coats this season are often seven-eighths lengths.

Gray and cinnamon shades are those most generally noted on Fifth Avenue this Spring. These shades are especially popular for suits and ensembles.

LONG CUFF TIES

Chiffon ties with long, floating ends are very lovely on the summer frocks, both at the neckline and at the waistline.

WHITE AND BROWN

White coats are frequently banded with brown fur and lined with brown.

CHINA AN ODD PARADOX OF WAR AND BUSINESS

Problems Are No More Complicated Than Those of Other Countries.

STILL STRUGGLE ON

People Keep Up Fight for Existence Regardless of Wars and Politics.

By MARGARET DE FOREST HICKS

China's difficulties, which to many may seem vastly complicated and darkly obscure, can be simplified and made clear. It is principally the strangeness of China's nomenclature that interferes. If we cease to suppose that her problems are as confusing to Western perceptions as her odd sounding names are to Western ears we will find ourselves on the way to understanding. Even the paradox of how a nation of 100,000,000 can be chronically in civil strife and yet go on prospering better and better will yield its own explanation.

If it be true that trade follows the flag then it is equally true that public interest chases at the heels of trade. Ever since, from a commercial standpoint, the Orient has become increasingly important year by year, American interest has proportionately grown; until today there are many more people than one might imagine directly interested in and genuinely concerned is said to be proverbially shadowy and confusing.

This interest, this genuine concern has had the happy effect of engendering among increasing numbers a determination to fathom the Chinese riddle, a determination that has been its own reward. For once approached in this spirit, the so-called riddle has proved itself to not a few surprisingly capable of comprehension.

China's problems—political, economic, military—are no more complicated than France's, no more unintelligible than Brazil's. Perhaps the greatest obstacle in the way of understanding this so-called Chinese puzzle is the inability of most of us to relate the present in a proper manner to the past and to the future, to maintain as it were a proper perspective. It is a common error to overemphasize the importance of passing phases which are highly spectacular.

Wu Loses by Feng's Desertion.

The end of last year saw the conclusion of a major civil war, the forces of General Chang Tso-lin of Manchuria ranged upon the one side, those of General Wu Pei-fu upon the other.

The conflict, the final outcome of a hatred of many years' standing, had been foreseen for some time, but it was the Kiangsu-Chekiang provincial war in the Fall of 1924, over the control of Shanghai, that set the match to the powder.

Though geographically a part of Kiangsu Province, Shanghai had, for some time, been under the administrative control of Chekiang—to the people of Kiangsu a veritable thorn in the flesh. Consequently, the inevitable occurred. Kiangsu, led by its Military Governor, General Chi, made war upon Chekiang and Chekiang's Military Governor, General Lu, and in the fighting that followed Chi found himself backed by Wu Pei-fu, Lu by Chang Tso-lin. The outcome favored the Chi-Wu combine, but it was secured only at great cost, for, in order to make the victory decisive, Wu was forced to deploy large numbers of his troops from the vicinity of Peking to the Chekiang-Kiangsu sector.

For two years Chang had waited for just such a situation to arise—for a moment when the forces of his rival should be divided. The time was ripe to descend from his northern stronghold upon Peking, and descend he did.

Where the Great Wall joins the sea the opposing armies met; and Peking bowed once more to a new military master. To Chang, however, the victory was bitter-sweet, for his success was due not so much to his own superior strategy and strength as to the desertion, at a most critical period, of one of Wu's most able lieutenants, the "Christian General," General Feng.

Cheng Can't Rely on Feng.

However it was not unpleasant to Chang to find himself the military commander of North and Central China. Indeed, as though to consolidate that hold from Mukden to Shanghai, he proceeded to strengthen this victory by reversing the Chekiang-Kiangsu situation and reinstating the defeated General Lu.

Furthermore, South China, not to be outdone by the Wu-Chang conflict, though taking no part in it, decided to demonstrate the fact that it, too, could fight, by a renewal of the local Chen-Sun warfare in the vicinity of Canton and Swatow. In this engagement the forces of the late Dr. Sun were victorious.

Thus, one now sees General Wu definitely eliminated from the military field, South China under the control of its late pretender-President and Central and North China dominated by General Chang, except for one thing—his right to command is only questioned by the very man who helped to place him where he is, the Christian General, Feng.

So much for the present military situation in China, the most important of all factors, affecting the political, for in China, war and politics go hand in hand. Inevitably, with the success of a military leader comes a change in government, local or national, depending upon the importance of the engagement and the extent of the forces involved.

The recent Wu-Chang conflict was a military event of high consequence, and with the former's defeat have come political changes from the very top, down. These changes began with a person of no less importance than the President, Tsao Kun, and extended through most of his Cabinet.

When Peking fell to Chang, Tsao suddenly discovered that he had urgent business in the foreign quarter of Tientsin, and, sending his favorite concubines ahead of him—in China an unfailing sign on the part of a political leader of his impending resignation—he delivered up the seals of his office in undignified haste, and fled after his womenfolk.

President by Grace of War Lord.

Into his shoes stepped Tuan Chi Jui, a Chang appointee. China is a young republic, which has not grown to the strength needed to wield with full effect against old regimists and provincia overlords the methods of democracy. Rel publics fully evolved adhere to a slow-moving, cumbersome process of choosing their chief executives called elections. But in China the rules of republics have been subject to the flow of power from one military chief to another. Consequently, though Tuan was not installed by the democratic method in the office from which Tsao Kun so hastily abdicated, there was little or no stir, for in the minds of any who concerned themselves with the affair at all was the remembrance that Tsao's own "election" had been merely a matter of the proper distribution of nobody knew how many millions.

Tuan, consequently, having styled himself 'Provisional Chief Executive' holds the reins of Government at the whim of Chang, and by no other authority than the latter's right of military conquest. He will continue to hold them so long as North and Central China's present military overlord retains power and Tuan remains in his good graces.

Viewing Tuan, however, in the light of his recent predecessors, he does not compare unfavorably with them. He has surrounded himself with a reasonably able Cabinet and gives promise of administering the internal affairs of China as well as most of the others. Just how far his control will extend, however, is quite another question, and not so easily answered.

Provinces and the Country.

The present politico-military situation in China is quite comparable to that in Britain in feudal times, or to America during the early days. In a word, it is a struggle for States' rights, a struggle between the forces of centralization on the one hand against those of decentralization on the other.

The latter have been almost without exception since the inauguration of a republican form of Government in China, the stronger. China is a helpless prey to provincial military Governors, who recognize no more of Peking's authority than they are forced to at the point of a bayonet, and who war among themselves continually for sectional control.

When Peking is in the hands of a weak military leader whose control extends over but few provinces, the forces of decentralization are strengthened; when the central Government is commanded by a strong military leader, able to dictate to many of the provinces, they are weakened.

At present these forces of decentralization are noticeably impotent, for contemporary history has seldom seen the Peking Government in the hands of a man whose control extended over so great an area as does Chang's.

Christian General Unlikely to Win.

The only militarist capable of offering to Chang any real resistance is General Feng, to whom Chang owes his thanks for Wu's defeat—a gratitude he is loath to give. Their relations have already blossomed into a hate which portends an early conflict.

Should this conflict occur, however, Chang's success is an almost foregone conclusion. Consequently no alteration in the present politico-military situation is imminent even should a fresh conflict ensue.

In the meantime, President Tuan has made a move in the right direction by calling an all-China conference for the purpose of devising plans for her rehabilitation. With the exception of South China, all sections were represented, but after one meeting the conference adjourned without accomplishing anything. However, the seeds of a worthy effort were sown and yet may bring forth fruit, if not by virtue of the will of the leaders represented, then by the power of the military overlord at whose instigation the conference was convened.

The reason for the absence of the South China representatives is an all-important factor in the present situation. When the rehabilitation conference convened, South China's leader, Dr. Sun Yat-sen, lay in a foreign hospital in Peking, at death's door. He has since died, and no leader has yet been chosen to take his place.

Though Tang Shao Yi has been mentioned as Sun's successor, it is extremely doubtful that he will assume the position, and who will is anybody's guess. If Sun's successor proves to be a man too weak to offer resistance to Peking or a man willing to acknowledge the Federal Government's authority, then China is on the threshold of a new era, with North, Central and South China, ostensibly at least, as one.

Two-Fold Effect of Sun's Death.

But although Sun's death will have an important effect upon the internal situation in China, of much more far-reaching influence will be its effect upon the foreign situation. This effect, in fact, will be two-fold. On the one hand, Sun's death will mean a death blow to Bolshevism among the Chinese masses; yet on the other it appears to be lending, in the inner governmental circle of Peking, a fresh impetus to the influences of Moscow.

In his old age Sun, who all his life had been an impractical dreamer and visionary, espoused the tenets of Bolshevism. By his supporters, the labor elements of South China, they were quickly taken up, not so much for the principles themselves, which little interested them, as for loyalty to Sun, for in China more than in any other country support of a leader mor frequently than not means support of the man himself, regardless of the views that he holds.

Among Sun's followers, and after a fashion, consequently, Bolshevism has seemed to flourish; but it has been a success which could only last so long as Sun held his supporters in line With his death, this false adherence to tenets which for the most part have been neither lived up to nor understoo by those who were supposed to espousing them will also die.

But among another and a different element in China, Sun's recent death has furnished to Bolshevism a new lease on life. Strange as it may appear, the attitude of the Chinese Government in the conduct of its foreign relations is at present inextricably tied up with Soviet influences, and it is just here that Sun's death seems to have been instrumental in strengthening them.

Readjustment of Foreigners' Status.

Within the last few months the Peking Government has concluded a treaty with Soviet Russia, accorded her diplomatic recognition and received the first Soviet Ambassador, Mr. Karakhan Karakhan is an astute diplomat thoroughly versed in Chinese psychology, and being of a country the West has sought to ostracize, he has proceeded with unerring judgment to curry favor with China's political leaders in the most efficient fashion—by aiding and abetting their omnipresent anti-foreign sentiments.

The superior position which foreigners occupy in China by virtue of their early treaties and their present economic hold has never ceased, from the days of the Boxer uprising, to be a constant evidence of this one need only flook the ever-increasing anti-foreign demonstrations month by month.

Russia has not been blind to these outbreaks of feeling, and the entire tenor of her representative's statements both during the treaty negotiations and since his appointment as Ambassador have continued to emphasize and re-emphasize China's shameful position vis-a-vis the foreigner whose treaties place the foreigner in such unwarranted superiority.

Consequently, one of the first announcements of the Tuan Government was to the effect that all treaties with foreign powers where the advantage to China did not equal those accorded the other high contracting party or parties were to be revised or abrogated—and in this announcement the influence, if not the direct hand of Moscow, is all too plain.

In other words, encouraged by Russia, China is beginning to feel her oats, so to speak, and while no radical changes in her treaty relations with foreign powers are looked for in the immediate future, there will surely be readjustments in the years to come, the seeds of which are being planted now.

And Sun's death has given to this movement, if it may be called that, an additional impetus, for it has been seized upon and is being utilized, as was Lenin's, to focus public attention toward Soviet influences in China, especially in high places, simply because Sun, in his dotage, espoused the Soviet cause.

People Too Busy for Politics.

This, then, is the Chinese puzzle as it exists today—and not so puzzling, when once explained, although made up of many elements of uncertainty, as are the problems of every nation.

As has been mentioned, the all-important point to be stressed and restressed is a proper appreciation of the situation in present-day China is to warn against the common fault of overemphasizing the civil wars, the changing Cabinets, the new developments in international relationships all of which are transitory phases (in China, perhaps, to a greater extent than any other country in the world), and which must be viewed and studied from that viewpoint, and that alone.

The dark ways of war, the vain tricks of peace, of the so-called "heathen Chinee," cannot possibly be understood unless one is to realize that they are for the most part carried on by less than 1 per cent. of China's vast millions, more than 95 per cent. of which are indifferent to war or politics and pursue their own hard struggle of making a living.

The nation seems to stagger along in spite of them; the people are too busy about their separate businesses to stop to watch the comedy or tragedy. The very success of the businesses themselves, which grow more and more prosperous year by year, is the best proof possible of how little they are affected by the passing show.

It is difficult for the Occidental to conceive of a situation where political disorders and frequent civil strife could fail to affect the lives of the people forced to live under the conditions which such disorders create.

But the truth of this paradox, as well as its explanation, is that the vast majority of the Chinese are so used to a world where civil conflicts have long existed and so totally unconscious of a government and untaught in the fact that it might be blamed for them, that they pursue their duties day in and day out without giving these problems an anxious moment's thought; while in the busy treaty ports of Tientsin, Changhai, Hongkong and Canton firms buy and sell and foreign ships steam into and out of the China Seas in ever increasing numbers year by year.

TALKING FROM MOVING TRAIN NOW

Dr. Ehrich Huth of Berlin, Germany, has made it possible with his ne winvention to talk over the telephone from one moving train to another or to a stationary phone. Wires strung on the roof of the train send and receive flashes from wires strung along the route. Photo shows how the wires are strung on the train, and inset (left) shows man on train telephoning his wife, and inset (right) the train operator.

SANITARY DISTRICT WAS EXTRAVAGANT

Said Governor of Illinois When He Vetoed Their Bonding Bill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 9. — Criticising the Chicago sanitary district for indefensible and "gross extravagance," Governor Small has vetoed the Chicago sanitary district bonding bill.

It would have authorized the district to increase its bonded indebtedness from 3 to 4 per cent, and according to the district spokesmen men would have produced $20,000,000 for use in constructing sewage disposal plants and in meeting claims of the farmers along the Illinois river whose lands have been flooded. In a recent decision the United States Supreme Court held that Chicago's present diversion of water through the sanitary district canal was illegal. The court however put the matter in the hands of the secretary of war who announced that Chicago would be given time to construct plants for sewage reduction before the reduction was cut down.

PENSION AWARDED AFTER FIVE YEARS

Autopsy Reveals Veteran's Death As Due to War Injuries.

TORONTO, May 9. — As a result of an autopsy performed five years after death of R. J. Cowin, a returned soldier, a pension has been secured for his widow and children. Evidence procured by two Toronto pathologists substantiated the claim that death resulted from diseases caused by war injuries.

Cowin's illness had been diagnosed on his death bed as sleeping sickness. The pathologists found that the actual trouble had been tubercul meningitis. Some two years before he died, while still in the army, he had sustained a severe injury to his head. For months he had complained of bad headaches and had been unable to return to his pre-war work as a section man at Cobourg.

LIQUOR MISSING.

Fifteen Hundred Cases Lost From Cargo of Belgian Steamer.

HALIFAX, May 9. — Following the transfer of sixteen thousand cases of liquor from the Belgian steamer, "Denise," which arrived here on 28th April, from New York Rum Row to the Lunenburg schooner "Integral," check up revealed a shortage of 1500 cases in the steamers cargo.

Several hundred cases have been found hidden in holes and corners of the ship, and even in the ship's water tanks. No arrests have as yet been made. The ship's crew numbers 31.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brady desire to thank their friends and neighbors for the kindness and help that was extended to them during the illness and death of Mrs. Brady's father, the late Robert Riddell. They are especially grateful to those who sent so many beautiful floral offerings, and to Rev. James Grier, who, though a stranger in town, comforted the bereaved with his sympathy and conducted the impressive funeral services.

NOBLEMEN ILL.

Fears Expressed For For Viscount Milner and Earl of Ypres.

LONDON, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—Some fears were expressed this morning for Viscount Milner, former War Secretary, who has been suffering some time from a mild form of sleeping sickness. His condition last night showed a less favorable turn.

The condition of the Earl of Ypres (formerly Field Marshal French), who underwent an operation March 19, was also declared to be not so satisfactory.

GRAHAM BROTHERS IN FIRST PLACE

Dodge Brothers Dealer Cites Performance Record as Reason for Popularity.

Official figures from Detroit for the first quarter of 1925 show that Graham Brothers rank first in the world in the production and sale of 1½ ton trucks.

In the 1 ton and 1½ ton truck fields combined they were surpassed in volume only by Ford. "The information may be surprising to the general public," said V. M. Eastwood, local Dodge Brothers dealer, "but not to us, nor to those who are familiar with the performance of Graham Brothers Trucks.

"Their advance has been without ostentation, but based entirely upon the truck's performance."

Less than three years ago Graham Brothers were in twentieth position. Now they are manufacturing trucks at the rate of over 100 a day marketing their entire output through Dodge Brothers Dealers. This sales and service advantage of a strong dealer organization, combined with the exceptional merit of the truck itself, is regarded as one of the chief reasons for the rapid advance to leadership. Dodge Brothers Dealers everywhere are highly regarded and their service facilities are uniformly above the average. Service is an exceedingly important factor in the operation of a truck and business men are not slow to appreciate the advantage of having genuine parts instantly available when needed. Graham Brothers attribute their rapid advance to the following four reasons:

1. Distinct price advantage.
2. Pronounced quality advantage.
3. Dodge Brothers engine.
4. Substantial character of Dodge Brothers dealer organization.

(Adv.)

Leadership

In the first quarter of 1925 Graham Brothers built and sold more 1½ ton trucks than any other manufacturer in the world.

Publication of these facts is prompted wholly by the belief that truck buyers are entitled to know the trend of the times. With the facts before them, few would consider buying other equipment without first determining the reasons for Graham Brothers rapid advance.

REORGANIZE READY FOR CHURCH UNION

Millbrook Women's Society Receives Resignations of Some Officers.

MILLBROK, Ont., May 9. — A special meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian Church was held on Monday, in the church parlors, at 9 p.m., at which resignations were accepted from members who wished to withdraw from the society, and form a new organization in connection with the continuing Presbyterian Church.

The President, Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan, presided. The attendance was unusually large.

An organization will be effected and be ready to carry on the women's branch of the missionary work of the local church after Union is consummated on June 10th. From the interest shown at the meeting on Monday evening, the membership roll will have a large number of names.

Church Union.

The basis of union as arranged between the congregations of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, and the Presbyterian Church, Centreville, which are not going with the mother church into the United Church of Canada on June 10th, is forty-five per cent. for the former and fifty-five for the latter, instead of forty and sixty per cent., respectively, as at first reported.

Special Services.

Special Mother's Day services will be observed in the Methodist Church on Sunday, May 10, a male choir of about twenty-five voices leading in the service of song.

The special numbers at morning worship will include:

Cornet duet—"Looking This Way," by Messrs. G. E. and Ernest Burnham.

Quartette — "There's An Old-Fashioned Home Over Yonder," by Messrs. W. H. Coombe, M. McDowell, B. B. Dawson and V. C. Lambert.

The evening song service will include the selections:

Prelude—"Our Father in Heaven," by the choir.

Anthem—"Not Unknown," with duet by Messrs. J. L. Byam and M. McDowell.

Cornet solo—"Perfect Day," by Ernest Burnham.

Quintette—"The Summer and the Song," by Messrs. Lambert, Coombe, Byam, Dawson and McDowell.

Anthem—"Now We Will Return."

Response—"Now the Daylight Fades Away."

Morning service is at 11 o'clock and evening worship at 7 o'clock.

A special Mother's Day programme, with address by Rev. J. Wilks, will be given in the Sunday School at 10 a.m.

Former Millbrook Girl.

Rev. Robert J. Stillwell, who has been for some years a member of the Faculty of the DuBois Theological Memorial College, Monteagle, Tenn., has resigned his position on the staff, and is now rector of the parish of Douglas and Fitzgerald, Coffee County, South Georgia.

Mrs. Stillwell (nee F. Patience Byam, formerly of Millbrook) is teaching a missionary study class in connection with the church, using the same book, "China's Real Revolution," which the auxiliaries in Canada took up during the year just closed. The class meets weekly at the home of Mrs. Dickerson, and at the close of a recent meeting a pleasant surprise was arranged for Mrs. Stillwell, a miscellaneous shower of linen, china and other gifts, useful and ornamental, being given her to assist in the rectory furnishings.

Rev. Mr. Stillwell usually takes charge of a parish for the three months, from December to March, when the college is closed, and the very cordial and earnest invitation to remain as rector of his present parish led to the decision to relinquish his college position and permanently return to the pastorate.

Among the delegates to the Georgia Diocesan Convention, which met recently in St. Paul's Church, Albany, were Rev. R. J. and Mrs. Stillwell.

Close Books.

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the Methodist Church has concluded its financial year, and the following statement, the last to be issued before Union, gives an itemized account of money raised in the twelve months:

Annual members' fees	$ 66.00
Life members' fees	25.00
Donations	36.00
Mite boxes	2.67
Public meetings	31.67
Easter thankoffering	95.90
Rest fund	10.85
Other sources	22.76
Total	$290.85

After deducting expenses, $285.00 was sent to the Branch Treasurer. This was $126.00 less than last year, the deficit being accounted for by the fact that in 1924 the auxiliary had a bequest of $100.00 from the estate of the late Miss L. Pendrie, and had three new life members. Mrs. T. H. Aiken made herself a life member this year, and the society has now eighteen of these on the roll.

The group reports are as follows: Miss Mary Widdis, convener, 123 points, amount raised $52.56; Mrs. T. H. Aiken, convener, 103 points, amount raised $56.46; Miss A. Hampton, convener, 72 points, amount raised $48.85; Mrs. O. Williamson, convener, 72 points, amount raised $26.00; Mrs. J. H. George, convener, 48 points, amount raised $22.51; Mrs. J. McKnight, convener, 86 points, amount raised $33.25; Mrs. F. W. Smith, convener, 53 points, amount raised $27.44.

Personals.

Among those from Millbrook who motored to Peterboro on Tuesday evening and attended the Past Noble Grand's evening at Golden Links Rebekah Lodge, No. 81, were: Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. W. Harkness, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. J. W. Hamilton, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fallis, Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Misses C. Hunter, Thelma Ball, Ada Attwooll, G. Harkness, Mr. E. Morden.

Dr. G. H. Needler and Mr. William Needler of Toronto were guests of Mr. A. A. and Miss Etta Needler on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Burnham and family were guests of friends in Peterboro on Thursday.

Mr. E. Moore and daughter, Miss Blanche, 8th line, Cavan, left on Thursday for a two months' trip to England, sailing from Montreal on the "Regina" of the White Star line. This is Mr. Moore's first trip to his native land in over forty years.

Died—In Cavan, Thursday, May 7, 1925, ex-Warden T. A. Kelly, in his 61st year. The funeral will take place from his late residence, 8th line, Cavan, on Saturday, May 9th, at 2.30 p.m. Service at the house at 2 p.m. Interment in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Millbrook.

ENGAGED AT TEN

Canadian lads of 10, who would "lick the stuffing" out of anyone who might imply that they "had a girl," will be just a little bit sorry for Yuvarajah Mandra Singh, son of the Maharajah of Morvi, India's second richest prince.

All of India already knows, and the rest of the world will soon find out, that this boy of 10 not only has a "girl" but already has been betrothed. Never can this lad know the romance of "sheep's eyes" nor the pains of "puppy love."

The parents already have arranged that, upon maturity, he will wed the cunning daughter of the Maharajah of Rajpipla. At that, as the picture shows, he might do worse.

RARE HORSE OWNED WARKWORTH MAN

"Charlie" Used to Win the Race Where Prize Went to Last Horse.

(By A Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, May 9.—William A. Kelly, chairman of the Warkworth Hydro Commission, like all busy men, has a hobby, his particular fad being the collection and preservation of antiques athough in his every day vocation he is up-to-the-minute in every respect.

Speaking of freaks in the animal kingdom, Mr. Kelly was the owner of a horse that was known far and near as the slowest equine that ever wore harness or carried a saddle. That horse, "Charlie," won the slow race at the Warkworth Fair year after year, a race in which the owners of the entries change drivers and in which the horse coming in last takes the prize.

"Charlie" simply could not be persuaded either by whip or voice to exert himself beyond his normal gait. The race was always the last event on the programme for a reason. Once Charlie got on the track he pre-empted it for a space lasting from sunset until midnight. In fact it took him so long to make the half mile circuit that representatives of the Human Society have been heard to complain that no horse should be kept on duty so long without feed and water.

But finally Charlie's abnormal lassitude became a burden to himself and to his owner and Mr. Kelly took the most humane method of putting him out of existence. Charlie is dead at the age of 26, unsually regretted, as a type of a class rare indeed on a community where everything and everybody is injected with the craze for modern high pressure speed.

Mr. Kelly, however, has another antique left. When an oil company offered a prize of 10 gallons of gasoline for the oldest car making the circuit of the track of the Warkworth Fair, Mr. Kelly entered a mode of 1912 of popular make, and won. Occasionally he appears in public driving this possession and when he does no one can accuse him of hiding his light under a bushel. Everybody knows by the rattle that he is aboard.

BID FAREWELL TO DEPARTING PASTOR

Presentation Made to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond at Warkworth.

WARKWORTH, May 9.—A large number of friends met in the basement of the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening for a social time and to bid farewell to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, who left for their new field of labor at Comber on Thursday, and in appreciation of their services and kindness were presented with a purse of money amounting to $150.

The evening was spent in community singing and impromptu speeches from W. E. Hermiston, Rev. S. A. Kemp, W. Smooker, K. B. Booth and Mrs. A. M. Smale and Mrs. W. J. Harper.

Although Mr. Hammond was taken by surprise, he replied in a few well chosen words, after which a dainty lunch was served.

During the two years of Mr. Hammond's ministry as pastor of St. Andrew's Church they won many warm friends, whose good wishes follow them.

Is YOUR Business Protected?

How Jim Grayson Saved His Business

WHEN Jim Grayson's partner died, everybody thought the business would break up. Jim didn't know the ins and outs of photo engraving. He was not a technical man. He was business manager and salesman.

But the business didn't break up. Jim Grayson hired a photo engraving expert to take charge inside, and he carried on. He saved his business. He became sole proprietor.

Further than that, he was able to make a generous settlement with his partner's widow for her interest. How? Because the firm had carried adequate business insurance on the lives of both the partners!

A large number of the friends of Mrs. Roderick M. Davis (nee Mary Huestis, of Toronto), attended her post-nuptial reception yesterday afternoon, at her home, 412 Water street. Mrs. Davis, who wore her bridal gown of white satin and carried premier roses, was assisted in receiving her guests by her mother, Mrs. A. E. Huestis, of Toronto, in taupe cut velvet, and Mrs. R. C. Davison, of Toronto, wearing fuchsia georgette. Mrs. Davis' bridesmaid, Miss Isabel Fisher, of Toronto, also assisted in the drawing room, which, with the tea room, was lavishly decorated with spring flowers. The tea table was charmingly arranged with a central silver basket of tulips, narcissus and daffodils, with Italian cut work linen and blue candles in silver holders. Mrs. Frank Kerr and Mrs. J. M. McHardy poured tea, assisted by Mrs. E. S. Russell, of Toronto, Mrs. Harold Cook, and Miss Isabel Davis, of Toronto. Little Jean McHardy, in a blue silk frock, made a dainty little door attendant.

Abominable Cooking Is Blamed On Englishwomen

LONDON, Eng., May 9.—(Canadian Press).—An eminent surgeon has been denouncing the "abominable cooking of the Englishwoman" and the general unattractiveness of the middle-class table. Few people will disagree with him, the Mirror says editorially. English burgeois cooking is lamentable. But is it not rather a question of sex?

Women are notoriously uninterested in food. They will eat "just anything." An egg and some cakes! The finer shades of cuisine leaves them uninterested. So can we wonder if they are indifferent to the preparation of food. It is men who appreciate good cooking and men who make the best cooks. Possibly the quickest way of teaching our young women to cook decently would be to teach them to enjoy good food—not "just anything." Could not those responsible advocate this treatment? If so, maybe our womenfolk would go to their kitchens with a greater zest, and mere man would share the benefits.

MOTHER'S DAY FROM ENGLAND

Claimed That Origin Was in "Mothering Sunday" of Anglicans.

DAY OF GIFTS

Other claims to the contrary, it was pointed out to The Examiner yesterday that Mothers' Day comes to Canada from England, where most Canadian customs found their birthplace. One of the best known English customs is "Mothering Sunday," kept in the Anglican Church as the fourth Sunday in Lent. The day is observed by paying special attention and homage to parents, more especially the mother.

At this time the children make it an unbroken rule to be at home, bringing with them gifts for their mother, and an effort is made to have something fine for father too. Children and grandchildren vie with one another in the preparation of their gifts for this one day in all the year that belongs solely to their parents.

MOTHER

She'll never forsake you, whatever you do—
Were you down in the gutter, she'd kneel beside you,
Were you covered with shame, she'd stand by your side,
And the hurt in her heart for your sake she would hide.
She will stick to you, lad, though you lose every test;
So the least you can do is to give her your best;
All others may quit you and mock at your fall,
But your mother, undaunted, will come at your call;
She will follow you down to the deep depths of sin,
And love you and nurse you through thick and through thin;
And though she may suffer through what you have done,
She will never forget or desert you, my son.
So long as she lives you are sure of a friend
On whom at all times you may safely depend;
You may wound her by sinning and hurt her with shame,
Should you fail to be true, but she'll love you the same;
So, remember, my lad, as you stand in life's test,
That you owe to your mother your finest and best.

ARTISTES BANQUETTED.

Mark Street Ladies' Aid Entertained Cast in "Strictly Business."

The members of the Mark Street Ladies' Aid who did not take part in the play, "Strictly Business," entertained those concerned at a banquet in the basement of the church on Friday evening at seven o'clock.

It was a merry party and splendid food was served with the spice of wit and laughter. An absolute freedom from restraint was noticed, which tended to include everyone in the bonds of good-fellowship.

The reading of an address and making of a presentation to Mrs. J. Carr constituted an important part of the programme. The address was as follows:

"We, the members of Mark Street Ladies' Aid, hearing with regret of your departure from our midst in the near future, thought we would like to show in some tangible way our appreciation of your service while among us.

By your kindliness of manner and willingness to help in all the work undertaken by the Aid, you have won our esteem; and as a slight token of our love we ask you to accept this ring.

We trust that in all the vicissitudes of life, the Lord's face may smile upon you and that underneath you the Everlasting Arms support and comfort you.

Signed on behalf of the Aid,
Mrs. A. J. Throop.
Mrs. C. H. Mounce.
Miss Elda Whattam.

After the table was cleared it was pushed aside, and various games were played with enthusiasm.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge Presided at Meeting of the Queen Mary Branch.

The Queen Mary Home and School Association held its regular meeting last evening, with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, was in the chair.

The society decided to put in a school library for reference by pupils. A pleasant musical programme followed the brief business session, with instrumental duets played by the Misses Alma Blanchard and Musa Cox, Eleanor Stacey and Marion Moore, a vocal solo by Miss Alma Blanchard, a pianoforte solo by Miss Irine King, readings by Mrs. H. E. Connolly, Miss Vera Green and Miss Irene Cox, and a chorus by the Senior Fourth girls of Mr. M. N. Clark's class. Mrs. C. B. Adair also gave an interesting report of the recent Home and School Council meeting in Toronto.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

A recipe for tomato marmalade that has been acclaimed exceptionally good by those who have sampled the product comes from Mrs. J. R. Heron, 304 Brock street:

Pare and slice without wetting four pounds unripe tomatoes. Boil slowly for several hours, until a large portion of the water has evaporated. For each pound of tomatoes add three quarters of a pound of sugar and two sliced lemons. Boil one hour longer.

WOMEN ELSEWHERE TO BOYCOTT BEER

Will Pass by Store Where 4.4 is Sold—No Action Taken Locally.

Rumors that the local branch of the W.C.T.U. would boycott grocers handling the 4.4 beer were not given effect at the recent meeting, the members saying that the best merchants, they believed, would not take up the sale of the new beverage.

The same "wait and see" plan is not being followed by women in other places. On Wednesday night the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church, London, passed a resolution placing the society on record as favoring something closely akin to a boycott of all those who handle the stronger beer. None of the local Women's Missionary Societies have yet taken this step, but a canvass of the grocers in the city indicates that no many of them will avail themselves of the opportunity to extend their businesses in this direction.

This Is Your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY. May 9—A peculiar trait marks persons born this day. When children they are inclined to be just the opposite of their sex. The young girl likes to be a "tom boy," and the young boy is effiminate, preferring to play with girls instead of boys. Often this trait is overcome in later years, but sometimes the girl, when she grows older, still wants mannish clothes and the boy still retains some of his "sissy" characteristics.

Being born under the zodiacial sign of Taurus, they are generous and have no desire to hoard money.

Mothers' Day

(By Jeannette.)

"When Eve was brought to Adam, he became filled with the Holy Spirit and gave her the most sanctified, the most glorious, of appellations — he called her Eva—that is to say, the Mother of All. He did not style her wife, but simply mother—mother of all living creatures. In this consists the glory and the most precious ornament of woman."

To-morrow is Mother's Day. In the multiplicity of "days" that haunt present-time calendars, ranging all the way from "Eat More Fish" Day to "Save the Forests" Day, this twenty-four hour period that is set apart to commemorate the mothers, dead or living, of the nation, stands out in bold relief.

"Mother," said Thackery the cynic and the misogynist, "is the name for God in the lips and hearts of little children."Whether it is memory that brings back the thought of mother through the smell of spicy cookies, wafted out from a kitchen window, or the longing for a gentle hand on a hot brow in fevered night hours, the thought of a mother is probably the dominant note, realized or not, in most lives.

"Who ran to help me when I fell,
And would some pretty story tell,
Or kiss the place to make it well?
My Mother."

When Sargent painted his famous "Mother" picture, he drew a black-robed figure, with folded, peaceful hands, and smooth, parted hair over a mild brow. A modern artist, seeking for a modern mother, would portray, if he were truthful, an entirely different type. Who shall say that the heart does not remain the same?

"If the whole world were put into one scale, and my mother into the other, the world would kick the beam" were the words of Lord Langdale. Some are not fortunate enough to posses a good mother. In Churchill's story, "The Crossing," the hero excites the most earnest sympathy from his companion and friend because he is unable to respect and admire his mother.

Time and again, on the scaffold or in the chair, it has been noted that the last thought of the convict turns to his mother. Baser loves may have tangled his steps, they may have brought him to the hangman's noose, but they have no power at the last moment. To the woman whose love was the purest he has ever known, self-sacrificing, self-effacing, self-forgetting, the thoughts of the hardened sinner turn at the last. It is the touch of the Divine which lingers in the mind of those of whom it might be well said: "At first the babe feeds on the mother's bosom, but always on the heart."

Emerson said: "Men are what their mothers make them," the old Spanish proverb put it so: "An ounce of mother is worth a pound o clergy;" and the Good Book, in its Proverbs: "One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters."

Napoleon the First so honored and revered the influence of mothers that he declared: "France needs nothing so much to promote her regeneration as good mothers," and De Beaufort asserted: "The future of society is in the hands of the mothers. If the world was lost through woman, she alone can save it."

In her "Maternity," Katharine Tynan Hinkson voices the heart throb of the mother:

"There is no height, no depth, my own, could not set us apart,
Body of mine and soul of mine; heart of my heart!
There is no sea so deep, my own, no mountain so high,
That I should not come to you if I heard you cry."

Over against the thought of the mother, with the sweetness which it seems to invoke, is the idea of the mother-in-law, with its contrary effect. "There is no good mother-in-law," says the Old Proverb, "but she that wears a green gown," and Gifford declares: "While my wife's mother lives, expect no peace."

Again: "All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That is his." So wrote the gloomy Oscar Wilde, in "The Importance of Being Earnest."

"But one on earth is better than the wife. That is the mother," said Leopold Schefer.

And the tragedy of the home that has lost its mother is in "The Widowed House."

"Within your house that's widowed,
Love's nest is bitter cold!
Love goes with drooping pinions, his pulse's slow and old;
Your baby cries all night long for you he never knew,
The dust is over all things: the grave dust over you.

"'Twere like you to hasten, putting the glory by,
To kiss your love's cold forehead, and still your baby's cry,
"'Twere like you'd come stealing, a little ghost in white,
To rock a tiny cradle in the hushed moonlight,
To whisper to a sleeper 'till he should dream and wake,
And find the strange new comfort, and lose the old heart-break."

AN ALL-LACE FROCK

The all-lace frock will have an important place in the summer wardrobe, and will be much more practical than it sounds, for it is made up on the simple lines that are so popular this year. This one adds nothing in the way of trimming, and relies upon the beauty of its design and its color—which is cornflower hue—for its appeal.

A RECEPTION.

Mrs. R. B. Marshall Was Entertained Following Her Wedding.

On Wednesday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas LaPointe, a reception was held in honor of their daughter, Margaret, now Mrs. R. B. Marshall.

Mrs. Maxted, mother of the goom, received in black satin trimmed with novelty braid. Mrs. Le Pointe, mother of the bride, received in black canton, trimmed with Chantilly lace.

Music was provided by Aitken's orchestra, and cards and dancing were enjoyed.

HARP OF ERIN SUBJECT TALK

Miss Margaret McCabe Gave Address at Catholic Women's League.

THOMAS MOORE

"The Harp of Erin and Thomas Moore" was the title of an exceptionally interesting address on the Irish poet given at a concert held recently under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. The speaker, Miss Margaret McCabe, held the attention of her hearers throughout with an eloquent review of the life and work of the Bard of Erin.

"Among the grandest and most ancient titles which history gives to Ireland is, "The Land of Song." She alone, among all the nations of the earth, has for her national emblem a musical instrument."

Miss McCabe referred to the influence of the Emerald Isle on those composers within her borders, in the inspiration given by his Dublin sojourn to Handel, when he wrote his greatest oratorio, "The Messiah", and also alluded to the assertion made by the same master that he would rather be the composer of the lovely old Irish melody, "Eileen Aroon," than be the autoh of all the work that came from his pen. This air "Eileen Aroon" was later annexed by the Scotch, who christened it "Robin Adair."

In 1367 the "Statutes of Kilkenny" forbade Irish minstrels to enter the English Pale, but the officers often sent out in secret for the bards to entertain them. Then Queen Elizabeth, saying "We can never conquer Ireland as long as the ministrels are there," passed a law appointing a man to hang every man that was a harper. "But, in spite of all this, the bards lived, down to the time of O'Carolap, who was the last of the line. He died in 1738, just forty-one years before Thomas Moore was born. It seemed as if the last star in the firmanent of Ireland's bards had set. Then the hour came—and the man; Thomas Moore."

A review of the life of Thomas Moore followed, giving in entertaining fashion glimpses of the life of Ireland's Poet and the characteristics which made him a popular member of the society world of his time.

"To the dim past", the address concluded, "belongs the glory of Ireland's poet, but his spirit lives on down through the ages in the haunting melodies which he immortalized when he took into his gifted hands the dear Harp of his country, the long silent Harp of Erin, swept its chords to the ancient lay and wakened again its slumbering strain."

PROMINENT CITIZENS TELL HOW EVERYONE MAY AID IN MAKING PETERBORO A CITY BEAUTIFUL

School Children Are Learning Value of Floral Decoration at Homes.

IMPROVE VALUES

Dr. T. W. H. Young Stresses Health Value of Cleanliness and Beauty.

In order to obtain ideas and suggestions regarding means by which the City of Peterborough could be improved from the standpoint of beauty, interviews were sought with a number of people who had the civic interests at heart. It might be stated that in the majority of cases these ideas were given freely, showing the general enthusiasm entertained in this regard.

Everyone wants a more beautiful city; it but remains to let natural desire promote attainment. If a people combine in wannting a thing, countless records show that they get it. Beauty is natural, but industrialism has destroyed it. Why should that same industrialism not be given the task of re-establishing and regenerating that which formerly existed, for, while beauty is natural it is also true that it can be cultivated.

Leon Frazer, in discussing the possibilities of Peterborough as a beautiful city said: "Peterborough is situated in a valley between seven hills and has plendid natural drainage. The soil is remarkably fertile and productive. Ample proof of this is evidenced in the reports of is evidenced in reports of judges of lawns and gardens, who state that the home adornment in that respect is as good as can be found elsewhere though much could yet be done by the addition of ornamental shrubs.

It has been the object of the Horticultural Society to improve unsightly corners as, for exampl, Park and Reid, Smith and Dennistoun, and other property which belongs to the city but is too small to come under the head of parks.

While the factories of late years have done much to improve their sites, much could yet be done by further planting of flower beds and the use of window boxes.

The Horticultural Society has taken action in getting the authorities to plant shrubs and plots on the various school grounds, and it is also noted with pleasure that the Patriotic League of Ashburnham has planted a number of striplings on Armour Hill.

The Flower Show is an annual affair to stimulate the culture and love of flowers and by the people preparing exhibits they add much to the attractiveness of the city. The children in the schools are being educated along this line and are given seeds free of charge and permission to enter their flowers in a special class.

Roses are among the most decorative of flowers, yet they are little grown in Peterborough, due possibly to the great attention necessary for success in their cultivation. Yet this extra care is amply repaid by the results which might be obtained. An enlarged vision in this regard is essential if the future Peterborough is to be an improvement upon the city upon the city of today.

There is a littl, creek which winds through the city from Jackson Park. This stream carries a burden of filth and refuse and passes along banks laden with garbage piles. Think of the change which could be effected by the judicious application of soil where necessary and a liberal treatment of grass seed. At least the entangling maze of weeds should be removed.

In the location known as the James Stevenson Park, a place of beauty rivalling that of famous Belle Isle could be made. It requires vision and money, but what has been done, can be done; that can be accomplished which has never before been attempted. Think of that huge dump by Hunter Street bridge filled and used for other purposes than a public eyesore, and then think of the islands, at present waste land, which might be linked by rustic bridges and converted into a fairyland of delight.

The King Edward Park as it now stands is a howling wilderness which might be caused to blossom and be a "thing of beauty and a joy for ever."

But it will take time for these changes to be effected and in the meanwhile one must wait impatiently till others arrive at conclusions and deliberate as to lines of procedure. Things can be done in a small, unassuming way which will make Peterborough a more restful place to look upon.

Homes which are beautiful now can be beautified still further. Anyone knows that money spent in this way serves to enhance the value of a property and is not, therefore, lost.

Those who rent homes should also make their homes beautiful, because of the effect which beauty has upon children. Children accustomed to squalor and filth will be men and women who exist in it, while those brought up in an atmosphere of beauty will radiate it.

Improve Entrances.

R. W. Cormack, the president of the Horticultural Society, said the entrances to the city from the south and also the Port Hope highway should be made as attractive as possible. On account of the formation of the Ontario Tourist Association, the roads should be made more beautiful as first impressions on entering a city are usually most enduring and the traffic sponsored by this organization is considerably increasing.

Vacant lots should be kept clear of weeds; this is the responsibility of the land owner, and a request has already been made to the police officials that they enforce the by-law regarding this.

The exits from the city, that is, the northern roads, should also be kept in good condition so that those on leaving the city have a good impression left on the mind.

Considerable work is being done in educating the people, more especially the children at school. To further this, a Junior Horticultural Society has been formed, and it has already a membership of 862 youngsters who are pledged to make the city beautiful. These children have the privilege of entering the flower show free of charge, and may compete for special prizes. The school getting the greatest number of prizes receives a special award.

"I would like to express my appreciation to those in charge of the schools for the aid received in distributing seeds, and for their co-operation in instructing the children in proper methods of planting and care for seeds and plants," Mr. Cormack said.

He remarked that the Society was looking forward to the best flower show ever experienced.

"It will be possible if earnest help on the port of every on is given," he said.

Merchants Could Help.

J. Wells Frazer suggested that the merchants use flowers and ferns in their windows. "The display of growing things in the windows should not only enhance the beauty of the display but would prove more pleasing to the eye," he said, "for the public likes flowers and growing things."

"Old fences should be dismantled and buildings of an unsightly nature scrapped or repaired. Vacant lots should be attended to and the growth of weeds destroyed. Weeds have been noticed possibly as much on city property as any other land. We can call to mind at present the land bordering the Goose Pond, which is a favorite resort for Normal School students as the search for weed seeds is made in the fall. The students should not be able to find a weed seed in the city."

Proprietors of shops should avoid flaming colors in their painting operations. It is all very well to paint but there is paint and paint.

There should be no gas tanks on main thoroughfares as they only serve to aggravate congestion.

Cemeteries should be kept in good condition, having in mind the one on Hilliard Street.

Backyards adjoining railways should be cleaned, as many transients get their opinions of a city while passing through it.

"We should ask ourselves," concluded Mr. Frazer, "what we would think of Peterborough if we should see only the array of congested yards and dirty sooty houses bordering the tracks."

Cleanliness First.

Dr. T. W. H. Young opened the discussion with "cleanliness," announced in stertorian tones.

"Cleanliness," he said, "is the first essential and is the underlying principle of beauty. The present system of cleaning the streets could be greatly improved. They should be flushed nightly by water from the hydrants. By this method all dust and consequently, germs, would be washed down the sewers.

"Yards and cellars must be kept absolutely clean if we are to have a beautiful city. This will eliminate the fly pest, which is responsible for so many ill-appearing shop windows in the summer months. Incidentally this would eliminate a great germ carrier.

"The people should be educated to keep their lawns and yards in good condition and flowers and shrubs should be planted more profusely than is now done, the Medical Health Officer thinks.

More trees should be planted along the streets to take the places of those which are dying out and new trees should be started on the recently added streets and boulevards.

Trees are far more beneficial to the morale of a city than is generally understood, and the more planted so much more healthful will the living conditions be.

Telegraph and telephone poles should be removed from the principal streets and the cables placed under ground for, whereas living trees add to the beauty of a place, dead ones in the form of ugly poles detract.

"By all means keep the approache to the city clean," said Dr. Young "Plant avenues of trees along the highways and make the entrances inviting.

When people are pleased with a place they will come again, and the oftener they come, the better will it be for Peterborough. The reputation as a city beautiful would certainly be an attribute which would not be unprofitable.

"I want a CALORIC before I clean house again"

The CaloriC costs less than stoves necessary to heat same space. Saves ⅓ to ½ your fuel. Made and guaranteed by the largest manufacturer of warm-air furnaces in the world.

CALORIC

Hundreds of thousands of women, every spring and fall, must face the drudgery of house-cleaning.

They know that heating stoves and pipe furnaces fill their homes with dirt, and smoke up the curtains and wall paper, and they want to get rid of these out-of-date methods.

The patented CaloriC Pipeless Furnace keeps the fuel, kindling and ashes in the basement—and thereby largely eliminates house-cleaning.

We sell the CaloriC on the basis of "Satisfaction or money back." A splendid time to get a CaloriC is just before you clean house. The next best time is just after you clean house so that your house may stay clean.

See us at once and learn why more than 125,000 users in Canada, Alaska and the United States prefer the CaloriC to any other method of heating.

BERLIN PREPARES FOR DISTURBANCES

Precautions Taken to Guard Against Trouble When Hindenburg Enters.

BERLIN, May 9 (United Press). —Berlin today looked forward to possible disturbance and violence in connection with the entry of Field Marshal von Hindenburg into the city Monday for his inauguration as president.

Hindenburg will be inaugurated formally Tuesday.

Drastic precautions against outbreaks are being taken.

The Vossische Zeitung publishes supposed secret instructions to members of a mysterious Nationalist organization, believed to be the Berlin Protective League, directing its members to carry concealed truncheons during Hindenburg's reception.

DRAFTING NOTES TO SEND TO GERMANY

French Cabinet Preparing Notes on Security Pact and Violations.

PARIS, May 9. — Drafts of two notes, one dealing with Germany's alleged violation of the treaty disarmament clauses and the other in reply to the German security pact proposals, have been prepared by Foreign Minister Briand's staff, and are being submitted to the Cabinet to-day.

The draft reply to Germany, without altogether rejecting the Reich's offer of a security pact, sets forth the conditions France believes that such a pact ought to fulfill in order to become a reality.

Finance Minister Caillaux to-day was empowered by the Cabinet to make his financial plans question of confidence before parliament.

The Cabinet approved the outline of his plans, which will not be made public till next Tuesday.

MURRAY COUNCIL

WOOLER, May 8—At a meeting of Murray Council recently the citizens of Wooler were given permission to fill in a cellar at the side of the Town Hall.

The council voted down a motion to pay no travelling expenses in connection with township business, inside the township limits.

It was proposed by Councillors Austin and Macdonald that an order be drawn in favor of T. C. Jones for $6.00 for a trip to Belleville on the C. N.R.

A by-law was passed setting the date for council meeting hereafter on the fourth day of each month except when that day shall fall on Sunday, then it shall be on the following day.

The following orders were drawn on the treasurer: John Rogers, $2.50, labor on road between lots 12 and 13; Herb. Wessels, $93.60, for cedar; David Teal, $692.13, pay sheets for roads (March and April); O. L. May, $4.00, refund statute labor; The Pedlar People, $291.80, for 10 steel culverts; T. C. Jones, $5.00, expenses to Belleville re road instructors; W. W. Crews, $100.00, balance salary as tax collector; Gordon Anderson, $42.50, repairs on road equipment; Edward Pitt, $4.00, error in dog assessment; W. A. McColl, $3,577.50 to retire note. Receipts of day, $2.50.

NEW STRENGTH FOR WEAK GIRLS

Pale Anaemic Girls Regain Health Through the Rich, Red Blood Made by

Dr. William's Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality---and more

HERE IS THE PROOF:

Miss Matilda Brean, King Highway, Newcastle, N.B., says:—"I was in an extremely run-down and nervous condition. I was losing flesh, had a poor appetite, always pale, and suffered frequently from headaches. In fact my condition can best be described as miserable. I had tried several treatments, but they did not help me in the least. Then, reading one day about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I decided to try them. After using three boxes I was much improved, but continued until I had taken six boxes, with the result that I am now well and strong, with good color and a hearty appetite. In view of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me I cannot recommend them too highly."

Other weak, ailing girls can obtain new health, as Miss Brean did, by giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEWSPAPERS IN U.S. FLOURISHING

BERLIN, May 8.—(Associated Press).—The United States leads the world in the number of newspapers published within its borders, 30,000, according to the newspaper Germania. France is second with 10,000.

The figures, however, tell a different story when the newspapers are compared to the number of inhabitants. On this basis Switzerland stands first with 270 newspapers for every million inhabitants, and the United States is second with 250. In England the proportion is 98 papers to each million of people.

DEBT OF CAVAN HALL REDUCED

Bazaar Proceeds of $321 Applied to Fund, Leaving $800 Balance.

CHURCH'S NOTICE.

CAVAN, May 9.—The proceeds of the bazaar, supper and play, given in Cavan Community Hall on Thursday evening, under the auspices of the hall board of management, was very gratifying to the committee in charge

The bazaar in the afternoon was well patronized, and the articles exhibited found a ready sale. The greater part of the articles offered for sale had been donated, so that there was not much expense in connection with it.

The play, entitled "Aaron Slick from Pumkin Creek," was full of wit and humor from beginning to end.

An orchestra supplied music between acts. Mr. A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., gave a short interesting address on "Community Halls." The proceeds were $321 with more to hear from.

This brings the indebtedness on the hall to a sum amounting to about eight hundred dollars. Considering the initial cost, the committee are to be congratulated.

Mrs. F. B. Carley was down from Leaside for the bazaar and supper.

Mrs. John Staples, who has spent the winter in Peterboro, is in Cavan.

Unionist Invitation.

At a special meeting of the trustees and officers of Cavan Methodist Church, the following resolution was passed and forwarded to the union committee of the Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook:—

"To Whom it may concern:

"Whereas the Union of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, the Methodist Church of Canada, and the Congregational Church of Canada takes place on the tenth day of June, 1925.

"We, as a Methodist Church in Cavan, purpose entering the United Church of Canada on above date, and as there may be those who have not been members of our church, living in our community, who desire to enter the United Church and thus co-operate through the United Church in the greater work of further promoting the Kingdom of God, a cordial invitation is extended by the officials and membership of the Cavan Church to all such, and we pray that in their choice of a church home they may be guided by the highest motives and actuated by the loftiest desire to promote the true interest of the Kingdom of God."

Sail to England.

Mr. Edwin Moore and daughter, Miss Blanche, left on Friday morning, via C.P.R. for Montreal. From there they will sail on the "Regina," of the White Star Line, and expect to land at Liverpool. They will visit relatives in Leicester and Norfolk, also at Rugby, in Warwickshire, for a couple of months, returning the latter part of July.

HIP BROKEN IN FALL.

OMEMEE, May 9.—Sad are the circumstances which surround the accident that befell Miss Jane Feir, an aged resident of Omemee, on Wednesday afternoon. Miss Feir was enjoying an afternoon in social intercourse in the Sunday-school room of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church while a number of ladies quilted, and afterward attended the missionary meeting.

While several of the ladies were making preparation for lunch in the kitchen Miss Feir was walking around, viewing the quilts, etc., and had occasion to go to the summer kitchen. Upon her return, she did not notice the step, about a foot high, and fell to the floor. She made very little complaint, and after being lifted to a chair ate her lunch and talked freely. After lunch, the ladies were going to have her try to use the injured limb, but she had no use of it. She was carried to her home a short distance away, and medical aid was quickly summoned, and upon examination the doctor found the hip bone is broken. The accident has cast a gloom over the village, and especially those who witnessed the occurrence.

Mr. F. G. Sandy commenced on Thursday to dig the cellar for his new home in Lindsay.

Messrs. P. Race, D. Weir, J. Bushwell, Wesley Wilson and Geo. Henderson attended the quarterly official board meeting at Bethel on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham, of Peterboro, were the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. C. McCaffrey, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clemett and sons, of Lindsay, visited the former's brother, Mr. A. Clemett, on Wednesday evening.

Cottage for Happiness

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN

NEW YORK, May 9 — "It is in the home and in the little wooden churches at the country cross-roads —not in the massive stone edifices of large cities—that the real influence for good is exerted."

Such is the observation of Dr. David James Burrell, 80-year-old pastor of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church, after more than 50 years of preaching—the greater part in his church on Fifth Avenue.

It is interesting to note in passing that Dr. Burrell has just been named by President Lewis of George Washington University on his all-America "intellectual team." The list consists of "the men now living who have had most intellectual power and influence over the social and business life of America."

"For in the little country churches," says Dr. Burrell, "there are none of the frills, the furbelows, and the theatricals that mark the services in the religious institutions of the large cities.

"Here there is too much effort at display, too much competition for respectability. Congregations seem more anxious about respectability than decency.

"The great thing needed in life is honesty—and it is in the home that we have the greatest approach to this forgotten virtue.

"For there—in the happy home—is God at the family altar."

But single blessedness is rare.

"Of course the single person has his place," says Dr. Burrell. "Christ himself was a lone man. The happy and useful lives of many unmarried men and women are in constant evidence; but these are the exception and not the rule.

"The normal condition is marriage. The path of happiness is wide enough for two.

"Marriage is not a 'failure'; nor a 'lottery.' But there is no place in the divine economy for a marriage of convenience. It is a perversion of the order of nature and a travesty on God's ordinance. If love is wanting your home will not be better than a lodge in a garden of cucumbers.

"On the other hand, the nearest approach to heaven is 'love in a cottage'."

Dr. Burrell speaks feelingly. For his had been a "love in a cottage" in which wife and husband worked side by side, until she died.

Born in Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Dr. Burrell moved to Freeport, Ill., then the Indian village of Wynneshiek, in 1850. His family came over the mountains in a covered wagon. There, as a boy, he met Lincoln. On his graduation from the theological seminary he began work in the slums of Chicago.

"In a store on West Van Buren street," muses the pastor, "I worked with my wife. She played the melodion, while I preached. And so we worked on together for 47 years."

Dr. Burrell's first pastorate was in Dubuque, Ia. — at a small church. After 11 years there he went to the Westminister Church in Minneapolis where he stayed four years, until called to his church in New York. This church was founded in 1628, and is believed to have the longest continuous history of any in America.

He has been preaching at this beautiful temple on New York's most fashionable street for more than 23 years. Yet he feels that he probably exerted more influence in his small church back in Dubuque than he does here.

"For there," he says, "the parishioners gathered for good and righteousness; while in the large cities, they seem to come for display."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

To the Editor, Examiner:

"And He spake a parable unto them saying, the ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully" (Luke xii, 16). Also this parable, "A certain man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard, and he came and sought fruit thereon and found none" (Luke xiii, 6). Also, "Then said He unto him, a certain man made a great supper, and bade many . . ." (Luke xiv, 16). "And he said, a certain man had two sons . . ." (Luke xv, 11). "And He said also to His disciples, there was a certain rich man which had a steward, and the same was accused unto him that he had wasted his goods" (Luke xvi, 1). "There was a certain rich man which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day" (Luke xvi, 19).

In the above verses, the Lord Jesus tells us of at least one of the everyday events in the lives of six men. No doubt, from what we can gather, they were all rich or well-to-do men. And it is an easy matter to believe that these are boni-fide men who actually lived and these common events actually transpired in their lives.

Our purpose, at present, is not to speak of the truths which the Lord Jesus taught and illustrated by these events. But we wish to drive home the fact that the Lord Jesus stated absolute facts concerning these six men. The man would indeed be a fool who would accuse Him of stating a lie in order to teach a truth. There was one with his rich land, another with his fig tree, and yet another makes a great supper. Then another one had two sons, and the other man had a dishonest steward. Then the last rich man clothed and fed himself. These are all events pertaining to this life. But (and there is always a "but" comes in to spoil the fairest things of this life).

In the case of the first man, that "but" brought him to the end of all his wealth, for God said, "Thy soul is required of thee," and the curtain falls and the man's future is hid from our vision. But in the case of the last rich man, the Lord, in mercy, lifts the curtain which divides time from eternity and shows us what comes after death. Yes, and perhaps the first and the last is one and the same man.

We believe that every sane reader is convinced that the Lord Jesus spoke the truth when He stated that this man actually died and was buried. And here we come to another "but." There was one thing that his friends could not do for him. They could not restrain his soul, that God had required, from passing on to eternity to answer to the neglected claims of the God who gave it.

But, alas! he has at last awakened to the fearful reality and force of the well-known but neglected truth contained in the 9th Psalm, "That the wicked shall be turned into Hell, and all the nations that forget God." There is no hint that he was what anyone would call a wicked man. But there are two things painfully evident in the narrative he had (like multitudes in these days) forgotten God. And he neglected the salvation of his soul. He had neglected to apply to his own soul God's remedy for sin. God had said, "When I see the blood I will pass over you." And again He had spoken through the prophet Isaiah, "But he was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, the chastisement of our peace was upon Him, and with His stripes we are healed" (saved), Isaiah liii, 5.

Every Jew was conversant with God's remedy for sin; he knew that God had said, "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin." But he had feasted his body and famished his soul. He had clothed his body for time and let his soul go naked for eternity. And, fearful experience! he has awakened to the fact, but it is forever too late. He had had his chance and missed it. Terrible memories sweep over his soul—he can see, feel speak and remember. He cries out to Abraham for water for relief; but he neglected to take the water of life when on earth, and now it is forever beyond his reach. Then he turns his thought to the danger of his five brothers who are still in the body, living on the earth, and prays that Lazarus may be sent to them with a message. But Abraham answers, "They have Moses and the Prophets." That is the Word of God in the Old Testament scriptures, and if they won't hear the Word of God, neither would believe the testimony of one who rose from the dead.

We would close this rather lengthy letter by commending the readers of The Examiner to the careful and prayerful study of the above scriptures as they are the words of One who spake as never man spake, and who dwelt in both time and eternity at the same moment. Thanking you, I remain,

Yours very truly,

T. C. Yonge.

CUTS ARE DANGEROUS.

Children Shed Shoes at First Sign of Warmth—Guard Feet.

At this season of the year many children shed their shoes.

Playing in the streets, alleys or yards there is constant danger of cuts from glass, tin, old pieces of metal, or of having their feet pierced by rusty nails.

Many mothers do not realize the danger that lies in small cuts.

Blood poisoning may result from a very slight wound. Hundreds of deaths occur every year because of carelessness in the care of a slight cut.

If the wound has been made by a nail or a splinter, be sure the piercing object is removed. Do not touch the wound with unclean hands. And do not permit unclean cloths to touch it.

Open the wound with a knife, and permit it to bleed freely, and then saturate it with a solution of carbolic acid, one teaspoonful to a pint of water. Peroxide of hydrogen or iodine is good.

Bandage with antiseptic bandages.

While there is not always danger from blood poisoning, a physician should be called to see that the wound is properly treated.

Reduce Highway Transportation Costs with Concrete Roads

We need more permanent highways. We need highways free from dust, mud, bumps and ruts. We need highways that save gasoline and repair bills, highways that are not a constant drain on the taxpayer's pocketbook.

We need rigid, unyielding, enduring highways able to withstand heavy modern traffic, highways that won't wear out, highways that are easily maintained at little cost.

Concrete highways are permanent. They meet all the requirements of modern motor traffic, save gasoline, tires and repair bills for the motorist and ease the burden of the taxpayer.

The boy was not injured, and was able to proceed to his home without attention. The occurence was reported to the police by Mr. Parsons.

MANY DROWNED IN MISSISSIPPI

Steamer Turned Turtle and Sank, Drowning at Least Twenty-one.

NEGRO HERO.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 9—(Canadian Press).—Twenty-one persons are known to be dead in the sinking of the Government steamer Norman last night, according to a statement issued this morning by Mayor Paine. The steamer, a 150-foot vessel, had fifty persons on board, many of them excursionists returning from Cow Island in the Mississippi River. The boat was moving along smoothly when it suddenly began to sway and then turned completely over and sank in a few minutes. The river banks were searched all night by steamers with powerful lights in the hope of picking up any persons clinging to wreckage.

It is believed the accident was caused by too many people crowding to one side of the boat. The passengers had no time to get lifebelts or launch life-boats, and all were swiftly swept down stream.

But for Tom Lee, a negro, who was passing in a motorboat, virtually all would have been lost. He first rescued the women and then turned to the men clinging to pieces of floating wood. Going coolly about the work, he lugged one after another aboard, and took them to shore. How many he pulled out and carried to the shore where they found refuge in a negro cabin, none of the survivors could say.

MOST OLD FOLKS REQUIRE A HEART AND NERVE TONIC

After middle age little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly as the heart action becomes weak and uncertain and the nerves are not as steady as they were in the younger days.

Now is the time when all aged people who wish to maintain their health and vigor and retain their energy unimpaired should use

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, and fainting spells. I was advised, by a friend, to try Milburn's H. & N. Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since. I am 80 years of age and I always keep them in the house, and feel that with their help I will see many years yet. I always recommend them to anyone who is suffering from heart trouble."

FISHIN'

Give me a rowboat, a couple of oars, and a sun shining bright over head. Fetch me some bait, and some fisherman's stores and some ham and a loaf of rye bread.

Point to the spot where the fishin' is fair, and give the old rowboat a shove. Grant me the strength just to row myself there, so I'll be in the life that I love.

Plunk! goes the anchor. I'm settled at last, and I wiggle a worm on a hook. Swish through the air, and a line is soon cast. A bobber is riding the brook.

Run along, world, 'cause I'm busy just now. Busy at loafin' and such. Sure, I can fish, for I've always known how, but the fishes aren't bitin'—not much.

Might just as well take it easy a spell, and sneak me a half an hour's snooze. Can't miss a lot, for it seems, at this spot, that there aren't any fishes to lose.

Say? Where's the sun? Why, the night time's begun. I've slept all the afternoon through. True, fishin' is slick, but if I have my pick, why, I'd rather just sleep—wouldn't you?

FABLES ON HEALTH.

If clothing adheres to a burned surface soften with water before trying to remove it.

Many persons become frightened when their clothing catches fire, and run, fanning the flames.

This is especially true of children Mothers should teach their children to roll on the floor or the ground when the clothing catches fire.

Also to grab any old cloth, an old quilt, comforter, blanket, robe, or anything of the kind, and wrap themselves in it.

In this way the flames may be smothered.

After burned clothing has been removed, wet the injured part with water and apply baking soda.

Lard, oil, tallow, molasses or moist flour will do in an emergency.

Afterwards mix soda, glycerin and water to make a thin paste, adding a little carbolic acid.

White lead paint is said to be a good remedy for burns. Mix as for painting, but considerably thicker, and apply with brush.

THE COACH'S JOB

Something of the taskmaster, the general and the diplomat, and a lot of the doctor must be hidden away in the man who would be the coach of a successful football or track team.

Emergencies of all kinds are his daily routine. A thorough knowledge of first aid is as essential as a knowledge of the game played by his men.

Bumps, bruises, strained ligaments and muscles are every day happenings, but the coach never becomes contemptuous of them. He knows that if neglected, they may result in anything.

Trainers everywhere keep Absorbine Jr. in their lockers. They use it not only for sprains, cuts and bruises, but for the skin and blood protection of its disinfecting properties. In one convenient container it combines the functions of a number of preparations.

It is the first of all the First Aid requisites in use in all of the leading athletic clubs.

And there are just as many everyday uses for Absorbine Jr. in the homes of Canada as there are in the training camps. Always "jump to it" in case of emergency. $1.25 at your druggist.

SISLER HITS ANOTHER.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—(Canadian Press).—Urban Shocker, who met Joe Bush on the mound here yesterday after their recent exchange of clubs, pitched almost air-tight ball and the New York Yankees defeated the St. Louis Browns, 12 to 0. Bush was batted out in the second inning. George Sisler hit safely in his twenty-third consecutive game of the season. Score:
New York . . . . 060200004—12 15 0
St. Louis . . . . 000000000— 0 5 6
Shocker and Schang; Bush, Vangilder and Dixon.

WASHINGTON 4, CHICAGO 3.

CHICAGO, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—The White Sox defeated the Senators 4 to 3 yesterday in the first game Washington has played in the west since winning the world's title last fall. Both the starting pitchers were forced to retire, and Lyons and Mogridrge to succeed the hill engaged in a pitching duel, in which Lyons had the shade. Score:
Washington . . . 200000010—3 13 1
Chicago . . . . 30000001x—4 7 2
Zachary, Mogridge and Ruel; Thurston, Lyons and Schalk.

BOSTON 15, DETROIT 7.

DETROIT, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—Wildness of Detroit's pitchers, combined with hard hitting by the Red Sox, gave Boston a 15 to 7 victory over the Tigers here yesterday. Twelve Boston players went to the plate in the eighth, scoring seven runs. Score:
Boston . . . . . 103301070—15 15 0
Detroit . . . . . 010000303— 7 10 1
Wingfield and Picinich; Collins, Holloway, Stoner, Wells and Woodall.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

So many golfers have trouble with what commonly is called "lifting the head." The trouble lies back of that. The fellow who swing again and again at the ball without hitting it is not "lifting his head." He is trying so hard to hit the ball as hard as he can that the very force of his effort forces his shoulders upward, and of course his head goes up, too. This is body lunging at the ball and the sorry part of it is that, even if such a player did connect with the ball, he wouldn't hit it half as hard as he thinks he would. The real golf swing is a springy, resilient action that has a close relation to throwing a ball or a stone. You draw the golf club back as you would draw back your arm with a stone, then let go, with an "underhand" throw the same as you would skip a stone across a pond.

SOUTHWORTH TO GIANTS' RESCUE

Cleared the Bases in the Ninth With Runs That Beat St. Louis.

BOSTON JUBILEE.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(Canadian Press). — Billy Southworth, outfielder of the New York Giants, was the hero in one of baseball's great situations yesterday—ninth inning, three men on, two out and two runs needed to win. He drove a home run into the right field stands, giving his team a 5 to 2 victory over St. Louis. Score:
St. Louis . . . . 000100010—2 7 0
New York . . . . 000010004—5 9 2

CELEBRATION AT BOSTON.

BOSTON, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—The Boston Braves defeated Chicago, 5 to 2, here yesterday, in the golden jubilee game of the National League, celebrating fifty years of baseball history. Prominent citizens—state, city, military and naval officials, high baseball dignitaries and about fifty gray-haired "old timers," some of whom played in the first game of organized baseball half a century ago — saw the contest.

The Braves got to Alexander early and hit him hard for six innings. Genewich pitched well for the Boston club, and held the Cubs in check while his teammates ran up a winning score. Score:
Chicago . . . . 000002000—2 8 1
Boston . . . . 00111200x—5 14 0

HASTINGS TEAM WON FIRST GAME

Beat Warkworth, 8-3, in Fast Exhibition Game Wednesday.

READY FOR LACROSSE

HASTINGS, May 9. — The first baseball game this season was played on Wednesday afternoon on the Athletic grounds when Warkworth gave the locals an exhibition game. Some local players helped make up the Warkworth line up as they were short.

The visitors put up an excellent game of ball for the first of the season.

The locals won the game by the score of 8-3. Wm. Wellman acted as umpire at the plate and M. J. Murphy as base umpire.

The line ups:

Warkworth—C. Zufelt, p; Brown, c; Zufelt 1b; Clifford Baker, 2b; J. Drury 3b; Gorman, ss; N. Thompson, rf; Twidy, lf; B. Scriver, cf.

Hastings—S. Stevenson, p; Nelson Scriver, c; Art Dodd, 1b; K. Cruikshank, 2b; A. Lemoire, 3b; J. Gould, ss; A. Cassidy, rf; L. Scriver, lf; C. Waye, cf.

Lacrosse Team Ready.

The midget lacrosse team has been organized for the coming season. Many of those interested turned out to the meeting to discuss the organization of a team. Mr. W. R. Learmouth was appointed manager and Patrick Howard was selected as captain of the team. Judging from the number of boys exhibiting lacrosse stick skill plenty of good material for a first class team seems available.

PETERBORO GUN CLUB'S OPENING

Five Lakefield Shooters at Local Traps Friday Evening.

FIRST OF SEASON.

The Peterborough Gun Club held their opening shoot last night and among the visitors were Messrs. Tanner, Webster, Spence, Hendron and Renwick from Lakefield. Two, fifteen and one, twenty bird events were pulled off and the high man proved to be Mr. Eldridge of the local club. He was right on and broke 46 out of 50, winning the spoon. Roy Hutchison was second with 40 out of 50. Lakefield shooters did pretty well as there was a very high wind. The club is going to shoot every Friday evening and will be pleased to see any of the local gunners at the traps.

Following are the scores:

	Broke	Shot At
Eldridge	46	50
Hutchison	40	50
Graham	37	50
Webster	35	50
Hendron	35	50
Spence	24	30
Dean	24	45
Tanner	22	40

PETERBOROUGH MAN SUCCESSFUL IN OIL

James Winch, a Former Resident, One of Firm Who Brought in Well.

The following extract from the Laredo, Texas, Times of April 30, deals with the activities of a former Peterborough boy who has achieved success in the oil fields of the south western United States. James Winch, of the firm of Henne, Winch and Fariss is a son of Mrs. Annie Winch and the late George Winch, former residents of Peterborough and a nephew of Pennington Alexander of Peterborough who visited the oilfields mentioned a number of times during the past winter which he spent with his sister, Mrs. Winch, at Laredo.

"Henne, Winch and Fariss Number 1 is the greatest producer yet. "Shooting a six-inch stream of oil about twenty feet above the top of the derrick, with a production estimated at 4000 barrels per day or better, the Henne, Winch, and Farriss No. 1 well brought in on the Martinez ranch of Jim Hogg county late Tuesday afternoon at a depth of 2,048 feet, less than a mile south of the Henne, Winch and Fariss field of Jim Hogg county, has proven the wonder well of the Laredo district."

HUSKIES OUT TO GRAB THIRD WIN

Rusty Callow's Washington crew again looms up as the best bet in the annual collegiate rowing classic at Poughkeepsie in June. The Huskies have most of last year's veterans back and hope to make it three victories in a row.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY

Today is a busy day in the sporting world. First, there is the debut of this year's Petes, who combat with the Cobourg team, playing in the Durham and Ontario Intermediate League. This is at Riverside Park (the typewriter refuses to print James Stevenson Park on the sport page; it does not hesitate for council meetings). Then there are several soccer games at various parks and the cricketers hold forth at the exhibition grounds. The tennis players are out at the various courts which are ready for the season's play.

The various managers of the City League have been calling out their teams for practice and all report good turnouts. Bill Prindible had about forty hopefuls out at the K.C. juvenile practice last night and is in a nice fix—he doesn't know who to keep. Lew Lebarr had enough for two teams and is in the same quandary. Player limits are not needed in this league, however, as a team can only carry as many men as there are uniforms, so that the trouble often found in the Toronto leagues, where one team will hog all the players and keep them on the bench, will not be found here.

A meeting of the executive of the Central Ontario Baseball League was held at Cobourg on Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of ratifying officially the schedule and list of umpires. From what came out of Oshawa a short time ago, one would be led to think that affairs were being run from there without anyone else having any say at all.—Kingston Whig. What the Whig says very often appears to be true.

The appointment of Alex. Kay, George Sullivan, Ken Colling and Si Dell as official Central League umpires is being hailed with satisfaction by every club in the league.

Now and then the sun comes out for a few minutes and puts joy into the hearts of the baseball fans but then Ol Sol goes behind a cloud and the next day is as dreary as ever—and the opening game only ten days off.

Johnny Oulette, of Belleville, who has been the subject of much discussion during the past two weeks, was not protested at yesterday's meeting of the C.O.B.I.L. If a protest is lodged, it will likely be made when the committee meets in Oshawa on Saturday, May 16, to pass upon players' certificates. It has been stated that Oshawa would likey be one of the clubs to protest but so far as is known locally, nothing of that nature has been decided. Kingston were apparently the originators of the discussion and if a protest is made, it will likely be from that quarter. Without Oulette the Trunks would be badly handicapped.—Oshawa Reformer.

THE MARKETS.

were 5,070 cases, as compared with 2,148 for th same day last week, and 3,981 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 1,281 packages, as compared with 826 for the same day last week, and 3,359 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no new developments in the situation, business being still slow, and what little demand here was was for fresh made goods with the result that holders of held-creamery are finding it difficult to liquidate. There was no change in prices, but the undertone to the market was easy.

No. 1 pasteurized held Creamery was quoted at 32c to 32½c per lb., No. 1 Creamery at 31c to 31½c per lb., and No. 2 Creamery at 30c to 30½c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 3,123 boxs, as against 13,603 for the same day last week, and 2,178 for the corresponding day a year ago. The feature of the day in the trade was the keen competition between two houses for the offerings of Western Ontario Cheese at the auction sale and the impression was that they were short of supplies to fill contracts made with the result that prices ruled higher than was generally expected. Apart from this the market was quiet with a little business passing over the cable, but the demand on spot was limited and prices were unchanged with Western No. 1 White quoted at 17⅞c per lb., No. 1 Colored at 17⅝c per lb., Eastern No. 1 White at 17⅜c per lb.

MONTREAL CHEESE AUCTION

MONTREAL May 8 — At the United Dairymen Co-operative Auction Sale held here today there were 1,245 boxes of Ontario cheese offered of which 134 boxes No. 1 White sold at 17¾c per lb., 338 boxes No. 1A Colored at 17¾c per lb., 347 boxes No. 1B Colored at 17¾c per lb., 342 boxes No. 1C Colored at 17⅝c per lb., and 16¾c per lb. was bid for 84 boxes No. 2 Colored with 16¾c per lb. asked.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

DOUBLE PLAYS

Double plays were a prominent factor in the winning of a pennant by Washington.

Double play helped Washington to a world championship.

It is just possible that the ability to successfully complete a majority of two-play killings will make the Chicago White Sox a troublesome club to beat this year.

"More ball games are lost through failure to complete possible double plays during the season than through any other error of commission," says Manager Eddie Collins of Chicago.

"Just failing to get the second out by a matter of inches, invariably means the difference between victory and defeat."

I second all that Eddie Collins has said about the value of the double play.

The White Sox manager has impressed the importance of this feature of play on his club. As a result the summary usually contains a couple of such plays by Collins & Co.

Under Collins, the White Sox are playing snappy, smart baseball. Unquestionably the club has a good defence. Its offence and pitching are yet to be determined.

THE UNEXPECTED

The importance attached to backing up a play in baseball is only apparent when the execution of same is faulty.

Little thought is given the catcher as he backs up first base for a probable overthrow on the part of some infielder, if it is accurate.

It is when he fails to back up and the play goes wrong, enabling the runner to take an extra base, that the fans realize the player has slipped up on one of the fundamentals of the game.

When the pitcher on a throw from the outfield to the plate backs up the catcher, no thought is given the act is the throw is accurate and the ball is properly handled.

It is when the throw takes a bad bound or is wide of the plate and goes on to the grandstand, because the pitcher has failed to play proper baseball, that the importance of the move is made manifest.

Recently in a game at Chicago I saw an unusual play that brought to my attention all the more forcibly the value of backing up on every play.

A Chicago player hit a fly ball to left centre. Wingo, the Detroit left fielder, called for the ball. Manush, the centre fielder, however, continued to back up the play.

The ball went right through Wingo's hands, but to the amazement of the crowd, it was caught by Manush. Wingo getting an assist on what was really an error.

It was proper baseball on Manush's part. It proved that it pays to back up, even though a great majority of the time, no apparent good results.

MAKING GOOD

"I hope to bat at least 40 points better than I did last season," was a remark George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns made to me in the training camp in Florida.

"Sisler can't hit a low ball," repeated the pitchers of the American League in a chorus, when apprised of Sisler's opinion as to his batting average.

"Keep the ball low and inside and he isn't a .300 hitter," said the star twirlers.

Apparently, the dope has gone wrong somewhere. Sisler proceeds to hit safely one or more times in his first 15 games, averaging well over .400.

That makes it appear that Sisler will make good the prediction that he would bat 40 points better than last season, when he just made the select circle of .300 hitters.

It might be well to mention that Sisler has made practically all his hits on low balls inside.

COMING THURSDAY FRIDAY SATURDAY

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Everything seemed rosy this morning. Birds were twittering practice notes, summer not having sufficiently far advanced to allow them to warble their best songs. Buds on every tree were opening, without making a noise about it. The creek was babbling merrily without hurting anyone.

Spring Poets.

And then right here on the desk were half a dozen poems on spring. At least they seem to rhyme here and there, and seem to be cut off about the same length, and one gentleman asks me to tell him if I will please, in the inclosed stamped envelope, whether his contribution is good poetry. That raises the suspicion that the effusions are poems. The same gentleman wishes to know whether in this dreadful money-grabbing age a poet has any chance to support himself without taking a political appointment as a s deline.

Upon the first point—whether his composition is good poetry or not—or even if it is poetry at all—I do not consider myself competent to pass. Upon the second item, however, there are some thoughts that seem pertinent without being impertinent.

Any age is a good age for poetry, and any place or environment. Poetry is one plant you cannot destroy, it will grow in any climate, though spring is its principal germinating time.

And this day of money making is as favorable to poetry as any other. If you don't believe it, go ahead and write some. All I ask is that you don't send it to me.

The poet is one man you can't keep down. You can cheat the laborer of his just due and grind him under your capitalistic heel; you can refuse to promote the deserving clerk; you can overlook and even deride the merits of the schoolmarm; but the poet—nay, nay! you cannot stop him.

He may not make a living. Great poets seldom do. He will probably starve and die young. But he will succeed, nevertheless, as Keats and Poe and Francis Thompson succeeded. And after his death learned professors will give lectures upon him and if he lived in Peterborough all true Peterboroughites will refer to him with a familiarity indicating that he was one of the family.

So if you are a genuine, honest-to-goodness poet, don't worry. You will arrive, in spite of Tophet and tidewater. If you do not, you are not a poet. So there you are. Anyway, you never can tell till you have been dead twenty or thirty years.

And in the meantime these rhyming lines on Spring cannot appear to distract the people's attention from the real spring outdoors—even if they did mine.

How wonderfully wise a man would be if he were half so wise as he tries to make other people think he is!

Music Week.

So this was music week! The only indication of it in Peterborough came at the tail end in a belated announcement at Kiwanis luncheon yesterday. What a different reception it would have had next week, with two of the stellar musical programmes of the season booked for Monday night! Rev. James A. MacKenzie, one time pastor of Knox Church, is returning for the occasion to sing at the Choir Concert, and at St. Paul's the galaxy of brilliant artistes beggars description. Agnes Adie, Soprano; Jessie Butt, Contralto; Harry Binns, Tenor; Frank Oldfield, Baritone; Mrs. Gerald McClelland, Elocutionist, supported by a sterling orchestra, promise a wealth of variety in the highest talent.

If Peterborough missed music week completely when it should have had it, it is at least possible to make up the omission next week.

Rev. Mr. MacKenzie during his eight years' service here showed himself not only a good preacher and a good fellow but a good singer. His rich baritone voice will be heard on Monday in an old favorite with Knox Church audiences, "The March of the Cameron Men." Having a good Scotch name undoubtedly helps in the rendition of so Scottish an air. "Tally-Ho" is another song in his repertoire that has taken well.

Martin B. Chenhall, of St. Paul's, has a record of achievement in musical circles that compares favorably with any, and has excelled himself in preparing for Monday's concert. Duets, trios, quartettes, anthems, and selections from the Cantata "Walpurgis Night" are on the programme, and George Howarth has something especially good in the orchestral line.

Peterborough's music week is next week, and is featured by two entertainments of exceptional merit.

Music hath charms, but nothing is so charming as a love of music.

GASOLINE TAX STARTS MONDAY

Premier Announces Regulations Covering Three Cents Per Gallon Impost.

NAMES PENALTIES.

TORONTO, May 9 (Canadian Press). — Premier Ferguson announced today the regulations governing the three cents per gallon gasoline tax which comes into effect on Monday. The regulations provided how the tax is to be collected, under what conditions it will be remitted, to whom it applies and the penalties for non-observance. The premier states that a person selling or delivering gasoline shall by way bill or sale note in writing show the cost of the gasoline, and separately state to the purchaser, the amount of tax imposed.

Reinforcements With Heavy Artillery on Way to Moroccan Battle Line.

PARIS, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—The French columns in Morocco are beginning to get reinforcements in preparation for a movement which, it is believed, will drive Abd-el-Krim's tribesmen back into the Spanish zone. Heavy artillery is on the way with which they intend to bombard the enemy's entrenched positions.

DAM COMPLETED.

Great Makwar Dam on Blue Nile Irrigates Thousands of Acres.

LONDON, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—The Morning Post states that the great Makwar Dam on the Blue Nile in the heart of the Sudan was completed yesterday in advance of the contract date. The completion of the work opens up 300,000 acres of cotton-growing land. The dam cost in the neighborhood of forty-five million dollars.

MINERS WILL STRIKE.

Belgian Cola Miners Refuse to Accept More Than Five Per Cent. Cut.

BRUSSELS, May 9 (Canadian Press)—Ninety-three per cent of the fifty-one thousand miners in the Belgian coal fields today voted to strike if the mine owners reject the men's proposal to accept a five per cent reduction in wages, provided the second five per cent cut planned for June is abandoned.

SELL NEW BEER ASCENSION DAY

Church Feast Chosen as Occasion to Launch 4.4 in Ontario.

ORDER SIGNED.

TORONTO, May 9 (Canadian Press).—The order in council authorizing the sale of 4.4 per cent. beer was signed today by Lieut.-Governor Cockshutt, and May 21 as the date of sale is confirmed by the Premier. A revenue of $6,000 is expected from the thirty Ontario breweries which are to pay a tax of $200. This tax is also imposed on non-provincial breweries operating warehouses in the province, in addition to the $5,000 tax on such breweries which is imposed to protect the provincial concerns.

CITY MARKET ACTIVE TO-DAY

Eggs Scarce at 27 and 28 Cents—Butter 38 and 40 Cents.

SYRUP AT 60.

Dairy supplies at the farmers' market were soon depleted this morning. Eggs were scarce the available supply selling at 27 and 28 cents a dozen. Butter was 38 and 40 cents a pound. Chickens were very scarce also, and were priced at 30 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint.

Little boys with buttercups and trilliums, red and white, were selling their wildflowers at a nickel a bunch in the upper section, and downstairs were little boxes of plants at the same price, with roots of bergamot, violets, evening primrose and Canterburry bells.

Strawberries at the fruit stall were 25 cents for a pint box. Local gardens have their plants just beginning to bud out.

One vendor had maple syrup at 60 cents a quart. The fish men, in fierce competition, were selling fresh herrings at 7 for 25 cents, salmon trout at 20 cents a pound, and the mudcat which are so recommended for their boneless composition.

A single load of mixed wood on the open market was $7.50.

Offered for sale was a touring car in good condition, with a black top and a shiny new blue body, priced at $650.

The dealer who brings in his Spy apples for sale on the open market had good-looking apples at $1 and 80 cents a peck, and Ben Davis were offered farther on at 40 cents a peck.

Potatoes, "in an 80-lb. bag," were selling at 60 cents.

Little pigs, red and white, were $13 a pair. The curiosity of the crowd over something unusual was manifested in their desire to find out just why one man had segregated his half dozen porklings in small separate boxes, instead of the usual big crate. Lack of the latter was probably the main reason, but the crowd surged about the three little boxes to inspect with careful attention the small grunters enclosed in separate cases.

LIQUOR SEIZED.

Constable Storey Captures Brand New Car and Gallon of Whiskey.

LINDSAY, May 9. (Special.) — Provincial Constable H. Storey yesterday made his biggest seizure in connection with illicit liquor. He was in search of a man said to be the king of the bootleggers, and ran across a cousin, Joseph Freeburn, in Mount Pleasant swamp, on the Bobcaygeon Road. Freeburn was in a newly purchased car, and in the car was a gallon of whiskey, the constable declares. The car will be confiscated, and now stands in the gaol yard.

THEATRES

CORINNE GRIFFITH HERE SOON IN GREAT FILM, "DECLASSE."

Star Promises Masterpiece in Film of Ethel Barrymore's Stage Hit.

Corinne Griffith Productions, Inc., announces that "Declasse," which First National will offer at the Capitol Theatre Monday, is the most pretentious work of Miss Griffith's individual producing career. It advances the following facts in substantiation of this statement:

"Declasse" was originally written in play form by Zoe Akins for Ethel Barrymore, and that star found it a highly successful vehicle, not only for a long run on Broadway but an extended tour, as well, thus proving its entertainment value.

It was this proof, as well as the ideal role it affords, which prompted Miss Griffith to purchase the screen rights. And she has surrounded herself with a supporting cast of unusual proportions for picture. Included are many names which, themselves, have enjoyed the supremacy of the stellar lights—Clive Brook, the distinguished English actor; Lloyd Hughes, whose recent promising work caused First National to place him under a five-year contract; Louise Fazenda, former Keystone comedienne, and others.

As Lady Helen Haden, Miss Griffith has an extensive and varied field for the exercise of her histrionic talents. She is introduced as an English society leader, surrounded by the luxuries and gayeties of London's exclusive life.

Through the manipulations of an adventuress, this suddenly vanishes, and the drab severity and sensationalism of the divorce court befalls her.

Disgrace and ostracism follow, with New York next. Then destitution and the forced acceptance of a detestable marriage offer from a money-lender.

These are the chief phases of life Miss Griffith depicts, and they lead up to a highly emotional and thrilling climax in an automobile accident in the streets of Manhattan. But through this misfortune, she escapes the money-lender's clutches and finds her true love.

AT THE ROYAL

COUNTRY STORE, MONDAY NIGHT, AT ROYAL

"Country Store Nite," on Monday, will have some new surprises. Some genuine laughs are assured as well as worth-while prizes.

"FIGHTING THE FLAMES" FOR ROYAL

Dedicated to firemen the world over, "Fighting the Flames" is said to be the greatest story of the life of a fireman yet produced. The cast includes Dorothy De Vore, Frankie Darrow, clever child artist Sheldon Lewis, David Torrence, Charlie Murray. It is scheduled for the Royal for the last half of next week.

AT THE ROYAL—C Daily Zeihr MARY PICKFORD IN "DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL" AT USUAL ROYAL PRICES ON MONDAY.

Picturizing "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the most famous of the Charles Major novels, stands out as one of the cinema events of the year, presenting Mary Pickford in her greatest role. Her thoughts having dwelt so much upon the filming of this story, Mary has given her whole herat and soul to the creation of her newest screen personality.

A most capable cast of players will be seen in her support. Allan Forrest is the lover, Sir John Manners, and Marc MacDermott is the villainous cousin, Malcolm Vernon. Anders[illegible]andolf makes an ideal father for D[illegible]y Vernon, and Wildfred Lucas is [illegible]arl of Rutland. Clara Eames, fa[illegible]or her portrayal of queenly roles o[illegible]speaking stage, brings to the scr[illegible]characterization of Queen Elizab[illegible]at is a revelation of histrionic art.

Among the other players of note are: Lottie Pickford Forrest, Malcolm Waite, Courtenay Foote, Howard Gaye, Estelle Taylor, Mme. Carrie Daumery, Eric Mayne, Colin Kenny and Lewis Sargent.

The production is lavish, no expense having been spared in erecting stately mansions and mediaeval castles. Scenes of pageantry and revelry are presented with picturesque magnificence.

Under the capable direction of Marshall Neilan, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall" has renewed interest in the romantic costume drama of the screen. The photography by Charles Rosher is the most beautiful ever done by this well-known cameraman.

It is something unusual for a production of this type to be shown at such low prices as are now being charged at the Royal. The original music score used at the New York presentation has been secured for the engagement here.

A very attractive evening gown of heavy pink silk crepe de chine is trimmed with black velvet rose petals.

LADY BOWLERS HELD BANQUET

Enjoyable Function in Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium to Present Prizes.

MANY WINNERS.

The officials of the Young Men's Christian Association were hosts last evening at an enjoyable banquet in the gymnasium tendered the ladies who have formed during the season the two leagues of lady bowlers at the Y.M.C.A. About seventy-five girls, members of the ten teams comprising the Ladies' Bowling League of the Y.M.C.A. and the five teams in the Y Mercantile League, attended the banquet, which was a very enjoyable event. Present last evening were several of the Y officials with their wives, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. D. Loomis and Mr. and Mrs. F. McNeeley. Colored streamers of blue and yellow decorated the tables, with huge bowls of bright yellow cowslips. Mr. Bert Caldwell, of Cobourg, acted as a popular entertainer during the evening, and a musical programme also included a pianoforte duett by the Misses Florence Giroux and M. Archambault, vocal solos by Miss Trucie Pearson and readings by Mrs. F. McNeeley. Group songs were led by Alex. Donelly, with Chas. Sedgewick at the piano.

Mr. Max. Sloan acted as toastmaster. The toast to the Lady Bowlers was proposed by Miss M. Ross and responded to by Miss D. Burgess, to the Winning Teams of both leagues, by Miss Marjorie Evans and responded to by Miss C. Adams captain of the Buttercups, in the Y League, Miss C. Fitzgerald, captain of the Maples, in the Mercantile League, Miss A. Ryley, of the Golds, in the Y League, and Miss G. Kirn, of the Mercantiles.

A vote of thanks to the executive of both leagues was proposed by Miss C. Adams and seconded by Miss L. Elliott, the combined executive responding with a composite bow. A vote of thanks to the Y officials, proposed by Miss Vera Burgess, was acknowledged by Mr. G. H. Roper.

The members of the L League presented Mr. Max Sloan, who has had charge of their bowling activities throughout the season, with a Waldemar gold chain and knife, and presentations to the winning teams were made as follows:

A Crown Derby cup and saucer to each of the Buttercups: the Misses C. Adams (captain), M. Ross, V. Burgess, F. Pammett, E. Eagleson, C. Doughty, M. Lancaster, V. Buckham.

A china cup and saucer to each of the Dandelions (runners-up): the Misses D. Burgess (captain), E. Nichol, A. Ryley, E. Richardson, M. Herridge, T. Paxman, F. Williams.

The above players were winners in the Y.M.C.A. League.

To Miss E. Nichol, winner of the high average of 135 and the high single of 248 a Coalport plate was presented, while Miss G. Kirn, winner of the high three games, received a candy jar.

In the post series of the Y League games, the winning team, the Golds, and winners of the high singles, each received a handsome silver spoon, the handles formed of bowling emblems, in crossed pins with a bowl end. Members of the Golds are: the Misses A. Ryley (captain), M. Ross, E. Hall, E. Eagleson, G. Coon, B. Smith, C. Smith. Winners of high singles, ranging all the way from 208 to 257, were the Misses G. Stinson, D. Collins, G. Coulter, C. Adams, G. Kirn, E. Rae and Mrs. A. W. Clysdale.

Bronze medals were awarded the six girls on the Maples team, winners of the Y.M.C.A. Mercantile League, in the first schedule: the Misses C. Fitzgerald (captain), A. Wallace, C. Buchanan, E. Sloan, B. Pogue and L. Thompson.

In the second schedule, winners, the De Laval team, received silver Eversharp pencils and chains. Members were the Misses G. Kirn (captain), A. Sloan, B. Sloan, A. Shaughnessy, T. Pearson, H. Rescoe and E. Forster.

For the highest average and highest single, in the first schedule, Miss Ada Shaughnessy received a bracelet as a prize.

Ladies in charge of arrangements for the banquet were the Misses Doris Burgess, Alice Ryley, Grace Evans, Aleitha Davidson, Gertrude Kirn and G. Gollop.

BASEBALL PRACTICE.

Only One Car Delivers Results Like These

There is only one car that delivers Chrysler results and that car is the Chrysler Six itself. Consequently Chrysler popularity continues unabated. You are invited to study these results at first hand.

First you will observe that the tremendous power is vibrationless at all speeds. It represents a step forward in motor smoothness and efficiency as important as the overlapping power stroke of the six in contrast to the old two-cylinder—opposed engine.

You will also experience new riding qualities. A new type of spring mounting, with rear springs mounted close to the hubs and parallel to the wheels, makes it possible to drive the Chrysler around turns at 50 miles an hour. Side-sway and road-weaving are eliminated.

All these qualities, as well as many other features that distinguish the Chrysler Six from all other cars, are properly appreciated only when you ride in the car. For that reason we are always eager to demonstrate Chrysler results. A telephone call is all that is necessary.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Chrysler dealers and superior Chrysler service everywhere.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

We know of no record, that Satan's lie, "Thou shalt not surely die," was generally accepted by earth's inhabitants before the last seventeen centuries. During this time up to the present the lie has been received by the majority of the people, and accepted as truth. Theologians and others have added other lies, some of them far exceeding Satan's original lie, in their awfulness. These additional lies had to be manufactured, and told out, in the endeavour to prove that Satan did not lie, but told the truth. Those who repeat a lie, and give it out as truth when they know it to be a lie, put themselves in a bad position. Those who are the first fruits of the great harvest to come have no lie in their mouth.—Rev. 14:5. M. T. Butcher.. 1d110 11049

King George Performed Formal Ceremony at Noon To-day.

LONDON, May 9 (Canadian Press).—King George opened the second British Empire Exhibition at Wembley at noon today, to the accompaniment of roaring artillery and the music of massed bands aggregating 1,200 musicians. Accompanied by the Duke of York, who is president of the exhibition, the King and Queen and Prince Henry arrived in a state carriage escorted by Life Guards.

Following the formal opening, a service was conducted by the Bishop of London.

LIBERTY IN ARMS TRAFFIC APPROVED

Prohibition Applies Only to Export of Arm to Individuals.

GENEVA, May 9 (Canadian Press) — The smaller countries represented at League of Nations international conference for control of the traffic in arms and munitions today won a signal victory when they succeeded in securing general approval of the principal that liberty of traffic instead of prohibition shall be the basis of convention.

The campaign of the smaller countries for this point was inspired by a fear that they would be placed in an unbearable position of dependency on the great arms manufacturing countries for a legitimate supplies of arms and war materials, if probibition of the export of such materials remained the fundamental principals of the conference.

The resolution proposed by the smaller countries and adopted by the conference provides that the basis of the proposed convention shall be:

First—Prohibition of exports of arms and munitions to individuals; and second, freedom of exports to Governments under certain conditions. No delegations voted against the resolution although China insisted that the "liberty of the arms traffic will astound the world which had expeced different things from this conference."

NO LETTERS FROM FORMER EMPEROR

Has Not Communicated With Hindenburg Since the Latter's Election.

HANOVER, Germany, May 9 (Canadian Press)—There has been no communication from the former Kaiser to Field Marshal von Hindenburg since the latter's election as President of Germany, it was definitely stated yesterday at Hindenburg's headquarters. The last exchange of letters between the Field Marshal and his former Emperor occurred January 27 when the General sent his customary birthday greetings to the ex-kaiser, the headquarters statement added.

Numerous proposals of marriage are reaching Hindenburg in the mass of letters that continues to pour in daily.

LOCAL HOTELS ARE UNCERTAIN

Some Will Tear Out Bars to Handle the New 4.4 Beer.

CONSIDER COST.

There is a general air of uncertainty manifested by the proprietors of hotels of the city regarding the sale of the new 4.4 beer. While some few are pronounced in their declaration to stock and serve the beverage, others consider the cost and consequent wrecking of establishments on which considerable money has now been spent for decorative purposes.

S. Fisher, proprietor of the Munro House, says he is now decorating and making improvements in his dining room and kitchen, and a few hundred dollars added for beer dispensing purposes will aid in attracting tourists.

D. N. King of the King's Hotel, says that he also will keep the beer provided that he can obtain a license. He will board up his bar and install tables.

Can't Be Worse.

F. Montgomery, manager of the Montgomery house, said, when questioned, "Sure I'll keep it, it can't be any worse than the stuff we've got now."

Chris. Graham, of the Empress, was uncertain, though he was inclined not to favour the selling of it as a thirst quencher. He says that he will wait to learn more about the regulations governing it before he decides definitely.

Wm. Fisher, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, said that he did not believe that he would keep the beer, but would give no positive decision, and A. T. Johnston, of the Windsor House, replied that if the necessary permit could be obtained he certainly intended laying in a supply and making the changes demanded by the authorities.

HANG GUILTY PARTY IN DIVORCE CASE

Dean Inge Offers Suggestion to Permit of Remarriage.

NEW YORK, May 9. — The Very Rev. W. Ralph Inge, "the gloomy Dean," of St. Paul's Cathedral London, advaned what he said was his personal solution of the divorce problem at the farewell luncheon given him by the Forum Magazine at the Century Club.

"I have sometimes thought," he said, "that the best thing would be to hang both of the guilty parties so that innocent survivors may marry again without breaking any laws of the church."

STEAMER AGROUND ON ATLANTIC COAST

The Danish Ship Hans Jensen Went on Rocks at Blind Point.

HALIFAX, May 9. — (Canadian Press).—The Danish steamer Hans Jensen went on the rocks off Blind Point, Nova Scotia, last night. The crew was still standing by this morning, but was ready to leave in the life-boats at any moment. The telegraph operator at White Head, near the scene of the accident, said in a telephone conversation that the steamer's engine-room was flooded. He said there was practically no sea running. Wrecking steamers have started from here to the scene and the Government's steamer has been advised to stand ready to give assistance.

The Hans Jensen is of 2,533 tons, owned by Albert Jensen, and said to be from New York for Montreal. May 5, in ballast. No passengers are aboard.

City Manufacturers Are To Be Well Represented

Made in Peterborough Fair, in Aid of Peterborough Health Association, Making a "Hit."

The list of manufacturers to take space in the Made-in-Peterborough Fair, to be held in the Armouries during the first week of June, is rapidly being added to, and it is expected every line of manufacturer will be represented. Space may be obtained from any member of the committee.

Every committee is working on the details of the Fair to which they are allotted, in such a manner as to insure its complete success. It will turn out to be the biggest thing of the kind ever attempted here—and as the funds are for the support of the Health Association, the committee is able to secure the aid and cooperation of hundreds of citizens who desire to see the affair a big financial success.

OBITUARY.

ALEXANDER KELLY.

The death occurred in Cavan on Thursday of Alexander ("Sandy") Kelly, ex-Warden of the Counties, and one of the old residents of the district.

WILLIAM LEAHY.

After only a short illness, William Leahy, of Lot 2, Concession 7, passed away at midnight in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The deceased was in his sixty-fifth year, was born in Douro and lived there all his life.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing wife and seven children.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at St. Joseph's Church and thence to St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro.

Around The City.

Bert McLeod denies the report that he is considering taking over the Nugent Drug Store.

While turning from Park east into Sherbrooke this morning an automobile carrying a long picture rail inflicted heavy damage on another. The rail swept along the side of the second car, making a series of dents. The owner of the picture rail amiably admitted his forgetting the long tail his car carried and paid for the damage.

On Friday there were two calls received at the Fire Department, both for chimney fires, and this morning there was another call for the same reason.

At 10.53 a.m. Friday, called to 273 Bethune street.

NEW STEAMER ON ST. LAWRENCE RIVER

Navigation Company Extending Facilities For Expected 4.4 Boom.

KINGSTON, May 9 (Special to The Examiner).—With the coming of the 4.4 beer the tourist traffic is expected to boom on the St. Lawrence. The Thousand Islands Navigation Company has purchased a new steamer, The Frontenac. It has arrived here from Quebec, and will be put on the river route the middle of next month.

IN MEMORIAM

McCASKIE.—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Elizabeth McCaskie, who passed away May 9, 1924.

One year has passed and gone
Since one we loved so well
Was taken from our home on earth
With Jesus Christ to dwell.
The flowers we placed upon her grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath,
Shall never fade away!
Our lips can't tell how we miss her;
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God only knows how we miss her
In our homes that are lonesome today.
—Sadly Missed by Daughter and Grandchildren.

ALBERTA COAL
of Quality
WHAT IT IS!

A bright, clean, comparatively hard coal, produced in large lumps.
Not a soft coal nor yet a steam coal, but the next hardest coal to anthracite.
Ignites rapidly, giving heat quickly, lots of it, and when it is wanted.
Burns with a bright flame, and with less draft than anthracite
Produces little smoke, no soot, tar, or sticky stuff.
Burns entirely into ashes; no sifting required.
Conducive to comfort, pleasure and satisfaction.
An ideal coal for furnace, heater or kitchen stove.
Will easily keep a good fire over-night, with dampers closed.
Free from slate or rock; better than anthracite; it is all coal.
IT IS ESSENTIALLY A HOUSEHOLD COAL.

ORGANIZED SEARCH OF LINDSAY COUNTRYSIDE BY MOTORISTS ON SUNDAY FAILED TO LOCATE BOY

Forty Automobiles Ranged Nearly Twenty Miles Around the Town in Vain Effort.

ONE SLIM CLUE

New Counter Check Book From Store Next to Hodges Found.

LINDSAY, May 11.—(Special.)—A most thoroughly organized search entered into by hundreds of Lindsay citizens Sunday, failed to throw much light upon the disappearance of young Charlie Hodges, who has been missing since last Monday evening.

Under the direction of Mayor Graham and Ald. Moore, chairman of the Police committee, the citizens met at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and 40 automobiles left Lindsay to cover the country side for fifteen or twenty miles around the town. The thoroughness with which the search was prosecuted, is indicated by the fact that one car covered 123 miles during the day.

Swamps and woods were searched, the people of the countryside were interrogated with practically no result.

The nearest approach to a clue was the discovery of a counter cheque book from the store of T. A. Fisher, situated next door to Hodges' restaurant, which was picked up in a swamp near the Pleasant Point school. The book was in good condition and had evidently been there but a short time and its discovery is of some interest in view of the statement of Mrs. Drake, the Fenelon Falls fortune-teller that when young Hodges left home he had a book in his hand.

Dragged the River.

While the motor car search was being conducted, the Scugog river was being thoroughly dragged. A boom was thrown across the river and some 10 or 12 men working with pike poles and grappling hooks, dragged the stream from the locks to Carew's mill without finding a trace of the missing boy. At the same time many launches and canoes were employed in the hunt.

One party of searchers were told by a farmer near Washburn's Island that if they would question a certain individual living in Lindsay they would secure some valuable information as to the boy's whereabouts.

The police are looking into that tip as they have followed every clue that has developed. Their theory, however, is that the boy was drowned, but there are many who refuse to believe that he met death in the Scugog..

Search By Boy Scouts.

Saturday morning the boys of the different schools assembled at the armouries, where Scoutmaster J. T. Hornsby divided them into squads, each squad being in charge of a member of the local troop Boy Scouts. The northern area of the town was mapped out and this was thoroughly combed. The reports brought in told the same story of failure.

His Worship Mayor Graham and Chief of Police Umphrey undertook a quiet investigation Saturday. They interrogated Mr. and Mrs. Hodges relative to certain matters, which, while not important in themselves, might, it was felt, give a slight clue to work on. The parents could give no information, however, that would aid in a speedy solution of the mystery.

His Worship and the Chief visited Fenelon Falls during the day and acted on a little information which they received. They were not there long when they found that the said information was an output of the rumor mill. They also visited the home of a Mr. Henderson, whose two little girls, it was stated, were picked up by strangers in a car a few nights ago and carried as far as Glenarm. They found out, however, that the children had merely been taken for a ride by a relative.

TAIL SPIN KILLS THREE.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 11.—A. Claron Nelson, former superintendent of the western division of the air mail service, and two other men, who have not yet been identified, were instantly killed here Sunday afternoon when an airplane piloted by Nelson went into a tail spin and fell from an altitude of one hundred feet.

Dutch Olympic Committee Will Open Fund For Games

AMSTERDAM, Holland, May 11 — The Netherlands Olympic committee Sunday issued a manifesto to the nation declaring that it is the committee's irrevocable decision to held the 1928 Olympic Games in Holland, notwithstanding the vote in the lower house of parliament last week delining to grant funds to cover part of the expenses.

The manifesto says it has been decided to open a national subscription list to raise funds and also to issue lottery or premium shares "in order to provide for the success of the meeting and save the honor of the country."

PROHIBITION HAS NO LURE FOR INGE

"Gloomy Dean" Ends Lecture Trip in United States.

NEW YORK, May 10.—(Canadian Press)—The Very Rev. W. R. Inge, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, ending a three weeks' lecture trip in the United States, sailed Saturday for home aboard the steamer Samaria.

The dean, in a parting interview, said his chief grievance with the United States was the constant use of the "gloomy dean" as a sobriquet applied to him.

Discussing fundamentalism, the dean remarked that it had been his experience to find that fundamentalists were often very silly peope.

The Zionist movement, he thought, might with wisdom transfer its activities to New York rather than to Palestine because of the large Jewish population here.

An expressed opponent of prohibition, he said that he had survived it for three weeks but that he would be glad to return to his cellar.

DOUGHTY HAS PUT IN FOUR-YEAR TERM

Sentence of Six Years Will be Reduced for Good Conduct.

KINGSTON, May 11 (Special to The Examiner).—On Friday next, May 13, John Doughty, will have served four years of the six-year sentence imposed upon him for the theft of $105,000 of Victory Bonds, the property of Ambrose J. Small, theatrical magnate of Toronto, whose disappearance from Toronto a few years ago created such a big sensation and the question has again been asked, "When will Doughty be given his freedom?" Several attempts have been made to get him out on parole, but all have failed, and it now looks as if Doughty will have to serve his entire term, with the exception of the time allowed for good conduct, and it has been stated on more than one occasion that Doughty has been a model prisoner ever since he entered the big prison at Portsmouth.

Figuring on the time allowed off by the justice department on the sentence given Doughty, he should be given his freedom about February 9 next.

It is stated that Doughty is in fairly good health in spite of four years he has put in behind prison bars, and he is looking forward with great interest to the time when his term will have been completed, and he will walk out of the prison a free man. He has stated on several occasion that he would not take a million dollars and go through what he has been through again.

23 BABIES DIE AT INFANTORIUM

Woman Held in New York for Violation of Sanitary Code.

PROBING DEATHS

NEW YORK, May 11. — The twenty-third little patient of the infantorium of Mrs. Helen Augusta Geisen-Volk at 235 East Eighty-Sixth Street died Saturday shortly before the woman was held in $36,000 bail to await action of the Grand Jury on charges of baby substitution and violating the Sanitary Code.

Joseph Abramowitz, 2 years old, of 241 East Third Street, was the child who died. He expired in Bellevue Hospital, where he was taken Friday, suffering from lobar pneumonia.

Assistant District Attorney William Ryan, in charge of the investigation by the Homicide Bureau, announced that in 1918 an indictment charging "Helen Geiser" and Dr. Arthur Camnitzer with first degree manslaughter had been returned, but was dropped for lack of evidence. The indictment charged that the physician and "Helen Geiser" were responsible for the death of Anna Seeburg after an illegal operation at 1,066 Park Avenue. Mrs. Geisen-Volk conducted a baby farm at that address before moving to her present establishment. The indictment will be reopened, said Mr. Ryan.

The Assistant District Attorney declared he was concentrating his inquiry on the deaths of five children in the list of twenty-three.

Three other cases of death had called medical examiners to the infantorium, said Mr. Ryan, justifying renewed investigation in the light of present revelations. Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. Charles S. Cassesa told Mr. Ryan he had examined two infants who died in the Italian Hospital after removal from the "baby farm." He said that he would bring the records of the cases to Mr. Ryan's office to-day.

Physicians Called.

Mr. Ryan said five physicians and five undertakers would be questioned to-day at the Criminal Courts Building. They had been retained at various times by Mrs. Geisen-Volk.

A representative of Jacob Herrlich's Sons said Saturday the firm had buried about twenty-four infant patients of the infantorium. The funerals averaged $10 to $12. Sometimes Mrs. Geisen-Volk attended; occasionally a mother or father of the infant appeared; but many of the funerals were unattended. The burials, except for one, were in a plot owned by Mrs. Geisen-Volk in St. Michael's Public Cemetery in Jamaica. There were instances

LIFE BLOOD OF COUNTRY BEING DRAINED BY U. S.

Montreal Conservatives Attack the King Government at Meeting on Saturday.

LAVERGNE SPOKE

Declared Quebec Liberals Were Indifferent to Welfare of Their Province.

MONTREAL, May 11. — Hon. Andre Fauteux, ex-Solicitor-General in the Meighen Cabinet, directed an attack against the King government in an address here this afternoon.

Mr. Fauteux said that w higher taxes, a public debt which ever mounts, with the rail problem not solved, with the exodus to the United States draining the life blood of the country, the time has come to throw aside party sh cles, and to think in terms of Canada rather than of passion and prejudice.

It was unfair for the Liberal party to claim that the Conservatives were responsible for the war debt, he said, for the railway financial burden, and for the Canadian Government Merchant Marine; he contended that the responsibility in each case should be shared.

Mr. Fauteux spoke of the programme laid before the workingmen by Hon. Mr. Laporte in 1921. Mr. Laporte, he said, had gone into the Canadian West and had forgotten the interests of the old provinces of Quebec and Ontario, which since the commencement had borne the difficulties of nation building.

Need New Government.

Hon. Rudolphe Monty also addressed the gathering and dealt with the matter of debt, the revenue and the taxation issues.

The speaker declared that matters would not change unless the present government was ousted. Mr. Monty said that while the government found plenty of money to spend on Royal Commissions and purchased expensive buildings in Paris, London and Toronto, Canadian workmen were forced into the United States to secure a living, when the government gave contracts for the building of government cars for the government-owned railway.

Armand Levergne in discussing the immigration problem thought that it would be better to keep Canadians at home rather than to import people from Europe. He declared that the 65 representatives from Quebec in the Federal House were indifferent to the welfare of the people they represented.

HANGING IN BASEMENT

Police Officer Missing Five Days in Victoria.

VICTORIA, B.C., May 11 — The body of Sergeant Charles A. Booth 49, late Provincial Police Officer, who disappeared from Highton Tuesday afternoon, was found hanging in the basement a James Bay residence Saturday morning by search parties of the Provincial police. A note was left explaining the act as intended self destruction.

Bridal Party Lacked The Prospective Bridegroom

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 11.—Alberto Danellon double-crossed Dan Cupid here Saturday, and incidentally more than two hundred invitations and a sumptuous wedding feast have been wasted.

Dannello had planned to join the ranks of benedicts, selecting a 17-year-old local girl for his future wife. He had ordered a wedding breakfast to cost one hundred dollars; shortly before the scheduled hour of the feast, it was learned tthat the prospective bridegroom had vanished.

Danellon is now being sought by the police on a warrant sworn out by those who supplied the provision for the spread.

KING OPENED WEMBLEY FAIR

Praised "Mutual Good-Will" at Second Empire Fair's Inaugural.

80,000 SPECTATORS

LONDON, May 11. — The King and Queen opened the second British Empire Exhibition Saturday in typical Wembley weather. Hail began just as King George started his speech, and sharp, short showers fell during the rest of the ceremony. But they had little effect on the superb spectacle, which has been carefully designed to represent the whole community.

On a golden dais at one end of the great stadium the representatives of every part of the Empire gathered to receive the King. In scarlet, gold laced uniforms they were a bright spot of color, but were not more significant than representatives of the other classes grouped near them — nursing sisters in bright scarlet capes, boys from the military and naval schools, members of the Royal North-West Mounted Police from Canada, Girl Guides, Boy Scouts bearing the flags of the Dominions, and aged men in long scarlet coats and three-cornered hats from the Chelsea Hospital for Old Soldiers.

Then in the forefront, of all, standing rigidly at attention, were four dark-skinned officers, the King's orderlies from India. A crowd of 80,000 filled the rest of the stadium.

In one section sat Premier Baldwin and his Cabinet. In another were the Privy Councillors in uniform and the Ambassadors and Ministers of other nations. In another were 100 white surpliced singers from the choirs of St. Paul's, St. George's, Windsor and other churches, surrounding the scarlet-coated band.

The ceremonial opened with the posting of guards of honor drawn from the navy, the Royal Marines, the air force, the guards and the territorials, and as each unit entered the massed bands of the guards played their regimental march.

The Duke of York, as chairman of the Exhibition, slipped into his place almost unnoticed. And then, suddenly seven trumpeters, clad in cloth of gold, appeared and blew a fanfare. Sharply the officers called the Guards of Honor to attention as the first files of the Life Guards, in scarlet shining cuirasses and astride magnificent black chargers, rode into the arena.

The King and Queen, accompanied by Prince Henry, drove in an open state landau, he in a naval uniform and she in a bright powder blue costume trimmed in chinchilla fur with a toque plume of the same shade. Their greeting was most enthusiastic, each section of spectators breaking into wild shouts as the royal carriage passed it, especially hearty being the cheers from the choristers.

In his speech asking the King to declare the Exhibition open, the Duke of York referred to it as "the University of the Empire." The King, picking up the phrase, replied:

"The British Empire depends for its security upon the prosperity, upon the good will, between its constituent peoples. And one sure foundation for that good will is full knowledge of our mutual aspirations, capacities and needs. To seek knowledge of the great heritage which

THREE VESSELS PRIZES OF LAKE ERIE 'DRY NAVY'

Seven Men Charged With Running Liquor—Three of Them Canadians.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Beer and Whiskey Found on Motor Boat Operated by Canadians.

DETROIT, Mich., May 11.—(Canadian Press).—Seven men, including three Canadians, were arrested and three motor boats were seized in operations conducted by two boats of the United States "dry navy" on Lake Erie Saturday.

The Canadians, who are held under bond on liquor smuggling charges, are Frank J. Jarvis, William Jones and Sidney Taylor, all of Kingsville, Ont. They deny that they were engaged in smuggling liquor. Their motor boat, a 25 footer, was captured off Estral Beach. The prohibition officials claim they found five quarter barrels of beer, three cases of whiskey and 202 cases of beer on board.

The second motor boat was caught off Estral Beach and the third was taken off Swan Creek. The cargo of both included beer and liquor, the captors allege. The four men arrested in them gave United States addresses.

All seven prisoners pleaded not guilty when arraigned and were held under bond of $2,000 each.

HELD FOR TRIAL ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Moncton, N. B., Man Suspected of Brutal Crime.

ST. GEORGE, N.B., May 11—Alfred Arsenault of Moncton, was sent up for trial on a charge of murdering Alpheus Hanselpecker of Bethel, in the door yard of the latter's home in Bethel on Friday, at the completion of the preliminary hearing before stipendiary magistrate Martin McGoman Saturday afternoon and was taken to St. Andrew's jail where he will be held for the next sitting of the supreme court.

The verdict given at the inquest held on Saturday by Dr. H. I. Taylor, M.L.A., coroner, was one of brutal murder by some person or persons unknown. Arsenault was arrested on Friday night following the discovery of the murder. He was seen in the afternoon in Hanselpecker's store and is reported to have been engaged by Hanselpecker to help him cut wood.

Finger prints on the weapon believed to have caused Hansipeck's death, are to be examined by an expert.

MINOR ACCIDENTS.

Small Damage Done in Two Motor Mishaps Over the Week End.

There were two accidents of a minor nature on Saturday and one on Sunday.

Charles Toplis, a boy living at 95 Aylmer street, ran a bicycle in front of Charles Saunders, who was driving for the New Centre Meat Market. Toplis was uninjured but some damage was done the wheel he was riding.

At 9.30 on Sunday night, a Ford Sedan crashed into a Hudson parked on Charlotte street clipping off a fender and running board.

REPORT DENIED THAT AMERICA ASKS PAYMENT

Both French Foreign Office and American Embassy Make Denial.

MAKE SETTLEMENT.

Thought that Painleve Government Will Make Some Move to Settle Debt.

By A. L. BRADFORD,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 11.—Although the American Embassy and the French Foreign Office deny that the United States has sent a note to France regarding debts, well informed authorities believe that the Painleve government will make some move toward a settlement in the near future. These authorities believe that France realizes that it was a mistake to allow negotiations regarding this country's debt to remain so long in abeyance. They think Finance Minister Caillaux will need further loans in the United States, which was difficult to raise unless a serious effort to settle the national debt question is made previously.

Informal conversations Caillaux said recently that France's position was unsettled, that beyond recognizing her debts she could undertake no definite engagements because of her financial situation.

The Finance Minister recently talked over the situation informally with Ambasasdor Herriot, but American authorities denied that even semi-official negotiations were in progress.

LIVELY FIGHTING ON MOROCCAN FRONT

French Succeeded in Conveying Supplies to Besieged Garrison.

RABAT, Morocco, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Lively fighting occurred again today between the French and the tribesmen in the central section of the Riffian front, when Col. Freydenburg's column went to the relief of the outpost at Bab Cuender. The French succeeded in getting much needed food and water to the surrounded garrison.

AVIATORS KILLED.

Give Women the Vote But Make Reservations

BUDAPEST, May 11 (United News)—The Hungarian Parliamentary Commission has recommended granting the suffrage to women because such a Conservative force in politics would be of priceless value.

The commission suggests, however, that women should not be permitted to vote in such numbers as to overwhelm the men.

NEW ZEALAND PRIME MINISTER DIED ON SUNDAY

Wm. F. Massey Was the Last of the War-Time Premiers.

EMIGRANT AT 14

First Elected to Dominion Commons in 1894—Premier Since 1912.

WELLLINGTON, New Zealand, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—William Ferguson Massey, Premier of New Zealand, died Sunday.

Mr. Massey was the last of the war-time premiers. He became head of the Dominion Government in 1912 and, despite war and post-war changes, which one by one threw the elder leaders out of power, his position remained secure. He was a fervent imperialist and five times visited Great Britain to attend imperial conferences. At the last of these conferences he acted as dean.

The Premier was born 69 years ago in the village of Limavady, near Londonderry, Ireland, where, as he often proudly declared, his ancestors were tillers of the soil for centuries. He emigrated to New Zealand when he was 14 years old and followed the occupation of a farmer. It was as a farmer he was elected to the Dominion House of Commons in 1894. Throughout his political career he maintained profound interest in his early work.

A big, bluff, hearty man, Mr. Massey was ardently conservative and anti-socialistic. He made few enemies and numbered among his bitterest political foes personal friends.

Mr. Massey visited the American continent several times. His last visit was in 1923, when he was on his way to London to attend an imperial conference.

POLICE HEAD QUITS

Brig.-Gen. Panet Disagreed With Policy of Department.

MONTREAL, May 11.— In confirming the news that he had resigned as head of the Quebec Liquor Commission Police Department, Brigadier-General Edouard De Bellefeuille Panet, stated yesterday that he did not agree with the present policy of the Commission with regard to the Police Department.

Mr. Hodgson, a member of the Commission, who received the resignation on Saturday, had nothing to add to what General Panet said.

General Planet had been head of the Commission Police since June of 1921.

The income tax has been abolishd in Newfoundland.

EDMONTON MAYOR IN PETERBOROUGH

Visits City to Inspect Dustless Sweeper and Dust Collector.

W. H. Blatchford, Mayor of Edmonton is in Peterborough to-day for the purpose of inspecing the work done by the Blney dustless sweeper with the view to installing such a system in his city. He also intends looking at the giant dust collector, as he is interested in elevators at Vancouver.

Mr. Blatchford was on business in Ottawa, and came to Peterborough by motor in company with Mr. Bishop, who is manager of the Dustless Sweeper Co. They arrived here at 9 o'clock on Sunday night. Mr. Blatchford dined with the Rotary Club and met Mayor J. J. Turner, the city clerk and the city engineer.

During the morning, Mr. Bishop drove Mr. Blatchford around the city, indicating various places of importance, and this afternoon they intend visiting a number of the industrial plants.

"This city is an eye opener to me," said Mayor Blatchford. "It is so compact, whereas Edmonton is spread over a considerable area. I would like very much to be able to spend a longer time here, but I believe that I shall be obliged to leave this afternoon."

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

The wonder trip of the coming summer will be conducted by Dean Laird of Macdonald College, to Victoria, B.C., and back.

Inspired by the success of the trip to Victoria last year on the occasion of the Teachers' Federation meeting at that point, and filled with patriotic motives for everyone to see their own country, the Dean has arranged for a special train of standard sleeping cars to leave Toronto on July 20, visiting Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, thence steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be via the Okanagan Valley, Nelson, the Kootenay Lakes, Windermere Bungalow Camp, from which place the party will be motored to Banff, 104 miles over the newly completed Banff-Windermere Highway, the most charming, and awe inspiring trip it is possible to conceive, with stops at Radium Hot Springs, Vermilion River, and Storm Mountain Bungalow Camps—another day at Banff, then Edmontno, Saskatoon, Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, near Kenora on the Lake of the Woods, steamer from Fort William, to Port McNicoll, thence rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate on August 10.

Everything is included at the price of $325.00 from Toronto transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels, and on steamers, sightseeing tours at points visited, and all gratuities.

While appealing primarily to teachers, the tour is open to everyone desiring to go.

All will be welcome.

Fare from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Laird, Macdonald College, P.O., Que.

COUNTRY STROLL IS A REVELATION

Much Around Peterboro to Entertain—Dandelion Recipe for Men.

A stroll out into the country anywhere around Peterborough, will amply repay any citizen. It is in this month that the countryside, for the true lover of nature—or for any lover—is at its very best.

For one who knows by name and can distinguish and classify the flora of the roads and fields, a country walk among the opening buds and unpainted barns is an event of unalloyed joy. The tiny hebiscus is seen peeping out from under the grass, while everywhere in the spring air is the sweet scent of the ornithorhyncus and the megalotherium. One should watch in this month for the first shoots of the spiggot (due about the twentieth), while the trained eye will easily distinguish the lambswart, the dogsfoot and the cowslip.

Nor are the birds, for anyone who knows their names, less interesting than the flowers. The corvex americanus is building its nest in the tall trees. The sharp whistling notes of the ilex and the pulex and the index are heard in the meadows, while the marshes are loud with the song of the moonshiner. But, of course, for those who do not know these names, or where to find their owners, nothing is happening except that a lot of birds are singing and the grass is growing. That, of course, is quite worthless and uninteresting.

Recipe for Men'

And talking about spring and flowers and growing things, recipes seem to be all for women these days, but here is one for men.

Pluck a small basketful (level) of dandelion heads. Add to them a quart of water and leave the mixture to stand for five minutes. Pour off the water, remove the dandelions, and add, as flavoring, a quart of 4.4 beer. Drink it.

A LINE-O-TYPE.

When the firefly speculation in the wheat pit ended and the wings of the bugs were singed, business generally got a bump. Some-Tilbes' one says, "Paper profits or losses bear no relation to business." When millions a day in cash and tens of thousands of speculators are depending on a scramble to get something out of nothing—when the cards are stacked and the suckers get stuck—when the game is over and the chips are counted by the big ones, business is sure to feel a bump.

Then folk start in to find fault with the Federal Government, the Provincial Government, the City Council, and with this and that.

After the slump that has held all industrial cities in its grip during the past years, it is encouraging in this city to find manufacturers taking optimistic views of the future, and backing up their optimism with irrefutable proof of bettering conditions. Banks see fair business, and everyone will see better times when we stop trying to pyramid our prospects through speculation and waiting for something easy to come along.

Peterborough manufacturers are staying with their jobs. They will show at the exhibition, in a few weeks, just what they make. The people know already what they are made of.

Many of us are never sure whether it is opportunity knocking or the wolf scratching at out door. It's worth taking a chance to see.

CALOMEL CLEANS THE LIVER

That heavy tired feeling, no pep, muddy complexion, no appetite, foul breath, biliousness, headaches, constipation and rheumatism, are all sure signs that your liver is clogging your whole system. Calomel is the only drug known that acts upon the liver. Start tonight, take two tablets of tanol calomel and in the morning drink plenty of hot water to wash from the system all the poisons and toxins before more food is taken in. Continus this treatment until the liver is restored to its original health then you do not need any more medicine. These Tanol Calomel Tablets can be procured at F. C. Webber's drug store.

stings and Campbellford ill Put Intermediate Lacrosse Teams in Field.

LAY VICTORIA DAY

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11. — mpbellford and Hastings have ided to join forces and to put intermediate lacrosse team in field this season, the first game the new organization to be play- against the amalgamated towns Havelock and Norwood, for th- oyers trophy at the Victoria Day lebration that is to be held here May 25th. The new team was ganized last night at a meeting in e Windsor Hotel at which there as an attendance of over 30 en- usiastic lacrosse players and ad- irers of the game. The delegates om Hastings were those well nown supporters of athletics, Wil- am Wellman, William Clappe, T. . Coughlan and Stanley Stephen- on.

When the meeting was called rder Mr. Coughlan was voted into he chair and Harry Ingram was el- cted secretary After it had been decided to amalgamate, the follow- ng officers were chosen:

President—T. A. Coughlan, Hastings.

Secretary - Treasurer — C. R. Holmes, Campbellford.

Manager— William Clapper, of Hastings.

Members of the Executive — C. Montgomery and James Blute, of Campbellford; William Wellman and I. Doonan, of Hastings.

The executive committee and Manager Clapper will select the members of the team. The best players in both teams are to be chosen without regard to the number taken from each.

It is planned to have the new team meet for practice one night a week in Campbellford and Hastings alternately. It will be known as the Hastings-Campbellford Lacrosse Club, the initials on the sweaters of the members of the team to be H.C.L.C.

William Sarginson and C. R. Holmes were appointed to represent Campbellford on the schedule committee, and the representatives from Hastings are T. A. Coughlan and Stanley Stephenson.

A team made up of the best intermediate players in Campbellford and Hastings should put this town on the lacrosse map again and bring about a revival of what a few years ago was the best drawing card in this town on a holiday or any day on which the game was played.

Those veterans of the game, C. R. Holmes and Jack Nesbitt, will be seen in the line-up again this season. William Clapper is one of the most popular playing managers in the district and the other officials are men who will give time and energy to make the new team a success.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL

R. S. SOUTHWORTH

Any reference to Councillor R. S. Southworth must be somewhat in the nature of a farewell as that gentleman has disposed of his business that is preparing to leave town, when he will be obliged to resign. He will, however,, retain his seat so long as he resides here. Mr. Southworth leaves Campbellford, where he has had a very successful business career, on account of his wife's health which makes a change of climate necessary He will probably settle in California.

A sktch of Mr. Southworth's successful career appeared in The Examiner when he sold out his business a short time ago. He served in the council first for ten years and after an intervval spent in private life was re-elected last year. He has since resuming civic service demonstrated the fact that his ambition was to discharge his duties faithfully giving due consideration to the improvement of the town and at the same time having regard for the principle of economy.

MANY SOLDIERS NOW IN MOROCCO

Estimated That Marshal Lyautey Has Seventy Thousand Effectives.

MORE COMING.

PARIS, May 11. — (Canadian Press.)—Marshal Lyautey, Governor General of French Morocco, will need 100,000 to suppress the rebellious move of Abd-el-Krim and complete the pacification of Morocco. It may require a campaign of several months to defeat the tribesmen.

This is the opinion expressed unofficially in war office circles. It is based on reports received from the general staff in Northern Africa. Ten days have elapsed since Abd-el-Krim invaded the French territory in Morocco, and judging from the reinforcements which have been puored into the zone of action daily from France and Algeria, the effectiveness of Marshall Lyautey must now be close to 70,000 men. It is expected that another ten days will pass before the French counter offensive develops.

Dr CHASE'S OINTMENT

CAMPBELLFORD HOTELMAN SAYS HE WILL NOT SELL NEW BEER

James Kerr Says His Trade is Not Attracted By Bar.

COST TOO GREAT.

Impossible For Best Country Hotels to Make Over Premises.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11.—There is at least one hotelkeeper in Ontario who will not apply for a permit to handle the Ferguson beer, and that is James Kerr, proprietor of the St. Lawrence Hotel here, who declares that he will not rearrange his place of business to meet the conditions that the Government has attached to the sale of the new beverage. The St. Lawrence Hotel is known as one of the best equipped and conducted public houses in the province, and Mr. Kerr's best publicity agents are the guests who put up at his place from all sections of Canada. The hotel always does a thriving trade with visitors from the United States during the tourist season.

From the first Mr. Kerr has been opposed to the regulations that go with the sale of the 4.4 beer. He could not see the logic of the prohibition of the sale of beer over the bar. In common with other hotelkeepers in the province, he took the point up with the Government, but without accomplishing anything. The argument used by the hotelmen was that the law providing for the the sale of beer at tables would not only require great accommodation but would tend to encourage men to loaf over their libations.

The latest regulation which enacts that the room in which the beer is sold shall face a public street and shall be provided with windows and a door, was the last straw. Many of the best country hotels have no space for such sale unless they convert their sitting rooms into beer saloons.

Mr. Kerr is one hotel-keeper who realizes that the average guest does not care to sit in a room among a crowd of men that are filling themselves with beer at a table, no matter how innocuous that beverage may be.

The Gasolene Tax.

As this is the first day in which the next tax of three cents a gallon on gasolene goes into effect, the price at all the local filling stations goes up to 36 cents. The two local companies that furnish supplies for this town and district each distributes an average of 2,500 gallons a day during the height of the automobile season, a statement that can easily be credited by any person who notes the number of cars passing through the town daily and the long line parked on each side of the main streets on Saturday night. From this source alone, Ontario Government will derive a revenue of $150 a day.

Not Settled Yet.

The Water and Light Commissioners have not yet decided upon the make of pump with which they propose to replace the one now in use in the fire hall. Mr. H. Illman, engineer of the Turbine Equipment Company of Toronto, appeared before the commissioners at their last meeting and explained features of the pump handled by his firm.

The Turbine Company will be asked to submit tenders for two styles of pumps with all necessary equipment, the price to be f.o.b. in Campbellford.

Girl Lets Father's Train Take Her Life and Chum's

BERLIN, May 11 (United News)—A despatch from Zwickau reports the suicide on Saturday of two girls, who lay down side by side on a railroad track and were cut to pieces by a train.

When the train stopped and the crew returned to the scene of the tragedy, it was found that one of the victims was a daughter of the engineer.

where three coffins were put in one grave.

Few Hear Arraignment.

Only twenty-five persons were in Harlem Court when Mrs. Geisen-Volk was arraigned before Magistrate Vitale on complaint of William Angerer, steamfitter's helper, of 636 East 147th Street, the Bronx. Angerer caused her arrest Thursday, charging she gave him an unknown infant in place of his son Steven, 6 months old.

When Mrs. Geisen-Volk came into court she could not walk. She was virtually carried in and out by a matron and a court attendant. A chair was placed for her in front of the bench. She dropped into it and scarcely moved throughout the proceedings. She never looked at Angerer, the only witness heard. Once she called feebly for a glass of water. Deputy Assistant District Attorney Charles White, who had been investigating the baby farm for more than two months when Angerer appeared with his charge, handled the case against Mrs. Geisen-Volk. Isidore Neustaedter appeared as her counsel. Patrick J. Fogarty of 34 Nassau Street was attorney for Angerer.

Fogarty made an ineffectual plea to have the child produced. He said Mrs. Angerer was due home Saturday from Central Islip, where she has been a patient since the birth of the child. The lawyer predicted danger to the mother's mind when she learned that the child was missing.

Angerer took the stand. He is about 35 years old, of German descent. He testified that he placed his son in the defendant's care on January 31. He said he paid $10 a week, and called every Saturday, except one, to pay. He said he had seen his child the last time nine weeks ago Saturday.

"The following week when I called," he said, "Mrs. Volk told me the child was sick. I went away and the following week as she said she had sent me a letter telling me that if she failed to hear from me she would send my son away. I told her I had never received it. She said she had sent the child to Saratoga, N.Y.

"She explained that a specialist there was in the habit of making two trips a year to this city and would take back with him twelve children, eight of them rich and four of them poor. She did not know the doctor's name, she said, nor his address. The next week I asked how my boy was getting on. She said I'd have to wait a month because it would take that long for the specialist to complete his observation. I waited and finally began to get suspicious.

"Last Sunday night I telephoned Mrs. Volk. I told her I wanted my boy back. I explained that my wife was coming home and I feared the effect on her if the child was absent. She said she'd do her best. Monday night I rang her up again and she told me the boy was back. I went down to her place. She handed me a child, and I knew at once it wasn't mine."

In response to Mr. White's question as to how he was so positive, the father said he failed to find a scar which was left on his son when Dr. Elmer Smith, his family physician, had operated on the boy. Besides, his child had two teeth, whereas the one Mrs. Geisen-Volk offered him had none. He said that he took the child to Dr. Smith, who verified his suspicion that the baby was a substitute.

Magistrate Vitale asked where the child was now. "I don't know," said Angerer.

Mr. Neustaedter cross-examined him at length, trying to fix the days of the months when Angerer visited the infantorium. The witness could not remember the dates definitely.

Magistrate Vitale broke in with, "I am not at all interested in these questions about time, Mr. Neustaedter. I am interested only in whether this man got the right child. If he did this woman should be released; if he didn't, she should be held."

Baby Substituted.

The lawyer then moved that Mrs. Geisen-Volk's bail of $35,000 he reduced to $1,000.

"If I thought she could raise $35,000," answered the Magistrate, "I would hold her without bail. I'll continue that sum and will mark the papers so that no judge will hear an application for bail reduction without notifying the District Attorney's office of the application. I am positively convinced, from what I have heard here, that there has been substitution of a baby in this case."

Turning to the lawyer for Mrs. Geisen-Volk, he added:

"Mr. Neustaedter, for the sake of humanity, if the child is dead or alive, let the parents know. Sometimes it is necessary to disregard the law and use common sense."

The attorney said he could make no statement then, since "anything my client may have told me would be a confidential communication."

He said he was eager to co-operate, however.

Vincent T. Pisarra, chief agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, filed a complaint, alleging that Mrs. Geisen-Volk had violated the sanitary code in that her license permitted care of only seven infants, whereas there were eighteen at the farm when he arrived. Mrs. Geisen-Volk pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bail on this charge.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, Health Commissioner, said he had asked the Board of Health to revoke the baby farm permit issued to Mrs. Geisen-Volk.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MET WARKWORTH

Elected Officers for Coming Year and Transacted Business.

WARKWORTH, May 11.—The regular business meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the community hall on Wednesday afternoon, May 6. The principal business was the election of officers. President, Mrs. W. E. Hermiston, First Vice President, Mrs. Leigh Isaac; Second Vice President, Mrs. Jas. Sykes, Jr.; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Black; District Representative, Mrs. F. W. Bowen.

To Build Vault.

The building of a vault to be placed in Warkworth Cemetery was discussed and the committee which was previously appointed was reappointed and given power to go ahead with the building operations.

A large number of members were present and the financial statement, which was given by Mrs. David Massey, shows the society in good circumstances.

Born on May 7, to Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose English (nee Miss Kathleen Gearin), Indian River, a daughter.

W. J. Warner of Hastings was in town on business on Thursday.

Mrs. A. Dinwoodie of Campbellford is spending a few days with Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Armstrong.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker spent Thursday in Campbellford as guests of their son, T. S. Baker.

AN OUTSTANDING EVENT.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition promises to be bigger than its most ambitious advocates ever dreamed of when the project was launched.

The manufacturers have been quick to realize the possibilities of the plan, and it is safe to say that the displays that will be made by the local factories will be a revelation to citizens generally.

The Exhibition will be a cross-section from Peterboro's industrial life, with a host of entertainment features thrown in, and citizens should not hesitate to invite their friends to come to Peterboro for this out-of-the-ordinary event.

We want to know more about the numerous articles that are made at our door, and at the same time we want some of our out-of-town acquaintances to see that Peterboro has some claim for recognition as one of the leading industrial centres in the Province.

And to make the Exhibition complete, it should not be forgotten that the proceeds are for the work of that splendid organization, the Peterboro Health Association, to which this community owes so much.

Let us make this Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition a new standard of achievement, something that will be a mark at which to aim when other community movements are to the fore.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO.

The only trouble about Hon. Mr. Price's plea for the adoption of a pay-as-you-go policy that would get rid of Ontario's public debt in 40 years is that the plan is too good to be true—when the frailties of politicians are concerned.

Announced as it was by the Provincial Treasurer of a Government which had just provided for increased sessional indemnities for members of the Legislature and bigger salaries for Cabinet Ministers, the policy loses some of its glamor—although at heart everybody knows that the pay-as-you-go plan is the only satisfactory one in the long run.

There are a few individuals who still practice that method and who do not purchase anything that they cannot afford to pay for, and while they may miss some of the luxuries that the majority of people seem to regard as necessary they have an easy mind that compensates them for what they do without.

Unfortunately, Federal, Provincial and municipal Governments have almost all failed to adhere to such a policy, and they have kept on spending beyond their means until the burden of debt carried by the people of Canada is becoming most noticeably oppressive.

If Hon. Mr. Price succeeds in getting his colleagues to put his theory into practice he will have earned the undying gratitude of the Province.

But the signs are not very hopeful when members of all political parties accept larger indemnities with at most only a gesture of protest at a time when a deficit has been announced on the year's operations.

PROTECT THE FISH.

The plea of the Fish and Game Association to local citizens not to purchase maskinonge and bass caught out of season should not fall on deaf ears.

In spite of the vigilance of officials, it is undoubtly the case that these game fish are being taken at the present time, and that the fishery resources of the neighboring waters are being seriously affected by the activities of poachers who disregard the regulations and have no concern about the effect of their actions.

Much of the illegal fishing would stop if these poachers could not find a market for their wares.

In other words, the bulk of the out-of-season fishing is done by individuals who find it profitable to break the fishery laws, and who will continue to break them until they are convinced that there is no sale for fish taken at an illegal time.

Unfortunately, citizens who regard almost every other law with respect seem to have no compunction about buying a fish out of season.

The fishery regulations and the O. T. A. are on an equal footing in this regard, inasmuch as it seems difficult to convince a large proportion of the population that both are laws of the land and should be respected.

If the people of Peterboro who want to enjoy fishing in its proper season and the many others who profit directly or indirectly from the hundreds of visitors attracted here by the fishing opportunities offered by the district waters, are alive to their own interests, however, they will endeavour to check poaching by refusing to become partners in the illegal enterprise.

THE RUM ROW CAMPAIGN.

Any doubt as to the determination of the United States Government to leave nothing undone that is calculated to stop rum-running from the Atlantic into American territory must be dispelled by the present naval activities directed against Rum Row, says the Montreal Star. A fleet of over one hundred swift boats, armed and supplemented with aerial service from thirteen seaplanes, has been assembled with the avowed intention of compelling the liquor-laden ships anchored along Rum Row, off the coast between Atlantic City and New York, to pull up anchor and leave those waters. These ships, some fifteen in number, are stationed at distances varying from twenty-five to forty-five miles from land, and are thus well beyond the legal limit within which they might be seized off-hand. The present campaign is designed to starve them out by preventing effectually all intercourse between them and the shore.

It looks as though this plan might be attended by a substantial measure of success. Undoubtedly it is a serious effort to crush the smuggling, and those engaged in this illicit business will probably recognize the fact. Though technically the ships in Rum Row are committing no crime by selling their cargo to anybody who comes along and offers them their price, they are certainly helping others to commit an offence against the laws of the United States. And although it is no part of any country's duty to help another country enforce its own laws, it is part of international comity to deprecate any action calculated to make such enforcement harder or more onerous.

There can be no question but that the American force means business. It has the law behind it, and evidently it also has the endorsation of the President. It is prepared to go to extreme lengths to achieve its object. Rum-runners know they are engaged in a risky business, which involves the breaking of laws on the part of their customers. They are also aware that they strain international friendships when they use their flag as a cover behind which to carry on schemes that cannot be described as friendly to the law authority of a friendly Power.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS.

"Im satisfied to mind my own business and let those who like the political game concern themselves with it."

These words, or their equivalent, have been heard so often that they are hackneyed.

And they are meaningless as well.

A man who really minds his own business, as the Examiner sees, must concern themselves with politics.

The Montreal Board of Trade, a non-political organization, brings out the point admirably in a leaflet, from which the following may be quoted:

"The credit of our country and our city is not a thing apart from ourselves. They have credit only because they can pledge our property as security for the money they borrow, and tax our earnings to pay interest on it."

"If we had been minding our own business the debts of the Dominion, the Province and the city would not now be so large and taxes would not be so high. When we do not mind our own business we always suffer for it."

"But this free spending of public money—your money—need not go on. The electors can stop it whenever they like. You are an elector. See that your name is on the voters' list, and at elections—Dominion, Provincial and municipal—vote for men who are pledged to public economy and reduction of the public debt."

The Montreal body has suggested one step toward economy in public affairs.

It might have gone further and urged the electors not only to see that men pledged to economy are placed in office, but also that they themselves stop asking public bodies to spend money.

Day after day deputations wait upon the Government at Ottawa urging the construction of some public work or other that means another deep dip into the Treasury.

The chances are that these deputations are composed of folks who are daily clamoring for retrenchment and honestly believe that they want it.

Thus we find the Western Progressives shouting "Economy" and "Finish the Hudson Bay Railway" almost in the one breath.

The only real way to retrench is to stop spending money, and no Government is likely to stop spending money so long as it is besieged by smaller armies of voters to unloose the purse strings.

BRITAIN AND FOOD CONTROL.

Britain proposes to make an experiment in the control of food prices for the protection of the consumer. Food control in wartime is no new thing. It was a standing grievance of many engaged in industry and trade in Britain, even long after the fighting had ceased, that their operations were hampered by too many restrictive regulations and that "Dora" was a most autocratic mistress. Gradually these restrictions were removed and there was a reaction against any form of State interference in trading and industry. Now, after a searching enquiry into the causes of the high cost of staple products, when compared with existing wages, and Board of Trade indices, a Royal Commission deliberately puts its head again into the noose of this form of State Socialism.

It is obvious that the majority members of the commission who file the report believe in the seriousness of the danger which confronts Britain. They fear that in case of national tension control of the supply of food products absolutely necessary for maintaining the nation in health may pass into alien and hostile hands. It is clear that measures must be taken to avert this condition, however inconvenient their application may prove. Yet the matter is different in the case of control of food prices, which have been raised and manipulated by British suppliers. It is somewhat startling to hear the doctrine put forward that it would be politic for the British Government to acquire a controlling interest in the British companies now operating in chilled meat from the Argentine "if the supply should be dominated by adverse trading conditions." It will be such a difficult matter to determine what are "adverse trading conditions" and so easy for a future Government, composed of men holding views even more advanced than those held by the last Government under Mr. Macdonald to stretch the interpretation of "adverse trading conditions" to cover a state of industry which the original framers do not now foresee nor intend to cover.

It is proposed that the new Council shall be composed of 12 persons, including a practical housewife with domestic experience, four business men, one laboring man and one woman representative of Labor, with a salaried permanent chairman and a small staff. Those who have studied the history of similar experiments which have involved the creation of new departments will hesitate before engaging a new servant of the State which may grow so rapidly that it becomes yet another master. It is the hindrance and the menace of all experiments in State ownership that the army of employees which can be kept within economic bounds, under private control, swells and expands into bloated incompetency under Government ownership.

The report suggests that in the matter of bread prices the new Food Council should intervene when prices tend to become unreasonable. This is placing another dangerous weapon in the hands of the four business men, the working man and the lady of a domesticated turn. The only real method of intervention save by arbitrary price fixing would be by the Government itself going into the market and taking a hand in the price war. Such a prospect reveals dangerous possibilities.

Canada has good cause to fear experiments in State Socialism and she will watch the British trial with anxiety and not without misgiving.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The fact that the gasoline tax went into force today did not seem to have any effect upon Sunday motoring.

A THOUGHT.

ON COURTESY.

"Life is not so short," declared the philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson, "but that there is always time for courtesy."

And money is never so plentiful that we can afford to waste the chance of winning it by indulging in discourtesy.

For courtesy, the wise man knows full well, is one of the attractions toward which trade and profits always turn.

To try to ignore it means the deliberate waste of the chance of profit.

Here is one advantage the small store has—the spirit of courtesy is easier to instill and enforce than in the large establishment where the proprietor is less closely in touch with the customers.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 9. — Smashed down by the Government crop reports, wheat prices today suffered a break of as much as 7 cents a bushel. The wheat market closed shaky at about the day's lowest level, 5 1-4 to 7 cents under yesterday's finish. Last trades were at $1.62 to $1.62 1-2 for May delivery, and $1.50 1-2 to $1.50 3-4 for July. Corn closed 1 1-4 to 2 5-8 cents net lower; oats 7-8 to 1 1-2 cents off, and provisions at 20 to 37 cents drop.

A wild rush to sell began in the wheat pit as soon as trading opened. Demoralization of the market increased rather than diminished during the subsequent dealings, and the most drastic of the declines came late. Notwithstanding that the government report indicated a much smaller crop of winter wheat than was harvested last year, the salient fact was that the probable yield would be 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 bushels more than the majority of traders had looked for.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 10.—The foreign demand for Canadian grain here on Saturday was practically nil owing to the fact that English importers considered the United States government crop report less bullish than was generally anticipated, and only sales of odd loads of oats and barley were made for May shipment. The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was also slow, and prices for car lots were one cent per bushel lower.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 3,664 cases, as against 2,867 cases for the same day last week, and 3,157 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending May 9, 1925, were 17,487 cases, as compared with 16,573 cases for the previous week, and 21,895 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1 to date were 22,502 cases, as against 35,426 cases for the same period of 1924. The receipts of eggs last week showed an increase of 1,014 cases, as compared with 16,473 cases for the predecrease of 4,408 cases with the same week last year, while the total since May 1 to date have been 12,924 cases below 1924.

Egg Market Firmer.

There has been no actual change in local wholesale jobbing prices for eggs during the past week, but the undertone to the market was firmer in sympathy with the higher prices ruling in the country and the firmer advices from United States sources. The firmness of the markets may be attributed to the fact that storing operations throughout the country are now general and in consequence the competition for supplies at country points was keen. The consumptive demand here was good and the market was fairly active.

There has been a fairly good demand from packers and dealers for car lots of Western eggs and sales of fully 25 cars were made, and Ontario shippers have sold car lots of extras at 30 1-2 cents, firsts at 29 1-2, and seconds at 24 to 25 cents per dozen, f.o.b. shippings points, cases returnable.

Butter Receipts.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending May 9, 1925, were 3,839 packages which show a decrease of 486 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 6,748 packages with the same week last year, while the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 9,799 packages less than the same period of 1924.

The feature of the trade was the weaker feeling that prevailed in the market and prices closed 1 cent per lb. lower than a week ago, which attributed chiefly to the continued limited demand for supplies from all sources and the disposition of holders of held creamery butter to liquidate. The receipts of fresh made butter have been light, as compared with the same period last year, but they have evidently been ample to meet all immediate requirements. The volume of business for the week was small and the market closed quiet.

No. 1 pasteurized held creamery was offering at 32 to 32 1-2 cents per lb., No. 1 creamery at 31 to 31 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 creamery at 30 to 30 1-2 cents per lb.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending May 9, 1925, were 26,052 boxes which show an increase of 3,023 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 15,337 boxes with the same week last year, and the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 27,386 boxes in excess of a year ago. Of the receipts for the week over 12,000 boxes were direct from New Zealand, which is said to be for manufacturing purposes.

Cheese Bidding Keen.

A feature of the week was the keen competition for the offerings of Ontario cheese at the auction sale held here and the No. 1 white sold at 17 3-4 cents per lb., and the No. 1 colored at 17 5-8 cents per lb., but apart from this the market was quiet with an easier undertone and prices at the boards in the country were 1-8 to 3-8 cent per lb. lower with the exception of Pictou which was 3-8 cent per lb. higher than the previous week, and spot prices closed at a decline of 3-8 to 1-2 cent per lb. On the whole the volume of business was small and the market was quiet with Western No. 1 white quoted at 17 7-8 cents per lb., No. 1 colored at 17 5-8 cents per lb., Eastern No. 1 white at 17 5-8 cents per lb., and No. 1 colored at 17 3-8 cents per lb.

Danish Freighter Is Being Ground to Pieces on Canso Shore.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 11.—Firmly impaled in the knife-like ledges two miles off Blind Point, Guysborough County, near the entrance to the Strait of Canso, the Danish freighter Hans Jensen is being slowly ground to pieces.

The steamer is deemed a total loss and the crew, with the exception of the officers, have been placed ashore at Whitehead. Those remaining aboard are prepared to leave at a moment's notice.

The Hans Jensen was on a voyage from New York to Montreal in ballast when she was wrecked during a dense fog Friday night when Captain Kofred was attempting to make the entrance to the Strait of Canso. No distress signals were sent out and at no time were the members of the crew thought to be in danger of their lives.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

Glory was certain that the minute the door had closed upon Stanley Wayburn, Dick would come rushing upstairs to hear what she had to say in her own defense. Trembling, she waited. . . .

She ran upstairs and bolted the door of her bedroom. She was sure she heard the handle of the door turn, and then Dick's footsteps going down the stairs.

Glory presently tiptoed down the stairs and peered between the blue velvet curtains that hung in the doorway.

Dick was sitting in one corner of the davenport. His head was sunk in his thin brown hands.

Glory thought she heard him give a low groan. But she was not sure whether he did or not.

A sudden rush of pity for him swept over her like a wave. For he must love her the way she cared for Stanley Wayburn . . . hopelessly and helplessly!

. . . And yet Glory knew that in time she would have forgotten all about Stanley Wayburn if he had not come back. She had all but put him out of her heart during the months before her marriage to Dick.

And why had he had to come back to spoil Dick's life and hers, too? For Glory was certain that, in a mild sort of way, she would have been quite contented to be Dick's wife all the rest of her days . . . if she had not seen Stan again. . . . He had always been able to sweep her off her feet!

* * *

The doorbell rang. Glory opened it to Dr. John.

"Well, well, is the little wife worried?" he asked in his kindly way when he saw her troubled face. "But there's really no need of it. Dick has just another touch of that 'flu' of his. We'll have him straightened around in a day or two. Where is he?"

Glory led the way to the living-room.

"So this is the way you obey orders, is it? I thought I told you to go home and go straight to bed, young fellow!" Dr. John said.

Dick stared at him dully.

"Go up and put a couple of hot-water bottles in his bed, Glory," Dr. John ordered, taking out his clinical thermometer. "He looks as if he's having a bit of a chill."

The doctor popped his thermometer into Dick's mouth as Glory turned to go. She found the only hot water bottle in the house after a long search, and filled it.

While Dr. John was helping Dick into bed, Glory telephoned Mother Gregory to come right over.

Then she gathered together her night-clothes, an armful of her boudoir pillows, and the novel she was reading. She carried them all across the hall to the guest-room.

For she had made up her mind to sleep there that night . . . that night, at least.

Dick followed his wife around with heavy-lidded eyes.

"Here's a couple of prescriptions. Better go and get them filled right away, Glory," Dr. John said, busily writing on a small pad as he spoke.

She took the slip of paper, put on her things and went downstairs.

She drew a long sigh of relief as she stepped out into the blue-gray dusk of early evening.

. . . What a mess life was, Glory thought.

It made you care for the people you ought not to care for. It made the people who meant nothing to you at all, fall in love with you.

There was no more plan or pattern to life than there was to a crazy-quilt. Not so much! It was thrown together, so far as she could see.

How much more simple everything would be all the way around, for instance, if Stan Wayburn had been in love with her a year ago as she had been with him . . . and had married her!

Then she would never have seen Dick. And he would probably have married some nice home-making girl who would have kept all his socks mended and given him a houseful of children to make him proud and happy. . . .

* * *

While the clerk at the drug-store was filling Dr. John's prescriptions, Glory went into the telephone booth and called Stan Wayburn at his hotel.

"Oh, Stan, I'm so terribly sorry about this afternoon. I would'nt have had things happen the way they did for anything in the world," she told him when she heard his voice.

Stan laughed carelessly.

"Don't you bother your cute head about me, Russet, for a single second," he said. "Just forget it. I told your husband where to head in, though, by the way."

"You did!" Glory's surprise was in her voice. She was sure that it had been Dick who had told Stan where to "head in!" Moreover, she remembered how meekly Stan had obeyed when Dick had told him to get out of the house.

"I certainly told him nothing else but!" Wayburn went on. "You didn't suppose I was going to lie down like a rug and take all his insults, did you? . . . Not on your gay young life, I wasn't! And what's more, I'm going to see you wherever and whenever I want to . . . if you want me to. You do, don't you?"

"Of course, I want to . . . but did you really tell all that to Dick?" Glory asked, incredulously.

"N—no, not exactly that way," Stan admitted.

"Well, I must ring off, now," Glory said. "Goodby, Stan."

She was vaguely disappointed in Wayburn. She would have liked him to stand up to Dick that afternoon. She wanted to be proud of him somehow.

* * *

When Glory returned to the house she found Mother Gregory in charge. She had tied a white apron, crackling with starchiness, over her black silk dress, and she was tenderly bathing Dick's face.

"These colds of his come from his stomach. I'm sure of it," she said accusingly to her daughter-in-law. "He has either been upset over something or his diet is all wrong. Do you give him much fried food?"

Glory tried to think whether or not Ranghild fried the meat and potatoes very often. She thought not.

"Well, anyway, Dick's to have nothing but egg-nog for his supper," Mother Gregory went on without waiting for Glory's reply. "You go down and beat it up while I make Dick comfortable for the night . . . and make me a cup of tea, while you're at it. I was just sitting down to dinner when you phoned me, and I came right over without a bite."

"How do you make an egg-nog?" she asked finally.

Mother Gregory turned and faced her. Her fine black eyes were widened in astonishment.

"Well, I never heard of such a thing! You, a grown woman, not knowing how to beat a little milk and egg together!" she exclaimed. "You sit here and wait for me a minute. . . . When I finish with Dick I'll go downstairs with you and show you how to make an egg-nog!"

She smoothed the pillows under Dick's head. Then she pulled the hot-water bottle from between the sheets and gave it to Glory.

"Go and empty half the water out of that thing!" she ordered. "Never fill a hot-water bottle to the very top. It'll burst if you do. . . . And roll it up in a clean towel before you bring it back!"

Silently Glory obeyed. Then the two women went down to Ranghild's spotless white kitchen.

* * *

"Now then," Mother Gregory said briskly. "Put on your apron and wash your hands and we'll get to work. She bustled about collecting milk and eggs and nutmeg as she spoke.

Glory had no aprons of her own. She had no use for aprons. But she found one of Ranghild's in a pantry drawer and tied it on.

When the egg-nog was made Dick's mother poured it into a tall glass and set it on a little tray.

"You take it up to Dick while I stir around and get a bite of supper for us, Glory," she said. "And see that he drinks every drop of it!"

Slowly and unwillingly Glory went upstairs. Dick's eyes were fixed on he door as she swung it ajar. She set the tray on a chair at the side of Dick's bed.

"Here's the first meal your little old wife over cooked for you," Glory said with a gaiety she was far from feeling. Dick merely looked at her.

She slipped an arm behind his shoulders to raise him but he pushed it away.

"Give me the glass," he said shortly. He drained it, and lay down again with his face turned toward the wall. Glory picked up her tray to go. But before she reached the door Dick had called to her.

"Glory, you took your things into the guest-room," he said.

"Yes, I'm going to sleep there tonight," Glory answered. "I think you'll sleep more comfortably if you're in here alone."

But they both knew that was not her reason for going into the guest-room. The thought of Wayburn rose between them like an insurmountable wall.

"Glory, tell me one thing," Dick said, surprisingly. "And think before you give me an answer . . . you're not in love with this Wayburn fellow, are you?" His anger was entirely gone.

"That's not the point," Glory said coldly. "The point is that you've shamed and humiliated me before my friends. And I'll never forgive you for it. I don't know how I can ever face any of them again."

* * *

Dick sat up in bed.

"I wish you never would see any of them again," he said vehemently. "They're not the kind of people I want you to have for friends. I wonder if you knew the things people are saying about May and Jim . . . beastly things.

"Oh, people! People make me tired the way they gossip about everybody!" Glory said contemptuously. She went out and closed the door loudly.

Mother Gregory had a cold supper laid on the kitchen table. She was drinking tea and reading the evening paper.

"Have you been asked to join the new Home Women's Club?" she asked Glory, without raising her eyes from the paper. "I put your name up for it. I want my son's wife to belong to it."

"Yes, I've been asked, and have sent in my first dues," Glory answered as she took her place at the table. "Thanks for putting my name up for it. I guess most of the women in town are going to be members, aren't they? I'd hate to be left out."

Mother Gregory pursed up her lips.

"Oh, there are a few women who aren't getting in!" she remarked acidly. "Your friend, Mrs. Seymour, for instance!" She'll never be asked to join, if she lives to be a hundred!"

Glory was silent. She knew now what Dick meant by the "beastly things" people were saying about May . . . and Jim Carewe!

* * *

That night Glory was brushing her hair before the guest-room dresser when she heard a board creak in the hall outside her door.

. . . Was it Dick? She stood there listening. She was sure that she saw the handle of her locked door turn slowly. Then, in a few minutes afterward, she was sure she heard the stealthy closing of the door of Dick's room . . . Evidently he had gone back to bed. . . .

MARMORA ACTORS PRESENT TWO PLAYS

First Conservative Convention in New Riding June 10.

MARMORA, May 11.— Some very fine acting was seen at the Town Hall on Frday evening when the Marmora Dramatic Club, assisted by Mr. W. W. Lester, presented the one act comedy, "Columbine," followed by the two-act play, "Her Son's Sweetheart." For the former, Miss Mildred Bedore played the part of Minnie and Miss Edna Neal that of Sally, one unseen completing the cast. In the play the characters were as follows:

Mrs. Perkins — Mrs. Eugene Brady.

Lilly—Miss Kathleen Litt.

Kitty—Miss Betty Allen.

Betty Gardner— Miss Florence Archer.

Mrs. Clayton—Miss Edna Neal.

Elizabeth Burton—Miss Mildred Bedore.

The performance furnished proof once more of the good training powers of Mrs. F. S. Pearce. The attendance was particularly good.

Convention June 10.

The first big Conservative convention for the new riding is being arranged to take place in Marmora on June 10. Over three hundred delegates are expected to be in attendance.

The fire started in the basement and spread through the ventilating shaft to the roof.

PROGRAM FOR VICTORIA DAY

Seymour Agricultural Society Will Have Big Celebration.

LACROSSE GAMES

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11—The committee appointed to arrange the programme of sports for the celebration which will be held here under the auspices of the Seymour Agricultural Society on Victoria Day, May 25, held a meeting Saturday night in the office of Mayor Meyers. T. S. Horkins, chairman of the committee, and J. Nelson Stone, secretary of the society, had during the afternoon, made a trip by auto to Havelock, Norwood and Hastings to interview the managers of the different lacrosse teams.

Mr. Horkins reported to the meet that the intermediate teams of Norwood and Havelock propose to amalgamate for the season and that the intermediate of Hastings and Campbellford had decided to take the same course.

As the programme stands now junior teams from Campbellford and Peterboro will play at 1.30, the prize to be a sweater for each man on the winning team.

The second game, the contest for the silver cup donated by Mayor A. J. Meyers, will be between the Hastings-Campbellford and the Norwood-Havelock teams.

The tug-of-war will be held between the lacrosse games. Burnbrae and Percy teams will settle the question of the championship and a team of Campbellford stalwarts will The first prize is a pair of overalls try conclusions with the winners. to the winners and the second is $10 in cash.

Mayor Meyers, captain of the Campbellford team, has selected 16 men from among which 10 of the best will be chosen to take part in the contest: A. G. Watson, C. H. Davison, C McCoy, Thomas Sampson, Joseph Lindsay, Josh Harnden, D A McCook, H Petherick, George Towns, Fred Bennett, James Lindsay, Alex McDonald, E Parcels, R. McKelvie, P. Malloy and J McCullough.

Meeting Postponed

The special meeting of the council calld for 11 o'clock Saturday was postponed as Mayor Meyers was out of town. The special session will probably be held Monday to consider the question of work on the streets.

MODERN science now tells us how to clean and brighten dingy teeth. A new way widely urged by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth and which old type dentrifices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film your teeth will quickly glisten in a way that will delight you. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The Great Enemy of Teeth.

Film is the great enemy of tooth beauty. And a chief cause according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

KING OPENED WEMBLEY FAIR

has been entrusted to us is the soundest imperial policy."

Prayer by the Bishop of London and the hymn, "Fight the Good Fight," followed. As the King declared the Exhibition open, a fanfare sounded, a battery of artillery fired the salute, a squadron of airplanes dipped in homage over the stadium and Sea Scouts broke out from fifty masts the flags of the Empire. Then came a wonderful display by the Guards bands on the march, threading in their way back and forth through their own ranks. It was succeeded by the most interesting display of all.

Four fire engines first circled the arena and as they passed to the rear a long column of civilians appeared. At their head were the uniformed St. John's Ambulance Corps and several nursing sisterhoods. Next were representatives of the British merchant seamen and railroad men. The Postal Service sent letter carriers and telegraph messengers, and detachments of police brought up the rear rankss. As they formed up all phases of national life were represented. The choir then led the singing of Elgar's great national hymn, "Land of Hope and Glory."

The ceremony was over, but one thoughtful act of the King brought him the loudest cheer of the day. It was still showery and when the royal carriage reappeared it was seen that the hoods were up. The King, knowing the value the people put upon seeing him and the Queen, before he stepped into it, ordered the covering removed. A roar of applause thanked him, and to that sound he and the Queen drove slowly out and away.

"To My Dearly Beloved—"

I Leave—Nothing!

Surrogate Court records show that only nine out of every hundred men who die leave an estate in excess of $5,000.

This shows how hard it is to realize the dreams of one's youth.

An Imperial Monthly Income policy is an ideal legacy. Panics cannot affect it—business depression has no influence upon it, and as an investment it surpasses most "gilt-edged" securities.

If you are improvident—if you do not care what happens to your wife and children after your death—if you are lacking in the pride of manhood that sees beyond to-day—this message is not for you.

But if you are a real man, take precaution now so that if you should die unexpectedly, your widow need not read through the blur of her tears: "To my dearly beloved wife I leave—nothing."

We'll mail you an interesting booklet about Imperial Monthly Income policies if you'll just write for it. There is no obligation involved.

The engine went into the ditch while the ballast cars were pivoted along the roadbed toward the ditch.

GARDENING LATE AROUND BETHANY

Gardens Have Been Cultivated, But No Seeding Done.

BETHANY, May 11.—The gardens which were being cultivated a few weeks ago are still unplanted. The backward weather is responsible.

Spring grain is up but not showing very vigorous growth. On account of the cold weather pasture is also very backward.

Seeding in general is completed in this district. Fall wheat, rye and clover are all satisfactory and with warm weather and rain growth will be rapid.

A bewhiskered stranger riding a bicycle entered the village on Wednesday and solicited from house to house collecting for missions. On several occasions he was questioned as to what mission, and being unable to give a satisfactory explanation he did not receive much assistance in the village.

Mr. Allan Cody is loading several cars of lumber for Toronto.

Baseball in the village has not got under way yet. The boys are all rearing to go but the cold weather is against them. The squad will be out as soon as possible to get in condition for their first game on May 25. The visiting team has not been chosen yet.

Miss Helen Byers entertained a number of her friends at a birthday party on Friday evening.

Dr. J. J. Hamilton attended the medical convention held in Toronto on Wednesday.

Col. Snider, district school inspector of Port Hope, paid an official visit to the school on Thursday.

Mrs. John Staples and Mrs. John Sisson visited friends in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Wednesday being the first half day of early closing left the village looking as if it was forsaken; a number of the villagers took advantage of it, and motored to outside points.

MALE BLACK BASS IS WORTHY OF SPORTSMEN'S PROTECTION

Keeps Watch Over Eggs and Snaps at Intruder to Nest.

SPAWNING NOW

The announcement in The Examiner of Saturday that 27,500 Bass fry had been placed in waters around Peterborough last year draws attention to one of the gamest of game fish. It is not generally known that it is the male black bass that hatches the eggs. He not only prepares the nest and rounds up his mate, but he sits over the nest from one to two weeks before the fry is hatched. It is during this period that he is so easily caught, and the taking of bass in the spawning season is especially reprehensible when it is considered that the fish are protecting their young when they snap at anything that comes near.

There is nothing more interesting than to watch a black bass in the spawning season. The bass first selects a place for the nest, usually on a sandy or gravelly shoal, where the water is about two feet deep. He removes all stones, sticks and other things of that sort with his nose and by fanning with his tail. Then by vigorous fanning with fins and tail he scoops out ahollow in the sand.

Now he goes after his mate, and partly coaxes and partly drives her to the nest. The eggs are deposited, the female bass leaves for parts unknown. The male hovers over the eggs until they are hatched, constantly fanning them with his fins to keep silt and sand from them, or, in the case of a lake, to keep the water stirring over them. The eggs hatched, the bass watches the fry for a while then he, too, leaves them.

Becomes Cross.

During this period the bass is very cross and will fight anything, no matter how big, that disturbs or threatens to disturb the nest or eggs. O. W. Smith tells of having thrown a spoon hook into the middle of a bass nest before the spawn was deposited, just to see what the male bass would do. The bass tried to nose it out and tried to fan it out, and when he was unsuccessful he took it gingerly in his mouth and dropped it a few feet from the nest.

The male bass over a nest will strike savagely at any fish that comes along, and Stafford King tells of having seen a bass dash at a big carp that came too close, and, turning as he charged, ripped the carp open with his sharp dorsal fin.

A bass will strike at an artificial lure without hestiation when over the nest, not because he is hungry but because he is protecting the eggs or the fry. Thus fishing for bass is especially good during the spawning season. The angler can make large catches with little effort.

But each catch that is made means another fighting male bass is taken away from the eggs or fry, and the carp, the pickerel, the sucker, make short work of the embryo bass.

For this reason the catching of bass during the spawning season is worse than the catching of other fish during their spawning seasons. Most fish those not of the bass family, leave the eggs to their fate as soon as deposited. But not the bass. A bass is invaluable to the safety of the eggs.

Warning Needed.

No thinking sportsman will catch bass at this time of the year. But a great many anglers do it through ignorance, not realizing the fish is spawning, while others break the protecting law for what they call "sport," or for gain. The report reaching the Fish and Game Association on Saturday that Indians were offering bass for sale shows that warning is needed on this point

Thomas Cole Marooned When On Fishing Trip

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11. — Thomas Cole, who owns a boathouse and is planning to build a summer cottage at Crow Bay, and who is one of the most inveterate fishermen in Campbellford, set out Saturday afternoon in his boat to indulge in his favorite pastime. Landing on a pier he fastened his boat and devoted all his attention to angling. In the meantime the boat broke loose and drifted down stream. Mr. Cole found himself marooned and far from home, with night coming on. He made the best use of his lung power, and his cries reached Howard Forrest, operator at the municipal power plant, who put off in a canoe and rescued Mr. Cole from his plight.

FOREIGN OFFICE MEMO PRINTED BY NEWSPAPER

Private Document From Foreign Secretary to Cabinet Published.

POSITION SHOWN.

Text Printed in New York World Hints at Repair of Injustice.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—The New York World yesterday published what is describes as a full text of a memorandum on the British European policy which was dated from the Foreign Office February 20, and sent to members of the Cabinet by Foreign Secretary Austen Chamberlain shortly afterward. This alleged secret document, intended for circulation only to the Ministers, was prepared by the Foreign Office to convince the Cabinet that the new entente among Britain, France and Belgium should be concluded. This view the Cabinet rejected, adopting instead the German proposals for a pact of mutual guarantee between the powers interested in the Rhine.

But the Foreign Office statement of the realities of the European position is of immense importance as revealing the minds of the masters of the British world policy.

The most important of revelations in the memorandum is the clear indication that the Foreign Office, when the time is judged right, would like to repair the injustice which the memorandum hints was done to Germany by the partition of Upper Silesia and by the creation of the Polish corridor.

DISTURBANCES ON JOAN OF ARC DAY

Many Black Eyes and Sore Bodies Remain as Reminder.

PARIS, May 11.—Scores of black eyes and hundreds of sore bodies in Paris were principal reminders today of Sunday's Joan of Arc celebration. The Paris police, reinforced from the provinces, had an active time of it, dispersin gthe Royalists and the Catholic groups which formed regardless of the Government's orders limiting parading groups to ten persons each. It is estimated that fully fifty thousand persons filed past the statues of Saint Joan in the Place de St. Augustin and the Rue Rivoli.

MANY FOREIGNERS BEING SMUGGLED

Estimated That 60,000 Aliens Were Taken Into United States.

NEW YORK, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—Bootlegging immigrants is the new American industry. It has taken its place with the bootlegging of liquor and of narcotic drugs in the extent of its operations, and seems fairly on the way to rivalling them in the amounts of money involved. More than 60,000 aliens were smuggled into the United States during the last six months of last year. Unless the traffic suddenly and unaccountably slackens at least 125,000, and perhaps 150,000, will have been smuggled in during the first full year of the Immigration Act of 1924 (which ends June 30 next), and the nternational rings which conduct it will have pocketed more than $30,000,000 in "fees."

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Seattle Man Shot Woman and Then Himself in Vancouver Hotel.

VANCOUVER, May 11 (Canadian Press)—Crazed by jealousy and a desire for revenge, Andrew Neilson, Seattle, Washington, shot to death Mrs. Olga Wick, of Seattle, in a room of the Hotel Regent here last night, and then turned the revolver on himself. Both were dead when the police entered the room.

WOMEN'S M. SOCIETY HOLD MEETINGS

Presbyterian and Methodist Ladies of Omemee Held Gatherings.

OMEMEE, May 11.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday afternoon following the annual quilting. There were fourteen ladies present and two quilts were quilted, after which a short meeting was held. Mrs. Black presided and the scripture reading was given by Mrs. A. Lamb from 1st John, 4th chapter. The roll call was responded to by passages of scripture containing the word "Love," and the hymns used were also in keeping with the subject. The articles of clothing for the annual bale were discussed, and several donations were readily offered by some of the members.

Mrs. J. A. Black and Mrs. E. H. Mitchell were appointed as delegates to attend the W.M.S. Presbyterial in Cobourg on May 27 and 28.

The June meeting will be held in the Sunday-school room, the word "Wisdom' having been chosen for study.

After refreshments had been served, several of the ladies remained and finished a third quilt—all of which will be placed in the bale in August and sent to the North-West Mission School.

Methodist Ladies.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors, with nineteen members and one visitor present. The president, Mrs. Rowland, presided and conducted the meeting. Following the devotional exercises, the minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. Bradburn, and afterwards adopted.

The correspondence secretary, Mrs. J. Widdis, read a communication from Mrs. J. Bradley and from Mrs. F. McBain thanking the Society for their kindness in sending flowers during illness.

It was with regret that Miss E. Race informed the meeting that she would be unable to attend as a delegate, the branch meeting to be held in Oshawa the first week in June. Mrs. Rowland was appointed in her place.

Mrs. Geo. Hagarth and Mrs. R. Wilson were chosen as a programme committee for the next three months

The treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Ivory, followed with the annual report as follows:—Forty-six annual members and twelve life members, two of whom were made life members during the year. Total amount of money raised and sent to the branch treasurer, $255.20.

The correspondence secretary, Mrs. Widdis, gave an accurate account of all correspondence written, number of Outlooks, study books, monthly letters and annual reports taken.

Two crates of fruit and a bale of clothing were sent to needy missions by the Society.

The superintendent of the Mission Band, Mrs. Rowland, reported that $73.86 was raised during the year by the band, which is an increase of $16.00 over last year.

The treasurer of the supply fund, Mrs. A. Scott, reported that $26.31 was the total money raised, the expenses being $23.17. Ten dollars having been given to the rest fund and three dollars to the general fund.

A very pretty duet was rendered by Mrs. Morcombe and Miss L. Parsons, after which Mrs. T. A. Macpherson read a devotional leaflet on "Prayer."

The Heralds of the Watch Tower were listened to with great interest.

At a given opportunity, several members paid their fees for the coming year, after which the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by the president.

The usual half-hour was thoroughly enjoyed, with Mrs. A. Scott, Mrs. F. Bradburn and Mrs. Bushwell as hostesses.

FOUR DROWNED AT ST. STEPHEN

Small Boat Overturned, Throwing Six People Into St. Croix River.

CHANGING BOATS.

ST. STEPHEN, N.B., May 11.—(Canadian Press.)— Four persons were drowned and two suffered a serious shock when their boat overturned in the St. Croix river yesterday afternoon. The dead are: Miss Marg Vickery, aged 21, Calais, Maine; Miss Helen Kyle, aged 17, Calais, Maine; Murray McKay, aged 15, St. Stephen; George Stevens, aged 19, also of St. Stephen. Miss Virginia Vickery, of Calais, and Granville Craft, of St. Stephen, who were immersed in the icy water for several minutes until their rescue by the crew of a passing schooner, are expected to recover.

The members of the party were attempting to transfer themselves in a tender from a motor boat to the shore when the tender capsized.

MOTHERS' DAY.

St. Andrew's, Campbellford, Has Special Service in Sunday School.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 11. — "Mother's Day" at St. Andrew's was observed by a special service in the Sunday School when the programme arranged for the occasion by the Religious Educational Council was carried out. Rev. Arthur J. Sinclair, of Chesterville, who supplied the pulpit yesterday, delivered an address of special interest to the mothers who attended the Sunday School session, and Mildred Easton, one of the scholars, gave an appropriate recitation.

Beginning next Sunday, the Sunday School session will begin at 10 a.m., this arrangement to continue during the summer.

Mr. Sinclair, who was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. G. A. Hay during his stay here, preached very acceptably at both services. In Eastern Ontario he is regarded as one of the most energetic and successful pastoral workers in the church. He left for Havelock last night to catch the midnight train east, as he has a funeral in his own congregation to-day.

At the evening service the anthem rendered by the choir was "Now the Day is Over," Miss Hazel Atkinson taking the solo parts with splendid effect.

R. S. SOUTHWORTH HIGHLY HONORED

Associates in Trent Valley Creameries Give Presentation and Address.

A very pleasing incident occurred in the office of the Trent Valley Creameries on Saturday afternoon, when the entire staff of both the Campbellford and Keen plants gathered and presented the retiring owner and manager, R. S. Southworth, with the following address, and also a beautiful travelling bag as a token of their esteem for him. The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. Southworth: We the Creamery employees wish on this occasion to xpress our regret that we are to lose you from our midst. As an employer we have found you to be a successful businss man. We feel that we have been benefited from our daily association with you.

Our sympathy has been with Mrs. Southworth in her long illness. We hope that she will have a speedy recovery, and that you both will be spared for many years.

We ask you to accept this club bag as a gift from us, and wish you to carry our best wishes with you to your new home.

Signed on behalf of the Creamery Staff, Cecil McConnell, Geo. A. Renwick, Edison Wynn, Melville, Wood, Jabez McCulloch, Hester M. Clerk.

Mr. Southworfth was taken completely by surprise but made a suitable reply in which he thanked those present, not only for their thoughtfulness and generosity at this time but also for their long years of loyalty and unselfish devotion to the best interests of their employer, without which the business never could have been the outstanding success to which it has attained. He also thanked them for their kind wishes for Mrs. Southworth.

Every present member of the staff has been connected with and boosting for this business for quite a number of years, some, in fact, ever since it started twelve years ago, and their unceasing efforts as a whole organization to at all times further the best interests of their employer during a time there has been so much unrest and labor troubles generally has often been commented upon and has been the envy of other local employers of help.

ANNUAL MEETING OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Millbrook Ladies Elect Mrs. C. Thorndyke President—Small Attendance.

MILLBROOK, May 11.—The annual meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. T. H. Aiken. The attendance was encouraging, but considering the large membership roll it is hoped that many more will make an effort to attend the monthly gatherings.

The year's report, given by the secretary, Mrs. Wilbert Thorne, showed eleven meetings held with the low average of only thirteen present.

Miss Ella Grandy gave the treasurer's report, $634.40 being the amount in the bank at present, with the fees paid in on Saturday evening still to be added.

On motion it was decided that the Institute will be responsible for securing plants to place at the base of the Soldiers' Memorial in front of the Town Hall. Mrs. H. J. Armstrong and Miss P. Burnham being appointed to purchase these.

The officers for the current year are:

President: Mrs. C. Thorndyke.
Vice-President: Mrs. T. Harkne s.
Secretary: Mrs. Wilbert Thorne.
Treasurer: Mrs. T. H. Aiken.
District Director: Mrs. R. J. McKnight.
Auditors: Mrs. H. A. Earle and Mrs. W. Armstrong.
District Representatives: Mrs. Thorndyke, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. W. Thorne, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Miss Burnham.

The annual public meeting will be held on Tuesday, May 19th, at 8 p.m. in Grace Presbyterian Church, when a speaker from Toronto will address the gathering on some subject of practical interest. The general public is cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Thorndyke and Mrs. W. G. Rowland were appointed a committee to arrange special musical numbers for the occasion.

The resignation of Miss F. Grandy, as treasurer, was regretfully accepted, and a hearty vote of thanks tendered the retiring officer for the many years of faithful service she has given to local and district Institute work.

France now has 1,396,000 foreign laborers as compared with 528,000 before the war, and more are needed.

Some People Have Funny Ideas

What do you think Carnation Milk is like?
Do you think it is "thick as molasses in January"? It isn't. Do you think it is syrupy sweet? It isn't. Do you think it has a funny taste? It hasn't. Do you think something is "put in" to make it keep? There isn't. Do you think some of the food value is taken out? It isn't.

Pure Milk in a modern package—that's all

Carnation Milk is just pure milk with part of the natural water content taken out by evaporation.
All the food value of full-cream milk is left in. No artificial sweetening or other preservative is added.
Each can is hermetically sealed and sterilized to keep its contents pure, sweet, and utterly safe.
Carnation Milk is a great aid to better baking because of its convenience, safety and richness. Always ready for use on your pantry shelf—none is wasted because it keeps sweet for several days when opened. Sold by grocers everywhere—order several tall (16 oz.) cans or by the case of 48 cans.

CARNATION BREAD

1½ cups water, ¾ cup Carnation Milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, 7 cups flour, 1 cake compressed yeast, 2 teaspoons sugar. Soak yeast in a small amount of lukewarm water. Measure the salt, sugar and shortening into a mixing bowl. Add the scalded milk and water. When lukewarm add the yeast and mix thoroughly. Then add the flour gradually. When stiff enough to handle, turn the dough on a floured board and knead until smooth and elastic. Put into a bowl, cover and let rise in a warm place about one and one-half hours or until double its bulk, then make into loaves and put in baking pans. Cover, and again let stand in a warm place about one hour or until it has doubled its bulk, then bake about forty-five minutes. This makes two loaves of bread.

SUNSHINE CAKE

8 egg yolks, 1 cup sugar, 7 egg whites, ½ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup flour, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 teaspoon orange or lemon extract. Beat the yolks of eggs thoroughly. Sift flour twice, sift sugar once. Beat whites until foamy, add cream of tartar and beat until stiff. Fold sugar in lightly, add beaten yolks, then add flavoring and cut and fold in flour. Bake about fifty minutes in a moderately hot oven. This serves twelve to fifteen people.

This coupon entitles you to one copy of Mary Blake's Cook Book which contains over 100 carefully tested recipes. Cut out this coupon and mail to Carnation Milk Products Company, Ltd., Aylmer, Ont.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN

The ninety-second milestone in the history of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church has been reached—a truly great record in our community. Yesterday saw special services in this church, to be continued during the week.

The congregations, morning and especially the evening, taxed the accommodation, and was an inspiring sight to the officials of the church and the preacher of the day, Rev. William Allan, of New York.

Ninety-two years is a great age for an individual church, and the name, St. Paul's, Peterborough, is known the length and breadth of Canada for consistent giving to all schemes of the church. The recent defeat of Church Union within its confines caused some little anxiety among the officials, but in a short time these details were rectified, and with over 900 sittings taken, and its wonderful history, signs are that it will prosper more than ever; and, it is expected, will be one of the principal congregations in the Continuing Presbyterian Church of the future.

The Morning Service.

"The Day of the Church's Power" was the subject of Mr. Allan's discourse in the morning, the text chosen being found in the Fourth Chapter of Acts, thirty-third verse, "And with great power gave the Apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all."

"The church of that time, two thousand years ago had its commencement from a small body of men and women, one hundred and twenty all told, who were filled with the Holy Ghost. They worshipped the one Lord, and that same religion had been handed down to us of today.

Proceeding, Mr. Allan pointed out that there was no such thing as a "dignified" church, where everything had to be carried out in a circumspect manner—that was, aside from being of a truly reverential nature, the people were all simple and devout peasants and fishermen. They were of a stock of churchgoers who had the good and welfare of others at heart; they did not glory in fancy edifices, like the Church at Laodicea, which had gone in for pomp and display, but was without Christ within its walls.

The sermon Mr. Allan divided into three sections, relating to the condition of the church at that time—the separation of the church, the poverty of the peop who worshipped, and the piety of these same people. These three characteristics he likened to our church at the present time, when we are summoned to go on our special mission of better furthering the Gospel of our Lord; in humble and lowly spirit not boasting of our richesand property; and when with true piety we are expected to carry on the work of the redemption of souls for Christ.

The Evening.

Choosing his text again from Acts, 8th Chapter, and verse 17: "Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghost," Mr. Allan's subject was: "Has Even God His Price?" He dealt with the wonderful work of Philip in Samaria, how, with no scholastic training God honored his ministry. One would almost think God delights in upsetting the teachings of the world. The preacher told of the remarkable experiences of many preachers during past years. There were many kill-joys in the world. True joy comes through the Gospel of Jesus Christ. Many people even nowadays had a religion which they leave on the church steps and play the fool in the pew. There was much joy, and music even in the stars that night of the advent of Jesus Christ. Those who are always sad in life's way need sympathy. God's presence with us means joy in our lives.

Simon, the sorcerer, lived a spectacular life, and now when he saw the miracle of the Holy Ghost being received through the laying-on of hands, he tried to purchase this power with money, since he could see a chance ahead, when he would become richer in earthly goods. But God does not sell his power, and Peter would not be bribed, but upbraided Simon for his heart not being right in the sight of God. There are so many temptations when money is scarce and debts are numerous.

Mr. Allan concluded by saying God had a price for everyone, by the doing of some work He had for us, and receiving the Holy Ghost and though we were not prepared to pay the price, Christ would give us the grace to do His will if we were anxious. We had to do away with bitterness and enmity in the world ere Christ was present with us day by day. There is no limit to God's powers, if we seek Him. Our religion is not to be of the hollow kind, as in New York, where, the preacher said, Easter is held "religiously," and the rest of the year God is forgotten. The art of catching men for God was stressed as part of our duty as Christians, and his final word was that his hearers might go out and pursue the holy art of catching men for the Kingdom.

The Music.

The programme as carried out, in bulletin form for the special occasion, was worthy of more than passing mention. Under Mr. M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., the choir, over 50 strong, gave an anthem morning and evening, with fine effect, and the artistes assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oldfield, of Toronto, old friends of St. Paul's Church. In the morning, Mr. Oldfield sang "The Lord is My Light" (Allitsen), and "Man of Sorrows" (Jude); in the evening, "The Holy City" (Adams) which Mr. Martin Chenhall, Jr., accompanied with the 'cello; and a duet, with Mr. and Mrs. Oldfield, Night is the Coming of a Dream" (Carey. All of these numbers were rendered in the inimitable manner these vocalists alone can interpret, and the congregations were delighted.

Mr. Oldfield is remaining for the choir concert to-night, in which he, with Miss Adie, Miss Butt and Mr. Binns, of Toronto, is taking part.

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN.

Passionate loyalty to the spirit, the teaching and the programme of the church was the message brought to the people of Knox Church by the Rev. James A. Mackenzie at the morning service yesterday.

Mr. Mackenzie, who was for eight years pastor of Knox Church, returned, after two years at Chalmers Church, Guelph, to take part in the annual choir concert and to renew old acquaintances. Before starting his sermon he said it was good to be back and that two years was long enough to stay away owing to the changes made, even in such a short time. He called attention to the fact that it was "Mothers' Day," a day of remembrance.

The text chosen by Mr. Mackenzie was from the one hundred and thirty-seventh psalm, verses five and six, "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." This, he said, was a text for the sportsman, the artisan or the artist whose pride was in the strength and skill of his hand, or for the speaker who gloried in his voice. It was the cry of a man who remained, among all the pleasures and temptations of Babylon, passionately loyal to the barren hills of Jerusalem and kept the faith of his fathers.

Loyalty to the word of God has always been typical of God's people. It has brought the church through all the trials and temptations and has prevented civilization from being corrupted by the devilishness of men. If the church is going to stand for the things that save society it must cherish Christian virtues and be passionately loyal to three things.

First of all, loyalty is demanded to the spirit of the church. "God is love and he who dwelleth in love dwelleth in God." Any church that does anything to refute this statement ceases to be Christian. The hero of the well-known book, "If Winter Comes," was always wondering what it was that people wanted and which seemed to be missing and at last he found it when he discovered the love of God.

There must be loyalty to the teaching of the church. This is challenged by people who would undermine the teaching of the church and who question the truth. "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us." This truth must not be just accepted as a fact but should be propagated by example. The life of the church would be transformed by the intelligent acceptance and following of this truth by a body of believers.

The programme of the church sounds indefinite, said Mr. Mackenzie, as though it were a piece of paper with printing on it. The duty left to the church by Christ was, "Go ye into all the world and teach all nations." Because the men to whom he said it had learned to know him and had a passionate loyalty to him they did as he told them and Christians now must think, not in terms of church, or country or even race, but in terms of humanity. This is the programme of the church and the real apostolic succession consists of those men and women who have carried it out. The church that fails in this work will have ceased to be useful and will be discarded.

The church that is called to its greatest endeavor by the transgressions of the world will survive. Loyalty is one of the standards of the church but it must be loyalty to right things.

In conclusion, Mr. Mackenzie said that it had strengthened his faith to be there and preach that sermon and he hoped it would help the faith of those who heard it.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Following out the system at St. Peter's Cathedral of designating each Sunday in the month for particular worship, yesterday was Reparation Sunday. His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, spoke at the several Masses, preaching on the influence of the Holy Ghost, both in regard to the church itself and to the individual soul.

The Bishop prefaced his sermon with a reference to the desecration of the sacrament of matrimony by actions outside of the church after the ceremony, when the bridal party was showered with confetti and tin cans were tied to their equipages.

His Lordship also spoke feelingly of the late John Lynch, whose sudden death occurred last week, and of the errand of charity and of mercy in which he was engaged at the time of his demise.

"When He shall come, He shall convince the world of sin, of justice and of judgment," was the mission of the Holy Ghost.

The people who are seeking something more than their own salvation, following a mere whim and fancy of their own in preference to the will of God, are like the Pharisees of old, whose descendants today are exemplified in the careless, indifferent Catholic, the person who will not go to church, who is haughty and cursed with pride, that first of all sins on heaven and on earth.

The proud and worldly person is he who will not pay his debts, preferring to defer just payment of what he owes so that he may satisfy his craving for worldly luxuries. He is untruthful, because he makes a falsehood serve his own purpose to get him out of difficulty, and he is selfish. Whatever he earns, he earns for himself alone, and whatever he saves, is for himself alone.

"Social service is a wonderful effort, but what a shocking thing it is for many persons to do things in the name of social service that a Catholic will not do in the name of Divine charity."

"We show the charity which is in our souls in our actions towards God and man, in our attitude toward our neighbor. It doesn't matter what his religion may be, whether he be rich or poor, appreciative or unappreciative, as long as he is sick or sore, hungry or thirsty, or in need of our help. We are not doing our part toward him by simply telephoning or saying that we are sorry, but we are too busy to go and see him.

"Even the little school child," declared His Lordship, "should be taught his obligation to his neighbor. A great many of our people have cars. How many of them are making it their business even once in a week to take some sick person out for a drive? Are not car owners generally the most selfish of persons?

"When we are selfish, we must be afraid of the judgment of the Holy Ghost against us."

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN.

A special musical service was held last night in All Saints' Church when the choir, assisted by Mrs. Kennedy, of Toronto, soprano soloist, Mrs. Percy Hooper, Violiniste, and Walter Hughes, cornet, rendered the Gloria from Mozart's 12th Mass, and the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah. Both these numbers were well sung and showed careful attention to tempo and skilful training by the choirmaster. The male and female voices were well balanced and the forty musicians all made a creditable showing. The two solos by Mrs. Kennery were much appreciated and a large number of the congregation waited after the service, when she sang a number of other gospel songs.

The subject of the sermon was the letter to the Church in Smyrna, as contained in the Revelation of St. John the Divine. This was the third of a series of sermons being given by the Rev. J. D. Paterson on the letters to the seven churches in Asia.

There is no mention of the church at Smyrna until St. John wrote of it in the Revelation as being subject to great persecutions, and St. Paul never visited it in his journeys. It is, however, the only one of the seven cities still in existence and figured in the news several years ago when a large number of Greek and Armenian Christians were massacred by the Turks.

The letter was written at a time of great sorrow and the name of the Master is a name of sympathy. He says "I know" your troubles and the knowledge was not that of one who had been told but that of one who had also gone through great sufferings and understood them. The people of Smyrna were being ground between two millstones. The Jews were stirring up the Gentiles to persecute them. They had lost their friends, their trade, and their custom. The letter refers to those who called themselves Jews but which were of the synagogue of Satan as being responsible for the persecutions.

No word of condemnation or of reproof was addressed to this church as there had been to the others as the persecutions had crushed all the evil out of them and left nothing but sweetness and love. There was no need of commendation or a special message.

The church was rich in the things which men could not take away. They were rich toward God.

Further persecutions, worse than any that had gone before, were prophesied for them, but they were urged to hold fast as God was with them and he knew what was before them and there was a crown of life for them.

This message might not apply to many churches to-day, said Mr. Paterson, but it did apply to the individual Christians who were subject to temptation and needed the help of God in their trials and sorrows that they might keep the faith and attain to life everlasting.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

The services held at the Park Street Baptist Church yesterday were commemorative of the twenty-ninth anniversary. Consequently the addresses and music were of a special nature. The Sunday School gathering in the afternoon was held in observance of Mothers' Day and a suitable programme was followed.

For the evening service the Rev. N. R. McLeod chose as the subject of his sermon, "The Hand of God in History," and quoted from Isaiah 13-63 and Daniel 4-35.

The Rev. McLeod said that all history was God's story, that the record of events was an indication of the onward march of God's kingdom.

Mr. McLeod used four examples from the early history of the church in which the hand of God was discernible. They were:

(a) Pentecost,
(b) The Stoning of Stephen,
(c) Dispersion of the Jews,
(d) Arrest of Paul and his subsequent ministry in Rome.

The first and the last of these instances were enlarged upon.

It was shown that, at the time of Pentecost people from all nations were present so that when they heard the gospel and went back to their homes the religion of Christ would be spread over the Jewish world. The Hand of God was evidenced in this dispensation.

Again, prior to the time of Paul's ministry to the Roman people, God had been preparing a mighty Empire which comprised all of the known world: there were the privileges of Roman citizenship by which Paul had the right to a fair trial in Rome. There were good highways and convenient modes of travel and there was no waa in the whole known world when Jesus came. Mr. McLeod said that the discovery of America was another instance of the working of God's Hand.

In preparation for this addition to the then known world were a series of events which are noteworthy. The invention of the printing press, the Protestant Reformation and the invention of mariner's compass, all combined to aid in the discovery of America and it but needed a bold spirit like Columbus to use the implements to hand.

Mr. McLeod asked, "Was it an accident or an incident that on the Plains of Abraham Canada was wrested from the hands of the French and now enjoys an unparalleled freedom under the British colors?"

The Rev. McLeod showed how the Hand of God was evident in the birth and life of Christ and also explained that Joseph and Moses were instruments skilfully used in the extension of the kingdom.

"God has his plans for us and is leading us forward. We are privileged to follow in his footsteps," is the message which Mr. McLeod left with the congregation.

The singing was very good, special preparation having been made for Mothers' Day services: the quartette, O Wondrous Cross—E. O. Excell—was especially good. The church was suitably decorated with flowers.

For the morning service the Rev. McLeod dealt with the "Power of Atonement"; the musical selections were, "The God of Heaven"—E. K. Heyser, and a solo by Dr. S. J. Graham, "O Lord Correct Me"—from the Elijah.

A special open session of the Sunday School at 3 p.m. was held in commemoration of Mothers' Day, the superintendent occupying the chair.

A very interesting address was given by W. W. Richman.

Responsive reading was led by Mrs. Batley and responded to by the mothers only.

Fern Rahmel recited "Somebody's Mother," in her usual splendid manner and the primary children contributed to the programme with "Little Lambs So White and Fair."

MANY GOLD SEEKERS.

Thousand Men Have Gone to Cassiar for Gold Since Christmas.

SEATTLE, Washington, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—A thousand men have mushed through from Wrangell to Cassiar, B.C., since Christmas, to seek gold in that region, Oscar Sither, a Pittsburgh lumberman, said to-day. Cassiar is 150 miles up the Stikine River from Wrangell.

Last fall rumors came out of Cassiar that a twenty-five mile strip of rich placer gravel had been found on a bar in Cassiar Creek.

ROTARY'S GOOD WORK TO REACH OUT TO COUNTRY

Will Endeavour to Take Care of Rural Crippled Children.

CHAIRMAN REPORTS.

Rev. Wm. Allan, of New York, Speaks at To-day's Luncheon.

Reviewing the work already done by the Rotary Club on behalf of the city's crippled children Rotarian Dr. A. W. McPherson, chairman of the committee recommended at today's Rotary luncheon that the activities of the organization be extended to cover the rural parts of Peterboro county. He suggested that the township councils be asked to have a survey made with a view to locating children in need of attention, after which the Rotary Club could provide the necessary treatment as had been done in the case of crippled youngsters residing in the city.

In a concise report of what had been accomplished Dr. McPherson reviewed the work from the start and showed the disposition of each case. So much progress had been made that the chairman of the crippled children's committee felt justified in recommending that the children be brought to a meeting of the club that the members might see for themselves what had been accomplished.

The speaker today was Rev. Wm. Allan of the Church of the Puritans, New York City who was introduced in a neat speech by Mr. James Dutton.

Rev. Mr. Allan, a Scotsman who surely bubbled over with good humour and had a fund of captivating stories, most of them with a Scottish flavor gave the lie to the ancient libel that a native of the land o' cakes cannot appreciate a joke. In fact, before launching out on his subject proper, a description of sections of Australia he had visited the speaker convulsed his hearers with a dozen witty anecdotes.

Rotarians found his recital of Australian experiences of equal interest. They enjoyed his dscriptions of Sydney and Melbourne and his picture of the mining district at Mount Morgan was cleverly sketched.

In conclusion the speaker pointed out that the great need of Australia was more population. There were more people in New York than there were in the whole of Australia and the latter were mostly crowded into cities with the result that it was not a rare occurrence if Australian women living in the back blocks to go insane from sheer loneliness. Australia should be the workingman's paradise with its eight hour day, its minimum wage board and other legislation of the same kind; yet the speaker stressed the point that nowhere on earth were so many strikes or so much industrial disturbance than in Australia.

President J. H. Seels occupied the chair today and among the visitors present was Mayor Blatchford of Edmonton, Alta., and Rev. J. A. Mackenzie of Guelph former pastor of Knox Church.

QUEBEC, Que.—It is announced by the Provincial Government that during 1925-26 approximately $5,000,000 will be spent in maintaining, improving and constructing new highways.

Will you sacrifice a LITTLE to help the work of those who sacrifice MUCH?

IF YOU could do the work the Salvation Army is doing you would be glad to do it.

But you could not do it, not even if you could multiply yourself a thousand fold.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

MRS. KENNEDY HAS HAPPY MEMORIES

All Saints' Soloist on Sunday Served as Nurse Overseas.

INTERESTING LIFE.

"Good-bye, Miss. Happy New Year!" Such was the farewell message that forms one of the happiest memories in the life of Mrs. Pearl Mackenzie Kennedy of Toronto, the visiting soloist over the week end at All Saints' church.

It wasn't a parting message from a club of society ladies, nor even from the soldiers with whom Mrs. Kennedy was associated in her wartime service in France. It was just the farewell of a group of down and outers, a number of men huddled together in one of the East Side refuges of New York, allowed to stay for the night in a community settlement hall and entertained by visiting singers,

Mrs. Kennedy has had an interesting life. Fired quite evidently with the ideas of social service work, she spent much of her early life in the big cities of the United States, using her voice for the uplift of humanity, going down to dives where girls half mad with dope were trying to co-operate with efforts to reclaim them from sordid ways of existence, visiting the haunts of Chinatown and the settlement communities of the big centres.

As a Y.W.C.A. worker, she went across in 1917 to France, where she sang for the soldiers in their canteens, coming back to this continent just a month before the Armistice was signed. Never in the trenches, but always behind the lines, in Paris when Big Bertha was bombing the city, she has many exciting memories of war years.

Last summer, she was a delegate to the World's Sunday School convention in Glasgow, and since then has spent much time in Toronto, singing at the Yonge street mission during the winter, where the poor of the city received three breakfasts a week gratis, and for the International Christian Policemen's Association meetings at the Central Y.M.C.A.

A woman of gracious personality, seeking by the aid of her voice to promote the cause of the outcast rather than to gain prominence for herself, Mrs. Kennedy leaves an impression of true Christian service on the mind of a listener.

HINTS ON HOME DECORATION FOR SPRING

Freshening Up Your Home For Spring.

With the coming of Spring, women everywhere are cleaning house.

And many are finding that it is not enough to chase dirt out of corners, to beat, sweep and launder. For a really fresh appearance they need to invest in a whole set of accessories, new curtains, new pillow covers new hangings and new rugs.

All these new furnishings need not necessarily be expensive, however, for tasteful effects can often be obtained with a small expenditure. Curtains of crisply checked red and white or blue and white towelling for example, are extremely smart. They give the touch of color at your windows, appropriate to season, which brings the violets and the daffodils. Yet they cost very little.

For all sorts of drapery uses unbleached muslin is popular. Stenciled, embroidered in wools or coarse silks, it meets the demand for cheerful brightness but is well within the means of the slimmest purse.

Many women are finding that Congoleum Gold-Seal Rugs solve the problem of the fresh floor covering. These rugs come in varied charming patterns suited to any room in the house. Vivid floral designs are particularly good in bedrooms and sunrooms. Then there are elaborate Chinese and Oriental motifs better adapted to living rooms or dining rooms, and a neat tile that lends freshness to kitchens, pantries and bathrooms.

Once women experience the refreshing and stimulating effect of a generous infusion of color into their homes, they will forget the troublesome part of house-cleaning, will look on the furnishing up for Spring as a positive pleasure.—(Advt.)

CHEESE GINGERBREAD.

Hot gingerbread may be advantageously served with cheese cut in half-inch strips or cream cheese made into balls.

FRENCH BLUE AND ROSE

An unusually lovely color effect is introduced in this very smart ensemble. The main part is black crepe marocain, combined with rose colored crepe and embroidered in French blue. This is one of the few ensembles where the dress is quite as effective without the wrap.

TAG DAY BROUGHT $640 FOR BLIND

City Chapter of I.O.D.E. Co-operated in Successful Collection.

The tag day for the Canadian National Institue for the Blind, held by the united city chapters of the I.O.D.E. on Saturday, netted the sum of $640 for the workers, who labored valiantly all day in their efforts to roll up a goodly sum for their blind friends.

The ladies in charge report a generous response on the part of the general public and wish to thank all who contributed to the cause, the taggers themselves, Mr. C. H. Pennefather and the staff of the Union Bank, the Grafton Company Limited, and Mr. J. R. Brownlee, all of whom assisted.

The committees from the Chapters were composed of folllowing ladies: 57th Regimtntal Chapter, Mesdames E. B. Clegg, J. Fanning, H. Dodds and J. Mills; Otonabee Chapter, Mesdames R. R. Hall, H. E. Stenson, F. L. Robinson; Peter Robinson Chapter, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. F. C. Webber, Miss G. Glover.

THIS Your BIRTHDAY

MONDAY, MAY 11.—If today is your birthday, you must learn to be more punctual. About half the time you are late to work, late to your meals, and late in keeping important appointments. Nothing shatters the confidence of others in you more than this bad habit. You will have stormy love affairs, but eventually should be very happy in your married life.

You are born under the zodiacal sign of Taurus, and because of this you will be guided entirely too much by external appearances. Learn to delve beneath the surface of things.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Bran is recommended as an aid to health. Miss E. Boulton, 510 Homewood avenue, has the following recipe for bran muffins:

1 cup flour.
1 1-2 cups bran.
1-2 cup brown sugar.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 teaspoon baking powder.
1 teaspoon carbonate of soda.
1 egg.
1-2 cup raisins.
1 cup sour milk.

Mix dry ingredients together with eggs and milk. Bake in moderate oven until brown.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BOIL CEREALS.

All cereals should be stirred into boiling water and they should boil

IN CARPET SWEEPER.

A wire hairbrush will remove hairs and threads from the brush of your carpet sweeper successfully.

IN MAKING SOUPS.

The water in which spinach, carrots, onions, potatoes and other vegetables are cooked is excellent to use in place of water when making soups and stews.

VEGETABLE HINT.

All vegetables, such as spinach, cabbage, turnips, carrots, etc., may be cooked in boiling water, then chilled in cold, drained and put away until serving time, when they may be heated and dredged with butter sauce.

HEAT BOWL FIRST.

To cream butter and sugar quickly, heat the mixing bowl first with scalding water, then wipe and put in the butter.

White Ensign Given In Memory of Mother

Yesterday, at St. John's Church, a beautiful white ensign floated from the flag staff. This was the tribute by the Turner brothers, John J., Reginald, A. W. and Webber Turner, to the memory of their mother, presented to St. John' Church on an appropriate occasion, Mother's Day.

DO MEN DETEST WOMEN'S ROUGE?

Conversation Heard on George Street Raises Old Question Anew.

WHAT IS BEAUTY?

Some one once said that a woman is never beautiful until a man tells her she is. But, from a man's standpoint, what is beauty?

A party of young men, in a George Street restaurant, discussed the question on Saturday night—at least, they mentioned different types of what they called beauty.

And it would have been an eye-opener to many Peterborough young ladies to listen-in on the condemnation of paint and rouge.

Of course, they might claim the criticism is like the froth on what used to be and not worth the air that's in it.

But women have been trying to solve the riddle for thousands of years, and anything that throws the remotest light on the solution should be given attention.

To-day, they seem to have reached the conclusion that beauty means all the lip salve that a pair of lips can hold; unashamed circles of rouge on either cheek or both, and plenty of eyebrow pencilling. This is a summing-up of the verdict delivered by six young men on ladies of their acquaintance.

Joseph Hergesheimer, the novelist, wonders how, "no longer than ten years ago, women had been so successfully seductive without carmine lipstick, compact powder, scented extracts and colognes."

The indictment of to-day's young woman may be merited or not, but there are doubtless thousands of men who detest seeing a woman make herself up to look like a chorus girl.

STRANGE EPIDEMIC PUZZLES DOCTORS

Thought to be a Mild Form of Sleeping Sickness.

LONDON, May 11. — The doctors are unable to explain the sudden appearance of an epidemic of sleeping sickness in Great Britain which is reported to have attacked several hundreds of persons throughout the country.

The epidemic thus far has caused no fatality.

The doctors are inclined to believe that the epidemic is either a mild form or a variation of the disease. One victim is Lord Milner and another the Lord Provost of Edinburgh.

In the Garden

LABELS AND LABELLING.

The careful recording of events, of importations of new varieties, and of special interests in the garden can only be carried out by careful labelling. Keeping track of varieties of a favorite plant, as Phlox, Iris or Peony, adds zest to gardening. To be able to call a variety by name and show familiarity with the inhabitants of the garden is a joy known only to the enthusiast. External vigilance in keeping track of labels is the only way to accomplish this end.

There are many forms of labels made of wood, cast iron, etc., on the market, too numerous to mention. Each has its own special use, though some will serve many purposes. For seasonal use the wooden labels, with or without wire for attaching to trees and shrubs, are very satisfactory, but cannot be depended upon from year to year, and must usually be renewed every second year at the least. Zinc labels, either stamped permanently or written upon are more reliable and the writing will last for three or four years or more. More elaborate labels are those in iron frames with celluloid covers, the card of which may readily be changed. A very good marker also is that of a circular label hung on a heavy wire stake, allowing for the changing of the label.

One of the best systems I have ever seen was a home made one. Thin sheets of zinc were taken and cut up into labels of the desired size, the bottom being cut to a fairly sharp point. These can be cut to any size to suit the plant to be marked or the situation, from the tiny alpine in the rock garden, to quite large perennials and bushes. They have the decided advantage also of being inconspicuous in the natural surroundings of the garden.

This reminds me that the labelling of the plants in the border or on the lawn should not be overdone with prominent labels or a botanical garden or cemetery effect will be the result. If one has no nursery in which to become familiar with the plants, and it is necessary to label about the grounds, then by all means use an inconspicuous label and reduce their number.

For satisfactory records, the labels should contain sufficient data. The botanical name, varietal name, date of planting, of receiving and from whom, should all go on the label, together with any particular information one is interested in. This latter information though is not necessary if it is kept in the records, but for rapid reference it is better on the label.

Washin' Up

HAL COCHRAN'S DAILY POEM

Get out the bucket, the chamois and hose, and roll up your sleeves for a spell. Put on your boots, and an old suit of clothes. The auto's not lookin' so well.

When came the dust that has buried your car? You'd best run the 'bus on the rack. Hop to it, man, show how peppy you are, and bring the old shininess back.

Bet you've been drivin' the family around on the roads that are open and free. Rollin' along brings the dust from the ground. Why, the same thing has happened to me.

Call to your youngsters, and let them assist. Turn on with interest that's keen. See that no part of the auto is missed. Doll up your bloomin' machine.

When you have finished, your fever will burn, to ride in the open, and then, you can look forward, upon your return, to washin' the auto again.

TOWN BURNED.

Mayo, in Yukon Territory, Practically Wiped Out by Bad Fire.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 11. — According to information received in the city yesterday by radio, the town of Mayo, Yukon Territory, at the head of the Stewart River, was practically burned out by a fire which commenced on Saturday night.

Lux for everything you wash yourself

Washing your most precious possessions with Lux is just as easy as washing your hands. The filmy Lux particles melt instantly into a rich foam of almost magic cleansing power, yet gentle to the frailest fabric.

For all dainty things that have to be washed often—as well as all valuable things that have to be washed seldom and with the greatest care—rely on Lux. Remember, it won't shrink woollens, nor will it harm a single silken thread. And Lux is just as mild on your hands as the finest toilet soap—in fact it benefits them.

LUX

Toss Lux into very hot water and whip into lather.

Add cold water until easily bearable to the hands.

Rinse in fresh, lukewarm water. Squeeze water gently out, without wringing.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

VALUABLE CUPS TO BE AWARDED SCHOOL GROUNDS

Canadian Horticultural Society Plans Campaign of Beautification.

CASH PRIZES.

Given for Best Essay Written by Pupils on Horticulture.

Sentiment has enshrined the little old red school house in the affections of country bred men and women and the mists of time have rounded off its austerities of outline and enshrouded it in an atmosphere of romantic interest and beauty. But the dream and the reality are not quite the same. In place of the vine draped school house and the playground framed in foliage and flower the traveller often sees a plain unadorned, unpainted, building standing solitary in its enclosed acre or two destitute of tree, shrub or flower, a place altogether unlovely, uninviting and unworthy to be cherished in the memories of after life. There are notable exceptions; many rural school grounds have been beautified by progressive school boards, community organizations, such as Horticultural Societies and Women's Institutes and, not infrequently, teachers who see educational opportunities in the planting and care of the school grounds.

Hardy shrubs, trees, woody climbers and the more robust perennials are favored as planting materials because, once established they can pretty well take care of themselves especially during the summer vacation when teacher and pupils are not there to look after them.

To encourage the beautification of school grounds the Canadian Horticultural Council has instituted a Dominion-wide Competition and is offering several valuable silver cups as prizes to those who do the most meritorious work during the season. Each Province will have its own competition and provincial committees have been named to conduct the contests and award the prizes. A cup will become the property of the school winning it three times not necessarily in succession and wins each cup the Council will present an award of merit to be framed and kept by the school as a permanent record. There is no entry fee and no obligation is implied by application to enter the Competition. Applications will be received by L. F. Burrows, Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Horticultural Council, Ottawa. These must be accompanied by a photograph or snapshot any size, showing the condition of the school grounds at the time of entry. At a date to be set in the Fall, the schools taking part in the competition will be asked to send to the Chairman of the Provincial Committee a further photograph or snapshot of the grounds at that time, together with an essay describing the plan and methods adopted to produce the result shown in the picture. These essays and photographs will be used as a basis for judging but it may be necessary for the Provincial Committee to visit a few schools before making the final award.

Arrangements will be made, following the award, for the presentation of the cup and certificate to the winning school. An address on a horticultural subject will be given by the person making the presentation and the pupils will be asked to write an essay on the matter dealt with by the speaker. For the best essay from the school as determined by the school teacher the Council will give a prize of $5. Each Provincial prize essay will be allowed to compete with the prize essays from the other Provinces and for the best of these a further prize of $10 will be awarded.

The Competitions in the Provinces will be in charge of Provincial Committees the Chairmen of which are as follows: British Columbia, Prof. F. E. Buck, Vancouver; Alberta, Prof. Geo. Harcourt, Edmonton; Saskatchewan, Dr. C. F. Patterson, Saskatoon; Manitoba, Prof. F. W. Broderick, Winnipeg; Ontario, Geo. Simpson, Ottawa; Quebec, J. H. Lavoie, Quebec; New Brunswick, A. G. Turney, Fredericton; Nova Scotia, Prof. W. S. Blair, Kentville; Prince Edward Island, J. A. Clark, Charlottetown.

Because of the number of schools and wide area over which they are distributed, the Province of Ontario will be divided into three sections—East, West and North—and a cup will be offered for competition in each. Essays will also be received from each of these divisions. The Competition will be limited for this year to rural public and separate schools and a rural school is defined as one having one teacher. Entries should be made as soon as possible and not later than May 30. In addition to Mr. Simpson, who is President of the Ontario Horticultural Association, the Ontario rural schools competition committee is composed of J. Lockie Wilson, and H. J. Moore, Toronto; Prof. A. H. MacLennan, Guelph; and W. E. Groves, Hamilton.

Enter your school in this Dominion wide competition. You may win a prize but if you do not you will have the satisfaction of having done something to benefit the neighborhood and to make the little country school attractive to the children and a place to be pleasantly remembered by them in the years to come.

Hen Mothers Puppies Deserted By Beagle

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 11—(By Canadian Press.)—When a mother beagle hound on the farm of James W. Cesan in Agawam deserted her four puppies the orphaned family was taken over by a Rhode Island Red hen. Now they are inseparable.

Mr. Cesan first discovered the waifs snuggled neneath the hen. The only drawback seems to be the hen's failure to interest the puppies in the worms and other choice morsels she provides.

PRICE MUST BE KEPT STEADIER

Millers Cannot Operate Successfully While Wheat Fluctuates.

REDUCE STAFFS.

WINNIPEG, May 1.—Unless something is soon done to stabilize the price of grain, the milling industry of Canada will be forced to reduce and in some instances completely dispense with their trained staffs, W. A. Black, managing-director of the Ogylvie Flour Mills, declares.

He attributed the present depression in the milling industry to the violent fluctuations in the price of wheat. "It leaves the buyer so stunned and confused that he really does not know what to do, with the consequences that he buys from hand to mouth," he said. Mr. Black pointed out that there had been a ninety cents variation in the price of a bushel of wheat, which was the equivalent to $4.50 per barrel of flour. "Such an unsettled state of affairs makes it impossible to do anything and to-day probably not more than two-thirds of the milling capacity of the Dominion is being operated."

In a more cheerful vein, Mr. Black states that he has lived so much in the West, and has become so thoroughly imbued with the optimism of this part of the country, that he has absolute hope for the future.

"I came West in 3882," he said, "and went through the terrible years which followed before the West reached its feet, so that I am convinced of the ability of the West to again recover its footing.

"Like Horace Greeley, I advise the young men with whom I come in contact to 'go West' if for no other reason than that they might imbibe the optimism of the West and which will enable them to conquer the East. Personally, I would not give up the experience I gained in the boundless prairies for anything else in the world."

BACK TO CANADA.

More Money Farming Here Than Working in Detroit, Say Canadians.

Dan Fisher of Detroit, Michigan gwho was born in Glengarry Count, Ontario, and farmed in Bruce County, Ontario, went to Detroit ten years ago, and since then has been working in the factories there. He is now of the opinion that farming in Canada offers better opportunities, and he has made arrangements to go to Alberta to take up land.

John A. Mitchell went to Detroit last year from Armstrong Corners, N.B. Things have not gone as well as expected by him, and he has decided to return to his native country and is to farm at Grande Prairie, Alta.

John McCarthy, a native of Ontario, left a farm near Regina four years ago for Detroit. He has now decided that he likes Canada better and that farming offers more opportunities than factory work in a city. He is returning to take up land near Regina.

Eddie Summerfield, with his parents, left a farm near Verdun, Manitoba, in 1931, to go to the United States. They settled at Otisville, Michigan. Mr. Summerfield is going back to Manitoba with a brother. His parents will follow him back to Canada.

LIVE STOCK.

The Farm Animals Came Through Winter Well Where Given Care.

Live stock did not lack provender during the winter, and came through in first-rate condition where given ordinary care. Better prices for all classes of farm animals had a tendency to make farmers pay more attention to the fitting of their stock.

Horses.

There are about the usual number on hand, with fewer colts coming. Prices have been keeping up, and some correspondents are of the opinion that the horse is still needed on the farm, and that intelligent breeding will pay well and should be encouraged.

Cattle.

As many or more cattle are on hand compared with a year ago. The drift is more toward dairying, although some growers of beef animals are better satisfied with market conditions to-day than they were a year ago. All classes of cattle will be ready for the grass in good general condition, owing to there still being a good share of fodder on hand in most barns.

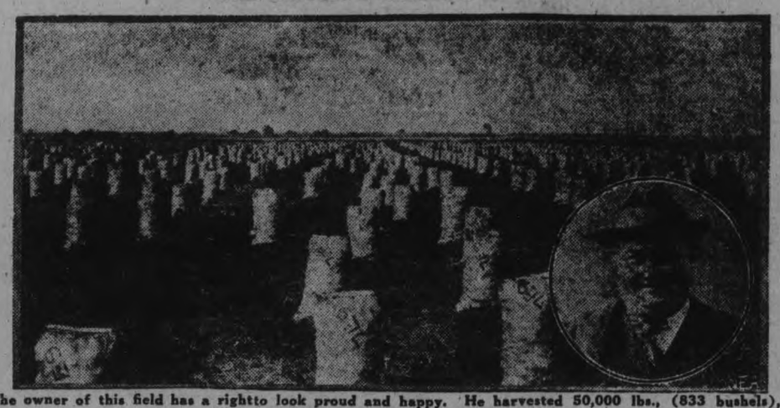
Swine.

Hogs are reported to be relatively scarce and in good demand. There has been considerable fallin off in the number of brood sows on hand, with a consequent shortage of young pigs. These latter are selling at from $10 to $12 a pair when six weeks old. Several correspondents report losses in spring litters.

Sheep.

This class of live stock is falling off in numbers, although some correspondents speak highly of them as a profitable farm product. Those who are raising them are as a rule giving better attention to their flocks. Lambs are reported to be coming strong.

RE CORD POTATO CROP



The owner of this field has a rightto look proud and happy. He harvested 50,000 lbs., (833 bushels), off each acre of a 50 acre lot.

USEFUL DRUG TO CURE DISEASES

Potassium Iodide is Used in Connection With Many Ailments.

A PREVENTATIVE.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

It has been well proven that potassium iodide is one of the most useful drugs in connection with the treatment of many animal diseases. As a preventive to several common ailments with different classes of stock, it has a peculiar significance.

1. For the prevention of hairless litters the following procedure may give good results where trouble of such nature is common or where it may be anticipated: Dissolve 1 ounce potassium iodide in 1 gallon of water. In the feed of each pregnant sow mix one tablespoonful of this solution per day.

2. For the prevention of goitre in lambs in districts where this affection is prevalent, the drug has given wonderfully certain results. The following plan is suggested: Spread 100 pounds of thoroughly dry salt evenly and in a thin layer on a clean floor. Dissolve 6 to 8 ounces of potassium iodide in warm water, using the minimum amount of water required to dissolve the drug. Sprinkle or spray this solution over the layer of salt which, if it is thoroughly dry, will take up the liquid: then mix thoroughly. Place this iodized salt before the ewes where they may have access to it during the winter months and up until lambing. Another plan not so practicable is to apply some 30 drops of tincture of iodine to the skin of the ewe every 2 weeks during pregnancy. The wool should be carefully parted so that the fluid may be certain to reach the skin and thus be absorbed and a different part of the body should be treated each time.

3. For pregnant mares potassium iodide apparently gives good results as a preventive to joint ill in foals and seemingly has an effect on foal weaknesses generally. Dissolve half a teaspoonful of potassium iodide in a small quantity of water and administer this in the drinking water weekly. Another plan is to use similarly one level teaspoonful of the drug twice monthly, say on the first and fifteenth. The former method is probably the safer. This treatment should be applied during the winter months of pregnancy, beginning with say November. Good results may be anticipated.

4. For pregnant cows, potassium iodide is recommended and may be fed with the salt as per directions given for the feeding of this drug to ewes. While potassium iodide used in this way should not be considered as a preventive of abortion, results would indicate that it has a desirable effect on the system from the standpoint of normal calving later on. In cases where trouble is prevalent in the herd, the adoption of this treat ment is to be recommended, although results might not be apparent for a year or two.

Where stockmen have experienced difficulty during this season particularly with hairless litters and goitred lambs, the use of potassium iodide should be kept in mind for another season.—G. B. Rothwell, Dominion Animal Husbandman.

PLENTY OF FODDER.

No Scarcity of Forage Reported Any Place in Province.

There was sufficient fodder on hand, generally speaking, for all winter requirements, and in most cases some to spare.

There was an abundance of hay in most parts of the province, although much of it was of only medium quality. There was not as much hay shipped out during the winter as there was a year ago, and there is a considerable quantity still on hand. Prices are quoted lower than those of last spring, running from $9 to $10 a ton, chiefly at the latter figure.

There was a good supply of straw on hand for both bedding and fodder. Straw sold at nearly half the price of hay.

A good deal of sprouted and other inferior grain was fed to live stock to supplement the coarser fodders.

There was relatively more corn for the silo on hand than corn in the ear for feeding, and the quality of the ensilage was much better than it was expected to be earlier in the season owing to the likelihood of late maturing.

Flowers For Farm Gardens

THE CLEMATIS.

(Written for the Ontario Horticultural Association.)

The clematis is one of the most handsome of the perennial climbing plants. Unlike the Virginia Creeper or the Boston Ivy, the Clematis requires a trellis or other support, as it does not cling to a wall of its own accord. The ideal soil for Clematis is a fine loam, inclining to sandiness, although a heavy soil can be made suitable by the addition of bulky fertilizer and sand. Clematis does well only in a well drained location where the sun does not strike directly on the lower part of the stem, on the southern wall unless shade can be given. If, however, a southern wall is chosen, a dwarf shrub planted in front of it will provide the necessary protection. Spring is the best season for setting out the Clematis and it should be done on a cloudy day. As the plant is to remain for several years, it is well to give good preparation by digging deeply and fertilizing well, using well-rotted stable manure, particularly at the bottom of the hole. The plants should be set rather more deeply than most other perennials, and particular care should be taken to spread out the roots well in the hole, firming the soil thoroughly and watering well, so as to bring the soil and the roots into very close contact.

The vines of the Clematis are rather brittle and the greatest care must be taken not to break these at the time of planting. It is recommended when setting out a new plant to hill it up ten or twelve inches to protect it from injury. All of the vine above this height should be removed. The Clematis requires pruning in after years. Some sorts, such as Stella and Duchess of Edinburgh, flower on the old wood. With these varieties pruning simply means thinning out, allowing some of the old stems to remain. Other varieties, among which are the Jackmanni, flower on the new wood. The pruning for these is to shorten the vine to about three feet. When this is done strong new vines are produced to bear flowers at their proper season.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

BUY SEEDS AT HOME.

To the Editor of The Farm Page.

Dear Sir: In reference to a letter which appeared in your issue of April 18, signed The Gardner Seed Co., of Rochester, N. Y., in praise of their agent, Mr. W. H. Merrill, and the extensive business they have here.

I think, sir, it is a downright crime and shame that conditions are such as to make this possible. What are the farmers of this country thinking of when they buy these seeds grown in the United States, marketed by a United States company, their money practically all leaving this country? The only money remaining here is what the agent, the railway company and the distributor gets. The prices charged is from 25 per cent to 50 per cent higher than that of local dealers who handle the product of Canadian seedsmen and the quality cannot compare with the northern grown seed.

There was a time in the pioneer days when peddlers were, perhaps, a benefit, but those days passed away in Peterborough county fifty years ago.

These concerns, like the mail order houses, pay neither municipal taxes nor rent and are a detriment to the welfare of the country at large.

The writer recently heard of a Toronto firm which does business through the medium of juvenile beggars sending a ten-year-old boy here twelve dollars' worth of package seed. I understand he begged the neighbors for miles around until they were disposed of.

The boy received as his remuneration a tin fiddle, value in Germany, 34 cents.

Let us farmers use the brains the politicians tell us we have and boost this Canada.

Mr. Merrill is to be congratulated on his success acquired through the short-sightedness of Peterborough county farmers. Let us hope that he will get a connection with a Canadian firm and use his talent to further Canadian business.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor. Yours truly, —W. W. McConnel.

GROW SUGAR BEETS.

Over Six Thousand Acres Have Been Prepared Around New Factory

EDMONTON, Alta., May 11 (Canadian Press.)—Well over 6,000 acres have been prepared for the growing of sugar beets in the area tributary to the new beet sugar factory which is being erected at Raymond. Work is now being started on the factory which will be rushed to completion.

VALUE OF GRAIN POOL DOUBTFUL

Price Decline Raises Question of Effectiveness of System.

CANNOT WORK.

OTTAWA.—While practically nothing has so far been said about it in the House of Commons this session, one of the most discussed subjects in private among the members is the spectacular action of the jwheat market during the last month. The Western members are especially concerned over the slump in the market, for it means millions to the farmer, and it has probably broken thousands of speculators and has threatened the existence of the wheat pools.

No one knows what may happen to the price of wheat. Most of those who have an opinion think it should be worth more than $1.50 a bushel, but as reports of probable yields and acreages from other countries come in, the depression deepens that only a threatened drought in some important grain-producing countries will keep it at that figure or send it higher. Just now someone in the West stands to lose a great deal of money, but if the feeling gets around that the crop this summer will be short, those who have hung on may yet win out. Just now, however, the hangers-on are in a rather precarious position.

The action of the market is bringing up again the whole question of the value to the producers of grain pools. A large percentage of the Western farmers apparently had come to the conclusion that this argument had been pretty well settled in favor of the pools, but recent developments have shown that such is not the case.

One of the difficulties encountered in discussing this subject is that few bring to it an open mind. The farmer thinks that as restriction of the marketing of certain other products keeps up the price, the same must follow in the case of wheat similarly dealt with. In proof of this it is said: "Look at what the Canada Wheat Board did." Until a few weeks ago it was also remarked: "Look at what our wheat pools are doing."

In trying to come to a conclusion as to whether the price of wheat in normal times is much depressed by heavy deliveries, it is necessary to point to prices, not in one or two years, but over a period of, say, 30 or 40 years. In this connection the following table showing the average price of cash wheat in Chicago over a period of 43 crop years, 1871-1913, is interesting:

July	88 cents
August	90 "
September	93 "
October	90 "
November	90 "
December	90 "
January	92 "
February	92 "
March	92 "
April	94 "
May	97 "
June	94 "

It will thus be seen that the spread over these months during 43 years was only nine cents per bushel, or not enough to pay the carrying charges.

Minneapolis cash prices for No. 1 Northern for 39 crop years, 1883-1921, were as follows by months:

September	$1.0316
October	1.0318
November	1.0242
December	1.0303
January	1.0591
February	1.0537
March	1.0541
April	1.0859
May	1.3959
June	1.0882
July	1.0949
August	1.0873

These figures are quite conclusive insofar as normal years are concerned. Of course, conditions during recent years have not been normal. How long they will continue in that state no one can say.

Successful in Rising Market.

The truth is that on a rising market the wheat pool can be successfully worked. On a falling market the odds are heavily against it, for the longer one holds the worse off he becomes, for the less he will get for his wheat.

The trouble with the policy of restricting marketing as a means of raising the price is that wheat harvests are coming in every month of the year in some part of the world.

January—In Argentina, Uruguay, Chile and Australia.

February—Upper Egypt, Southern India. It is in this month that the wheat harvest ends in the southern hemisphere.

March—Egypt, Tripoli, Morocco and India.

April—Persia, Mesopotamia, Arabia and Asia Minor, Syria, Cyprus and Mexico.

If Canadian wheat is held to long it runs into the offerings from Argentina and Australia, which have large quantities for export.

Dr. Magill, who probably knows as much about the grain trade as any man in Canada, told a committee of the House of Commons three years ago that if one were certain that another war was in sight, it would be advisable to control the selling of the wheat crop. This was only a natural observation, for as the prospect of calamities would advance prices, the country could not help but gain through control. This is but another way of saying that a wheat pool has a chance to win out on a rising market, but very little on a falling one.

FOUR SYSTEMS OF CONTROLLING RUST ON WHEAT

Eradication of Barberry Would Help in Controlling the Fungus.

IMMUNIZATION.

Necessary to Produce New Brand of Wheat Immune to Pest.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 11—"For a time each discovery in the study of wheat stem rust, seemed further to complicate the problem of fighting the menace, and the gathering of data still is an unending job," Dr. D. L. Bailey, plant pathologist of the Dominion laboratory at the Manitoba Agricultural college stated recently before members of the Canadian Society of Technical agriculture, here.

"Four principles of control are applied in turn to all problems in pathology," he declared, "exclusion, eradication, protection and immunization." Briefly describing the possibilities of each, Dr. Bailey said that while many fungous pests could be kept out or confined with the assistance of natural barriers, rust was not among these.

Eradication was achieved through a weak spot in the armour of the pest in question and in wheat stem rust its dependence on the barberry bush, laid it open to attack. Eradication of barberry was a safeguard, although not the cure. The campaign in the United States against the shrub might materially lessen Canada's trouble from rust, but the barberry, the speaker maintained, would continue to be a danger in the East, where it was acclimatized.

The effectiveness of the eradication naturally depended on whether the rust could live over winter without the barberry. Data on this had been studied for some time and took the form of surveys, study of "spore-traps" and over-wintering observation. Dr. Bailey said rust only wintered in Western Canada by means of the barberry. Otherwise it blew up from the South in the red spore stage.

Protection from rust by means of fungicides had not proved a promising field, although sulphur dust showed some signs of beneficial action. The real hope, however, was through immunization. Unlike immunization in the animal world, no known method would confer it artificially. It remained to breed an immune wheat and, discouraging as the task appeared, it was well within the bounds of possibility, he asserted.

Further progress in rust research, Dr. Bailey continued, depended greatly on whether biological strains were constant or whether they specialized and adapted themselves to environment. Regarding the types of resistance, Dr. Bailey said that it seemed to be specific and hereditary but physico-chemical studies had not produced anything to lessen the puzzle to any extent. He also referred to morphological resistance which pulled some varieties through that were really susceptible. Acme wheat was an example. Although actually susceptible, it seemed to escape rust in the field and provided an instance of when the gentle art of "getting by" was apparently more valuable than actual resistance quality.

WINTERING CROPS.

Reports to Department Show Fall Planted Grain in Good Shape.

Fall Wheat—Reports made in December to the Department of Agriculture concerning the newly-planted wheat were on the whole favorable. The acreage was given as fully up to the more recent average. The seed-bed was a fairly good one for most of the crop, but that got in late found the soil rather dry for a good start. The crop entered the winter in fair general condition, and was well protected by snow for practically the entire season. The snow went off nicely in March, the fields emerging with a most encouraging appearance; but frosty nights, with dry, sunny days, and sometimes windy weather, have been somewhat trying to the crop, and when correspondents reported, good warm rains were much needed. Heaving has not been as bad as usual, and little or no mention has been made of injury from insects.

Rye.—The acreage of this crop grown in the winter for grain is comparatively small. The experience of rye has been similar to that of fall wheat.

Clover.—The reports regarding clover are on the whole favorable. There has not been much heaving, but spring growth has been delayed by the dry weather which has so far prevailed. Rain was much needed for this and other pasture crops as correspondents reported.

WILL VACCINATE PLANTS.

Experiments to make trees and plants immune from disease by vaccination, and so reduce the cost of food production, are to be tried soon under the direction of Prof. Robert A. Harper of Columbia University, says "Popular Science Monthly" for June. A plant clinic will be established for the experimental control of diseases by serums and vaccines.

What Satisfies Wales Will Satisfy Hubbell

WINNIPEG, May 11 (Canadian Press).—"What was good enough for the Prince of Wales is good enough for me," was the principle that guided W. W. Hubbell, late of Staffordshire, England, in choosing Canada as the future home for himself and family.

"Yes," said Mr. Hubbell, "when a man like the Prince of Wales, who has travelled all over the world, buys a ranch in Alberta, it means to say that he has found Canada to be a pretty good country." The Hubbells, however, will take up farming in Manitoba.

Mrs. Hubbell, also, was questioned why Canada was selected. "Well," she said, "I had a great uncle out here who lived to be 113 years old. I concluded it must be a healthy country, even though it does get cold at times."

PEOPLE COMING BACK TO CANADA

American Settler Who Went Home Has Decided to Move Again.

BETTER CONDITIONS.

OTTAWA, May 11 (By Canadian Press).—Officers of the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization in the United States continue to meet many persons who have found from experience that the expected opportunities in the United States have not materialized, and are, consequently, returning to farm in Canada.

Among such examples, the statement of P. O. Warner, of Blacklick, Ohio, to the Canadian Immigration and Colonization Agent at Columbus, Ohio, is typical:—

"In justice to Canada, I feel it my duty to tell you why we are going back. We lived in Southern Alberta fourteen years, and although we had some poor crops we also had some very good ones. The country was new, the soil was fertile, and with a reasonable amount of moisture we could grow anything we planted.

"We grew cabbage that weighed 22 lbs. per head and oats 55 bushels per acre. Sixty-six bushels per acre of No. 1 Northern wheat was grown on our land the next year after we sold it, although we had never grown that much. We had lots of room to raise cattle and horses on a school section adjoining us, the rent of which cost very little.

"The climate is crisp and cold in winter and cool and pleasant in summer. The settler will find very little use for a physician there. Foggy, gloomy days are almost unknown. I believe the sun shines 350 days every year.

More Prosperous Here.

"We were induced by our relatives to come back to Ohio as wages were good here and because farmers here always make a good living. From our experience here and in Western Canada, we, a family of eight persons, would a thousand times rather live in Canada. It is easier for a farmer to make a living there. The laboring man here has little chance to make a home as it takes all his wages to live. I earn eight dollars per day, and I find it takes all I can save in summer to carry us over an idle time in winter, so at the end of a year I can usually balance my ledger with a zero; so we have plans made and we are going back to Western Saskatchewan about July 1. We are going to drive through in a motor truck. We will camp on the way and enjoy the scenery as it will be our last trip West, for we are never coming back.

"I have two friends who lived neighbors to us in Canada who came back a few years ago. They are now back in Saskatchewan trying to get a new start."

Fourteen years ago, Jacob Aadland of Mapleton, North Dakota, went to Saskatchewan and located at Shaunavon. He went there with very little money, just enough to get a start on a homestead. He has done exceedingly well since moving to Western Canada. He now owns four sections of land, nearly all under cultivation and clear of encumbrance. His improvements, stock and machinery are valued at several thousand dollars. Mr. Aadland is but one of about fifteen or twenty families who left this portion of North Dakota for Western Canada about the same year. All of them, according to Mr. Aadland, have done well.

WIDE VARIATION IN BUTTER FAT AMONG CATTLE

If Herds Freshen in Good Condition They Show High Content.

SOWING DELAYED.

Burnbrae Farmers Have Been Held Up By Weather For Three Weeks.

BURNBRAE, May 11.—John Murray, dairy instructor, made his rounds of the cheese factories last week, testing April samples. The tests, as usual, show some variation. Most of the herds in this district are grade Holstein and are generally low in the test. A few Ayrshire and Shorthorn herds and some containing an odd Jersey cow provide the tops in the test, as a rule. But, even in the grade Holstein herds of much same breeding there is often a difference in fat content. Much of this can be traced to the condition in which the cows freshen. This same feature has been noticeable every spring since testing was begun. Herds freshening in high condition and well fed afterwards will give a high test as well as a large flow of milk. Such a herd, if not kept in good condition after freshening, will invariably decrease in milk flow with a corresponding drop in the test. The cows that are wintered on little more than a maintenance ration will freshen in poor condition, and although with good feed after they may give a large flow of milk, the test will be low as they have no store of bodily fat to draw from. Such cows when good pasture comes use part of it to provide a store of fat and usually test higher in the autumn months. There is a great deal of both dissatisfaction and surprise at different times of the year in the wide variation in tests of the same herds, but the amount of bodily fat carried by the cows, explains much of the difference.

Weather Backward.

Weather conditions have been very backward during the last two weeks and as a result very little seeding has been done in the Burnbrae district since the middle of April. Farmers are finding the proper cultivation of the land to be a difficult matter, especially as regards weeds. The absence of bright, sunny weather has given the weeds a great start and although rooted out and dragged to the top, they soon grow again as there is no hot sun to wilt them. Some of the early sown grain is through the ground, and while it received a slight touch of frost on May 3, is not greatly damaged.

Wheat is growing steadily, if slowly, as are also the old stands of alfalfa, but the young clover and pasture fields seem to be at a standstill. However, everyone looks forward to a warm spell in the near future, which, with the abundant moisture in the ground, should result in a record growth.

FRUITS WINTER WELL.

Both Trees and Small Bushes Have Good Showing of Buds.

Fruit trees and bushes have come through the winter well, except in some localities where rabbits and mice did injury to the bark. Apples and cherries have a good showing of buds, but peaches are not so promising. There has been comparatively small damage from ice storms; and in the few instances reported it is claimed that the ice or sleet has largely cleaned the trees of scale and insects. Correspondents complain that in the majority of cases owners of fruit trees are neglecting their orchards, and that more care in spraying and pruning is needed for best results. Difficulty in marketing fruit satisfactorily is also complained of.

PLOW HAS HEADLIGHT.

Plowing the fields by night as well as in the daytime is now possible through the invention of an unusual new type of farm tractor by J. O. Heinze, formerly chief automotive engineer of the General Motors Corporation. A single automobile headlight at the front supplies sufficient illumination for the driver, says "Popular Science Monthly" for June.

The two front wheels are arranged close together in such a way that they occupy approximately the same space as a horse's hoofs between rows when the tractor is used for plowing.

HERE'S THE LATEST—COD LIVER OIL IN TASTELESS TABLETS

Greatest Flesh Builder For Skinny, Weak, Run-Down People—Full of Vitamines

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor; another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

PETES' YOUNG LOCAL RECRUITS MADE IMPRESSIVE SHOWING IN EXHIBITION GAME WITH COBOURG

Manager Johnston Used Two Squads in First Test of His 1925 Candidates.

HARRISON STARRED

Heckman and Whitehouse Held Visitors to Two Runs —Petes Scored 24.

The Cobourg Durham and Ontario Leaguers, a mixture of last year's C.N.R. and Dye Works teams of the defunct Midland League, proved to be very weak opposition when stacked up against the Peterboro Central Ontario League outfit on Saturday, and Manager Shiner Johnston's talent won as they pleased by 24 runs to 2.

It was a good work out for the 1925 Petes whose lustily swung bats rattled seventeen hits, including nine doubles, off the deliveries of Pitchers George Campbell, "Germany" Schafer and "Punch" Derry of the Lakeshore crew. Campbell, who started, lasted little better than two innings being shelled off the mound in the third. Schafer went in to stop the slaughter but was cuffed for four hits in a row and went back to first base without having retired a man, and the veteran Derry was called on to put an end to the carnival of hitting and run-getting. When he finally succeeded in doing so a recount showed that the Central Leaguers had scored exactly thirteen runs in the frame. Derry, the only one of the visiting trio of moundsmen to show anything, got by for the next couple of innings very nicely, but was bumped for five counters in the seventh.

"Shiner" Johnston had fifiteen men in uniform and used them all during the engagement, the squad showing enough all round ability to justify every confidence in their Central League success.

Whitehouse Made Debut.

Particularly convincing was the display given by Pitcher Frank Whitehouse, who pitched the first four innings in perfect style, not one of the enemy reaching first base. The graduate from the Lakeviews had fine speed and control and mowed the visitors down in order, striking out seven men in the four frames. Whitehouse had two rousing hits in four appearances at the plate and scored three runs on his own account. The young lefthander will be a source of great strength to the Petes this season and his start Saturday indicates that he is in for a fine year.

Al. Heckman finished the game on the rubber and contented himself with "laying them in" for the visitors, who with two scratch hits, a base on balls and an error collected their only runs of the game in the fifth. They were blanked for the last three innings.

The Petes had practically two teams in action. They opened with Legon, Hall and Ross in the outfield, Harrison, Rose, Marchen and Helson in the infield, and Whitehouse and Swanston as the battery. To open the fifth Manager Johnston sent Collins, Wolfe and Ash out to the gardens, shot McPherson in to third base and delegated Heckman and Gartner to finish the game in the points. The whole squad got an opportunity to show their stuff and they showed enough to satisfy the fans that the Petes of 1925 will be an up and coming gang, with plenty of reserve strength in every position.

Harrison Led Attack.

Offensively their work was surprisingly effective as the two dozen runs testify. Hap Harrison led the attack, the big first baseman crashing out two doubles and a pair of singles in four official appearances at the plate, and crossing the rubber four times. Ross had a pair of doubles and Helson, Whitehouse and Swanston a double and single each.

The fielding features were Harrison's running one-handed catch of a high foul from Butler in the second, and a fast double play executed by McPherson and Harrison in the seventh. With Schafer on second and O'Grady on first and nobody down, McPherson took Irwin's fast roller, stepped on third to retire Schafer and double the batter at first by a beautiful throw. Rawlings, the Cobourg short stop, did some fine fielding on hard hit balls and was much the best defensively for the visitors.

Peterboro's Runs.

The Petes started their assault in the first. Rose was hit and after Helson had fanned trying to sacrifice, Bob Ross doubled to right to send the first run of the season in. Legon drew a pass and Whitehouse was safe when Rawlings lost Skitch's throw in an attempted force play at second. Swanston's double past third scored Ross and Legon, and Harrison's sacrifice fly to right provided transportatoin for Whitehouse with the fourth run of the game.

The third was a festival for the Petes, thirteen runs crossing the platter. Whitehouse singled, and was sacrificed to second by Swanston. Harrison and Hall walked to fill the bases and Marchen's single past third scored Whitehouse and Harrison and when Butler threw badly to the plate Hall scored and the recruit short stop pulled up at third. Rose hit to Skitch and Marchen scored when O'Grady took the throw up in front of the plate. Rose stole second and registered on Helson's long double to left centre. Ross was safe on Campbell's muff in right, and stole second. Legon walked, filling the bases. With Schafer pitching, Helson scored on a wild pitch. A double by Whitehouse, his second hit of the inning, singles by Swanston, Harrison and Hall and errors by Bowen and Campbell ran the total up to thirteen before Derry finally retired the side.

Cobourg's only counters were made in the fifth off Heckman. Butler beat out a ngle to Marchen and Schafer walked. O'Grady forced Schafer, Marchen to Rose, Butler going to third. Moore singled over McPherson's head, scoring Butler. McPherson's fumble allowed O'Grady to register, after which Heckman fanned G. Campbell and Skitch.

The Petes scored singles in the fifth and sixth and wound up the day by gathering in five runs in the seventh, doubles by McPherson, Heckman and Harrison being of great assistance.

The game was called at the end of the eighth.

DE LAVAL JUVENILE SOCCER TEAM WON

Defeated Woollens Youngsters by 2-1 in Friendly Game.

The Canadian Woollens and the De Laval juveniles met in a friendly encounter on the Oval on Saturday afternoon and some nice football was shown by these young players. The Woollens were much the heavier team than the De Laval, but the Separator boys played nice combination. Jones in the centre, Downer at back nad Watkins on the right, played a splendid game for the De Laval, while the Woollens were best served by Kenneth Mitchell, Vinet and Sturgeon. The De Laval ran out winners of a very even game by two goals to one. Jones scored both goals for the De Laval, while Mitchell scored for the Woollens. The teams:

De Laval—Goal, Parkins; backs, A. Downer, Laughlin; halves, Williams, Hope, Dyer; forwards, Gravelle, Griffin, N. Downer, Jones, Watkins.

Woollens— Goal, Walsh; backs, Goldie, Vinet; halves, Pammett, Rose, Markham; forwards, Dalloh, Dorrington, Dundas; Mitchell, Sturgeon.

Referee—Mr. Mitchell.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The full swing in golf is common expression—but what is a full swing? I dare say not many average players really know. What they assume to be a full swing would in reality be about a swing and a half. When the top of the full swing is attained the shaft should lie horizontal across the shoulders. The spring gathered in the shaft should make it dip or bend, slightly beyond this, i the grip is maintained but the player should not be conscious of that. Since this defines the true limit of the full swing back, the player who is given to reaching oway back with the club will do well to shorten up. The correct back swing feels exceedingly short—as if the club were about three-fourths up.

CHAMPION PACKERS BEATEN BY DE LAVAL IN FIRST JUNIOR GAME

C.P.C. Had Advantage in First Half, But De Laval Won Out by 3-2.

SOCCER OPENING

The Junior League schedule opened on Saturday afternoon when those old rivals, the De Laval and the C.P.C., last season's champions, met on the Oval, and a most interesting game ended in a win for the De Laval by 3 goals to 2. The Packers played a pretty, short passing game, while the De Laval took to long passing and never hesitated to shoot.

The Packers won the toss. Anson was put in possession and made one of his dashing runs, Curtis relieving and sent to Foster, who in turn gave to James, who tested Frick with a nice shot. Abrahams and Anson, playing well together, worked themselves into a nice position. Downer gave a corner from Anson's final effort. Fowler took the kick and sent just wide. From the goal kick, Foster went away at full speed and sent to Laidlaw, who beat Frick and opened the scoring. From the centre kick, Pulley got away and sent across a nice cantre, Dyer testing Montgomery with a great drive. Curtis and Downer were having their work cut out to keep the fast De Laval forwards from scoring. From a nice run by Anson, whose centre was met by Abrahams, Montgomery was defeated and the game was even. From the centre kick, Buchan got under way and sent to Mitchell, Hensby coming to the rescue and relieving with a huge kick. The Packers were having the best of the exchanges and were giving Frost and his comrades plenty to do. One of the De Laval players handled the sphere in the forbidden area. A penalty was given. James took the kick. Frick made a great attempt to save, but failed to turn the ball, and the Packers again took the lead. Half time was soon afterwards called, with the Packers leading by 2 goals to 1.

Second Half.

Upon resuming, Mitchell and James made a nice combined run, Frick bringing off a nice save from Mitchell's shot. J. Montgomery met the return and shot wide. From the gaol kick, Dyer sent to Anson, whose centre was met by Pulley, who sent just over the bar. The De Laval were putting all they knew to get on even terms. Their efforts met with success, Abrahams scoring a beautiful goal, and the teams were even again. From the centre kick J. Montgomery sent to Mitchell, who in turn gave to James. Frick scored at the expense of a corner.

Curtis and Downer kept sending their forwards away but they kept hugging the ball too long and the De Laval half-backs, which are a splendid trio, robbed them before they became dangerous. Fowler and Pulley got away on the right and sent nicely to Dyer. T. Montgomery saved and sent well down the field. Laidlaw, who was now playing outside left, sent in a terrific drive which Frick saved. It looked as if the game was going to end in a draw. Abrahams got under way and sent to Anson who in turn gave to Dyer, who beat Montgomery and put the Separator Men one ahead. There were only a few moments left and the Packers made a great effort to get on even terms. Time was called and the De Laval were left winners of the first league game by 3 goals to 2. The teams:

De Laval—Goal, Frick; backs, H. Frost, Hensby; halves, Cooper, Warde, Harvey; forwards, Anson, E. Abraham, Dyer, Fowler, Pulley.

C.P.C.— Goal, T. Montgomery; backs, H. Curtis, J. Downer; halves, Cross, Buchan, Nicholls; forwards, Mitchell, W. James, J. Montgomery, Foster, Laidlaw.

Referee—F. McKinley.

SOX TRIUMPHED OVER SENATORS

Chicago Crowd of 40,000 Saw Defeat of Washington in Twelve Innings.

YANKS WIN SUNDAY

CHICAGO, May 10.—(Canadian Press).—Johnny Mostil's home run drive into the left field bleachers with a runner on base broke up a twelve inning game today and gave Chicago a 10 to 8 victory over Washington, before a crowd of 40,000 persons. The world's champions went on a batting rampage in the sixth inning, driving Faber off the hill and with the aid of Connaly's wildness, scored seven runs. The locals plugged along and tied the count in the eighth when Gregg stepped in and checked the rally. Greg weakened toward the finish. Lyons pitched great ball when he went to the hill. Score:

Washington 100007000000— 8 13 3
Chicago .. 200200220002—10 15 2

Ruether, Marberry, Gregg and Ruel; Faber, Connally, Lyons and Schalk, Crouse, Bischoff.

NEW YORK 13—ST. LOUIS 1.

ST. LOUIS, May 10.—(Canadian Press). — Five pitchers for the Browns were unable to stop the Yankees, who won today's game, 13 to 1. Taking an early lead, the Yankees also collected three home runs, Pipp, Meusel and Paschal each getting one. Score:

New York ... 304102021—13 19 1
St. Louis .... 000100000— 1 7 1

Pennock and O'Neill; Wingard, Grant, Stauffer, Faulk, Vangilder and Dixon, Severeid.

DETROIT 13—BOSTON 5.

DETROIT, May 10.—(Canadian Press).—Five Boston pitchers failed to stop the Tigers today, and Detroit, belaying them for 15 hits, five of which were three-baggers, smashed out a 13 to 5 victory. Three Boston errors also figured in the scoring. Score:

Boston ..... 010100030— 5 12 3
Detroit ..... 731001101x—13 15 0

Kallio, Ruffing, Lucey, Zahniser, Ross, Stokes and Heving; Stoner and Bassler.

SHUTOUTS FEATURE MICHIGAN'S GAMES

In its two early season Big Ten games, Michigan's baseball team won and lost by the shutout route. The Maize and Blue blanked Wisconsin, 8 to 0, and was in turn whitewashed by Illinois, 1-0, though the Illini got but one scratch hit.

MAILS STARTS WELL BUT THEN BLOWS UP

"Duster" Mails, in his first comeback attempt for the Cardinals, hurled great ball for five innings against the Cubs, but was driven off the mound in the eighth. He showed much of the stuff that brought him fame back in 1920.

FULLERTON RELEASED.

BOSTON, May 11.—(Canadian Press).—Curtis Fullerton, of East Boston, a member of the pitching staff of the Red Sox for five years, has been released to the St. Paul club of the American Association.

BROOKLYN WINS IN THE TWELFTH

Drove in Three Runs After Cincinnati Scored Two on Roush's Homer.

GIANTS BEAT CARDS

BROOKLYN, May 10—(Canadian Press).— Brooklyn defeated the Cincinnati Reds today, 9 to 8, in the twelfth inning, when three runs were scored on a pair of doubles and two single with two bases on balls. The Reds knocked Osborne out of the box and overcame a six run lead in the eighth and forged ahead by two runs in the twelfth when Roush hit a home run with one on base. Luque, Reds' pitcher, was removed from the game in the fifth inning when he threw his bat at Osborne after being hit by a pitched ball. Score:

Cincinnati . 000000330002—8 14 4
Brooklyn . 030200000003—9 11 0

Benton, Rixey, Luque, Sheehan, Biemiller and Wingo; Osborne, Greene and Hargreaves.

NEW YORK 8—ST. LOUIS 3

NEW YORK, May 10.—(Canadian Press).—The New York Giants won the third game of the series from St. Louis today by the score of 8 to 3. Jack Bentley pitched his fourth straight victory. Kelly hit a home run with Young on base in the third inning. Score:

St. Louis ..... 020001000—3 11 3
New York .... 00400040x—8 14 1

Day, Hallahan and Gonzaes; Bentley and Gowdy.

Central Ontario League Notes

Saturday's game confirmed the impression that the Petes this season are unusually well supplied with material for practically every position—in fact Manager Johnston's greatest problem will be in making the best selection from the talent available.

Frank Whitehouse, the Petes' lefthander, is spending his holidays in London, Ont., but will be back in time to make the trip to Kingston a week from Wednesday. It would not be surprising if the young southpaw drew the assignment against the Ponies in the opening game of the season. His work Saturday when only twelve batters faced him in the four innings he occupied the hill top shows that he will be fit and ready for the firing line when the league opens.

"Hap" Harrison was as usual the life of the party Saturday. He had four hits, a sacrifice fly and a base on balls in six trips to the plate, ran bases with his customary abandon, scored four runs and contributed the fielding feature with a running one-handed catch.

Of the six players used by the Petes in the outfield only two had a fielding chance during the day. Ross and Collins each had one put out.

The Campbells were not only coming but going on Saturday, Cobourg using three of the clan during the game.

Rawlings, Cobourg's shortstop, showed a nice pair of hands and a good whip. His work stood out for the visitors.

Max Swanston retired with Whitehouse at the end of the fourth innings but was in the game long enough to help himself to two hits and a sacrifice.

Marchen played the full game at short, and his handling of grounders was clean cut, although he was bothered by a lame arm.

The Petes are slated to practice Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights this week, and if the weather conditions are favourable the squad should be in good shape for the opening fixture on the 20th.

Ray Rose scored the first run of the season, Bob Ross made the first hit, Hap Harrison had the first put out and Scotty McPherson the first Peterboro error and started the first double play of the year. Harrison had the first sacrifice fly, Swanston the first sacrifice hit and Helson was the first strike out.

In Heckman and Whitehouse the Petes claim to have the best pair of hitting pitchers in the Central loop. Both take a nice cut at the ball and both are liable to come through with a hit any time.

With the material he has "Shiner" Johnston could shoot a whole team of right-handed batters against a southpaw pitcher or use six left-handed batters and three right-handers against a right-handed twirler.

BADGERS LOOK FOR GOOD CREW THIS YEAR

Wisconsin hopes to put a strong rowing crew on the water this season. A year ago the Badgers sort of surprised the critics by finishing a good second to the Washington Huskies at the Poughkeepsie regatta. They are out to better that record this time.

TRIBE PITCHER WINS OWN GAME

Tunney's Single Gave Rochester Sabbath Game with Jersey City.

FIELDING SMART

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 10.—(Canadian Press).—Pitcher Tunney, former Holy Cross star won his own game in the ninth inning today when he singled past third to score Head from second to give Rochester a 5 to 4 victory over Jersey City. Sensational fielding featured the game. Simpson hit his second home run in two days. Score:

Jersey City ... 100010200—4 10 2
Rochester .... 00020101I—5 11 1

Kiefer, Barnhardt and Freitag; Tunney and Head.

READING 9 SYRACUSE 7.

SYRACUSE, May 10.—(Canadian Press).—Reading earned an even break in the four-game series which closed here today by defeating Syracuse, 9 to 7. The game was a free hitting affair, twenty-eight hits in all being made, sixteen by the Stars. Niebergall and Berg got two homers apiece, while McLarry and Griffith also drove over the fence. Score:

Reading ..... 300030003—9 12 0
Syracuse ..... 021110011—7 16 1

Wilson, Mattison and Lynn; Meine, Boyd and Niebergall

BALTIMORE 8—BUFFALO 2.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 10.—(Canaian Press).—Fisher held the Orioles scoreless and almost hitless for five innings today. Then he blew. Home runs by Connelly and Roser, each coming with a man on base, place Baltimore in front with four tallies. Reddy came to Fisher's rescue in the seventh and was rapped for enough runs to make the game safe for the champions. Ogden, with great support, kept the home plate clean of Bison footsteps until the ninth, when the Herd escaped the whitewash when Anderson hit the ball over the left field fence. Score:

Baltimore ..... 000004112—8 12 1
Buffalo ..... 000000002—2 9 3

Ogden and Cobb; Fisher, Reddy and Hill.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

How does the umpire judge a ball that is batted over the fence or into a stand that is the regulation distance for a home run, 235 feet from the home base?

The legality of a home run that is batted over the fence or into a stand that is the regulation distance from the plate is determined according to where it finally disappears from the umpire's view.

It is not sufficient that the ball be fair when it passes out of the confines of playing territory. It must remain a fair ball until it disappears from the view of the umpire-in-chief, working back of the plate.

Several years ago a change was made in the rule relative to a home run that passed out of playing territory. Under the wording of the rule the umpire judged the ball according to where it was when it passed out of the park or into a stand. No attention was afterward paid to the course of the ball.

This rule caused more confusion than putting it up to the umpire to judge the ball fair or foul according to where he last saw it and a change back to the old wording of the rule was made.

QUAKERS GAIN SOCCER POINTS IN LEAGUE GAME

All Goals Scored in the First Half Were of a Snappy Character.

A GOOD GAME

The Quakers Held the Thistle Onslaught to Nothing in Second Half.

"Three goals to two."

This was the score in favor of the Quaker Oats over the Thistle in a soccer league game on Saturday afternoon, at King Edward Park, before a good crowd of spectators. Play was interesting throughout the whole ninety minutes and this gives the winners their first two points in the league.

Features of the Play.

The Quakers were the early aggressors, but a promising movement was frustrated by the defence, that left Wade in possession, who carried the sphere in his opponents' goal, which Richmond accepted, to send a fast shot against the goalkeeper. He made a splendid effort to stop its progress, but was too late, as the referee decided it was through. Exchanges were even thereafter, until a smart piece of play on Quakers' left wing gave the Quakers the equalizer, through Willshaw from a cross by Williams. The inside player missed, but the scorer sent in a lightning shot past Brown.

Anderson Mis-Kicked.

This was followed up by a second goal for Quakers by Gardener, who accepted the opportunity and mistake of Anderson. After this reverse, the Thistle set up a vigorous attack, but the result of the efforts were no more than fruitless cornerkicks.

Two Goals in Few Minutes.

Eventually Wade defeated an attack led by Quakers' forwards and transferred the play against his opponents' defence. Hodgson and Richmond passed the ball between themselves, as Curtis came out of goal to clear, but Thistles' centre-forward tapped it from below him to again even up the score.

Another dilatory raid by Thistle attack made no impression upon the stalwart defence of the Quakers, from a long drive by Mason, Richmond, Gardener again made tracks for goal, when Anderson was caught napping, as his opponent made it number three just before half time, Quakers, 3; Thistle, 2.

HALF TIME

The second forty-five minutes was more interesting than the first period because both teams were giving their best—one to hold their lead, the other to try and even up the game. No matter what move the Thistle initiated, their guests responded with clean defensive tactics that they failed to overcome, although the "jags" were far superior all round and confined the struggle to Quakers' territory for a continuous bombardment without any success. On one occasion, every spectator was expecting a goal, but Richmond stepped in the way of a great drive by Docherty, to ra corner that Curtis left open. Two free kicks outside the dreaded area were cleared by Honor, but the last one proved costly, when he received a nasty smash on the face with the ball. After trainer's attention, he continued.

Brown's Wonderful Save.

The Quakers improved as the Thistle fell away, and the defence had a busy session when Willshaw carried the ball down the wing and centered. His forwards penetrated towards goal as Gardener lobbed the ball in below the cross-bar. Brown stopped it in the corner of the post. Then a scrimmage prevailed until Willshaw let drive for the far corner of the goal, but again the Thistle goal-keeper made a wonderful save, then Jack Wade sent up the field.

Curtis Unbeatable.

It was now the Thistle's turn to do the bulk of the pressing, but the visiting defence was giving away very little, except a few legitimate shoulder charges that were not to attacking forwards' liking. Four corner kicks in succession, in favor of the Thistle, were well placed in front of goal, where Curtis came into prominence through his determined manner in stopping every conceivable shot that was rattled at him. On a corner kick from Docherty, the ball landed in centre of the goal, Curtis fisted clear, then following out of his goal to prevent a score for a throw-in. Play was very fast and robust nearing the end. Five minutes to go, the whole Thistle team went down in Quakers' area but they did not succeed in scoring. Quakers, 3; Thistle, 2.

Goal scorers.—Gardener 2 and Willshaw; Quakers. Richmond 2; Thistle.

The Teams.

Thistle.—Brown, goal; Anderson and F. Wade, backs; Carmichael, J. Wade and Docherty, half backs; Lauchlin, Williams, Richmand, Hodgson and Wilson, forwards.

Quakers. — Curtis, goal; Honor and Maher, backs; Logan, Scott, Maher, half backs; Willshaw, Smith, Gardener, Walker, and T. Williams, forwards.

Referee.—W. Rickard.

MOSTIL SHOWING SPEED ON BASES

Johnny Mostil of the White Sox seems bent on grabbing the base-stealing laurels from his manager, Eddie Collins, this season. In the first three weeks of play Mostil swiped an even dozen sacks, giving him a big lead in both leagues. He stole only seven bases all last year.

CRICKET GAME AT LAKEFIELD

Peterborough C. C. Lost a Good Game to the Grove School by 16 Runs.

FIELDING GOOD.

Peterboro C.C. played the Lakefield School Cricket Club at Lakefield Saturday afternoon, and a good game resulted in a win for the Lakefield boys by 16 runs. The secretary of the Peterboro Club was not advised of the game until Saturday morning, and the result was that it was impossible to get together their strongest eleven. However, the game was thoroughly enjoyed by both teams. Refreshments were kindly supplied between the two innings by the Lakefield School. Peterboro team won the toss and batted first on a good wicket, Stuart being top scorer with 11 runs, steady played for, the score closing at 59 runs. Christmas taking 6 wickets for 12 runs, and Barnard 3 wickets for 20 runs. Lakefield started well, the first wicket producing 24 runs; the innings finally closing with the score at 75. The chief scorers being Rannie 19, Barnard 17, and Loosemore 14. Elliot took 4 wickets for 8 runs and Thorpe 3 wickets for 27 runs. The fielding the the Lakefield boys was excellent, while that of the Peterboro Club was both good and bad; several catches being missed, but seeing that most of the Peterboro boys have not had any practice this season, due to the inclement weather, their initial showing was quite favorable.

LIMESTONE CITY ENJOYS WORKOUT

Step Lively For Petes' Visit to Kingston on May 20.

(Special to the Examiner)

KINGSTON, May 11—or the first time this season the weather man smiled on the baseballers on Saturday afternoon, and as a result the members of the Central Ontario League had their first good workout.

Manager 'Joe' Daley reports good progress, and from now on he will make the boys step lively to get into shape for the first game here with Peterboro on May 20th.

By a unanimous vote of the club, "Teddy" Gallagher who will again do mound duty for the team this year, was elected assistant manager. Fred C. Beaudry has been appointed official scorer.

President B. Noble Steacey reports encouraging support for the team among the business men and private citizens. The granting of the team the use of the fair grounds for the games by the city has caused general satisfaction.

The following players have been signed up: Quinn, Arniel, Gallagher, Cairns, Young, Purvis, Scott, Summerville, Batstone, Halbert, Teepell, Cherry, Daley and Nickle, while there are a number of prospects. It looks as if Kingston will have a team that will be worth watching.

ONE-SIDED GAME IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

Prince of Wales School Won By Score of 38-6 From Queen Alexandra.

Friday afternoon the Prince of Wales boys took a one-sided game from the Queen Alexandra team by the score of 38-6. The north-enders were unable to connect successfully with Holmes' pitching, while the boys of the Sherbrooke street school collected 29 hits, including a number of home runs. The teams:

Queen Alexandra—Clark, p.; Kingdon, c.; Whitnell, 1b.; Johnston, 2b.; Dorrington, 3b.; Sturgeon, s.s.; Dallin, r.f.; Outram, l.f.; Pullyblank, c.f.

COBOURG SPORT CLUBS ACTIVE

Golf, Tennis, Baseball and Other Games Give Promise of Big Summer.

COBOURG, May 9. — It is beginning to look as if Cobourg was going to have an active season in all lines of sport.

The Cobourg Golf Club expects to open their Club House about May 15 and from this on times will be lively at the links. Some matches are being played now.

The club has purchased a tractor mower which will be used in keeping the grounds in good shape.

The Cobourg Tennis Club has had new netting put at their courts at Victoria Park and the grounds there are being put in fine shape for the season. The Tennis Club is expecting a very successful season.

The Cobourg Bowling Club is also making special preparations and are meeting on Monday night to consummate their plans. They will hold their annual tournament on July 15.

Soft Ball League.

It now looks as if there will be ten teams instead of eight in the Soft Ball League. Their representatives are meeting next week to draw up a schedule which will probably open about Victoria Day.

During this week the C.N.R. Soft Ball players organized with W. J. Corbett, President; J. H. Lefoy, sec.-treas., Arthur Riley as manager, and Kent Payne, assistant manager.

The Kilties Band has organized for soft ball with E. Worth, president. A. Hempstead, sec.-treas., and R. Service as manager. The Kilties had a practice on Thursday night and had a good work out. Other teams are practising also. It looks as if the soft ball fixtures will be just as interesting as they were last year.

The teams now entered are: the Royals, Canadian Nationals, Knights of Columbus, the Dyeing Co., Kilties Band, Hydro Sparks, All Stars, Baltimore Orioles, Rice Lake Canoe, the Dominion Wheel and Fordines.

Church Tennis Club.

On Monday evening the Tennis Club of the United Church organized the following officers:

President: Harold McMillan.
Sec.: Dorothy Robertson.
Treas.: Mary Owens.
Grounds Committee: Stewart Macklin, Allan Irwin, Clifford Earle and Albert Jewell.

Juvenile League.

A Juvenile Baseball League is expected to be working strong here this summer as well as the other leagues. This league was very enthusiastic last season, and put up some interesting games.

Juniors Practising.

The Cobourg Junior Ball team, which is entered in the Dominion and Ontario League is having some real workouts preparatory to taking part in the district schedule. The Intermediate team which will play in the Durham and Ontario League has also got down to work.

Fixing up the Diamond.

Sand from the lakeshore has drifted upon the ball diamond at Victoria Park and some fixing up is required in order to put the grounds in first-class condition. This will be done under the supervision of the Streets and Parks Committee of the Town Council.

GOLF SEASON OPENED

Oshawa Golfers Plan Inter-club Games With Peterboro Club.

OSHAWA, May 11 (Special to The Examiner).—The Oshawa Golf Club's official opening for the season 1925 took place Friday afternoon, when two ball mixed foresomes, partners drawn, played on average handicaps, after which tea was served by the ladies. The fixture card of the Oshawa Golf Club for the summer month included seventeen events in the men's section, with the closing to take place on Saturday, September 12. Only three inter-club visits will be made during the season, with Peterboro Club in Oshawa on Thursday, June 18, and the return visit in Peterboro on Wednesday, August 5; Toronto Mississauga Club plays in Oshawa on Wednesday, July 15, and Oshawa at Mississauga on Wednesday, August 12; Oshawa goes to Scarboro on Wednesday, July 22, and Scarboro plays the return in Oshawa on Wednesday, August 19. The qualifying round for the club championship and R. S. McLaughlin trophy is to be played from August 14 to 19, and all cards must be turned into the convenor, Mr. A. B. Harris, by August 19. The ladies' section of the Oshawa club opens on June 1, when the ringer competition begins and closes on September 21, when the qualifying round for the ladies' championship and prize donated by the president, Mr. F. W. Bull.

LAKEVIEWS PRACTICE.

Squad to be Reduced to Regular Size at To-morrow's Workout.

The Lakeview Junior team will practice at the Riverside Park to-morrow night at 5.45. The final weeding out process will take place and the players who are to form the regular squad will be chosen at that practice. All players are asked to be on hand promptly so that a good practice may be had before it becomes too dark to play.

SECOND BALLOTTING IN FRENCH TOWNS

More Government Supporters Victorious in Municipal Elections.

PARIS, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Victory for the Government parties in the second ballotting of the municipal elections yesterday was freely conceded by the Opposition this morning, without awaiting official tabular returns. At the same time [illegible] criticisms were made that it was won with the aid of the [illegible]. The returns confirm the accentuated trend to the Left already manifested in the first ballotting a week ago.

DETECTIVES ATTACKED.

South African Natives Objected Violently to a Liquor Raid.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, May 11. — One native was killed and one hundred arrested as the outcome of an attack upon six native detectives to-day, while making a liquor raid. Seven hundred natives participated in the attack, and the situation of the detectives become so serious that a European policeman with them was obliged to use his revolver.

SOFIA BOMBERS PLEAD GUILTY

Only One Did Not Admit Guilt—Leader Prefers Shooting if Killed.

ASKS LENIENCY.

VIENNA, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Despatches from Sofia say that all the principals charged with responsibility for the recent bombing of the Sveti Kral Cathedral, in which 160 persons were killed, have pleaded guilty with the exception of one defendant named Koeff.

The court deferred judgment after pleas of guilty were made.

Marco Friedmann, alleged leader of the conspiracy, asked that he be shot in the event that the death penalty is imposed. Zadgorsky, sacristan of the cathedral, charged with having assisted the conspirators, begged that he be imprisoned, not killed, so that he might atone for his misdeed by prayer and penitence. The other defendants pleaded for leniency.

LOCKED THE DOORS.

Brass' Sale Brought Huge Sales That Forced Them to Lock Up.

Brass' sale of the Art Silk Co. bankrupt stock, at the former Hickey Store, attracted such crowds that the store accommodations were quite inadequate to handle them. All day Saturday the doors had to be locked at intervals, while the crowd inside were waited on. Brass wishes to apologize to all who could not be waited on, and to assure them that, as the sale will be continued all this week, with ample salespeople, that they are confident all can be served comfortably. The tremendous stock of Silk Gloves and Hosiery are offered at bargain prices. Mr. Caldwell who is in charge of the sale, wishes to thank all the Saturday patrons, and to invite those who could not be served, to come in some day this week, when they will be given best attention, and greater bargains than ever.—BRASS. advt

SHIP TOTAL LOSS.

Danish Steamer Hans Jensen Cannot Be Salvaged From Ledge.

HALIFAX, May 11. — (Canadian Press).—The Danish ship Hans Jensen, which struck on the ledges at White Head, N.S., 175 miles east of here, at seven o'clock last Friday night, has been declared a total loss, according to a message received here from H. A. Bageer, New York agent for the Danish underwriters.

WHO SAID SANDE WOULD NEVER RIDE AGAIN?

Earl Sande, America's premier jockey, who was badly smashed up last fall in a race track jam, shows that he has recovered both his physical form and his nerve. You see him coming from behind atop Worthmore to win a race at the Jamaica track by a nose after a very skillful and daring ride.

DESERTS DRYS

"Prohibition is nearer the grave than I," says Dr. J. P. Stoddard, 91, oldest living graduate of the University of Michigan, who says that while he was behind the early dry moves, that he now believes prohibition laws must be revised. He is a descendant of Jonathan Edwards, fiery theologian of early New England.

STIRLING COUNCIL PLAN WATERWORKS

Also Discuss Damming River to Make Swimming Pool.

STIRLING, May 11.—At the Council meeting last week, the waterworks question was discussed, and there is a likelihood of a system for summer use being installed this season, with a probability of it being extended and made a year-round service.

Another question of vital interest to those having children was brought up by Councillor Cranston. It was that a dam be constructed in order to confine the water between the lower bridge, on Front Street, and the dam at the upper bridge, to provide a suitable wading and swimming pool for children. This would be a laudable enterprise and will come up at a future Council meeting.

The supplying of additional street lights was left with the electric light committee.

The owner of the car that was driven through here so speedily last week was fined $10.00 and $10.50 costs.

Several of the local Oddfellows visited Frankford Lodge on Tuesday night last week, and witnessed degree work by the degree team of Argyle Lodge, Napanee, who have a reputation for exemplifying the first degree.

Stirling Encampment, No. 80, intend visiting Moria Encampment, Belleville, to-morrow (Tuesday).

St. Andrew's Guild held its regular meeting last Monday night under the direction of Miss Hilda Anderson. Donald Ross was leader, and Miss Nellie Tulloch had charge of the devotional exercises. Mr. Simpson was present and spoke a few words, expressing his pleasure at being back amongst his people once more, and was officially welcomed back to the Guild by its president, Miss Iva Luery. A piano solo by Thelma Green delighted the audience, after which the topic for the evening was taken by Miss H. Findlay, her subject being "Missionary Heroism." She gave two examples, one James Evans, who did a wonderful work amongst the Indians of the North-West, and the other, Father Damien's work amongst the lepers of the Hawaiian Islands. At the close a geography contest was conducted which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The funeral of Mrs. Helen Shetler, who passed away on Sunday last in Toronto, took place here on Tuesday afternoon. Her maiden name was Helen Westcott.

Miss Myrtle McMullen and her mother went to Kingston and the former is undergoing treatment in the General Hospital there.

Mrs. McCaughen was brought home from Belleville Hospital on Wednesday.

Mrs. John D. McGee came home on Sunday last, and is improving after her operation in Belleville Hospital.

Miss Florence Marshall is going to Whitby to spend the week-end with her sister, Miss Stella, who is attending the ladies' college there. During Miss Marshall's absence, Miss Myrtle Spencer will preside at the organ in St. Andrew's Church.

Mr. S. Handy is leaving to spend a few days in Toronto.

The sewing meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies Aid, held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Richards on Thursday afternoon, was well attended.

Chas. Bailey is absent in Toronto on business.

Dr. H. H. Alger attended the convention of the Ontario Medical Association in Toronto last week.

The staff of the Department of Agriculture's office here have been very busy lately distributing the seeds and eggs to the pupils of the various rural schools who take part in the School Fairs under the supervision of the Department.

THE BEST THE SCREEN CAN GIVE!

"Dorothy Vernon" is unquestionably Mary Pickford's best picture. Not only is it the most pretentious photo-play that she has ever made, it is the most beautiful and appealing"— "New York World."

AT THE CAPITOL

DIRECTOR ATTACKS MORBID PICTURES

Everyday Life Dramas Bring in Best Returns, Says Vignola.

"Commercial instinct may influence many producers of motion pictures to emphasize the morbid features of life, depending upon sensation to fill the motion picture houses where his picture shows, but it only remains to glance at the titles of pictures that have created the greatest successes to realize that he is wrong," stated Robert Vignola.

"The public taste is not morbid. It is often claimed that producers should hold a mirror to life—but it does not state to which section of life this mirror should be held.

"The moral spring of life is always toward an upward tendency. In the great crisis of life the selfish man may become generous, the miser may become a philanthropist or a fallen woman may save her sister from a like disgrace.

"The wholesome play that interprets everyday life, normal human beings with their hopes and fears, their triumphs and disappointments, bring in the consistent returns.

"'Declasse,' which I directed for Corinne Griffith for First National release, and opens at the Capitol Theatre to-day, is an example of a good, clean picture with plenty of 'thrills' of the right kind.

"That pictures and plays of this type are the most consistent successes is sufficient evidence of the moral stability of the nation," concluded Mr. Vignola.

AT THE ROYAL

PICKFORD'S BEST PRODUCTION AT ROYAL AT USUAL PRICES

Superlatives Describe New Pickford Play.

When setting forth the qualities of a motion picture, an abundance of super-superlatives is the thing most needed, according to the unwritten law of motion picture publicity and advertising men. A photoplay is always the "most stupendous," "most beautiful and spectacular" and the "greatest ever produced."

With regard to "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," the latest screen production of Mary Pickford, coming to the Royal Theatre to-day, we are told by Manager McGeachie that the use of these well-worn superlatives is justified. "Never since Miss Pickford started her screen career has she assembled such a cast of players. Weeks were spent in the selection of the cast. Sets that for beauty and reality cannot be adequately described, were constructed after thorough study and research had been made. On the screen one sees the impressive castles of early England set in the landscapes that transport the watcher to that picturesque country."

This new United Artists release is from Charles Major's widely read novel, "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." Special music and a special presentation will feature this showing.

"COUNTRY STORE NITE" TO-NITE.

To-night, with the prizes and laughs and Mary Pickford's big production, Dorothy Vernon, patrons of the Royal are asked to be seated as early as possible and avoid the inevitable line-up and crowd.

Prices remain the same, 10c, 20c, 25c—no higher.

"Fighting the Flames," which comes to the Royal Theatre next Thursday for a run of three days, has a very remarkable cast assembled to play the exciting fire story which forms the basis of the picture.

The lead is played by William Haines who will be well remembered for his success in "The Midnight Express," another action picture depicting railroad life. With Mr. Haines is Dorothy Devore, who is a great favorite with film goers. David Torrance of "Covered Wagon" fame, but happens to be a very excellent actor in his own right. Sheldon Lewis needs no words. He is a villain and every one knows him for those parts.

The rest of the cast includes Frankie Darrow, who though a little boy, plays one of the largest parts in the production. Charlie Murray takes one of his inimitable character parts. Max Davidson and William Welsh are the other two well-known actors who also play in the cast.

The production was directed by Reeves Eason.

AT THE REGENT

MODERN LUXURY AND FANTASTIC BEAUTY IN "FOLLY OF VANITY."

Dazzling Betty Blythe and Beauteous Billie Dove Head All Star Cast.

In "Folly of Vanity," a beautiful blending of modern luxury and fantastic imagery, from Fox Film Corporation which will be at the Regent Threatre 3 days, vanity is brought to justice in a startling manner, and stunning Betty Blythe of "Queen of Sheba" fame, and the lovely Billie Dove appear together and aid in the unfolding of a story of splendid strength and wholesome morals.

In the banquet hall of a middle aged "home-wrecker" of enormous wealth, on the sumptuous yacht of a social queen of much worldly sophistication, and in the Aladdin-like splendor of Neptune's realm, the sequences of "Folly of Vanity" have their order, and each surpasses the preceding one in beauty.

There is pure enchantment in the conception and picturization of the domain of Neptune. Grottoes of opalescent shells, myriads of lovely mermaids, spirits of the foam and minions of the four winds make amazing lovely pictures and the performances of the divers, swimmers and dancers bring sighs of admiration.

Betty Blythe startled the moving picture patrons of the world when she reincarnated the Queen of Sheba and put her living prototype upon the screen. Ever since that dazzling presentment there has been an insistent demand that she come to the fore again in some spectacularly attractive manner. It was for Fox Film Corporation to again bring her back and in "Folly of Vanity" she flashes forth as a sort of "1925 Queen of Sheba," thinly disguised as "Mrs. Zellah Howard," a social queen.

MILLIONS ON DEFENCE.

War Department Will Spend Large Sum to Protect Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, May 11 (Canadian Press).—The war department estimates for the defences of the Hawaiian Islands total $40,000,000, it was learned today. The figures, it is reported, are based on the disclosure of conditions resulting from the recent manoeuvres to test the strength of the present Hawaiian defences.

Around The City.

She sat on the curb, on the corner of George and Hunter streets. She was a little fair-haired baby, with blue eyes and a pleasant smile. Anxious women gathered in a group about her. To enquiries as to whether she was lost, she returned an affirmative nod, a wide smile on her little face. She didn't know her name, nor where her papa or mama lived. Presently her father came out of the drug store and took her hand. He shook her a little as he took her in. She smiled back at the group of women. She had been just playing a little game, and seemed to enjoy it immensely.

A little girl, five years old, and her small sister of six, come to the doors on Park street with green onions in a basket. A nickel a bunch they ask; energetic little things with black s hoe-button eyes and brown skins.

LOANS TO STEWART HAD BEEN REPAID

Chief Justice Says Facts Do Not Warrant Charge of Evasion.

TORONTO, May 11. — Whatever J. F. M. Stewart owed the Home Bank, either personally or through his companies, had been paid, and his personal honor was not involved in the transactions revealed in his trial for alleged negligence in concurring in a deceptive report, it was asserted by Chief Justice Mulock this morning, while presiding over the hearing of Stewart's appeal from his conviction.

Dr. L. McCarthy, K.C., Crown counsel, suggested that there was in a sense "an evasion of act" in the fact that loans made by the bank to Stewart's company were not revealed in the statement to the Minister of Finance but the Chief Justice told him that the facts did not warrant that conclusion.

The Bank Act requires that loans to the directors be reported.

Mr. McCarthy completed his argument at noon and will be followed by McGregor Young, K.C., his associate.

Peterboro' Manufacturers Are Very Enthusiastic

Over "Made in Peterborough Fair"—Will Be Heavy Representation of All Products.

Peterboro prides itself on being a city without slums, but that doesn't mean that it contains no unfortunate ones. In every city, no matter how well situated, there are always some who need help. There are always those who through force of circumstances, for which they are not to blame, are in need of assistance. There are other streets in Peterboro besides George Street, and on one of the other streets, in a home none too comfortable at best, but rather giving evidences of extreme poverty, there is a little girl called "Lily the lame girl," who has been lame since birth and underclothed and undernourished in the bargain. She has spent at least two summers at the camp in Jackson Park and is looking forward to spending part of the coming summer there. It is the only thing she has to look forward to. For the past two years the great events of her life has been the weeks she spent each summer at the camp, where she could have enough to eat, be taken care of by the nurse in attendance and have something done to relieve the pain of her limbs. Will she have her weeks this year at the camp? That depends entirely upon the success of the Made-in-Peterboro Fair, because the Health Association depends upon the funds from the Fair. The success of the Made-in-Peterboro Fair depends upon the attendance. The attendance should be better this year than it ever has been at any of the Motor Shows, because there will be so much more there to see. The list of manufacturers and of those who are to make exhibits is constantly increasing. In addition to the long list published in last week's paper of those who have already engaged booths there have been added:

The Canadian General Electric Co.
The Brinton Carpet Co.
Jordan's Greenhouse.
Campbell's Flour Mills.
The Peterboro Mattress Co.
The Peterboro Lumber Co.
The Canadian Woollens.
The Colonial Weaving Co.
Fred Roy, Photographer,

and other applications are constantly coming in. The Armories will be filled to overflowing with Made-in-Peterboro exhibits, and there will be also many other attractions.

CITY COUNCIL PICTURE SEEN

Thirty-eight Photographs Mounted as Souvenir of Centenary of City.

ON VIEW TO-DAY.

A picture that is arousing considerable interest is that placed on display in Roy's Studio window today, where the reproduction of the photographs of 38 officials of the city may be viewed.

The pictures states this year is the centenary of the naming of the city. Peterborough was named in honor of the Hon. Peter Robinson, who was instrumental in aiding immigration to a considerable extent.

In 1825 the first government houses were built and were located near the market square.

Before the present name of the city was given the locality was called Scott's plains, after Adam Scott, a pioneer who constructed the first mill, the flumes of which were discovered in excavating the foundation of the Grand theatre.

The first bridge which crossed the Otonabee was a wooden structure, which was carried away by the first spring flood. Peterborough has changed considerably since that time and those who look at the picture may well delve into history and try to find where it all began.

The picture ensemble includes all the aldermen, Mayor Turner, City Clerk Armstrong, Assistant City Clerk Charles Curtis and all the staff of the city buildings; City Engineer R. H. Parsons, City Treasurer Frank Adams, Tax Collector W. J. Green, Street Commissioner Harry Evans, Plumbing Inspector A. G. Metheral, Sanitary Inspector C. S. Stapleton; City Solicitor J. Wearing; Police Chief S. Newhall, Fire Chief G. Gimblett, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., Assessor W. J. Henry, Relief Officer F. W. Miller, F. J. A. Hall, Auditor, G. Grange, Caretaker, J. Thirnbeck, Street Foreman, F. W. Miller, Relief Officer, A. R. Ringer, Asst. Assessor, G. S. Perks, Asst. City Engineer.

By an order passed in the City Council, every one of the thirty-eight represented in the picture will be given a copy with the city's compliments.

OBITUARY.

JOHN LYNCH.

The funeral of the late John Lynch took place yesterday afternoon from St. Peter's Cathedral, and was very largely attended, the size of the cortege which followed the casket to St. Peter's Cemetery amply demonstrating the esteem and respect in which the deceased was held by a large section of the community. Motors numbering one hundred and fifty made up the cortege, with nearly one hundred of these containing members of the Knights of Columbus, who attended in a body. Representatives of Lindsay and Cobourg Councils were also present.

Services at the Cathedral were taken by Rev. P. Costello, Rev. J. McGuire and Rev. P. Butler. Rev. Father Butler officiated at the cemetery.

Pall-bearers were: Messrs. W. S. Merrell, T. McQuillan, C. Rutherford, F. McFadden, M. McFadden, and F. Fairen. Messrs. W. J. Kearns and A. Costello acted as ushers, and T. Turcotte as marshal.

MRS. JOSEPH WHETUNG.

The death occurred yesterday at the Curve Lake Reserve of one of the old residents, Mrs. Joseph Whetung, aged 64 years. The late Mrs. Whetung had been ill since before Easter, having failed in health since the death of her son, Joseph, Junior, which occurred at Zeba, Michigan, about that time.

The deceased is survived by her husband, three sons: Arthur, Ryerson and George, all of Curve Lake, two daughters, Mrs. Hopkins of Longford Mills and Mrs. Albert Smoke of Alderville, her mother, Mrs. Sandy, living at Rama Reserve, Orillia, and several sisters at the same Reserve: Mrs. Edward Snache, Mrs. Annie Benson, Mrs. Elizabeth Snache and Mrs. Alder York. Another sister, Mrs. Louise Johnson, lives in Lindsay.

The funeral will take place at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon at the Curve Lake Reserve, from the Methodist Church, of which the late Mrs. Whetung was a devout member, and where she was a collector for the Mission.

GEORGE ALEXANDER GRIFFITH.

There passed away on Sunday morning, May 10th, George Alexander Griffith, son of the late Samuel Griffith, who was an old resident of Peterborough.

He leaves to mourn his loss, one son, George Samuel Griffith, of London, Ontario, and two sisters, the Misses J. and Belle Griffith, of Peterborough. Another sister, Mrs. Robert Fitzgerald, of 687 George Street, predeceased him about six months ago.

The funeral will be private on Tuesday, May 12, at 2 p.m., from the residence of his sisters, the Misses Griffith, 183 Antrim Street, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery, with Rev. Dr. Blagrave officiating.

WILLIAM GREER.

The death took place to-day at noon of William Greer, in his seventy-second year, at his late residence 9 Hilliard Street, after a brief illness.

The deceased was born in Baileboro, being a life-long resident of that vicinity, until seven years ago, when he retired to this city. He leaves to mourn his loss a ward, Miss Beryl Wakefield, two brothers, Joseph of Lindsay and Jeremiah of Peterboro. The late Mr. Greer was a devoted member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and will be sadly missed by a host of friends he has made since coming to Peterboro.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

Further Messages Confirm Almost Total Destruction of Mayo.

EDMONTON, Alta., May 11. — (Canadian Press).—The town of Mayo, Yukon, reported to be burning in radio messages received here yesterday, has been practically destroyed, according to further messages received to-day. There were no fatalities. Mayo was the second largest town in the Yukon Territory.

BOY WAS HURT.

Jack O'Dette Struck By Car on Saturday—Several Stitches.

Saturday's report that Jack O'Dette was not injured by being struck by a car was incorrect, it was later found, the five year old boy being hurt about the head.

He was rushed to Dr. Baker's office where several stitches were required. Miss Parsons, who was driving the car, notified her father who took the injured lad to his home.

BUFFALO, May 11. — Formal announcement that a plan of affiliation and association of the Buffalo General Electric Co., Niagara Falls Power Co., Niagara Lockport and Ontario Power Company, and the Tonawanda Power Co, has been approved by the boards of directors of the companies involved, and awaits sanction of the New York State Public Service Commission, was made to-day.

Approval was made at simultaneous directors meetings to-day.

PRICES LOWER.

OTTAWA, May 11. — The index number of wholesale prices computed by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, dealing with 236 commodities, fell 5.1 points, in April, being 156.5 as compared with 161.6 in March. Seventy three quotations were lower, 25 were higher and 138 were unchanged.

Y.W.C.A. ACTIVITIES

This year is the 21st anniversary of the Young Women's Christian Association in their present splendid building, and the board members and girls are planning a special celebration in the nature of a "Coming of Age" party. This party will be held on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, and will take the place of the usual annual meeting. Every senior member and friend of the Association is cordially invited. The men of the city have been real friends of the Y.W.C.A., and their financial help and encouragement and praise have meant a great deal to the success of the Y.W.C.A. work, and so it is hoped the men will accept this invitation and be present Friday evening. Former presidents and secretaries will be present, and the swimming pool mortgage will be burned. This is a special event in the history of the Association, and a large attendance of interested citizens is expected.

The swimming pool is now open for the season. Special free swimming parties have been arranged for members of gym. class as a closing for their classes. The swimming schedule for this week, with other activities of the Association, is listed below:

Monday, 4-6—Junior School Girls and Babies. 6.30-7.30—Beginners. 7.30-8.30—Advanced.

Tuesday, 10-12 — Ladies' Class. 5-6—Senior School Girls. 8—First Aid.

Wednesday, 4.30—Junior Boys. 5-6—Junior Life-Saving. 7-8—Senior Life-Saving. 8-10—Swimming party for Senior Gym. members.

Thursday, 3.30 — Elocution Lessons. 7.30 — Ladies' Swimming Party.

Friday, 10.12 — Ladies' Class. 8—Annual meeting and Association "Coming of Age" Party.

Saturday, 10 a.m. — Swimming party for all Junior Gym. members. 1 p.m.—Pictures will be taken of all Junior and Senior Gym. Classes which took part in the Pageant. Swimming recreation every day from 10 to 12 and 2 to 6 and 7 to 9 except when lessons are being taught. 1d-111-594

FINAL RESPECT TO STURDEE IN LONDON BURIAL

Hero of the Falkland Islands Enshrouded in Flag He Honored.

KING REPRESENTED

Impressive Ceremonies Marked Interment of Avenger of Cradeck Disaster.

LONDON, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—Admiral of the Fleet Sir F. C. Doveton Sturdee, whose death took place on Thursday last at Camberley, Surrey, was interred here Monday with full naval honors and amid impressive ceremonies. The remains of this British sailor who in the war had added such a valuable contribution to the traditions of the Royal Navy in the annihilation of the German fleet off the Falkland Islands on December 8, 1914, were enshrouded in the Unoin Jack, the flag whose honor he had so worthily upheld. At the Admiralty as Chief of Staff, at the Falkland Islands where he avenged the disaster that befell the Pacific squadron under Sir Christopher Cradock off Coronel five weeks previously, and at Jutland where the German high seas fleet were forced to run for their harbors from which they did not again emerge until they surrendered to the British at Scapa Flow, Sir Doveton Sturdee put the "Nelson touch" into all his activities.

Eight British Admirals acted as pall bearers for their deceased colleague. King George and the Prince of Wales were represented at the funeral, while Viscount Jellico, late Governor-General of New Zealand, under whom Sir Doveton Sturdee had served at Jutland, attended the services.

Death Sentence Passed For Bombing Cathedral

SOFIA, Bulgaria, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—Eight men charged with participation in the recent bomb explosion in the Sveti Kral Cathedral here were sentenced to death Monday by court-martial. The other two defendants received terms of six and three years' imprisonment.

Three of the men who were given the extreme penalty, Peter Zadgorski, assistan of the Cathedral; Marco Friedmann, a lawyer and George, Koeff, were present in court when the sentence was passed. The other five men, who were sentenced to death by default, are Abadjieff, Dimitroff, Petrini, Kossofsky and Grancharoff, all well-known Communists.

Dimiter Daskaloff was sentenced to six years' imprisonment.

There seems to be a possibility that it may be permitted, and extensive plans were discussed at the session of the Canadian Passenger Association in Toronto last week.

E. F. MASON REPLACES R. HICKS AS CHAIRMAN OF UTILITIES

Mr. Hicks Retires After Five Years' Service—Pressure of Business.

BIG UNDERTAKING.

Former Chairman Remains Member of Commission—Has Done Good Work.

E. F. Mason was elected chairman of the Utilities Commission at their meeting yesterday to replace Robert Hicks, who resigned the office, due to increased business interests, after five years as chairman. Mr. Hicks still remains a member of the Commission, but he has purchased an ice house and other business properties in Cobourg, and finds it impossible to give the work of the chairmanship the time which it requires.

The recommendation of the accountant, W. G. Hendrson, that the office hours of the Utilities office be changed, was adopted. Starting on May 15, the office will open at 8.30, instead of at 9.00, and it will be closd on Saturday afternoon instead of on Thursday. It is said that a very small proportion of the accounts is paid on Saturday afternoon and the greater part of the load is off at that time.

A recommendation of R. L. Dobbin, engineer of the commission, that a draughtsman be engaged and a complete plan of the commission's circuits be prepared, with photos of transformer banks and factory connections attached, was accepted and the chairman and the engineer were given authority to engage a man to do this work. It was said by Mr. Dobbin that the plans available are very vague and most of the information is in the brains of a few of the employees, and if they were to leave their successors would be stuck.

It was reported that at noon yesterday two of the transformers at the Canadian Woollens factory had burnt out owing to an open circuit in the centre of the three. Three new transformers of 100 KVA. capacity were ordered to replace the 75 KVA. transformers, which will be repaired and used elsewhere.

It was decided that the account with the Hydro for $35,385.04 be paid as at the present time the commission has enough money on hand to pay this. Allowance for this account was made in the annual financial

GRAIN ENQUIRY EFFECTS SHOWN IN AMENDMENTS

First Reading of Bill to Embody Changes in Canada Grain Act.

SOME NEW GRADES

Inspection of Country Elevators Brought Under Control of Grain Board.

OTTAWA, May 12. — (Canadian Press).—The Government's bill to amend the Canada Grain Act received first reading in the House of Commons Monday afternoon. Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, informed the House that the bill was "a re-vamp of the old Canada Grain Act, including a number of recommendations made by the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission." An important provision of the bill declared that all elevators should be considered for the general advantage of Canada. This declaration was made in view of the judgment recently given by the Supreme Court of Canada, that the sections of the Act regarding overages interfered with Provincial rights.

The Minister stated that the bill would provide for the cleaning and disposition of screenings through the Government. It established new varieties of wheat now grown in the West; it did away with the Grain Survey Board in the Western grain inspection division, as at present constituted, and provided another method; it brought all country elevators for inspection purposes under the Canada Grain Board; it also provided that the Board of Grain Commissioners with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, may fix the maximum rate that may be charged by the dealer.

Owner Has Choice.

The new bill makes it clear that in all cases the owner of the grain shall decide as to the terminal elevator through which the grain shall be shipped. The time is extended for loading a car in the months of September, October and November from 24 to 48 hours. The bill also provides that the Board of Grain Commissioners with the approval of the Governor-in-Council, may fix the maximum rate that may be charged by the dealer.

The legislation embodies a declaration to the effect that all elevators shall be considered for the general advantage of Canada. This was done in view of the judgment recently rendered by the Supreme Court of Canada that the sections of the Act regarding overages interfered with Provincial rights. Mr. Low did not refer to the overages sections, in his preliminary remarks. He concluded by inviting all suggestions from the House for the betterment of the Act and asked that after the second reading the bill might be referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

Pay For Screenings.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) agreed with Mr. Low that the Grain Act amendments made up one of the most important measures before Parliament. He urged most strongly that the producer of grain should be entitled to full value for screenings. "He has been systematically robbed of the value of his screenings," said Mr. Stevens, but it was possible for the producer, under proper regulations, to get full value for the screenings from his grain. Elevators should be dealt with by the law as common carriers like railroads and steamships.

In all legislation the rights of the owners of the commodities being transferred to dealers, should be safeguarded.

W. K. Baldwin (Liberal, Stanstead) stated that the farmers of the West should not allow screenings to be burnt or thrown into the lake. They should be shipped down east for sale.

The resolution carried and a bill based on it received first reading.

NO DIVORCE

President of Free State Arouses Storm of Opposition.

BELFAST, Ireland, May 12. — President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State, has aroused a storm of opposition by his action in seeking legislation which would deny the right of divorce to any persons married in the Free State.

The proposal has revived religious differences between the Catholics and the Protestants, the latter being particularly strong in their opposition to the plan. Divorce has always been a difficult and costly procedure in Ireland.

The federal government now employs women as chemists, geologists, bacteriologists, plant pathologists, and micro-analysists.

ALL CLUES FAIL IN SEARCH FOR MISSING YOUTH

Check Book Found on Sunday Disposed of by Police as Meaningless.

RETURN TO RIVER

Some Opinion That the Boy May Have Been Drowned Under Logs.

LINDSAY, May 12.—(Special.)—Outside of the investigation of rumors, which crop up every hour, the local police had nothing to report last evening in connection with the mysterious disappearance one week ago of little Charley Hodges.

Monday morning a party of searchers visited the swamp east of the Pleasant Point school and some eight miles southwest of Lindsay where the counter check book belonging to the Fisher grocery, which adjoins the Hodges restaurant, was found on Sunday. The party came across two or three check books as well as a miscellaneous assortment of papers. These had been thrown into the swamp along with other refuse. This find disposes of what was looked upon by the authorities as an important clue.

The home of Lyman Terrill, a former Peterborough resident, was also visited yesterday by the authorities. Terrill, who will be remembered by many in Peterborough, lives near the river. He claims to be an inventor of some note, and has been working for some time on an invention which he claimed would bring him wealth and fame. According to the story told by the authorities, he induced a farmer living west of Lindsay to invest some money in the invention, which is far from the advanced stage of perfection. This farmer is the man who told a party of searchers on Sunday that probably Terrill could give them some information relative to the missing boy. His house was searched from cellar to garret, and Terrill was interrogated. He could give them no information, however.

Visits Fortune Teller.

Mrs. Chas. Hodges, mother of the missing boy, motored out to Fenelon Falls Monday and visited Mrs. Drake, the fortune teller. She informed Mrs. Hodges that her boy was in a large house about twenty-four miles from Lindsay. This house was visited by a great many people, and appeared to be quite public. The little boy had been crying but he was safe and would be returned to her in the course of time.

Ald. Moore, chairman of police, who has been untiring in his efforts to locate the missing boy, is completely puzzled over the mystery. If the boy is not found in the river when the crib of logs near the Carew mill is broken up, it is understood the Attorney-General's Department will be asked to take action in the matter. Mr. Moore has not reached any definite conclusion as yet regarding the fate of the boy, but will act on every bit of information received until the time comes to call in inside help.

Diverse Opinions.

It is claimed by some that if the boy is in the river that his body will come to the surface on the ninth day (Wednesday). This contention is disputed by some who claim that the water is too cold at present, and that the body, if not found within the next few day, will float down into Goose Lake.

Searching parties were on the river Monday, and it is considered strange by those who claim that the boy is drowned, that no trace of his cap can be found.

WARM WEATHER NEEDED NOW ON WESTERN FARMS

Conditions Conducive to Growing Required to Maintain Favorable Start of Crops.

SURVEY OF C.P.R.

Manitoba Acreage May be Larger Than Last Year—Frosts Cause Delay.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 12.—(Canadian Press.)— Cold weather during the past week failed to interrupt seeding operations in the prairie provinces and according to the Canadian Pacific Railway weekly crop report issued Monday, warm, and favorable growing weather is now more essential to maintain the good start given by the early breaking up of winter. Abundant moisture is reported from all western points.

Conditions have remained favorable for seeding in Manitoba, approximately ninety-five per cent. of the wheat crop has been sown. Seeding of coarse grains also is well advanced. Early indications point to a total acreage under cultivation equally as large, if not in excess of last year. Some seed that has been in the ground for ten days has not yet shown through.

Night frosts in Saskatchewan delayed land operation in some sections but with seventy-five per cent. of the wheat avreage seeded, the progress made to date is regarded as highly satisfactory. Not since 1915 has soil moisture been so uniformly good, says the report. Corn and sweet clover acreage will be increased considerably with a corresponding reduction in summer fallow.

Advanced in Alberta.

Plowing and seeding is in full swing throughout Alberta. In the southern and central parts of the province, eighty to ninety per cent. of the wheat is in and from thirty to forty-five per cent. of coarse grains. In the north, the figures are slightly lower. With a larger amount of seed being put in on stubble, it is estimated there will be an increase of about twenty per cent. in the wheat acreage.

Excellent weather conditions have favored farmers along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia railway and at many points in the Spirit and Peace River districts, wheat seeding is almost completed. Coarse grains are somewhat behind previous years. With plenty of moisture conditions are exceedingly favorable to early germination.

Higher temperatures and improved conditions generally have materially aided the fruit crop in British Columbia. Pear and late apple trees are in full blossom and other crops have recovered rapidly.

TWO HUSBANDS A WEEK

Divorced by Simple Procedure, Pretty Turkish Girl Remarries at Once.

LONDON, May 12. — Divorced without warning by her Turkish husband pretty Hadidie Ismet Hanum, 18, within a week became the bride of William Harris.

Her first husband, a secretary in the Turkish embassy in London, divorced her by the simple procedure of saying, "I divorce you." Since this is legal procedure in Turkey and embassy attaches are under Turkish law, a British marriage license clerk held the Turkish secretary had been divorced legally and was free to marry at any time.

Incompatability was given by the Turkish husband as the cause for divorce.

WEATHER

The weather still keeps unseasonably cool, with frosty nights. Last night the temperature was down to 28 degrees, with ice and white frost. A Smithtown farmer tells me that while no damage has been done to the fall wheat, etc., as yet, warmer weather is needed. Do we ever think of what vital importance the weather conditions are to the farmer? He may labor and toil, and expend his money and strength, but if Nature does not second his efforts by sending the rain and sunshine and suitable weather, his labor will be largely in vain. To the townsman bad weather is an inconvenience, and probably nothing worse; to the farmer it may be a calamity. And of all the appreciative readers of these weather notes, none are more so than the many farmers in this section.—W. P.

Driver Of Car Guilty Of Criminal Negligence

SARNIA, May 12.—Carlos Maitland, Wyoming, Ont., who drove his car into a group of seven young people en route home from a dance, here, on May 1, was found guilty of criminal negligence, after a hearing Monday afternoon in County Police Court, but Magistrate Woodrow reserved sentence until Monday. The defendant said the glare of the lights on a car behind him made it impossible for him to see, and he had turned the car to the right to eliminate the glare, when he ran into the people. Six of the seven were hurt, one, Donald Finch, the most seriously injured, is still confined to bed, but will recover.

SIR THOS. WHITE PROPOSES PLAN OF PROPAGANDA

To Inform British Public as to Value of G.T.R. Stock —Show Deficit.

SATISFY PUBLIC.

Canadian Credit Being Injured by Unfair Attacks in Some Overseas Quarters.

TORONTO, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—Commenting on the campaign against Canadian credit in London in connection with the Grand Trunk Railway award, Sir Thomas White, one of the arbitrators, and former Minister of Finance at Ottawa, issued yesterday the following statement to the Canadian Press:

"Cable despatches from London indicate that a section of the financial press of London is still pursuing its campaign of detraction of Canada based upon assertions that the award of the Board of Arbitration with respect to the preference and common stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada was unfair and that the Government of Canada has confiscated these shares without just compensation to their owners. As this campaign, although obviously promoted by interested parties, has been carried on continuously since the publication of the award and may prove injurious to Canadian credit in Britain, it has been suggested that the Government should take steps to effectually counteract it by authoritative statement. This has been done from time to time by the Government and the Canadian National Railways management but the interests concerned in the propaganda still carry on their agitation and continue to misinform the British investing public.

"When the award was made by the late Sir Walter Cassels and myself (Mr. Taft dissenting) an outcry at once arose in that section of the London press to which I have referred. Both Sir Walter and myself were subjected to the most unjust and unfair criticism. Without any attempt at meeting the arguments adduced in our reasons for the award of "no value," the arbitrators who made it were subjected to the grossest personal abuse. As neither of us, on account of our position as arbitrators, with an appeal pending, was in a position to reply to our detractors the attack was as remote from traditional British 'fair play' as it is possible to imagine. It is only right to say that the leading dailies of London took no part in this campaign of vituperation. Especially was I struck at the time with the fact that after the publication in London of the reasons for the comment of these great journals was fair in the extreme. Once the facts were placed before them they allowed no prejudice in favor of their own investors to sway their judgment which for the most part recognized the justice of the award.

Publish Deficit.

"It is now nearly four years since the award was made and the question arises as to the best course to pursue to meet the propaganda of untruth with which the mind of the British public being insidiously poisoned. I was satisfied from my ex-

Soldier Imprisoned in Cellar of Ruined Food Depot, Died.

VIENNA, May 12.—The amazing adventure of a Russia soldier who was accidentally imprisoned for eight years in the cellar of a ruined food depot near Vilna was revealed by workmen breaking up the ruins of the building.

He was entombed in the cellar when the depot was blown up hurriedly by the czar's troops in 1917. He was found alive in an indescribable state of dirt, with hair reaching to his waist. During all the eight years he kept himself alive with food in the cellar, but he died three days after being rescued without saying a word.

OLD FLAGS FLOWN

President Drove Through 5-Mile Lane of Jubilant Germans to Palace.

BERLIN, May 12.— (Canadian Press). — Speeding through a straight-away five mile lane flanked by dense rows of surging, jubilant humanity, Field Marshal Paul Von Hindenburg, President-elect of Germany, late Monday afternoon reached the Chancellor's Palace, where he was a guest for a single night, pending his formal induction into office at noon today.

The Presidential party reached Berlin around six o'clock last evening and in less than ten minutes Von Hindenburg found himself engufed in a vortex of frenzied men, women and children.

Even the enthusiasm of mobilization days in July 1914 did not approximate in volume the popular acclaim which yesterday poured into the path of the nation's new executive, and numerous manifestations of pre-war sentiments and yearnings greeted him all aong the route.

Old Imperial Colors.

The old colors were there in profusion mingled with gaily bespangled uniforms and other gala apparel, which went into seclusion with the the revolution of 1918.

Through it all, the President-elect sat rigidly beside Chancellor Luther his face immobile and marked by pallor, while his right hand automatically touched the rim of his top-hat, as he responded to the vociferous greetings to his right and left.

With more than military promptness the Presidential train arrived at the Heerstrasse Station, where Dr. Luther's ten-year-old daughter dressed in white stepped forward and as the Field Marshal alighted spoke a verse of welcome, and, courtseying low, handed to him a bunch of yellow roses. With a faint smile the Field Marshal thanked her and then turned the flowers over to his daughter-in-law to whom Chancellor Luther had presented a cluster of Lilies of the Valley Von Hindenburg wore a black overcoat unadorned with medals and carried a yellow cane. Shouts and cheers greeted him with increased volume as he left the station to step into an automobile.

Escorted By Planes.

As the party got under way a fleet of nine airplanes rose and acted as an escort along the way to Wilhelmstrasse. They showered flowers upon the presidential motor and frequently dipped so low as to frighten the crowds straining their necks to get a glimpse of the Field Marshal.

The policing arrangements called for 12,000 of the security force and several hundred plainclothesmen, and they functioned with old-time Prussian precision.

In the residential sections the Old monarchical colors again predominated, while in the downtown districts they led the Republican flag by a slight margin. Many timid democrats hoisted the Prussian Black and White by way of a compromise and, all told, it may be set down that the Black, Red and Gold standard of Republicanism was in hopeless minority.

No Disturbances.

Despite predictions that the day would be marked by clashes, the police nowhere were called upon to intervene and the expected Communist outbreaks failed to materialize. Berlin's proletariat absented itself at the reception, in keeping with the admonition handed out by the Socialists.

Veterans' leagues and numerous post-war juvenile organizations predominated, but there were also numerous deputations representing officers clubs, associations of German nobility and women's patriotic leagues. The Nationalistic student fraternities turned out in gala attire and carried their college standard.

PEACE RIVER LAND UNSOLD

Three and One-half Million Acres Obtained by Dominion in 1871 From B.C.

MOST RETAINED.

OTTAWA, May 12.—That little of the acerage in the Peace River block, deeded by British Columbia to the Dominion in 1871, has been disposed of, is revealed in a return tabled in the House of Commons Monday in answer to an inquiry from Hon. H. H. Stevens.

Under the conveyance of lands in 1871, "in furtherance of construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway," the province agreed to give the Dominion a strip of land twenty miles wide throughout the province. Lands in this 20-mile railway belt had been already disposed of in some places and the Dominion agreed to accept an equivalent number of acres, that is three and a half million acres, in the Peace River block.

Since then 1,130 acres have been sold and $2,324 received from the sale. In addition 75,231 acres have been leased and $3,490 have been received from rental.

RARE MAP OF JEWELS

Costliest in World is in Louvre—Names Inscribed in Gold.

PARIS, May 12.— The costliest map in the world is in the Louvre here. It is a map of France, with the groundwork of polished jasper.

All the principal towns are marked with precious stones and their names inscribed in gold.

The rivers are strips of polished platinum and the 87 divisions of the country are arranged as a wonderful scheme of blazing gems. The map was made in Russia, and was a gift from the czar, at the time of the Franco-Russian alliance.

Animals You Can't Tame.

British Wildcat, African Dog and Black Jaguar Refuse Civilization.

LONDON, May 12—All efforts of man have failed to tame several wild animals. The British wildcat cannot be tamed, even when kittens are brought up in captivity. The same is true of the North American lynx.

So far, the African wild dog has never been tamed, and packs of them are extremely dangerous to hunters. Most wolves can be tamed but the one known as the Tasmanian devil absolutely refuses to forget its wild state.

The black jaguar is another animal which so far has defied all efforts to "civilize" it.

RAINIEST SPOT.

WASHINGTON, May 12 — The "rainiest' place in the world is said to be in the Khasi Hills in Assam. There the water comes down in Niagaras.

The average annual rainfall there is 458 inches. In 1861 the average was nearly doubled. In that year 905 inches fell, of which 366 were recorded in the month of July. On one day in July 40 inches fell in 24 hours.

CHILDREN TELL FATHER'S CRIME

Coroner's Jury Brings Verdict Against Mr. Desmedt —Killed His Wife.

ACID USED.

WINNIPEG, May 12 (Canadian Press)—After hearing the testimony of three young children, the coroner's jury last night brought in a verdict holding their father guilty of causing their mother's death.

The man is M. Desmedt whose wife, Valeria, died on May 6 from burns about the fact and body. The children testified that they heard their mother cry out that their father had poisoned her by throwing acid on her while she was asleep. Desmedt was arraigned yesterday on a murder charge.

RUSSIA MUST ACCEPT PACT

Countries Bordering Soviet Realm Will Not Disarm in Meantime.

CONTROL OF ARMS.

GENEVA, May 12 (Canadian Press).—Soviet Russia today was made the crux of the situation faced by the international conference for control of traffic in arms. Poland filed an amendment to the proposed convention, to the effect that countries bordering on Russia would not be bound by that agreement unless the Soviet government also was bound by it.

Russia refused to attend the present conference, giving as the reason that its purpose amounted to interference in domestic affairs.

The Polish amendment as to Russia was preceded by a declaration that the traffic in arms could not be considered apart from the whole problem of disarmament and security.

Completely Relieved and Perfectly Satisfied

New Brunswick Lady Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

CARAQUET, N.B., May 11.—(Special).—The following letter is typical of the mass of unsought testimony which is growing in volume day by day as the knowledge of our Dodds' Kidney Pills gradually spreads.

"After suffering several months with Bright's Disease and pains in the head, I took six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They have completely relieved me of my trouble, and given perfect satisfaction.

Before taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I was incapable of doing much work. I can now do more than ever before."

This testimonial comes from Madame P. Boudreau, a well-known resident of this place.

All over Canada, Dodd's Kidney Pills are recognized as suffering women's best friend. They act directly on the kidneys, making them strong and healthy. Diseased kidneys are the cause of nine-tenths of all ills women are heir to. Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

WALKED THE FLOOR FOR HOURS NERVES WERE SO BAD

Wherever there are people who are troubled with deranged nerves they will find in Milburns' Heart and Nerve Pills a remedy that will restore the equilibrium of the deranged centres and bring back the shattered nervous system to a perfect condition.

Mrs. W. W. Aulthouse, Woodrous, Ont., writes:—"After having a severe atack of bronchitis I was left in a very weak, run-down condition; my nerves were all broken up; could not sleep at night, and would have to get out of bed and walk the floor for hours.

"After using a box of

MILBURN'S HEART AN DNERVE PILLS

I began to feel much better, and after taking a few more boxes I could enjoy my rest as well as I ever did. I always recommend them to all my friends."

TEMPERANCE WORKERS OF EAST NORTHUMBERLAND MEET MAY 26

Convention to be Held at Warkworth — Field Day on Sunday, May 24.

NEW OEEICERS

NORHAM, May 11—A meeting of the temperance workers of East Northumberland, attended by representatives from Wooler, Brighton, Cobourg, Hilton, Codrington, Norham and Warkworth, was held in the Council Chamber of the town hall Warkworth, Saturday afternoon. The resignations of B. C. H. Becker, of Brighton, President, and R. G. Bird, of Brighton, Secretary, were accepted and Rev J. S. I. Wilson, of Brighton, and who is also President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, was elected President, and George Little, of Brighton, was elected secretary.

A field day was arranged for the riding to be held on Sunday, May 24, and a riding convention to be held in Warkworth, on Tuesday afternoon and evening of May 26. The object of the convention will be to organize, for temperance propaganda, the various polling divisions and will effect the municipal, provincial and parliamentary life of the riding. The evening is to be addressed by two representatives of the Ontario Prohibition Union, of Toronto who will be accompanied by a singer. On Sunday, May 24, the various ministers throughout the riding will exchange pulpits.

Runaway Stopped

Mrs. Fred Wetherson and two little children had a narrow escape from severe injury Thursday of last week. While driving into Warkworth upon passing a motorcycle the horse took fright and ran away but was stopped by a group of men at the gristmill before any damage was done except breaking the harness.

SENATE USHER HAD A VARIED CAREER

Col. Chambers Had Been Soldier, Editor, Publisher and Censor.

OTTAWA, May 12. — Colonel Ernest John Chambers, soldier, war correspondent, editor, former chief press censor and gentleman usher of the Black Rod, died at his home at Vaudreuil, Que., last night, after a lingering illness, at the age of 63 years.

Coloney Chambers who was 63 years of age, had suffered for a few days with bronchitis, and on Friday left Ottawa to go to his summer home at Vaudreuil, near Dorion. He seemed to be doing well when at 10.30 o'clock last night he was seized with a violent fit of coughing and at 11 o'clock he died.

Col. Ernest John Chambers was born at Penridge, Staffordshire, England and came to Canada in 1870 and was educated at Prince Albert School at St. Henri, Quebec, and at the Montreal High School. He was at one time engaged in journalism and was managing director and editor of the Calgary Herald in 1888 and 1889, and for two years was joint proprietor and editor of the Canada Military Gazette. On March 1, 1904, he was appointed gentleman usher of the Black Rod of the Senate of Canada and he was for several years the Canadian Secretary of the Associated Boards of the Royal Academy of Music in the Royal College of Music, London.

SASSED JUDGE

When Judge C. A. Williams told Mrs. Belle Spencer, prominent Chicago lawyer, to sit down she told him a few things. So the judge fined her $50 for contempt of court. When Mrs. Spencer did not show up to pay the fine a commitment was served on her. She was taken to jail where she says she will remain until the fine has been worked out at the rate of $1.50 a day.

PROHIBITION UNION MET WARKWORTH

East Northumberland Branch Formed to Combat 4.4 Beer Menace.

(By a Staff Reporter).

WARKWORTH, May 12.—Provincial temperance workers of this district held a meeting here Saturday and organized the East Northumberland Prohibition Union, a branch of the new association which has been organized in Ontario as a result of the introduction of 4.4 beer. The prohibitionists here are of the opinion that the latest temperance legislation is but the entering wedge, the first step in a move to re-establish the liquor business on an anti-prohibition basis.

Rev. J. I. S. Wilson of Brighton is president and George Little of the same place is secretary of this new society. A committee will be nominated in every polling sub-division in East Northumberland to secure new members who can be depended upon to vote for the "dry" candidate at the next Provincial election.

A temperance field day will be held on Sunday, May 24, when all the ministers in the riding will be asked to exchange pulpits and preach temperance sermons. Ministers who cannot exchange are expected also to make prohibition the subject of their discourses on that day.

The attendance at the meeting fairly represented the riding, but Campbellford failed to send a delegate. There has always been a temperance organization in each of the Legislative ridings of Northumberland, and this system is likely to be followed now that the two divisions are united. What was formerly West Northumberland will have a branch of the Prohibition Union.

WANT SOFTBALL RULES

Campbellford League Seeks Information From Peterboro.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—The executive committee of the Soft-Ball League will meet at the Public Library tonight, to discuss the drawing up of a schedule and the playing rules to be adopted. With regard to the latter question, the officials of the league are anxious to adopt the same rules as those used in Peterboro, so that there will be no conflict on any point in the event of teams from here playing in Peterboro or vice versa. A copy of the rules governing the Peterboro League would be gratefully received by the officials here.

A PAINSTAKING HEN

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—A young man from Codrington, well dressed and showing in every way that he had received a careful bringing up, while in town the other day rather startled a number of people to whom he told the following story, without preface or apology or the twitch of a facial muscle.

According to the local historian a farmer out at Codrington owns a flock of pure-bred Plymouth Rocks. One of the hens not only lays an egg every day but carries it carefully in her beak from the rest and deposits it at the kitchen door. If the door happens to be open the hen enters the room and places the egg on the table. The hen never cackles until its burden is carefully disposed of.

The young man was at once classified as a member of the army of prevaricators that is receiving recruits from all parts of the county, Campbellford is inclined to resent the efforts of an outside artist in exaggerations probably under the impression that home talent should be given a monopoly.

GARDENING AT CAMPBELLFORD

Hired Man's Underwear is Age Old Guide to Planting.

STRAW HAT SIGN

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12.—In the days of long ago, before weather bulletins were issued by official observers the wise farmer did not think the season was favorable for planting corn, which requires a high temperature, until the hired man abandoned his underwear. That process settled all doubts, the modern thermometer is no more reliable. The corn was planted in the full hope of a rapid growth.

Back yard gardens, like cornfields, show better results when the mercury begins to get on intimate terms with the top of the glass. In this town some thrifty householders do not consider that Spring has officially arrived until Bert Runnels appears in public wearing a straw hat. Bert, however, who held that distinction for years was beaten to it this year when on the first Sunday in May a citizen appeared at one of the local churches wearing a sailor of the vintage of 1924.

Campbellford Gardener At Work.

Spring has arrived, and with hoe and spade the residents are busy. Stores that handle seed and the greenhouse where tender plants are prepared for transfer from box to garden are in the midst of their usual Spring trade. The hens in town are patiently awaiting the day when their new stamping ground will be ready, the cats and dogs for more space in which to play. It seems too bad that the peaceful pursuit of raising vegetables in a back yard should tend to create so much ill-feeling in a neighborhood.

Two of the most extensive and successful amateur gardeners in town are S. J. Moore and S. J. Dolman, whose ambition in this avocation are as perfectly alike as their initials.

KILLED BY ROLLER.

Three Year Old Girl Was Run Over on Her Father's Farm.

ST. MARY'S, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—The three-year-old daughter of W. R. Kirby, of near Kirkton, was run over by a roller on her father's farm yesterday afternoon and died shortly after. Her little brother, aged five, was slightly injured.

DISCUSS SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, May 11 (Canadian Press).—Informal conversations relative to the French debt settlement are again in progress, it was disclosed today at the state department.

Confirming the fact of negotiations for the first time, the department reiterated that the Washington Government had sent no formal communication on the question to France.

OBITUARY

THOMAS MYLES.

HASTINGS, May 12.—The death occurred on Monday evening of Mr. Thomas Myles, at his home in Asphodel, after a lingering illness. The deceased was in his 65th year, and had lived in Asphodel all his life, and was the son of the late Jerry Myles. He is survived by his widow and one son, Louis, one brother, James, of Clearwater, N.Y., and three sisters: Mrs. Sullivan of Sarnia, Mrs. O'Brien of Sarnia, and Mrs. Foley of Keene.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday morning, the service being held in the Church of our Lady Mount Carmel, interment to take place in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

T. A. KELLY

MILLBROOK, May 12—The late T. A. Kelly, whose death, following a lingering illness, took place on Thursday, was born on the family homestead, 8th line, Cavan, sixty-one years ago.

His grandparents came from the North of Ireland when his father, the late Mr. Joseph Kelly, was only seven years old, and were pioneers in this Township, choosing the present homestead upon which to locate, clearing the land, and enduring the many hardships and privations incident to the early settler's lives.

Deceased was, from young manhood, active in public life, and was deservdly popular in his social, political, and fraternal relationships. He gave loyal, and practical support to the Farmers' Institute of which he was for a time president; he was also a past president of the Patrons of Industry, and of the Millbrook Agricultural Society. He was a Past Noble Grand in the Independent Order of Oddfellows, and received his veteran's jewel from the local lodge some few years ago; a member of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge No. 176 he was also a Past Master of J. B. Hall lodge, A.F. and A.M., and had taken the Thirty-Second Degree in Masonry in connection with the Scottish Rite of that Order. He was still a director of the Agricultural Society at the time of his death though failing health prevented his taking any active part in the work of the organization for the past few years, personal interest in its prosperity, however, being not lacking.

In his church affiliations Mr. Kelly was a life-long Presbyterian, and had for years given efficient service as an elder in Grace Church, and also as a member of the Board of Management.

In politics the late Mr. Kelly was a staunch Conservative. For twelve years he was a member of Cavan Council, had held the office of Reeve, and in 1911 was elected Warden of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland, being the third from this township to hold this position. Two other reeves of Cavan have succeeded him in the Warden's chair—A. J. Henderson in 1919 and J. L. McCamus in the present year. An excellent portrait of the late Mr. Kelly is among the several others of the ex-Wardens which adorn the walls of the Council Chamber in the Town hall at Cobourg.

The fact that deceased spent practically his entire life in Cavan succeeding his father on the home farm, and being counted as one of the most prosperous and progressive of the agricultural residents throughout the entire district. Probably the spirit of growth and good management was an inherited trait from parents and grandparents, one evidence being found in the fact that the substantial, and comfortable, house on the homestead was the second brick residence built in the township replacing the original log house in the year 1856-57.

The late Mr. Kelly was one of a family of nine children two of whom, Edward and Wellington, predeceased their brother by some years. One brother, Mr. Joseph Kelly, resides in Edmonton, Alberta, and the five sisters are, Mrs. M. E. Milligan, at home; Mrs. E. Wright, of Rockford, Ill.; Mrs. S. Fisher, of Peterborough; Mrs. H. Byles, of Windsor; and Miss Alethea, at home.

The funeral, which took place on Saturday, May 9th, was one of the largest ever seen in the Township. Rev. G. S. Gervan, assisted by Rev. G. I. Craw, had charge of the services, and Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mrs. Gervan sang a duet. The pall-bearers were all Past Grand Masters in the Masonic Order and included: Messrs. A. E. Smith, W. T. Wood, G. E. Burnham, W. R. Breyfogle (Peterborough), Dr. H. A. Turner and Dr. A. Jemison.

Among the beautiful floral tributes which smothered the casket were emblems from the Lodge of Perfection (Scottish Rite), Peterborough, and J. B. Hall Lodge, Millbrook; a wreath from the Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F., and from Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, Millbrook; wreath from the Agricultural Society; from the session of Grace Presbyterian church, and a spray from the Cavan Women's Institute.

Included in those present from outsid points were: Mr. Will Richardson, of Merriton, and Miss Richardson, of Lindsay; Mr. Joseph Armstrong of Beamsvile; Mr. James Armstrong of Grimsby; Mr Jas H Alyea of Trenton; Mr Fred Alyea, Mr John Porter, Mr Henry May, and Mr. H McCrudden, of Murray; Mr. T Cully of Toronto; Mrs. Corneil, of Reaboro; Miss Lucy Richardson, Mr and Mrs Davis, Mrs Harper, Mrs J D Dexell, Mr and Mrs R Brown, Mrs (Dr) Rogers, Mr Arnold Hardwicke, Dr A A Fowler, Mr J E Fowler, and Mrs Devey of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Theron Adams, and Miss Helen Adams, Mr and Mrs Delbert Adams, and Mr Jas Taylor of Lindsay; Mr J W Taylor of Goderich; Mrs Wright of Rockford, Ill.; Mr and Mrs H Byles, of Windsor.

HASTINGS CONSTABLE EARNS HIS SALARY THROUGH LIQUOR FINES

SCIENCE RESTORES SPEECH

Science has restored the speech of a 15-year old boy after 11 years of silence.

His first sentence since the auditory nerves became paralyzed by a blow on the head in infancy was, "Father and mother, I can talk."

Eleven years ago Ray Pawlowski, Milwaukee, then four years of age, was struck on the head with a hammer. The shock caused the brain to reverse the natural co-ordination between the nerve centres and the muscles of the throat. Whenever the boy tried to speak, his mouth, instead of opening, rigidly clenched.

A short time ago Ray was placed under the care of Prof. William Duffy of Marquette University, who taught the boy co-ordination of mind and body. Now the lad talks in monotone. His next lessons will be in the modulation and distinctness.

DUTY ON SILKS PASSES HOUSE

Two to One Vote Against Postponing Operation for Four Years.

MUCH CRITICISM.

LONDON, May 12 (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons last night by 331 to 165 rejected an amendment to postpone until the end of 1929 the operation of the silk duties proposed in the Right Hon. Winston Churchill's budget. Prioir to the vote, the proceedings were enlivened by a bountiful display of silk fabrics and various types of silk stockings which the members produced from their pockets.

Despite all the criticism inside and outside the House, Mr. Churchill declined to abandon the proposed duties. The House then, by a vote of 330 to 166, affirmed the principle of the duty, and Mr. Churchill will within the new few weeks have a conference with the silk trade and settle the scale of duties and modifications to be adopted.

C. J. SEARIGHT DIED SUDDENLY

Seized on Charlotte Street This Morning and Expired in Few Minutes.

Chas. J. Searight, of 292 Park Street, was seized with an attack of heart failure while walking along Charlotte Street this morning, and died ten minutes later. Dr. J. B. Mann was summoned immediately, but Mr. Searight was beyond physical aid. Edwin Searight, son of the deceased, called an ambulance and the body was removed.

Mr. Searight, while passing the lane east of 202½ Charlotte Street, was observed to falter as he made an unsuccessful attempt to reach a nearby post, and collapsed on the sidewalk. He was then carried into a nearby barber shop and medical aid was summoned. Mr. Searight was identified by a bank pass-book which he carried, and his son, who is connected with the Peterboro Canoe Company, was called.

For a number of years Mr. Searight conducted an undertaking and embalming business in Norwood, but for the latter few years he has lived a life of retirement in this city.

There are five daughters and one son who remain to mourn his loss: Mr. Edwin J. Searight, Mrs. J. D. Moore, and Mrs. G. Richardson, residing in Peterboro.

Arrest of Youth Drunk at Dance Results in Collection of $346.

CASE AT COBOURG

(By a Staff Reporter)

HASTINGS, May 12 — Chief Trinkwon is still making it hard for the transgressor in Hastings and at a recent session of the Police Court with County Magistrate Floyd of Cobourg presiding, a total of $346.30 in finest and costs was collected.

A young man of the village did business with a bootlegger at a dance held on May 1st and while under the influence, so misconducted himself that the chief of police took him in charge. For being drunk he was fined $10 with costs of $9.10. When compelled to tell from whom he had secured his liquor he gave the name of another young olcal man who was brought into court by Chief Trinkwon and on a charge of selling liquor was fined $200 with costs of $56.85. As these complaints were all made by the village chief of police the fines in both cases go to the treasury of the municipality, the total of $210 being sufficient to pay the salary of the officer for nearly 11 months.

The youthful bootlegger was found guilty on another charge which was made by License Inspector Goodrich of Cobourg—that of using the names of other people in order to get liquor from the dispensary. For this the fine and costs amounted to $70.35.

Hastings at last has a chief of police who is ready to do his duty without fear or favor and who is on the job day and night.

OATH IS TAKEN BY HINDENBURG

Took the Usual Oath, But Added Optional Clause, "So Help Me God."

LOUDLY CHEERED.

By Frederick Kuh
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, May 12. — Facing the Reichstag, where friends and enemies sat silent for a moment after the tumultuous roar that greeted him, Paul Von Hindenburg, erstwhile Field Marshal of the Imperial Armies, spoke to-day the oath of office that made him President of the German Republic.

"I swear," rumbled Hindenburg, in the gruff deep voice known to his staff and soldiers in war time, "to dedicate my power to the welfare of the German people, to augment their advantages, to shield them from misfortune, to observe the constitution and laws, to perform my duty conscientiously and dispense even-handed justice."

"So help me, God," he added, using the religious formula which was optional, and was omitted by the late President Ebert.

CREDIT INSURED.

Section of London Financial Press Advises Against Investments in Canada.

TORONTO, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—In view of the fact that a section of the financial press of London is carrying on a campaign against Canadian financial investments, based on the Grand Trunk Railway award, which declared the stock of that company to be of "no value," Sir Thomas White has issued a statement in which he declares the campaign to be unfair and unjustified. This campaign, Sir Thomas states, may injure Canadian credit in England.

SIR THOS. WHITE PROPOSES PLAN

perience at Ottawa and my knowledge of what has transpired since that long argumentative statements will have but little effect. It is idle to attempt to change the view of the financial press in question because they are not open to conviction. They are on the spot and can return daily to their attacks. There is a way, however, by which I think their campaign can be met and defeated. It is by the publication from time to time in the London press of the figures showing the annual deficit of surplus, if any, of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada (after payment of operating expenses and fixed charges), together with the annual liability of the Grand Trunk Railway Company in respect of its guarantee of the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company. Such a statement should be published periodically in London and should contain the information above mentioned, from the close of the war (1918) down to the date of publication. The statement should also show the amount of advances and guarantees which have been made and given by the Government of Canada since the war to the Grand Trunk Railway Company. In the face of the figures of such a statement no reputable journal in Britain will, I venture to say, contend that there was any value in the preference and common stock of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, or that without the immense sums advanced by the Government of Canada or raised by its guarantee the Grand Trunk Railway company of Canada could have by any possibility avoided hopeless bankruptcy.

Principle of Award.

"The principle laid down by the Board of Arbitration was that the value of the stocks depended upon the actual and potential earning power of the system, and this principle of valuation was upheld by the judicial committee of the Privy Council. There was, therefore, no mistake in law by the arbitrators. The sole question remaining is, was their view correct as to the earning power of the system, having regard to fixed charges and other obligations direct and indirect. The figures which I have suggested should be published will show conclusively that the views of Sir Walter Cassels and myself were sound also as to the facts. My finding was thus expressed in the Reasons for Award:

"'(1) The actual earning power of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada before, during and since the war, and, so far as can be estimated for the future, does not justify the assumption that any profits would, from the date of the acquisition by the Government of the preference and common shares, viz., May, 1920, ever have been available for distribution to the holders thereof after providing for the contingent liability of the company in respect of Grand Trunk Pacific securities, guaranteed by the company, and dividends upon the "guaranteed stock."

"'(2) Having regard to its own continuing deficits, the necessity for making provision for deferred and extraordinary maintenance and capital construction and its heavy liabilities in respect of securities of the Grant Trunk Pacific Railway Company of Canada but for the financial support of the Government, since May, 1920, must have been forced into a receivership.'

Satisfy the Public.

"Sir Walter Cassels' reasons were to the same effect, and upon those findings the preference and common stocks of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada were declared to be of 'no value.' The experience of the Canadian National Railways in the operation of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways abundantly confirm the decision reached by the arbitrators who made the award. An official statement as to the deficits or surpluses, if any, advances and guaranteees since the armistice, published in the London press will satisfy the British public that the award was sound and that the campaign to persuade them to the contrary has been one of misrepresentation as to facts.

"It may be urged that Mr. Taft, the dissenting arbitrator, valued the stocks in question at $48,000,000. In reaching this conclusion, Mr. Taft estimated that at the end of 1926 the gross earning power of the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada would be $90,000,000 and that the normal operating ratio of 25 per cent. would be restored by that time. This would, he said in his reasons, 'make the operating surplus applicable to fixed charges and other liabilities and to the payment of dividends on capital stock $22,500,000 for 1926.' How far Mr. Taft's estimate approximated the facts will be shown by the figures reported from time to time by the management of the Canadian National Railway in respect of the Grand Trunk portion of the enterprise."

PREVENTING ACCIDENTS.

Delegates from various parts of Canada are in conference in Toronto today over ways and means of causing the people of Canada to take a keener interest in their own safety.

Usually there is not much difficulty in inducing people to think of their own interests—it is one of humanity's failings to place self first.

But in this particular matter it is necessary to keep eternally at it to arouse public opinion to a realization of the fact that far too many people are being needlessly killed by motor cars, far too many lives are being taken by fires carelessly caused, far too many industrial workers are being slain or maimed because of their own neglect or th efailure of somebody to provide the necessary safeguards.

The speeding motorist, the man who tries to race a train over a crossing, the fellow who rocks the boat, the individual who fools around with a loaded firearm, are all too common, and because they are safety conventions are necessary.

They may not put an end to all carelessness—that would be too much to hope for—but if they succeed in reducing the number of preventable accidents from the present appalling total they will amply justify their existence.

EXTENDING THE WORK.

The announcement that the Peterboro Rotary Club is to extend its humanitarian work on behalf of crippled children to include any youngsters in the county who may be in need of treatment should be welcome news to parents throughout the country.

The Rotary drive to benefit crippled children residing in Peterboro has been marked by such successful results that the committee in charge feels justified in enlarging the scope of the work and in giving rural children the same chance as has been accorded their city cousins.

In the near future the Township Councils in Peterboro County will be asked to co-operate in the movement by having a survey made of their townships with a view to locating little crippled folks whose condition could be considerably benefitted by the treatment that the Rotary Club's effort will make possible.

When this co-operation is requested the Examiner is sure that the township municipal authorities will be glad to assist in this splendid work which promises to provide a new outlook on life for many children who, without the service undertaken by the Rotary Club, would develop from crippled children into crippled adults, some of them unable to do anything for themselves.

It is a magnificent ideal, this effort to take care of these unfortunate little ones in Peterboro County, and the public generally will doubtless lend every assistance to the movement.

ON THE RIGHT PATH.

That round of cheering you hear is the chorus of acclaim with which that section of Canada's population commonly described as the consumers is greeting the announcement that Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, is getting after the people who sell bad eggs and have a careless habit of displaying the best apples or potatoes or strawberries in the top layer.

Mr. Motherwell is apparently determined to see that the public gets its money's worth, something that men occupying the seats of the mighty are not always as concientous about as they might be.

The rural criminal who mixes foreign fats in skimmed milk, his brother who is short in his weight or not particular about the standard of his products, are to be dealt with along with the other offenders listed above.

The consumer will await the result with considerable interest.

Legislation that will prevent the all too common practice of sticking a few good strawberries on top of a box of very ordinary fruit will be cheered with great abandon—or would be if it were not for the inclination of mankind to be pessimistic about the efficacy of legislation in changing human nature.

However, the Minister of Agriculture is on the right path, and if he succeeds in getting us fresh eggs, uniform sized onions and honestly packed fruit and vegetables he'll have attracted more attention in urban circles than any holder of the portfolio has been fortunate enough to have secured.

THOSE MYSTERIOUS REGULATIONS.

Hon. W. F. Nickle has announced flatly that there is to be no change in the 4.4 beer regulations requiring bars to be demolished or boarded up.

If the bar remains as at present no beer may be sold.

So that's that.

The average citizen shares the hotel proprietor's bewilderment over this insistence upon the disappearance of the bar counter.

For the bar remained even after prohibition came in, and if there was no objection to the sale of pop and other soft drinks over the mahogany on which used to repose the foaming steins of yesteryear, why should there be so much cavilling about selling in the same way this mysterious brew described by the Attorney-General himself as a palatable and non-intoxicating beverage?

Apparently, however, the new beer is only innocous when taken sitting down.

It must be served at a table in the full gaze of an interested public.

Why, only Mr. Nickle seems to know, and he has not been generous in his explanations!

There are some who see in the scheme the keen eye for business of Mr. Nickle's colleague, the Provincial Treasurer, who counts on the beverage tax to produce a sizable addition to the funds of the Province.

The theory is that, seeing the appeal to the appetite that is made by a white-jacketed chef cooking griddle cakes in a restaurant window, Mr. Price conceived the idea that the spectacle on a hot summer's evening of good burghers quaffing a cold and "palatable" beverage would be good for business—and the Province's share as represented by the beverage tax would flourish accordingly.

Be that as it may, the eve of the advent of 4.4 leaves one section of the population worried about the fact that the beer is to be sold at all and the rest wondering how it is to be sold.

GOVERNMENT BY COMMITTEE.

The committees of Parliament are an important and, indeed, indispensable, part of the legislative machine. By constitutional authorities their functions are clearly and unmistakably defined. Essentially, their purpose is to relieve Parliament of work of a detailed character which could not otherwise be properly and efficiently performed; to examine and report upon bills that need elucidation; to investigate matters of public interest that call for Parliamentary consideration; to inquire into charges affecting either the administration, or individual members of Parliament, and, generally, to collect information that may assist Parliament in its deliberations, or in the enactment of legislation.

In the appointment of committees care is usually taken to select members who are interested in the subject of reference, or who, by training, experience and knowledge are qualified to do justice to its consideration; and, on the whole, the work performed is eminently useful and creditable. The member of Parliament who conscientiously attends to his duties in the House and, in addition, is called upon to take part in the deliberations of a committee undoubtedly earns his indemnity, and renders service that is not always appreciated by those who regard Parliament merely as "a talking shop." Indeed, the work performed in committees is often more meritorious than that which obtains wider publicity through long-winded orations in the House.

But the purposes to be served by committees, however useful and essential they may be, have their limits; and of recent years there have not been wanting indications that these limits are being exceeded. The tendency has been to multiply committees indiscriminately and, at times, unnecessarily; to delegate powers and authority which Parliament as a whole, and the Government responsible to Parliament and the people, should themselves exercise; and to accept with undue alacrity, and without full consideration the recommendations and findings of committees which have no legislative functions, and, after all, represent only a fraction of Parliament.

The practice has grown, and keeps on growing, of appointing committees on almost any pretext. A private member obsessed with some theory that he desires to air, as much for his own satisfaction and personal advertisement, as for any public advantage to be gained, places a motion on the order paper asking for the appointment of a special committee, which a complacent majority forthwith grants. The fact that the information desired could be readily obtained in the Library, or by a little research in other quarters, equally accessible to the member concerned, is scarcely considered; nor does it seem to matter much that the information, when obtained at considerable expense through the calling of witnesses, is of no earthly value or interest to anybody save the member who sought it.

Or the Government announces its intention of bringing down certain legislation and, as a preliminary step, proposes the appointment of a special committee to consider and report upon it; the result being that one committee after another is added to a list of select standing committees that is already extensive enough to cover every phase of Parliamentary activity, and to occupy the time and attention of members to the fullest extent.

Frequently, of late, these special committees have resolved themselves into debating societies on academic subjects that waste time, cost money, and lead to no practical result; or they have degenerated into mere fishing expeditions, with no specific object in view save that of trying to secure information that may be of political advantage to one party or another, or to some particular group, or member of a group. In the multiplication of committees, members find themselves appointed to more than one, sometimes to several which sit simultaneously. In recent sessions it has been not an uncommon experience to have four or five committees meeting in one forenoon; and as some of them obtain power to sit while the House is in session, the attendant confusion and strain are such that both the work of the committees and the business of the House suffer.

Perhaps the most serious feature of all is the tendency, inevitable in the circumstances, perhaps, which has developed of late years, to delay the presentation of reports of committees until the closing days of the session. As the result of this tendency, one of two things happens: either the reports, often embodying important recommendations, are adopted and acted upon without due consideration, or they are cast aside, pigeon-holed, and forgotten.

It is not before time that voices are being raised in protest against the abuse of a system which weakens the control of Parliament, reduces the efficiency of its members, interferes with the conduct of public business, leads to hasty and ill-digested legislation, adds considerably to the cost of administration, and, above all, vitally touches one of the cardinal principles of responsible government.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, May 11.—Owing to the weakness that developed in the Montreal grain markets Saturday there was a lull in the demand from foreign buyers today, and as the prices bid were generally out of line, no sales were reported. The domestic trade in cash grain was also slow, the demand being only for odd cars to meet immediate wants.

Eggs Are Firmer.

Owing to the somewhat higher prices ruling in the country for eggs of late a firmer feeling prevailed in the local market and dealers in some cases advanced prices for the higher grades. There was a good consumptive demand for supplies and a moderately active business was done in a wholesale jobbing way. The receipts were 2,226 cases, as compared with 2,119 for the same day last week, and 1,866 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 847 packages, as compared with 364 for the same day last week, and 563 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no export shipments from here last week owing to the fact that foreign buyers have not been disposed to operate in this market at the present level of values. The domestic trade was again reported quiet, the demand being only for odd small lots to meet immediate wants and in consequence the movement was light. The tone of the market continues easy. Held creamery is offering at 1-2 cent per lb. below the above prices.

The receipts of cheese were 2,463 boxes, as against 927 for the same day last week, and 2,205 for the corresponding day a year ago. The total exports of cheese from Montreal last week were 13,450 boxes which showed an increase of 421 boxes as compared with the previous week, and an increase of 5,560 boxes with the same week last year, while the total shipments from May 1 to date have been 26,479 boxes as against 18,570 boxes for the same period last year showing an increase of 6909 boxes.

There was practically no change in the condition of the market here, prices being steady with a small volume of business passing in Western No. 1 white and colored at 17 3-4 to 17 7-8 cents per lb., and in No. 2 grades at 16 3-4 to 16 7-8 cents per lb. Eastern cheese supplies on spot were light and prices were nominally quoted at 17 1-2 to 17 5-8 cents per lb. There was no improvement in cable advices and the sales were not large.

BELLEVILLE CHEESE 17½c.

MONTREAL, May 11. — The United Dairymen Co-operative held an auction of Belleville cheese here today, when 400 boxes were offered, of which 110 boxes No. 1 sold at 17 1-8 cents per lb., f.o.b. cars at Belleville for shipment to Montreal, and 17 cents per lb. was bid for 290 boxes of No. 1 colored with 17 1-8 cent per lb. asked.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, May 11—Markets generally are firm and at some points higher, this applies more particularly in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. Storage stocks are reported to be increasing fast. Some eggs are arriving from the Prairie Provinces on former order, but very little business is reported. A car is reported delivered Hamilton at: extras 34 1-2, firsts 32 1-2, seconds 28.

Toronto — Jobbing, extras 33, first 31, seconds 27 to 27.

Montreal—Dealers paying delivered: extras 31, firsts 30, seconds 26. Jobbing, extras 35, firsts 32, seconds 30.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.84 1-2.

Sterling cables $4.84 7-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 11. — Wheat prices took a rapid downward swing today in the final hour. Curtailment of the United States visible supply total proved to be less striking than was looked for and the market closed heavy, 2 1-4 to 3 cents net lower; May $1.59 1-2 to $1.59 3-4, and July $1.48 to $1.48 1-4. Corn finished at 1-4 cent decline to 3-8 cents advance; oats 1-4 to 5-8 cents up, and provisions with gains that varied from 15 to 35 cents.

Forty years ago thousands of girls were working in New York, Chicago and other cities for $3 a week or less.

A WONDERFUL "SKIN SPECIALIST" IN A TWO-INCH BOX

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of peroxine powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds — and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxine powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

The next morning Dick insisted upon getting up at his usual time. He announced, furthermore, that he was going to the office.

"If I give in and stay at home, I'll be getting the 'sick habit' first thing I know," he told Mother Gregory when she arrived at seven, bringing an electric pad and a glass of grape jelly for the invalid. "I'll work this shaky feeling off in two or three hours at the office."

"That poor boy is going to kill himself!" Mother Gregory later told Ranghild, to whom she had taken an instant liking. She was making milk toast with her own hands for Dick while he dressed.

When he was ill, Mother Gregory had a feeling that nothing that any doctor or nurse could do for him, would do him half as much good as the food she, herself, got ready for him.

Gloria, reading the morning paper in the dining-room, listened to the conversation going on in the kitchen.

"That's the way he's been all his life . . . all ambition, with nobody to back it up!" Mrs Gregory was saying to Ranghild. "I hope you never fry his food or put much grease in it. Grease gives him indigestion quicker than scat!"

"Yes, ma'am, I know," Ranghild answered in her pleasant voice, "but Mr. Gregory doesn't look sickly to me. He's that wiry kind of person . . . if you know what I mean. They can stand anything."

The pantry door swung open and Ranghild came into the dining-room with the water pitcher. Gloria looked up at her.

"Don't pay any attention to Mr. Gregory's mother, Ranghild," she said in an undertone. "You're working for me, not for her. And she's just telling you all that stuff to hear herself talk, anyway."

With a solemn nod Ranghild went back into the kitchen.

A few minutes later Dick came downstairs. Mother Gregory brought him his milk toast with the prideful look of a Louis Sherry displaying a wedding cake for the Astor family.

"I'm not going to sit down with you. I had my breakfast at home before I came," she said. "So I'll just take the paper into the sunroom with me for a few minutes . . . if no one's reading it."

She rustled blandly away.

* * *

Gloria could feel Dick's eyes on her. She did not look up, but tapped her egg and buttered her toast with pretended absorption.

"Glory," he said at last. She raised her eyes. Dick was white and haggard.

"Dick, you're crazy to try to go to the office, to-day," she said. "Why don't you stay home and rest. Dr. John will have a fit when he finds out you've gone to work."

"Never you mind about me, Glory. It's you I'm thinking about, just now," Dick answered in a low tone. "I've been lying awake most of the night thinking about you, to tell the truth . . . Look here, Glory, did you love me or not when you married me?"

"Oh, dear, do we have to go into all that right now? Can't we have one meal in peace?" Gloria's voice was pathetic. "First of all we row about money and maids . . . and now you want to raise the roof again, I suppose about yesterday afternoon. Let's forget it."

"I wish I could," Dick answered. "But it's a pretty serious thing for a fellow to come home and find his wife entertaining another man . . . especially a duck like Wayburn!" . . . especially a duck like Wayburn!" . . . He came over and put his arms around Gloria,

"Honey, I know there was nothing wrong about your little party yesterday. You were bored and you wanted a little thrill, a taste of excitement. But other people won't see it that way. They'll soon be saying that my wife's in love with that cheap actor. . . . They'll have you in the May Seymour class, first thing you know!"

"What's everybody down on May for?" Gloria asked. "I don't blame her a little bit for going around with Jim Carewe, if her own husband won't take her anywhere! . . . Why doesn't he get next to himself, and see that he's losing May?"

Dick pondered.

"I suppose he's too busy. And, anyway, a husband is always the last person to hear rotten gossip about his wife," he said.

He was looking out of the dining-room windows that faced the street, watching the Donberg twins who lived next door. They were running races with their new airedale pup . . . their sturdy legs twinkling past each other like the parts of a perfectly-geared machine.

"Gosh, Glory, wouldn't it be nice if we had a couple of little kids like those two?" he asked, tightening his hold of her. "A couple of jolly little youngsters who'd race down the street every night to meet me . . ."

"Yes, and who'd scratch up all the furniture and turn the house into a boiler-factory when it came to noise! No, thank you, sweetie! I'm afraid I'll have to squelch your fond hopes . . ." She wriggled out of Dick's arms and got to her feet.

Dick, with his hands gripped, stood looking down at her.

"Honey," he said, "you're just cheating yourself when you make up your mind not to have children. Why don't you want them? . . . What do you think marriage is for, anyway?"

Gloria laughed stridently.

"How do I know what marriage is for? I didn't invent it!" she cried. "It's not my idea of worldly bliss, let me tell you! I've seen too much of it the last couple of months!"

She walked out of the room.

* * *

"I see by the papers that Myra Gail is going to Europe again," Mother Gregory called to her from the sunroom. "My goodness, she must cost that husband of hers a fortune in steamship tickets alone!"

Gloria stretched herself lazily on the chaise lounge in the sunroom.

"Well, what's the difference so long as he can afford it?" she asked. "It's a relief to hear of a generous husband once in a while. Most of them are terrible tightwads."

Mother Gregory looked up sharply.

"That's a queer thing for you to say," she said sharply. "I'm sure Dick's generous with you . . . generous to a fault. As far as I can see he refuses you nothing you ask for!"

Gloria smiled exasperatingly.

"I haven't asked him for much . . . yet," she drawled.

In that instant she made up her mind that she was going to ask him for something, though . . . a trip to Europe, to shop in Paris with Myra Gail!

Ranghild opened the glass doors of the sunroom.

"Mrs. Seymour on the telephone, ma'am," she said to Gloria.

May's voice was tearful.

"Have you been asked to join this big new club they're starting . . . the Home Women's Club, it's called?" she asked.

Gloria said she had.

"Well, I haven't!" May almost shrieked into the telephone. "I think I'm the only clubwoman in town who's been left out. Everybody I know is joining but me . . ."

She broke down completely. Gloria could hear her wildly sobbing. She had not known that May could take a snub this way. May had always seemed to be hardened against the unkind things that were said about her and her love affair with Jim Carewe.

"Let 'em talk!" she had always told Gloria recklessly. "When they're talking about me and Jim they're giving somebody else a rest."

* * *

And she had shown the world of gossips a shining armor of defiance. But now that armor was utterly gone. May was defenseless, suddenly, in the face of this new snub.

"Oh, I know what's the matter with the old hens who started the club," May went on presently in a choky voice. "They thing I'm absolutely beyond the pale because I lunch downtown with Jimmy once or twice a week. They might know that there's nothing to the whole thing by the frank, open way we see each other. . . . Why, you know there's nothing wrong between me and Jim, don't you, Glory?"

"Of course, I do!" Gloria said indignantly. She was very glad that she had been asked to join, however. For the first time since she had known her, Glory had a warm friendly feeling for Mother Gregory, who had managed to get her into the club.

"Well, then, for the love of Maud, go to your mother-in-law, and do what you can for me. She's the head of the membership committee, I hear." May went on more calmly. "Tell her I'm through with Jim Carewe, if you like. That ought to fetch her!"

"But are you?" Gloria asked, cautiously.

"I—I guess so," May answered. "I've just made up my mind that the game isn't worth the scandal! . . . After all, seeing Jim or any other man once in a while isn't worth the loss of my rep . . . my good name, is it? . . . You've got to play the women's game their way in this world, Glory, or they won't let you play at all, do you know it? . . . Now, do your best for me with Dick's mother, won't you? I've just got to get into that club!"

Gloria promised she would.

She went back into the sunroom, and picked up a magazine, wondering how to present May's very weak case to her mother-in-law.

"That was May Seymour on the phone," she began.

"I wish you wouldn't see so much of that woman," Mrs. Gregory replied. "As I've told you before, she's a thoroughly bad woman. I heard some dreadful stories about her and that good-for-nothing Carewe the other day. She doesn't deserve that nice husband of hers. And as for Carewe, he ought to be tarred and feathered!"

She shook out the paper vigorously.

"I suppose it's from her you got your idea of driving all over the countryside with that actor you were with the other day!" Mother Gregory continued. "She seems to think she can gad all over with Carewe and never have a word whispered against her! Well, she can't. One of Dr. John's patients brought her name up before the Home Women's Club the other day . . . and it was voted down quicker than it went up, let me tell you!"

Gloria saw how utterly hopeless May's case was.

A burning thread of terror went through her like a dart of lightning. . . . This was what women could do to one of their own sex who stepped over the boundary of good behavior that they have laid down for themselves throughout the centuries!

Women had made May a pariah—an outcast! They had kept her out of their clubs—given her the cold shoulder.

They had shown her that if she wanted to defy them, she would have to walk alone . . . as other foolish and defiant women had walked alone, and worn the scarlet letter of shame and solitude.

Gloria wondered what would happen to her if her women friends knew that she had been seeing Stanley Wayburn alone!

She wondered what they would do when they did find out . . . if they ever did. For Gloria knew she could never refuse to see Wayburn so long as he wanted to see her.

FLYING BOMB

Terrible New Weapon of Warfare Perfected by British.

LONDON, May 12.—The "flying bomb," a terrible new weapon of warfare, has been tested successfully by British army experts. It can be launched from an airplane at other airplanes above or below the attacking plane, as well as at distant objects on land.

The new torpedo of the skies weighs about 25 pounds, is nearly 5 feet long, and can be filled with deadly poison gas, incendiary material or high explosive.

Biplane wings with an area of eight square feet support the torpedo in its flight. Experts say that it can be launched by a plane a mile in the air and directed with precision at objects eight miles distant. A wind driven gyroscope assures stability.

REV. W. H. YOUNG PAID VISIT TO CAVAN CHURCH

Mother's Day Services Attracted Big Congregation on Sunday.

GIVE BOUQUETS

Mrs. David Hunter and Mrs. Robert Sutton Honored by School.

Cavan Methodist church was filled to capacity on Sunday for a "Mothers' Day Service."

Four Sunday schools were in attendance: Cavan, Fairmount, Mount Pleasant and Cavan Centre.

The choir contributed suitable music. One selection, "When Jesus Leads," was rendered by the whole choir.

Mrs. R. S. Staples and Miss K. Steele sang "My Mother's Bible" as a duet, the choir joining in the chorus.

The superintendent, Mr. James Douglas, spoke a few words of welcome and introduced the speaker, Rev. W. Harold Young of the George street church, Peterboro.

Rev. Mr. White was in the congregation and was asked to take his place with the other ministers and offer prayer. Rev. R. T. Richards conducted the service.

Rev. Mr. Young's address to the children was in the form of a story, told in a pleasing manner of a boy supposed to be led by fairy in search of the greatest and finest thing to be found, and discovered the beautiful truth that the very best thing in life was the light of love for him shining in his mother's eyes.

Three babies were baptized at the service: Miriam Eileen, daughter of Rev. R. T. and Mrs. Richards; Arnold Merle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Carr; and Ada Florence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Earle.

Just before the close of the service Mr. Douglas made a few appropriate remarks paying tribute to the mothers who have completed their active work in the Sunday school but still are deeply interested in the work being accomplished, and asked the two oldest mothers in the congregation—Mrs. David Hunter and Mrs. Robert Sutton—to accept each a beautiful bouquet from the Cavan Sunday school.

Two little girls, Doris Toney and Pearl Richards, presented the bouquets.

UNION IN COBOURG

Question of United Church Has Brought Out Big Congregations.

COBOURG, May 12.—The much discussed matter of Church Union has created some friction in most of towns, but in Cobourg it has been responsible in a large measure for promoting church attendance, and turning the occasional worshippers into steady ones. Coupled with this is the presence of exceptionally talented posters in several of the churches. At the Cobourg Congregational church, which has gone into union without taking a vote, Rev. Adam Hamilton is drawing capacity crowds each Sunday and often people are turned away.

At St. Andrew's church, where Rev. T. W. Goodwill, B.A., was inducted last Tuesday, the attendance is stated to be larger than it was, before in February some one hundred and over unionist members went over to the Methodist, now the United church. On a recent communion Sunday over thirty members were received into membership.

The United Church.

At the United Church, the May quarterly communion service was marked by the reception of forty-three members into the church. It is estimated also that over three hundred partook of communion, at least it was the largest number in the history of the church. Rev. R. F. Stillman and Rev. W. A. Bremner are the associate ministers.

St. Peter's.

Rev. Dr. Boyle, rector of St. Peter's has been away attending convocation exercises at King's College, Halifax, of which he was formerly principal, but returned today. Dr. Boyle preaches this evening. Rev. Prof. Kingston of Trinity College conducted the morning service.

The Baptist Church.

Rev. J. W. Norton is carrying forward an aggressive service at the Cobourg Baptist church.

CURE FOR FLU

British Scientists Investigate New Serum for Prevention of Diseases.

LONDON, May 12—British scientists are investigating a new serum or vaccine, known as "toxin antitoxin," which, it is claimed, gives immunity from diphtheria, and will prove useful in preventing influenza, measles, infantile paralysis and whooping cough.

Invisible virus germs are believed to be the cause of these diseases.

COW KICKED THUMB

Gordon Warner of Westwood Injured—Arbor Day at School.

WESTWOOD, May 12.— On Thursday evening, while milking, an uncommon but very painful accident happened to Gordon Warner. The cow which he was milking kicked and as he raised his hand to save himself, the full force of the blow struck his thumb, which resulted in dislocating the thumb at the second joint, and causing a severe sprain. Mr. Warner will not be able to use his hand for some time.

Owing to the unfavorable weather Arbor Day was postponed from May 1 and was held on Thudsday of last week at the school. A general clean-up of both school and playground took place. The children are anticipating a trip to the woods in the near future, where they will combine pleasure with nature study.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cardwell and little son were in Peterborough on Thursday.

Mrs. John Davidson of Birdsall spent Friday evening with Mrs. Charles Manley.

Friends of Mr. C. Malcolm (nee Edna Cardwell) who is visiting her father, and relatives in the vicinity, will regret to learn she is in Nicholls Hospital, undergoing treatment for eye trouble.

On account of the unusually cool weather, for the time of year, the growth is greatly retarded. The fields of grain and pasture, through green, are making slow progress, while the leaves are opening slowly.

TWO U.S. AIRMEN KILLED.

SAN JOE, Costa Rica, May 11.—Lieut. Watson and Sergt. Henson, of the United States' army air force were killed here to-day when their airplane crashed and burned.

JAZZ PLANES

Queer Colors Distort Effects and Worry Enemy Pilots.

LONDON, May 12 — Jazz airplanes, splashed with queer colors to give distorted effects and so confuse an enemy pilot so that he could not tell its direction, have been receiving the attention of the air ministry.

A famous artist was commissioned for the work, and he was so successful that when the airplane rose in the air "it appeared as a combined helicopter, a back-to-front plane and an aerial ram of the type constructed in imagination by writers of fiction," says a London paper.

INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF RICKETS

NEW YORK, May 12 (Associated Press).—Three out of four infants in a New York tenement district develop rickets before they are a year old, according to a report made public by the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, giving the results of a campaign to combat this disease which the A. I. C. P. has been carrying on for the last five years. The report indicates that rickets, a winter disease, the most marked effect of which is to retard the development of the bony tissues of the very young child, particularly the long bones of arms and legs, is at present a serious obstacle to child health. It is responsible, the A. I. C. P. finds, for the fact that fully 25 per cent. of the children in one New York tenement district have serious orthopedic defects, such as bow-legs, knock knees, "funnel chest" and spinal curvatures, and this malady is also held to be largely responsible for the appalling death rate of young children in this district from pneumonia and other respiratory diseases.

The report in part, follows:

"The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor is carrying on its annual campaign against rickets in the Mulberry district in New York City. Five years of intensive work has shown that rickets in early infancy presents a real obstacle to child health. It is no exaggeration to say that 75 per cent. of the babies in this district develop rickets before they are a year old. The after effects of this condition are seen in the large number of children from two to six years of age (fully 25%) who have serious orthopedic defects, and in the appalling death-rate of young children from pneumonia and respiratory diseases largely due to the narrow chest and confined breathing space so characteristic of the rachitic child.

"'That child has bow-legs because his mother lets him walk too soon,' is the popular explanation of the two or three-year-old youngster with badly bowed legs. This thoroughly unscientific theory is, after all, not so far from the truth. Such children usually have suffered from rickets. The most marked effect of this disease is to retard the development of the bony tissues of the body, particularly the long bones of the arms and legs. Their legs, therefore, may be said to be too young, physiologically, to support the weight of their bodies. When they attempt to stand on their feet, the bones of the legs bend under the weight of the body like a tender green twig.

"Rickets may be occasioned by one of two factors, or by both together: (1) inadequate exposure to sunlight, (2) a diet deficient in a food accessory vitamin, whose nature is as yet unknown, but which enables the body to store calcium and phosphorus in the bones from the food taken into the body. The disease is most prevalent during the winter months in north temperate climates, particularly among races with dark skins in which the pigment still further retards the effects of the sun's rays. On the other hand, the disease is practically unknown among negroes in the West Indies who are receiving an abundance of sunlight, or among Eskimos, who are used to little sunlight but whose diet from early infancy consists largely of fats and oils of fish. Babies between three months and one year of age are most susceptible to the disease, particularly if they are within this age period during the late winter months when the seasonal incidence is at its peak.

"Physiologists are at a loss to explain how the sun's rays or the oil of fish livers can deposit calcium in the bones, but the fact that they do has been amply demonstrated clinically and in experiments with animals. There are, therefore, two methods of attacking rickets: (1) Exposing the babies directly to the rays of the sun or to the ultra-violet rays of a quartz lamp; or (2) giving doses of fish liver oil three times a day during the period of life when rickets is most likely to occur. Sunlight in congested city districts is a rare commodity. For this reason, moderate dosages of fish liver oil is a safe, orophylactic measure."

MURDER SAVES MOUNTAIN LAD

ROY SHIELDS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., May 6—A mountain feud of quarrels and violence has been the means of giving to an 11-year-old orphan a chance to make good in life.

Instead of being sent to prison for murder, Roy Shields, a true child of the hills, will leave his mountain cabin to live in a beautiful home to enjoy all the advantages of luxurious surroundings.

A tragic incident resulted in giving Roy his opportunities in life.

All his life he had played around the mountain hills, knowing little of the outside world. His was to be a life of a mountaineer, a king in mind of all he surveyed, nothing more.

Then he and his father, now deceased, shot and killed an aged woman, a sequel to a quarrel over a boundary line.

A typical feud of the mountain country.

It was his father's fault, said the neighbors. Roy was a good boy, but "he had bad larnin'," they said.

His father died before being brought to trial and Roy faced charges of murder alone. Then his attorney pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and Roy was sentenced to remain in the state agricultural training school at Nashville until 21 years of age.

But Judge T. A. R. Nelson believed the neighbors who insisted Roy was a good boy and should have a chance. He paroled the lad to R. E. Boring, prominent real estate man of this place.

So Roy will leave the ol' swimmin' hole and mountain paths he knows so well to live in a beautiful home on fashionable Kingston Pike. He will be sent to school and will enjoy all the advantages of Boring's own children.

His overalls will be replaced by a nice new suit. And shoes, which may pinch a little will be provided.

For back there in the mountains Roy had but few shoes and would have worn but few had not a quarrel occurred to give him a chance to make good.

SLIGHT HOOK-UP CHANGES SAVE B BATTERIES

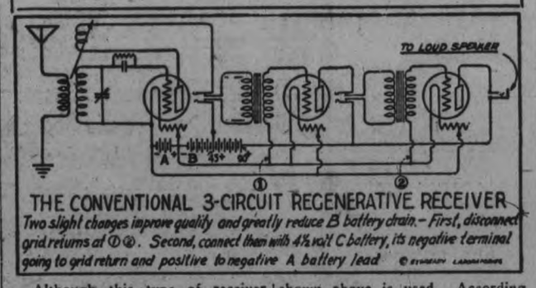
THE THREE-CIRCUIT REGENERATIVE RECEIVER



THE CONVENTIONAL 3-CIRCUIT REGENERATIVE RECEIVER

Two slight changes improve quality and greatly reduce B battery drain.—First, disconnect grid returns at ① ②. Second, connect them with 4½ volt C battery, its negative terminal going to grid return and positive to negative A battery lead. © EVEREADY LABORATORIES

Although this type of receiver is now practically an outcast because of its annoying radiating properties, thousands of them are still in use. The use of a 4½ volt C battery not only improves quality of reception materially but reduces B battery drain to but one sixth of that necessary when the hook up shown above is used. According to measurements secured from the Eveready Laboratories, one standard receiver, rewired as indicated reduced its B battery drain from 22 milliamperes to 5. This means a saving of from $10 to $12 a year in battery upkeep cost for a receiver used ten or more hours per week.

PERJURER

Nicholas (Cheeks) Luciano whose testimony helped send three men to the chiar in New York state, now refutes his testimony, claiming that he lied under police threats. He will be tried on a charge of perjury owing to an affidavit that he signed recanting the testimony that sent the three men to the chair. This affidavit was used by attorneys for the condemned men in effort to obtain new trial, which was denied. Police still maintain Luciano's original story was true.

GERMANS HELP RIFFIAN TRIBES

Reported at Tangier That Sub Landed Supplies on Moroccan Coast.

GERMANS IN RIFF.

TANGIER May 12 — A report to the Havas agency says that a German submarine recently landed explosives, telephonic material and food stuffs on the coast of the Riff, the chieftain of which, Abd-el-Krim is invading the French zone of Morocco.

It is also stated that several Germans, dressed as Riffians and using Oriental psuedonyms, have been observed in the Riff.

SIDEWALK CYCLIST HURT LITTLE GIRL

Unknown Law Breaker Ran Away Without Enquiring Damage Done.

An act of despicable brutality was reported to the police yesterday when a little girl on her way home from school was knocked down by some unknown person who was riding a bicycle on the sidewalk along Park street.

The handle bars of the wheel hurt the child's head, blackening one eye, and the man, who was knocked off the wheel, picked himself up, and rode away, without ascertaining the extent of injuries sustained by the little one.

The riding of a bicycle on a sidewalk is a very dangerous practice, and moreover is against the law.

Chief Newhall says that drastic measures will be used in dealing with such persons who, not content with the broad expanse of paved street, must encroach upon the comparatively limited area set apart for the use of pedestrians.

"Riders of bicycles on sidewalks will get no quarter from me," concluded the Chief.

MUSSOLINI STEERS HIS PARTY TO POLITICAL GLORY OR DEATH

Government's Supporters See Only Triumphant Rule For Fascisti.

CRITICS AFRAID.

Enemies of Fascismo Are Afraid to Speak Against Mussolini.

By FITZHIGH LEE MINNIGERODE

Florence, Italy.

POLITICAL glory or a political grave? Toward which are the Fascisti headed? There is no middle ground for Mussolini and his party. They are marching straight toward one or the other.

Naturally enough the Government's supporters see only glory and an uninterrupted rule of Italy by Fascismo for many years, and quite as naturally the opposition, made up of many parties, firmly believes that Mussolini is doomed and that his rabid followers are, by their unconstitutional acts, their violence, lack of discipline and disregard of the orders of their own chiefs, digging their party's grave.

There might be some chance of Mussolini's political enemies gaining the upper hand were it not that the opposition parties dislike and mistrust one another almost as much as they do Fascismo. They cannot reconcile their party differences any more than they can their differences with the Fascisti. Mussolini might sit still—were he attuned for such inactivity—and watch his enemies destroy one another. They would certainly attempt to do so did they not have a common foe and a common target in the present Government.

The Silent Vote Waits'

Politically Italy is today divided into three classes—the Fascisti, the enemies of Fascismo, and the hundreds of thousands of quiet citizens who listen to the political harangues, read such papers as Mussolini allows to be published, look with disgust on the unlawful acts—acts of violence in which murder, assault and arson are not barred—and keep their opinions to themselves.

When the moment arrives for the third, the silent class, to register their approval or disapproval they will swing the scales. Members of this class correspond to our American independent voters. They keep their eyes and ears open and their mouths shut, but they are not on that account less interested in the welfare and prestige of their country than are the loud-mouthed speakers and the jaunty, cocky "Black Shirts" that are to be seen marching here, there and everywhere.

These Black Shirts are in reality Mussolini's most serious problem. He owes them a tremendous debt—as, indeed, all Italy does—for they, and they alone, put him in power and stamped out a Bolshevism that was running rampant and unchecked in the kingdom. They showed marked courage when they were an entirely negligible quantity, or, at least, considered so by their enemies. Thousands of their fellows were killed by Communists. It is hard either to punish men who have stood by under fire of Communist guns or to forsake them when the fire of criticism has superseded that of guns. Mussolini is undoubtedly a great leader, a man whose presence and words inspire and enthuse his followers; but he does not seem to possess a single competent lieutenant, a single officer who has the force to discipline the rank and file of the Fascisti whether we consider the Fascisti as a political party or as an armed force ready for action at a nod from their chief.

It is well to remember that from the very beginning the Fascisti were trained in the arts of violence. Their enemies were in power in nearly every large town, the King was unsteady upon his throne, the well-to-do citizen dared not drive a motor-car into certain districts for fear of bodily injury. The whole peninsula was covered with red spots and the infection was spreading until it looked as if it would be all "red." The country was in a much worse state then than it has ever been since.

Under these conditions only the Fascisti gave back blow for blow. This struggle between the followers of Mussolini and the believers in Soviet rule had not then taken on a political complexion. It was entirely a case of secret warfare, of retribution and the Fascista rule was "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" and a determination that Italy should not follow in the footsteps of Russia.

Ever since the Fascisti have been in power they have in a certain measure continued the tactics they were taught before the celebrated march on Rome, namely, violence against their enemies. The Fascisti leopard has not been able to change its spots. No man is so forceful that he can say to an army—either field army or political army—"Forget all the tactics and precepts I have taught you; forget all the orders that heretofore have governed you; I will teach you new methods." So the violence once only employed against Communists is today sometimes employed against political opponents of all parties.

His Critics Afraid'

No doubt remains that Mussolini has put fear into the hearts of his enemies and his critics. The writer called upon the editor of a well-known anti-Fascist journal. The plant of this newspaper had a few days before been completely wrecked by a party of Black Shirts. I said to the editor: "I want to talk to you about the political situation. I have talked with friends of the Government, including a very distinguished Senator, but I should like to hear the views of the Opposition."

"I am not of the Opposition," he replied.

"But the Fascisti destroyed your plant a few days ago because of your opposition," I said.

"I am not of the Opposition." That was all he would say. He was afraid to speak!

I called upon another editor. I was asked by the office boy what I wished to see him about.

"I want to talk about the political situation," I said.

"Oh, he has 'una paura santissima' (most holy fear) to speak," the boy answered.

When I got to him he appeared like a hunted thing, looked me over nervously as though I might be there to do him injury or in the guise of a spy and refused to express an opinion for or against the Government, although he was known to be anti-Fascist.

The Line-Up'

Three great forces are lined up against each other in the present crisis. Mussolini has behind him:

1. The National Militia, fully armed and trained, of 100,000 men. This is the legal, the paper, strength of the armed Fascisti, but friends and enemies alike know that the real armed, ready-for-emergency force is treble that number.

2. Mussolini has or seems to have the backing and confidence of the King. This is an asset of great value, for nearly all parties have great affection for the House of Savoy and for Emmanuele.

3. He has kept friendly toward the Holy See. This is useful, especially in this Holy Year of pilgrimages to Rome from all over the world. But the Popular (the Catholic) Party is one of the parties in the opposition.

Against Mussolini are:

1. All political parties except the Fascist, and nearly every statesman of repute throughout Italy. This opposition is, however, poorly organized and without an acknowledged leader.

2. The public press. There is strong reason for believing that the papers, certainly many of them, that profess friendship for the Government do so as a matter of necessity rather than because they really approve the Government's acts. Open opposition means suppression, which in turn may mean bankruptcy.

3. All secret societies of which by long odds the most important is Freemasonry. This organization in Italy is decidedly more of a political troublemaker than is the Ku Klux Klan in America.

Mussolini has introduced legislation which will kill all secrecy in connection with members, has dismissed Masons from Government offices and has come out in violent declarations that he proposes either to destroy the organization or at least render their activities negligible. Many of the former leaders of the Fascist Government belonged to the Masons. Many heads of departments were included. Mussolini is of the opinion that much of the controversy that has recently taken place and most of the criticism of the Government policies has been organized and fostered by the Masons. He has demanded that a list of all members be made public. Up to date the Masons have refused. Consequently he proposes to pass legislation abolishing all secret societies and compelling the publication of the names of members. It is but natural that such a measure and such a stand strengthens him immensely with the Vatican.

Secret Societies Oppose Him.

Federzoni, Minister of the Interior, said recently, apropos of this measure:

"Mussolini has restored to Catholicism her quality of a national religion, and it is exactly this policy of equity, of deference toward the Church which is today provoking the violent resentment of some secret association who planned to oppose the peaceful celebration of the Holy Year in Rome with an agitation which they wished to maintain and prolong in the country. The President of the Council has taken a radical measure. Inasmuch as they are in great part responsible for the underhand dealings which tend to put the Government in the wrong light, inasmuch as they encourage seditious violence and the campaign of the Opposition, inasmuch as they place the country in grave danger, Mussolini has decided to force them to come out in the open. I do not fear to name before every other organization that of the Masons. It is a State within the State and against the State."

It is said that many of the high-ranking officers of the army are Masons. If this be true we may look for another crisis when the lists are made public.

The present position of Mussolini, which is the position of his party—for he is the party—is much like that of an Arctic dog fighting. While he is on his feet the others stand around in a circle praying that he will slip in order to pounce upon him. But he is still on his feet and in very defiant mood while his enemies wait.

Will their turn come? There are but three ways—two legal and one illegal—by which Mussolini can be ousted from power.

He could call for an election and be defeated. But here he holds all the cards. He can introduce any number of election reform measures in Parliament, he can make and unmake election laws to suit himself, he can return to the old law and still not call for an election, and he can, so his enemies say, have an immediate election with a surety that his Black Shirt followers will see to it that he is not defeated. Even the former President of the Chamber, Orlando, frankly states that this is no time for an election, that the country is too excited. If his opponents fear the issue of an election, surely Mussolini has little to worry about.

What the King Could Do'

The King could call a council of Generals of the army, issue a decree disbanding Parliament and set up a military Government. This is out of all reason to anticipate unless matters come to such a pass that utter chaos prevails throughout the country. Such a chaos does not prevail at present. The only people who are really hot under the collar are the politicians. The rest of the country goes its ordered way, and, except on national holidays, there is little evidence that the country is in a political turmoil. On these days the Fascisti seem to get beyond control.

Revolution? As long as the army is neutral what possible chance has the Opposition to oust from power a man backed by 300,000 armed men? None.

The question is often asked in Italy: "Would Mussolini bring on civil war, would he fight before he relinquished power, are his Black Shirts ready to shoot down their countrymen in order that their chief remain in power?"

The answer, of course, is entirely a guess. No one knows that Mussolini will do under given conditions. From intelligent men one can gather a dozen answers to the question.

I have consulted Senators, editors, men high in Fascist circles and there is no set opinion as to what we may expect of Mussolini. Here are some of their opinions:

"Mussolini will never quit. He has saved Italy from Bolshevism, he has restored her to a place among the great nations, he has spread her name on the front pages of journals throughout the world. He is a great son."

"Mussolini, since the publication of Rossi's memorial, would be most happy to step down tomorrow. But the publication of Rossi's memorial has made him (if he became a private citizen and wit., no Government behind him) amenable to trial for complicity in the violent acts of the Fascisti, and for that reason alone he will continue in power."

"Mussolini will fight unto the last ditch before he gives up the reins. He organized the Black Shirts as a fighting force and he will use them as such. He will remain in power indefinitely."

"Mussolini is a true son of Italy. Should the King, deeming it for the good of the State, ask him to resign tomorrow, he would do so without rancor and still be as loyal as ever to his high traditions of loyalty."

As a matter of fact Mussolini is an enigma to Italy. While he remains as Premier the political situation will remain clouded, for he makes enemies fast and selects new friends with astounding rapidity.

Says Party Can Supply Force.

Politically there is, in reality, but one question in Italy. It is Mussolini. "Shall we put up with his high-handed methods? Shall we submit to a dictatorship? Shall we bow and scrape before this man of violence? Shall we support the man who has driven Bolshevism out of the country, established a name for Italy throughout the world and promises to lead us into the paths of normality and peace, prosperity and honor? Shall we shout 'Down with the Dictator!' or 'Viva il duce'? What shall we do?" These questions are asked daily.

And in the meantime Mussolini is a real dictator with the power behind him to dictate so long as he deems it necessary and so long as the Black Shirts remain steadfast in their loyalty to him. As he said in a recent address to the Chamber of Deputies: "This is a situation which requires force. The Fascist Party is in a position to supply this force." There is no reason to doubt that he meant exactly what he said.

No one can doubt the man's courage and it is not fair to question his patriotism. His acts may seem to flout the nation's Constitution, but his love for Italy is very great indeed.

DESCENDANT OF BARMAID AND GALLANT SOLDIER BECOMES DUKE OF SOMERSET

A barmaid who was wooed and won by Colonel Seymour

Brig. General Seymour, grandson of the Colonel-

Whose right to the Dukedome was established after years of search,

Giving him a seat in the House of Lords.

By MILTON BRONNER

(Nea Service Writer)

LONDON, England, May 12—The most romantic love affair of the England of 150 years ago will have its dramatic climax shortly in the House of Lords.

Here before this stately body, the descendant of a saloonkeeper's daughter and a gallant and aristocratic soldier will take his place as Duke of Somerset.

Thus will be crowned the efforts of Brig.-General Sir E. H. Seymour to establish his claims to dukedom. A legal seal will be placed on a story that is far more romantic than anything novelists imagine and far more dramatic than the productions of film makers.

In 1787 Colonel Francis Compton Seymour fell violently in love with Leonora Hudson.

Seymour was an officer in the army, a member of a noble and ancient family which had intermarried with the royal family of England.

He was a son of a great dignitary of the Church of England, no less a person than the Dean of Wells. He was nephew of the then Duke of Somerset and his succession to the dukedom was not very remote.

Mother of Six.

The beautiful Leonora could display no armorial escutcheons. The nearest thing approaching it was a sign that her father had on the door showing that in Woolwich he was the owner of a bar, where Leonora waited on trade.

And Leonora was no longer in her first youth. She was 38, six years older than her soldier admirer.

Moreover, she was a widow who had borne six children to her husband, three of whom were living.

Her husband had been an unsuccessful saloonkeeper who had shipped for India and died there.

But in this story of old times, love broke down all barriers of age, caste and wealth and the colonel and the pretty widow were married quietly in a country church.

They had three sons, of whom the eldest was christened Francis Edward Seymour.

The present duke, whose claim to the title had just been affirmed by the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords, is descended from the eldest son of this romantic couple.

But he only established his title after one of the most searching and painstaking examinations in the history of England.

And those who had counter claims to the dukedom attacked the old-time romance by one even more romantic.

Leonora's first husband, who went out to India, in 1785, was John Hudson. He was a dweller in Paddington Street in the Parish of Marylebone, London.

Two John Hudsons.

It was claimed on behalf of Leonora that this first husband died in India in 1786 and that, on proof of this, she probated his will and took possession of his house as her own property.

But singularly enough, in that same parish, same street and same neighborhood, the taxbooks of that day showed that there was a John Hudson living there after Leonora's marriage with Colonel Seymour. Moreover, he did not die until 1791.

If this John Hudson was the same man as Leonora's John, then her marriage with Colonel Seymour was no marriage and the children were not legitimate.

The court said that in order to attack Leonora's marriage it was necessary to believe that John Hudson returned to England and acted like the Enoch Arden of Tennyson's famous poem, living in secrecy until he died.

But the court smashed this by saying that the age of the second John Hudson, as recorded, bore no resemblance to that of the first John Hudson.

Conviction was forced that there were two men by the same name living in the same street and within a few years of each other. It was a striking coincidence and nothing more, the court ruled. The claims of General Seymour were approved.

The new duke is 65 years old and had a distinguished career in the army, thus following in the footsteps of that Seymour who married the saloonkeeper's daughter.

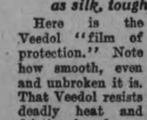
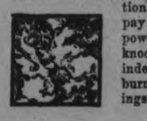
The "film of protection" resists deadly heat and friction in your motor

The "FILM of PROTECTION" thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel

Here is the Veedol "film of protection." Note how smooth, even and unbroken it is. That Veedol resists deadly heat and friction has been proved by hundreds of thousands of motorists. Veedol gives them more power, greater gasoline and oil mileage, less carbon and the greatest economy in operation.



The picture below shows how a film of ordinary oil breaks, curls up and burns. Metal to metal contact follows; destructive friction sets up. You pay the toll—lost power, carbon knocks, scored cylinders and pistons, burned-out bearings.



THE life of your motor depends on the outcome of the constant struggle between the motor-oil you use and deadly heat and friction. In action, oil forms a thin film that comes between all the vital parts of a motor and prevents dangerous metal to metal contact. It is that film which keeps your motor smooth-running and free from repairs.

Tide Water engineers spent years studying the characteristics of oils and oil films. Finally they perfected, in Veedol, an oil which offers the utmost resistance to deadly heat and friction—an oil which forms a "film of protection" thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel. Put the "film of protection" on the job safeguarding your motor and conserving its power.

Wherever the orange and black Veedol sign is displayed, you will find The Veedol Motor Protection Guide. This is a chart that tells which Veedol oil your car requires. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol to-day.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By M. B. LEVICK.

The shade of John Law wanders from an eighteenth century forgotten grave into the world of his great-great-great-grandchildren. He swaggers a bit, as the shade of a duelist should; and he contemplates the labors of mankind, as an economist should. But it is a world entirely new.

John Law is smitten with loneliness. He longs for the good old days of adventure and daring and fantastic projects, when a whole nation was set to mad speculation in the improbable. He sighs at the memory of his Mississippi Bubble and how the shares in queer overseas ventures ran to forty times their nominal price. Then all at once the shade of John Law jumps so suddenly the ghost of his peruke falls awry. Something has cut through him. It is a radio message. "Bah!" says John Law, and vanishes from this prosaic modern scene in which all men look like all other men, work like clockwork and read timetables when they want adventure.

* * *

An alert and keen-phrased youngish man of flesh and blood sits at a solid desk and in the thin London sunlight contemplates Fortune. His close brown mustache rises a trifle at the ends as he smiles. For at last he is in the same room with Fortune herself. She has come visiting.

The youngish man looks at an old picture on the wall. It is a newspaper cartoon showing him in the posture of a symbol of daring. The drawing brings to his mind a whole train of pictures. A lad seeking fortune in exotic cargoes that pass under his eye as underling of the British Consul at Naples. The Consul is his father. Then he sees the intense green of Ceylon verdure and the tea plantation from which fortune skipped to the other side of the world. The verdure gives way to the veldt; the young man marches toward Bloemfontein, a lieutenant in the regiment of which his uncle was once Colonel.

The land vanishes; it is water now, the South Pacific. He stands at the wheel of a schooner, his own schooner, exploring a thousand leagues from the outer paths of cobra hunters and traders. He hears once more the grind of timbers as the schooner is wrecked, and a new picture comes, desert again, Gallipoli, and a wound.

For an instant his mind turns back over the line of distinguished forebears who after a century have handed his title to him in the fourth generation, Generals and Admirals are among them and State agents.

The youngish man presses a button and while he waits for his secretary he says to his visitor, Fortune, "So I am going to keep a shop?"

* * *

The solid desk becomes a field of intense activity. From it there go into the mails a hundred thousand printed letters, to all corners of the kingdom. They tell about the shop. And back to the desk come ten thousand letters each with a check.

Wherever the mails go with the circulars, they find men and women eager to share in this shop, because the shop is going to pay 120 per cent. profit per annum. Retired clergymen stroke their white hair as they think of what they could do with 120 per cent. Canny workingmen figure to see if they could squeeze a bit of saving out of their unemployment doles. Men of title cipher over the taxes that are impoverishing them. Venerable old women take heavy little bags from cracks in chimneys.

The youngish man takes the checks that come riding on the wave of speculation which his circulars have set going, and in a certain port longshoremen stow cases labeled "Scotch" in a hold. A vessel clears for a specified port; it sails away across the ocean; when it is twenty miles from any land it drops anchor. The shop has set up business. Customers come in little boats. They take the cases. The vessel turns around and goes home. And to the old women and the touts and all the rest there go checks from the solid desk, principal plus 20 per cent. for two months' use.

"Absolutely safe," says the youngish man, "and quite regular. There's no law against that, you know. Smuggling? Why, I just sell from a floating shop, twenty miles off shore."

Did Fortune wink that time?

* * *

Five thousand cases in the first ship; more in the second; always more. The man who went nosing about the Pacific goes voyaging again. Six times checks come in to the solid desk, and six times go out again, plus 10 per cent. a month.

The seventh ship takes 60,000 cases. North of Nottingham a nice old woman plans how to spend 20 per cent. on treats for grandchildren. In South Street, New York, a man in a sweater tells another confidentially: "Say, I tell you this guy's the one little ace-high. You oughta seen how he gypped the Englishman. Had the tickets all straight to get the goods out of the ship, on the Englishman's own say-so to his captain, and when the Britisher's agent wouldn't come across with an extra hundred thou he just goes gets the stuff anyway and turns it over in ten minutes at three plunks less than market price per case."

Twenty miles off shore a vessel rides at anchor and swift dark boats with guns skim back and forth and no more buyers come to the magical shop.

To the solid desk comes a message: "Thirty thousand yards seized." And there go out, not checks, but messages which follow the instructions: "Communicate to inquirers with deepest regrets."

In an old grave John Law mumbles in his sleep at some memory of the Mississippi Bubble.

Lieut.-Col. Sir Broderick Cecil Denham Arkwright Hartwell, Fourth Baronet, has just sent another circular from his office in Yeoman House, 31 Haymarket, London, S. W., 1; phone Regent 4511; radio for appointment. The circular tells of seizures. "Unless the balance of the cargo is successfully landed," it says, "I personally shall be absolutely stranded. Of course, it is obvious a big loss of capital is inevitable and that every contributor has the right to sue me for non-fulfillment of my guarantee." That is the end of the seventh voyage of the floating hop which has been condemned by Premiers and others and been the subject of diplomatic representations, but which has done a business of $5,000,000, starting with nothing two years ago.

CHARGED FRANCE FOMENTED WAR

Communist Deputy Says Abd-el-Krim Refused French Alliance.

ORDERED ACTION.

PARIS, May 12. — Raymond Poincare, when Minister of Foreign Affairs in 1923, summoned Abd-el-Krim to Paris and proposed to support the Riff Chieftain in ousting the Spaniards from Morocco, Andre Berthon, the Communist deputy, charged in the newspaper L'Humanite to-day.

Berthon published in the Communist organ an interview he claims to have had with Abd-el-Krim at the time, when the latter come secretly to Paris t years ago. He alleges Poincare's proposal was to help drive out the Spaniards and to establish a French protectorate in the Riff country in northern Africa.

Abd-el-Krim refused to accept of Poincare's proposition, says Berthon, whereupon the then Foreign Minister ordered Marshal Lyautey to prepare for military action.

The Communist deputy adds that a few months ago Abd-el-Krim asked Marshal Lyautey to confer regarding the northern border of French Morocco. Lyautey did not reply, Berthon said for this would have removed the pretext for the "present intervention."

A LINE-O-TYPE.

Peterborough took its music week at a gulp last night, with choir concerts at Knox and St. Paul's Presbyterian Churches, and a band recital at the Salvation Army. On Sunday night All Saints' Church had special music.

Old Masters

All of these events were of a character to show that the people of Peterborough appreciate good music, and the attendances proved the popularity of such musical recitals. But the question arises whether the directors choose suitable material for rendition. It was noticed at one of last night's events that during the longer selections from the Old Masters many became restless and there was a rustling of programmes that showed a great proportion of the audience was not giving undivided attention to the really excellent music. And during what may be termed "Old Favourites," songs and airs that everyone knows, there was not a movement on the somewhat hard-to-sit-at-rest seats that seem indispensable in churches.

Which concludes the case for the prosecution.

Peterborough is behind the times, a lady was heard to remark yesterday. Women have not been given permission to smoke in street cars.

Straw Hats.

The man who walked down George street two weeks ago wearing a straw hat had at least the courage of his convictions. The fact that a lot of people have since gone back to wearing their winter overcoats, should not detract from his honor at all, but rather shows up the faithlessness of men in general. Everyone knows spring is here, but has not the strength of faith to keep warm in spring garb.

Which reminds us that the new straw hats are different from last year's. Nobody who treasured last year's straw expected anything else, but there is always that lingering hope that we may be able to put it over.

The styles this year include the bell crown and the style-flash. The bell crown is best described as being bigger at the roof than below decks, and with a brim that approaches the vanishing point. Advance salesmen say that it can be draped down over any one's ears—and still look nobby. The style-flash has a brim that carries a weight of more than half an inch in thickness.

And we venture to say that style-flash, bell crown, and all notwithstanding, the Peterborough man will wear what he likes this year as always—and be just as happy.

Surprises in Store

How a hundred pipers and a' chased two thousand men, was sung in one of last night's concerts. City folks will understand.

Peterborough's industrial Exhibition shows annually what the country district surrounding the city can do in the way of producing goods for human consumption and use, and thousands of city folks visit and admire the exhibits, even if they do not understand much about the processes of farming and gardening.

Now comes a "Made in Peterborough" exhibition that will show what is turned out in city factories, and at least as much interest will be shown in this angle of the closely knit life of production. It's all the same life whether it be in city or country. Everybody works, and now everybody is about to get an angle on the other fellow's job.

Some of the little factories are not the least interesting. There is for instance in Peterborough a factory turning out thousands of yards of elastic for supporting hose, and in other strictly business ways. Everybody knows what elastic garters are—but the Made-in-Peterborough Exhibition will show how they are.

It wouldn't do to take away all the surprises; there are a hundred more for the visitors.

Mayor Turner, in his usual optimistic vein, declares business is getting better and better. We hold that Mayor Turner has won the right to be called the Coue of Commerce. THIRTY.

HOTEL KEEPERS' PLEA REFUSED

They Ask Modifications in Act to Speed Up Service.

WANT TO KEEP BAR.

TORONTO, May 12 (Canadian Press).—A deputation from the Toronto Hotelkeepers' Association visited Attorney-General Nickle yesterday at the Parliament Buildings and made a final plea for the Government to spare the bar. The hotelmen desired permission to serve over the bar because they feared that service at tables would prove too slow a process to enable them to satisfy the demand of the public for the new beverage.

"For the satisfactory nature of our interview, I am sure that the hotel keepers will be able to evolve the solution of their problem," was Hon. Mr. Nickle's commentary after he had received the hotel keepers. He was not able to concede anything different to the hotel men from the regulations which the Government has published.

FIGHT IN COUNCIL.

Toronto Controller and Alderman Have Fist Fight in Meeting.

TORONTO, May 12.—(Canadian Press).—Controller Donald C. MacGregor and Ald. Sam. McBride were the principals in a pugilistic encounter in the Council Chamber at the City Hall yesterday afternoon, which resulted in the spilling of blood. Ald. McBride sustained injuries necessitating medical attention. It is practically certain the matter will be the subject of Police Court proceedings, with the Controller in the role of defendant.

CONFERENCE ON DEBT EXPECTED

Finance Minister Caillaux Will Call Meeting When Budget Is Settled.

REMINDER OF DEBT.

PARIS, May 12 (Canadian Press)—A war debt conference with the United States, Britain, France and possibly Italy represented is Finance Minister Caillaux's idea to reach an understanding. As soon as the Budget is settled, he plans to ask for such a conference. So he intimated to United States Ambassador Herrick, last week, and presumably to the British.

The "reminder" which Herrick gave him verbally and the news from Washington about a "reminder" may force him to talk debts sooner than he intended.

Caillaux's own way of expresing the Herrick interview to his colleagues was "That the United States has reminded us of our debt."

FROM PRISON CELL TO CHURCH ORGAN

Cured of a drug habit which caused him to be sent to a cell in Fort Leavenworth Penitentiary, Dr. P. Reginald Deighton has become organist of the Linwood Boulevard Christian Church, one of the largest churches in Kansas City. As organist in Notre Dame in Paris years ago he won recognition as one of the world's greatest. The death of his wife and a son, killed in the World War, caused him to become a drug addict and later a convict.

SOCIAL DOINGS AT LAKEFIELD

Bridge Parties and a Dance Liven End of the Season.

PERSONAL NEWS.

LAKEFIELD, May 12.—Miss Laura Mason was the hostess of a delightful bridge and tea at the home of Mrs. L. H. Grahame, Reid Street, on Saturday afternoon. The color scheme of the decorations was yellow and white, a large bowl of daffodils and pussy willows centred the tea table and the tally cards were also decorated with daffodils, the effect being remarkably pretty.

There were four tables of bridge, at which the first prize was won by Mrs. Wm. M. Graham and the second prize by Mrs. Laurence Grahame. Mrs. Burgess was the winner of the consolation prize.

Mrs. Mackenzie poured tea and Mrs. Marling poured coffee, which was passed by a bevy of assistants. The ladies dispersed reluctantly, all expressing their pleasure at the delightful afternoon.

Small bridge parties have been the fashion lately, and nearly every evening there is a small gathering of enthusiasts. Bridge is even more popular in the village than last year.

Bitten by Dog.

On Saturday evening, Mr. Jack J. McFadden was attacked by a dog, which is the property of Mrs. Bertha Moore, which bit his left arm, tearing the flesh badly. Mr. McFadden was obliged to have medical aid and three stitches were put in. The dog is an old one and has become rather cross.

Wedding.

A wedding of local interest took place in Winnipeg on April 29 in the Congregational Church, when Miss Beth McMillan was united in marriage to Mr. Melville D. Kidd. Mr. Kidd is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kidd, and has many friends in the village, who join in hearty congratulations.

Tennis Club Dance.

Invitations have been issued for the first annual dance of the Lakefield Tennis Club, which will be held on Thursday evening, May 14, in the Lakefield House, with The Grove orchestra furnishing the music. The patronesses are Mesdames C. S. Tanner, G. J. Elmsley, A. B. Burrows, J. C. Strickland, L. H. Grahame, G. G. Connell, J. C. Smith, O. A. Langley, H. R. Wagar and E. M. Grier.

Correction.

In the report of the Baptist Women's Missionary Society, by a typographical error the name of Miss Aldrich was omitted as one who had early recollections of the Baptist Church, and she, not Miss Nicholls, accompanied her grandmother, Mrs. Wallace, to church.

Cadet Corps.

The annual inspection of the High School Cadet Corp will be held on Wednesday norning at 11 o'clock. The officers in charge hope for a good attendance of parents and citizens.

BETHANY NEWS

Mother's Day Fittingly Observed in Schools and the Churches on Sunday.

BETHANY, May 12. — Mother's Day was fittingly observed in the Sunday schools and churches of the village on Sunday. The Methodist Sunday School had a record attendance of 128 pupils. The school rooms were decorated with various bouquets, which added greatly to their appearance. The Presbyterian and Anglican churches had their regular ministers speak to them, while the Methodist church, owing to the illness of their pastor, Rev. W. A. Dafoe, had Rev. R. Patterson of Fraserville address that congregation.

Personal.

Mr. Joseph Ingram of Peterborough visited friends and relatives in the village on Saturday.

Mrs. S. Arnott was a Peterborough visitor on Saturday.

A large number from the village attended the funeral of the late T. A. Kelly on Saturday.

Miss Olive Nelson spent Saturday in Peterborough.

Mr. Clarence Rowan of Beaverton spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Rowan.

Mr. S. Veals and family were the guests of his sister, Mrs. C. Porteous on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howden, Jr., and family of Omemee were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Bigelow on Sunday.

Mr. L. Staples has the foundation of his new shop laid and the laying of the cement blocks will be started in a few days. When this building is completed it will be a welcome addition to the village.

YOUNG PEOPLE HOLD MEETINGS

Millbrook C.G.I.T. and YP. L. Active Even in Spring.

SOCIAL NEWS.

MILLBROOK, May 11 (Canadian Press).—The "Wide Awakes" C.G.I.T. group had all its members present, with one exception, at this week's meeting.

Hazel McMahon and Eleanor Fallis were responsible for the programme, taking up a study of Mrs. Cecil Alexander, author of the hymn "Jesus calls us o'er the tumult," which is one of the number selected for all C.G.I.T. groups to memorize.

Jean Stinson and Flossie McMahon were the games' committee, "The District School" being chosen, combining entertainment and occupation for all. The dainty lunch provided for each "scholar" at the close was an unexpected and enjoyable feature.

A missionary programme will be taken up at the next meeting.

Young People.

The attendance at the Young Peoples' League this week was most encouraging, the study book, "Facing the Crisis," by Sherwood Eddy, being taken up for the first time.

The chapter, "Difficulties in the Prayer Life," was presented for discussion; a reading, "Representing Christ," by Margaret Howard, and a solo, "Father, I am prone to wander," by Mrs. G. W. Sayles, adding to the pleasure of the evening.

The newly-elected first vice-president, Miss Jean Burnham, occupied the chair.

The League will provide the flowers for the front of the church this year as usual, red geraniums, with border of green and white, being used for the beds on either side the main steps.

Personal.

Mrs. Thomas Gillies, of Bethany, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilkinson for the past two weeks, is spending a few days with Miss Eagleson before her return home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Thorndyke were visitors to Peterborough on Thursday.

Mr. John Gray and son, Frank, motored to Toronto last week and exchanged their last season's car for one of another make, driving the larger one home on the return trip.

Rev. G. S. Gervan, and son, Russell, who have been visiting his parents in Ottawa for the past week, returned home on Thursday.

Dr. H. A. Turner was in Toronto this week attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association.

Mrs. L. S. Clarry, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Max Cameron, of Ottawa, has returned home.

Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard spent the week-end in Belleville with her mother, Mrs. Johnston.

Messrs. F. W. Burnham and G. Freeman, of Peterborough, were business visitors in town on Saturday.

Miss Luella Rorke, now on furlough from Japan, will address a meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary and Mission Circle in the Methodist Church on Wednesday, May 13, at 8 p.m. The public generally is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. J. L. Byam, who has, to a limited extent, gone into the raising of pure-bred black foxes, has four baby foxes this spring as an addition to his original stock.

J. B. Hall, Lodge No. 145, A. F. & A. M., held its regular session on Thursday evening, the official visit of District-Deputy Master Wor. Brother R. Kenner, of Peterborough, making the occasion of special significance. The Fourth Degree was exemplified in a very able manner. Addresses were delivered by the visiting Master and some of the local brethren, and a bountiful supper was served at the close, fostering the social spirit and adding to the pleasure of the evening.

A PRESENTATION

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond Missed by Warkworth Unionists.

WARKWORTH, May 12. — A large company of friends gathered at the Sunday school room of the Union church on Tuesday evening to show their appreciation of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond, who were leaving for their new charge at Comber. After community singing and addresses by friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hammond were presented with a well filled purse. Mr. Hammond expressed his thanks with a few well chosen words of gratitude. Lunch then was served and a social evening spent, closing with the singing of the farewell hymn, and the benediction by Mr. Hammond.

The hearty handshaking and good wishes testified as to the esteem of Warkworth people.

BIG ANKLES AN ILLUSION

Low Heels Do Not Actually Cause Woman's Ankles to Thicken.

LEICESTER, Eng., May 12.—Does the wearing of low-heel shoes by women cause thick ankles?

Manufacturers of women's shoes here, who have large stocks of the low-heeled variety, insist that the thickening of a woman's ankles when she wears low heels is a mere optical illusion.

They insist there is no permanent increase in circumference due to the low heels.

THRONG OF COMMUTERS

Healthy Children

WHAT a joy there is in the laughter of children. How quickly that laughter dies when constipation—that great enemy of healthy bodies—coats the tongue and dulls the appetite of your boy or girl.

Mothers often fail to recognize in the bad breath, the coated tongue and fretfulness, the danger of disease that lurks like a shadow ready to throw its black mantle over the loved one.

DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN relieves the cause—constipation—and should be in every home. You will be astonished how quickly this great family remedy will put laughter back in the eyes of your child.

It is a safe, mild laxative especially suitable for children, pleasant to take, with no cramping after effects. It contains no narcotics or mercurials.

BISHOP SAYS NO CHANGE IN VIEW OF O.T.A.

Plebiscite Showed That People Were Rapidly Tiring of Prohibition.

ANGLICAN SYNOD.

Opening Session Featured By Address on Sacredness of Marriage.

LONDON, Ont., May 12 (Canadian Press)—That Bishop Williams' opinion remains unaltered with respect to the Ontario Temperance Act was evidenced in his address at the opening of the Anglican Synod to-day.

Bishop William opened his charge with a brief review of world conditions, mentioning uneasiness as to the future of Germany arsing from the election of General von Hindenburg, and citing Russia as still the great menace to the established order of society.

"In Canada, business is still depressed, and internal trade is hampered by heavy freight rates and by the fact that millions of money which formerly circulated in business are now consumed in motors and their upkeep, thus creating an economic revolution.

The plebiscite on the O.T.A. showed that the people were rapidly growing tried of prohibition. I see no reason to change my opinion of the O.T.A. as given to the Synod last year.

"The year was marked by certain notable prosecutions of persons who had filled high positions, and I hope that the sureness with which justice was meted out will be a warning to others.

"The offices of baptism, marriage and burial were never intended for private houses. To perform any of these offices elsewhere than in the Church is a loss to the congregation, a loss of sense of fellowship and unity, and to the parties concerned.

Marriage means the creation of a new unit in the congregation, and the social life of the community and should, therefore, be performed in its presence, thereby giving approval to it. Remembering how much the moral and spiritual well-being of the fruits of marriage depends upon the sacredness and stability of the family and the tendencies now abroad undermining its sacredness and stability, it is our duty to surround the marriage contract with all the inspiration and strength that can be brought to bear on it through the solemn association of God's house. Marriage is not only a civil contract, but is instituted by God, a contract before God, and should, therefore, be performed in His house."

E. F. MASON REPLACES

statement. This account arises from the city's contract with the Hydro for power at cost and covers the difference between the sums paid and the actual cost for several years.

The Commission will use the blank space on its bill forms for the printing of a "Made-in-Canada" slogan as requested by the Manufacturers Association.

Two ladies from Sophia street and Armour Road waited on the commission to ask for water service.

The difference between the estimated revenue from twelve consumers and the necessary ten per cent. of the cost amounts to about $180 a year. A survey will be made to see what can be done to provide service for this section of the city.

The question of service to consumers outside the city was brought up as it was thought that the rate charged was not sufficient, as the city had to supply all the capital, and they get city service at township taxes.

The Hydro-Eelectric Power Commission will be asked to make an estimate of the proper rates for this service.

Thanked Commission

In thanking the Commissioners for the honor paid him Mr. Mason said he accepted with reluctance because he realized the responsibility of the big undertaking. His position is made doubly hard, he said, because of the very efficint manner in which Mr. Hicks had carried on the work.

"Mr. Hicks is recognized at home and abroad as one of Peterborough's most able of big business men," Mr. Mason continued, "with that strength of character and resourcefulness that make him a man of action. Mr. Hicks is a strong believer in public owned utilities, and I sincerely regret that he finds it necessary to relinquish the chairmanship of the Utilities Commission. He has ably guided the electric and waterworks plants successfully through many years and especially through the last five most strenuous years of building and financing. During those five years I have been on the board and fully realize what a gigantic undertaking it is. In this time a most modern filteration plant was built and completed, a new electric sub-station, an office for the waterworks, a large garage, an electric meter testing department, and homes for the accommodation of waterworks employees on the plant, and beautification of all grounds around the various buildings have been completed. Besides all this, there was the readjustment of water rates made to take care of extra cost of filtered water.

All this has been done under the guidance of Mr. Hicks and therefore I am going to have a difficult task to ever fill the position as Mr. Hicks has done and I will ask the assistance of Mr. Hicks and Mr. Bradburn to carry on this work."

GOOD RISKS

Fat Men and Men With Bobbies Favored for Insurance.

COLUMBUS O., May 12.—Men with hobbies and fat men usually are good risks for surety companies, Fred M. Withey, vice president of the National Surety Company, told members of the Colubus Ad. Club.

"The nut or man with a hobby," Mr. Withey said, "is a good moral risk because he is too busy with his pet subject to take other people's money; the fat man is a good risk because his thoughts centre on eating rather than dishonesty.

"The married man is a better moral risk than the bachelor by a six-to-one ratio, and the violently profane man is a good risk because he takes out his peeves in swearing rather than in stealing."

POLICE DOG'S CAPTURE OF ABDUCTOR REVEALS TRAGEDY OF BACKWOODS POVERTY.

By BOB DOEMAN.

RANDOLPH, Vt., May 12.—All throughout the countryside that stretches away from this little Vermont town, where hills are as barren and woods as lonely as the lives they hem in, Deeka, sharp-nosed police dog, has become an overnight hero.

Where hundreds of armed searchers had failed, he succeeded in halting the flight of that most strangely mated couple, Lucille Chatterton (33) and Earl Woodward (26), an ex-convict who had been befriended by the child's father.

One sniff of some blankets found in an abandoned farmhouse and Deeka, followed by his master, George Jerd, and Winfield Dubois, a guide, was off to a hilltop. Here stood a ramshackle barn in which the couple, for whom a search of a week had been conducted, were finding temporary shelter from the heavy rain.

And so the hunt is over. The farmers and millhands have gone back to their homes. Cadets from Northfield are back in school. The quagmired valleys and desolate hills have returned to their seldom broken silence. But in the jail here the 33-year-old child, small for her years, and Woodward, indolent product of a back-country, are just beginning to face the problems of to-morrow.

In her inarticulate way the child already has convicted the drab circumstances into which it was her fate to be cast. With loyalty and affection she was ready to acclaim Woodward as the Lochinvar who came to carry her away.

It is not unlikely that less romantic visionings roused the man accused of abduction to his daringly futile attempt at flight, though in sullen monosyllables he has sought to picture himself as one who pitied the child's predicament and wanted to help her.

Thus it would seem that Deeka, the police dog, nosed out a queer study in the psychology of shut-ins, as well as a pair of fugitives.

For many hours I accompanied members of the posse engaged in the man-hunt, getting but a taste of the desolation of the thicket—snarled hills and fields, ploughing through roads deep with mud under a steady rain and wading through knee-deep quagmires.

From one man and another I heard of the poverty that gradually sinks little groups of settlers in the back-country into a squalor and bitterness deeper than the surrounding mud-holes that seem to symbolize their circumstances.

Such was the condition of the Chattertons. They were poor to the point of destitution. And so Lucille Chatterton grew up, undersized and unhappy, surrounded by the gloomy and seemingly futile struggle that poverty breeds.

In the neighborhood lived Woodward, six-foot, lazy and restless. He went away and joined the navy. He is said to have deserted and drifted back to his home country only to do time in jail. When he returned to his Vermont home-country most people washed their hands of him.

Finally Chatterton took him in. He was a strapping lad. Maybe he might help turn the unpromising land into something productive.

But Woodward was indolent. In addition the father noticed that his daughter and Woodward were frequently together.

Woodward would bring the child candy from the store and now and then take her to a movie in the village. Thus opened to Lucille a new vista—a land of things that ever beckon to a child.

Chatterton discharged Woodward and then, awakening one morning, he found both Lucille and Woodward gone.

The child, with spring in the air, had gone in search of rainbow's end, as children will. Somewhere there was a land where there was more light and less bitterness, where the hills didn't crowd in. Doubtless she would have found only a more sordid horizon, and already this may be dawning upon the girl.

But for the Chattertons, who feared she would be slain by the "abductor," there is only happiness at her discovery and for the countryside there is a new hero, Deeka, the police dog. For the shut-ins there is something to talk about when the rains drip dismally upon the roofs. For the child there is possibly a tragic awakening, and for Woodward there is the shadow of prison walls.

Watch your tongue

The tongue is the mirror of the digestive tract and upon its surface is reflected the result of digestive disorders. Examine your tongue frequently and when you find it coated with "fur", or unnatural in appearance, heed Nature's signal.

Indigestion, biliousness, dyspepsia and constipation are responsible for most of the ills of mankind. Sleeplessness, headaches, nervousness and many ills follow in their train. Restore your digestion by using Beecham's Pills.

They clear the tongue, remove the bad taste, strengthen the stomach and bowels, activate the liver, promote the digestion and assimilation of food and make you feel strong and well.

CAMBORNE PASTOR DOCTOR OF MUSIC

Rev. F. J. Horwood Will Shortly Complete Work Required For This Degree.

COBOURG, May 12—When Rev. F. J. Harwood, pastor of Camborne Methodist Circuit, completes the necessary work, additional to writing a short oratorio, which he is expected to accomplish shortly, he will be the youngest man in Ontario to receive the degree of Doctor of Music, and probably the only minister in Canada to receive this honor. Mr. Horwood's oratorio "Daniel" has been definitely accepted for the degree of Doctor of Music. In 1920 Mr. Harwood passed his A.T.C.M. In 1921 he took the degree of Mus. Bac., and now this additional honor has been achieved by him.

Mrs. C. G. Graham offered a challenge pin for competition during the coming season.

A report of the activities of the club for the past year was given by Mrs. F. L. Roy.

It was decided to hold field day events on Wednesdays of the months of June and September.

A vote of thanks for her good work as captain during the year was tendered to Miss Florence Scott.

COLORED FEATHERS.

Big Parade of Gowns For Season's Courts—More Extravagant.

LONDON, Eng., May 12.—(Canadian Press).—There was a parade at a big hotel this week of some of the gowns that are going to be worn at this season's courts—on May 21 and 28 and June 21 and 22. Court dresses this year are more extravagant and colorful than they have ever been. Miss Matilda Houghton, the new American Ambassador's daughter, has chosen a wonderful gown of white brocade, with a girdle of roped pearls and a long trail of wisteria colored ostrich feathers. The latter, as a matter of fact, figure largely on this season's trimmings, and a remarkable innovation is that the ostrich feathers which are worn in the hair by the Courth debutante are of pastel shades in many cases, whereas they have hitherto invariably been white.

The vogue of colored court dresses is largely due to the Queen's initiative. She has chosen colors for three of her four Court dres

REVIVES LORGNETTES.

Queen Mary Suffered From Eyestrain Under Glaring Italian Skies.

LONDON, Eng., May 12.—(Canadian Press).—The lorgnette, symbol of a stately age, is coming back into great favor again, not only by dowager duchesses but by the younger set. The Duchess of York, who was dining with Prince George and Lady Louis Mountbatten one night this week, had a lorgnette with a long jade handle and made frequent use of it—not in the old icy way but with an effective little mannerism. Queen Mary has also been using one a good deal lately, though this is said to be due to the fact that the Queen has been suffering a little from eyestrain, especially under the glaring Italian skies.

But if the lorgnette becomes as common as horn-rimmed spectacles woman's most effective weapon will lose its sting. Not one man in a thousand can stand being looked at through a lorgnette, without betraying some delightful sign of embarrassment, and well women know it!

LONDON'S MANY ELIGIBLE MEN

Scarcer Than They Used to be—Die Young or Marry Early.

A WHO'S WHO

By Sylvia Mayflower

LONDON, Eng., May 12 (Canadian Press).—Two famous hostesses, a "fashionable" London barrister and a young earl (who thinks he is going to surprise everbody in a few days with a 'surprise' marriage that they know about already) were lingering over their lunch the other day, when talk turned on the eligible bachelors in London this season.

Naturally, the question is a pressing one for the bachelors indirectly are responsible for a lot. There are at least a dozen earls who owe their daily round of ease and luxury to the Harry Browns, the Corrigans and the Vanderbilts of this world.

So the four scribbled out a list on the tablecloth—a kind of "who's who" in the bachelor world. These were some.

Sir Philip Sassoon: Income practically unlimited. Handcome. Wonderful Park Lane house. Country home Lympne, Kent. Rides well, and dances better. Music literature, art. But he is very difficult. Has stood the onslaughts of four London seasons and no sign of giving in yet.

Marquess of Douglas and Clydesdale: The 21-year-old son of the Duke of Hamilton, the premier peer of Scotland. Wealthy, handsome the best amateur boxer in the kingdom. Not seen much in the smart social round in London, though he lunches in town once a week with his mother. Can be lured by tennis hunting or polo parties.

Earl of Penrith: Another very eligible young man.

Captain Alan Lascelles: whose name is, of course, enough to make hostesses pause over it. Princess Mary's husband is his cousin, and Captain Lacelles is one of Wales' closest friends.

Of course there are a few others. But bachelors are scarcer than they used to be. They either die young or marry early, and it makes the others very independent

Some of the horses of the mounted police in London are valued at $2,000, more than the selling price of many race horses.

An exhilarating and invigorating drink

A bubbling glass of Andrews Liver Salt is an exhilarating drink—it seems to wash away that early morning staleness and leaves body and mind alike freshened and invigorated for the day's work. Just a glass of water and a spoonful of Andrews makes this pleasant drink of health.

Weddings

MOORE—HOLMES

The home of Rev. and Mrs. Young, 60 Lindsay Avenue, Toronto, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, when the Marguerite Holmes became the bride of Burwell Moore, son of Mr. T. J. Moore. The young couple were assisted by the bride's sister, Bernice, and Mr. Wm. L. Hardwicke.

The marriage was conducted by Rev. Dr. W. R. Young, uncle of the bride

HEROIC WOMAN

Mrs. Clay Attacked by Huskies in Far North and Killed.

EDMONTON, ALTA., May 12 (Canadian Press).—The "Journal", speaking editorially of the risks run by women in entering remote points of the north, has words of praise for Mrs. Clay, who was attacked by huskies, and later died from loss of blood. "This heroic woman had accompanied her husband wherever he went in discharge of his duties as a member of the mounted police and was the first white woman at Aklavik, near the mouth of the Mackenzie. The record of what she accomplished in brightening the lives of those at the faraway posts is one that in any case would not easily be forgotten, and the sacrifice which her devotion has entailed for her should make her name one that will always be remembered in the northland and elsewhere throughout the dominion."

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

These cookies, from a recipe belonging to Mrs. McKenzie, 544 Bolivar street, are said to be particularly toothsome! They are made of:

½ cup butter.
½ cup lard.
pinch of salt.
1 cup white sugar.
3 even cups flour.
2 eggs.

Cream the butter and lard and sugar together and beat them with the flour, mixing thoroughly. Then mix the batter with the eggs, well beaten. Roll and bake in a hot oven.

WOMAN'S PLACE IN CIVIC LIFE

Mothers With Experience in Bringing Up Children May Help.

SAYS MRS. LANDES

VICTORIA, B. C., May 12 (Canadian Press).—That women as a sex, particularly mothers who have had the experience of successfully bringing up children, had a very important contribution to make to civic politics, was pleaded with eloquence by Mrs. Henry Landes, only woman council member of the Seattle Council, in an address before the Women's Canadian Club here.

Mrs. Landes, despite her reputation for fearless independence gained through the dismissal of the Seattle chief of police last year when she held office as acting mayor of that city during the mayor's temporary absence, is a quiet motherly looking woman with a soft voice and unaggressive manner. She pointed out that it was still a weakness of woman's that in public position she was inclined to be rather over-sensitive, tactless and too ready to put the personal interpretation on things. If they were going to do things women must make up their minds to do them even better than the men. The woman who had had a home and family was better fitted to go into public life than the woman who had not had these experiences. And often she had more leisure to give to the problems of government and was also more independent of salary than the man."

REGULATE MARRIAGE.

Rule Now is to Treat it as Most Casual Thing in Life.

TORONTO, May 12. — (Canadian Press). — "There must come into use such reasonable requirements as appear practicable regarding the physique and mental health of persons contracting marriage," said Robert Kelso, secretary of the Boston Council of Social Agencies, addressing a joint Social Welfare conference. "It is probably true that the most casual and accidental thing we do in our lives is this matter of choosing a mate. This matter of mating and breeding children must be given thought by the whole people, and the wishes of the individual must yield to some extent to reasonable rules for the protection of the health of the community and the prospects of the coming generation. There must be segregation of the mentally unfit to the extent at least of discouraging a continuance of bad hereditary strains."

EMPIRE BABY COMPETITION

Canadian Council on Child Welfare Conducts Affairs on This Side.

SIX CLASSES

OTTAWA, Ont. May, 12 (Canadian Press).—Preparations are under way for the 1925 Empire's Mother and Baby Competition, conducted by the National Baby Week Council of England, and carried out in Canada by the Canadian Council of Child Welfare, with headquarters here.

Forms containing questions as to the baby's health, physique etc., and three question on the care of the baby which are to be filled out by the mother are being made available.

There are six classes in which babies may be entered; Class 1 for babies 6 to 12 months of age; Class 2, 12 months to 2 years of age; Class 3, 2 to 5 years of age; Class 4, Twins of fives years of age; Class 5, Triplets of four years of and Class 6 for quadruplets of 3 years of age. The grand prize for the champion Imperial baby, to be awarded on the joint total of marks secured by mother and baby, is a £100 endowment police.

Canadian babies and mothers won several of the prizes last year.

EARS CAUSE NEW BEAUTY TORTURE

Signs That Neglected Appendages Are to be More Seen Shortly.

LONDON, May, 12 (Canadian Press).—Women love nothing so much as to undergo pain in the cause of beauty. The more Inquisition-like it is the better they like it. At the moment there are unmistakable signs that in the next few months the ears are going to be displayed ever so much more prominently than hitherto. A frightening idea, because for the last three years hardly a woman has given a thought to her ears safely hidden away under cloche hats.

So some of the London beauty specialists have brought out a kind of torture instrument that women will pay anything up to $100 for the privilege of using. It is a kind of vice which not only induces the ears to lie snug against the head but tends to draw them slightly back ward, which is said to be desired effect of the new fashion. They spend two to four hours a day locked up in the ear vice.

Fernandez, chief of a prominent beauty salon, who has been waging a campaign against these freak beauty tortures—such as sewing on new eyelids and the like—has exhibited one of these vices in his salon as a kind of deterrent to reckless beauty seekers.

There are quite a number of young London girls who do not like being seen about with their mothers. The latter make them look so old.

RAISE WAGES

Laundry Workers to Get $12 Instead of $11—Hours Reduced.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 12 (Canadian Press)—The minimum weekly wage of experienced women workers in laundries has been raised to the level of those engaged in dyeing and cleaning establishments, and will be $12 weekly instead of $11 as formerly. By the same process the working week in laundries is reduced from 52 to 50 hours. This is a recent decision of the minimum wage board.

THIS Your BIRTHDAY

TUESDAY, May 12 — Persons born this day are noted for their strict observance of the scriptural commandment, "Honor thy father and thy mother." Their kindly consideration of their parents is often a cause of comment among their friends. Because of this and other good traits, they generally make ideal parents for their own children.

Born under the sign of Taurus, they are very loyal friends, and more than generous in their dealings with others.

CHILDREN KILLED IN INFANTORIUM

Trained Nurse Gives Evidence Thta Leads to Indictment of Principals.

NEW YORK, May 12. — On the strength of evidence given him by a reputable trained nurse, who spent ten weeks in the infantorium of Mrs. Helene Augusta Geisen-Volk, assistant-district Attorney William Ryan announced yesterday that he will seek homicide indictments against at least one person involved in the case

The nurse went to the home to care for her own baby, which she had sent there. During her ten weeks stay she saw nine babies die, and one infant mauled against the wall so violently that it was dead when she looked into its crib a few hours later.

This child was Agnes Toohey, 18 months old.

The treatment accorded all the children in the home, according to this nurse, was most brutal and inhuman, and those who died would have lived had they been given even ordinary capable attention.

THE PAINT BRUSH

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, May 12 (United Press).—Repainting furniture is one of the pleasureable pastimes of the woman who likes to wield a paintbrush. Old pieces of furniture can be converted into beautiful objects if one but knows how to paint. First, one must know whether to paint, varnish, enamel or stain.

For furniture with a smooth surface one can either use flat paint or enamel, according to the effect desired. When several layers of paint have already been applied on furniture, one should use a paint remover before applying either paint or enamel. Wicker can be gone over with enamel, varnish or stain. Radiators should be painted with aluminum or gold paint or with varnish. For screens, there is a regular screen enamel.

Much can be done with mixing colors. Suppose one wishes to make a dark-stained end table a lacquer red. This required a can of vermilion enamel and a can of orange enamel. By using equal parts of these one gets a perfect stained end table a lacquer red. This required a can of vermilion enamel and a can of orange enamel. By using equal parts of these one gets a perfecte lacquer shade. Sometimes more orange is requires than red and one should always dip a small stick into the mixture and allow this to dry before applying to the furniture. Do not apply enamel too heavily or it will blister. Usually one layer is sufficient but a second layer can be used after the first is thoroughly dried.

An old cupboard can be made interesting by painting it black on the outside, with the inside shelving of contrasting color, such as delf-blue or lemon. This gives a quaint effect and lends a lovely background to colorful china or glasswear.

There is a fad at present for old greenish-bronze tones. Electric fixtures, lamp bases and earthen or brass vases and bowls are lovely when done in antique green tones. Standing lamp bases can be made to look like antique bronze. Even wooden chopping bowls can be made to resemble the old bronze bowls of ancient times. All of this is accomplished by means of a can of green paint and a package of rotten rock. The paint is thinned with turpentine until it is of the thickness of a stain. This is applied to the object, and, when almost dry, the rotten rock is dusted on with a soft brush to give a grayish green cast. Do not try to apply the rotten rock too evenly, but dust lightly until the effect of old grayish-green bronze is obtained. If the tone is too gray, it can be rubbed in spots with a soft rag, thus letting a greenish cast show through.

Say, little fellow, you're straight as a stick, and you're holdin' your shoulder blades back. Standin' erect—well, you kinda look slick. Who taught you, and whence came the knack?

I can remember when you used to stoop, and sag when you walked down the street. My, what a diff'rence; you've shaken the droop and your gen'ral appearance is neat.

How does it feel when you hold your head up, and breath with your chest line thrown out? No wonder you're proud as a Pekinese pup. Say, tell me, what brought it about?

YOUR GARDEN

ANNUALS FROM SEED OUTDOORS.

For east of growing and rapid results, annuals are invaluable. They also afford a very great variety of colors, forms and foliage, including trailers, climbers, dwarf plants and very tall growers. They are very useful for planting about the summer home, for a cut-flower garden, for filling in bare spots almost anywhere in the planting, for naturalizing in bold groups and in many other ways.

Hardy annuals are sown in the open ground usually in May, when danger of frost is past and the weather is settled. For early planting it is best to have a well prepared border in a sheltered place facing south. From this bed the seedlings may be transplanted into permanent quarters where they are to bloom. Certain flowers are Lupines, Poppies, and Eschscholtzia, will not stand transplanting, however, and must be sown where they are to flower. Those that are not continuous bloomers may be divided into a succession of sowings or plantings. In this way as the early sowings begin to look seedy, they may be removed and young plants of the same variety or a new one may be planted in to take their places.

Most annuals do best in an open sunny situation, although there are exceptions. Pansies, Forget-me-nots and some others, rather prefer a place where they receive the full sunshine for only half the day. On the other hand, Zinnias, Portulaca and the Sunflower, favor full sunlight.

Best results can only be obtained with a rich, well prepared soil in which humus is incorporated to prevent baking and drying out. Cow manure, stable manure or leaf mold worked in liberally will supply this latter. The soil should be spaded to a foot in depth in advance, and then worked to half this distance.

It is advisable to purchase colors separately and get only the best seed. Try a few named varieties which are usually superior. The surface of the soil should be smooth and mellow and the seeds may be sown in drills or scattered to form large natural groups. In formal beds the taller kinds are sown in the centre or back of the beds. For a natural border effect groups may be developed as in a perennial border. When the seedlings appear they may be thinned to proper distances. Seed may be covered to a depth of four or five times their own thickness and sown thickly. After covering them over, the seed should be pressed firmly over the seed with the feet or a board. Soils that are inclined to bake should be treated with a sprinkling of sand or fine litter over the surface, after the sowing.

Beating rains are liable to do harm before the seedlings have appeared, so place evergreen boughs over the beds after seeding.

Special care should be taken to keep down weeds, as if not done the plants will become weak, spindly and consequently valueless. In order that the weeding may be accomplished with as little trouble as possible it is advisable to plainly mark the rows so the young plants may be distinguished from the weeds.

KNOX CHURCH CONCERT

(By Jeannette.)

Seven hundred and thirty-six people attended the annual choir concert of Knox church last night, when the choir, with assisting artists, rendered a very fine programme of vocal and instrumental music. The programme, of an enjoyable length, contained a varied assortment of fine musical selections that evidently appealed strongly to the audience, judging by the applause which followed each number. Assisting musicians were Mrs. Ross Williamson, soprano, Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, L.T.C.M., pianiste, Miss Edwina Palmer, L.R.A.M., violiniste, Rev. J. A. MacKenzie of Guelph, baritone, and Mr. Maurice H. Park, tenor. Mr. Charles Peaker acted as organist and choirmaster in a manner that displayed to the full his fine musical attainments. The selection of choral numbers was particularly pleasing.

The programme opened with a double number by the choir, who sang "O Canada" and the "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" from Mozart's Twelfth Mass. The latter selection, rendered in English, showed a nice sense of expressive phrasing, with excellent attack and release. In this offering, as in the other choral numbers, the voices of the feminine singers were paramount, the basses showing a disinclination to assert themselves or possibly being outnumbered by the ladies, who led the way at all times.

"My Love Dwelt in a Northern Land," one of Edgar's majestic yet simple compositions, was given in very pleasing style, the descriptive stanzas splendidly enunciated, and its companion choral number, "Early One Mornin'g" was a charming old English folk song, rendered in the unaccompanied fashion which tests any choir's ability. The song of the love lorn maiden, in the portamento rhythm of the old composers, was received with much applause.

The two final numbers by the choir, the "Viking's Song" and "Spirit Immortal" from "Attila," were among the best of their offerings, and were done with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Mackinnon. The "Viking's Song" was a forceful, descriptive offering, with a fine volume in the concerted voices and "Spirit Immortal" was a splendid concluding number to the choral programme, with solo parts taken by Mrs. Ross Williamson, Mr. M. H. Park and Rev. Mr. Mackenzie.

A ladies' chorus, "List the Cherubic Host," by Gaul, was a pretty selection, in hushed effect. Organ and piano accompaniments were played by Mr. Peaker and Mrs. Mackinnon, while the soprano obligato was taken by Mrs. Williamson and the bass solo by Mr. Hughes.

Mrs. Ross Williamson received much applause with her trio of lovely songs. With a wide range, excellent control, and a quality of delicate sweetness in her high register, Mrs. Williamson's vocal work is very pleasing. Her choice of songs brought out all the resources of her voice and the bright trio was exceptionally well rendered. "A Spirit Flower" was a delicate thing, with fine melody in its high notes, and "Winds in the Trees" and "Snow Flakes" were descriptive songs of dainty effectiveness.

Miss Edwina Palmer, in six numbers, demonstrated to the full her profiency with the king of instruments, the violin. Her mastery of technical difficulties, her well-rounded, pleasing tone, and her outstanding powers of memorization, make her music always attractive in the extreme, and the applause which followed every number was ample evidence of her hearers' pleasure in her playing. The first trio comprised one of Rimsky-Korsakov's haunting arrangements, "Hymn to the Sun," with its frail, finely-spun harmonies, a Mozart-Kreisler "Rondo," a charming, soft-toned movement, and a gay, swi't "Rondino" on a Beethoven them:. This last selection seemed to include every variation in violin music, its rendition progressing through the intricacies of lightly-touched harmonics and the use of the sautille, or springing bow, on to the final double stopping interval and the closing in prestissimo tempo.

The lovely setting of the song, "Pale Moon," opened the second group, which included also a difficult and exacting Viennese waltz, "Liebesfreude," with a haunting refrain, and the staccato "Toy Soldier's March," with pizzicato intervals.

The former pastor of Knox church, Rev. J. A. Mackenzie, received repeated enthusiastic applause for his baritone solos, his fine, sonorous tones being heard to splendid advantage in a jolly hunting song, "Tally Ho," the dramatic measures of the old Scotch favorite, "March of the Cameron Men," and its encore, the "Hundred Pipers."

To Mr. Maurice H. Park, also, came renewed and enthusiastic applause, met with an encore that demonstrated his expressive command of music of a sentimental type. Mr. Park's fine tenor, with its sympathetic appeal and the rich depths of its sweet tones, was at its best in a French song, "Vraiement, ma bien aimee," and its companion, "If My Songs Were Only Winged." As an encore, Mr. Park sang one of the always popular melodies, "Believe me, if all those endearing young charms."

An interval in the vocal programme that was much enjoyed was the piano and organ duet, played by Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon and Mr. Charles Peaker, a Franck "Prelude, Fugue and Variation." Mrs. Mackinnon's brilliant command of the pianoforte and Mr. Peaker's equally fine mastery of the organ were demonstrated to the full in this splendidly rendered selection.

SWIMMING IS BOYHOOD JOY

Sense of Achievement Goes Hand in Hand With Pleasant Coolness.

CHANCE TO LEARN.

One of the greatest joy-bringers in a boy's life is the old swimming hole. Peterboro boys are more than fortunate in the number of choice "holes" found in all parts of the city and surrounding district. Almost any day in the good old summer time you will find them full of diving, swimming, moving arms and legs, attached to swimmers. It's great fun'

The fun comes not simply from the pleasant feeling of cool water on the skin. The fun comes also because there is a joy in the sense of achievement. The mastery of anything brings satisfaction.

Dog paddling around is all right but the mastery of the art of swimming and therefore the greater pleasure, comes when one can properly use the more scientific strokes —such as the crawl—which give greater speed and power with no more effort.

Every person should know how to swim—not only because swimming is good sport, but also because it is one of the best known forms of all-round exercise. Swimming does not develop one set of muscles at the expense of others. All are used. Swimming is an exercise in which one may indulge without fear of muscular strain.

Every person can learn to swim! In these days instruction has been so simplified and made clear that everyone who really tries quickly learns. In the coming to Peterboro of Geor. H. Corsan to teach at the Y.M.C.A. for one week, Beginners and Advanced Swimmers will have the benefit of a vast store of swimming method knowledge coupled with years of successful application.

It is the duty of every citizen to learn an art which may not only be the means of some day preserving his own life, but which if carried on to its highest form of service in the knowledge of life saving, may enable him to actually save the life of some other.

Full information regarding enrollment in swimming classes under Mr. Corsan's tuition may be obtained by phoning or calling in at the local Young Men's Christian Association.

ASKS FOR RURAL CREDIT SYSTEM

Resolution Asking For Legislation Passed By Commerce Committee.

LARGE MAJORITY.

OTTAWA, May 12. — (Canadian Press).—A resolution urging the Government to bring down legislation at the present session of Parliament, for the establishment of an adequate rural credit system was passed by the Banking and Commerce Committee of the House of Commons to-day by a large majority.

ASK RATIFACTION OF GENEVA TREATY

Convention For Protection of Women Should Be Ratified By All Nations.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—(Canadian Press). — Without debate the convention of the International Council of Women to-day adopted a resolution urging the women in countries which have not ratified the 1921 convention of Geneva for the protection of women and children, to use their influence to obtain ratification.

Resolutions urging that measures be taken for the suppression of such newspaper advertisements as are calculated to incite "immoral behaviour" and advocating the maintenance of women police with the same status and responsibilities as men also were adopted.

ARMY TEMPLE BAND GIVES A CONCERT

Songsters Assisted Under Chairmanship of Brigadier Pinchen of Montreal.

A pleasant concert by the Temple Band and the Songsters was given in the auditorium of the Salvation Army Temple last evening. Brigadier Pinchen of Montreal, who conducted week end services at the Temple, acted as chairman. Captain Martin, who is in charge of the local corps in the absence of Commandant Smith, was present also.

The programme included several fine seelctions by the Temple Band, led by Bandmaster Frank Robinson including "Oriental Melodies," very finely played; a pianoforte solo by Mrs. S. Richardson, a new setting of "The Lord is my Shepherd," by the Songsters, with several further selections by the same aggregation; vocal quartettes by Messrs. Baldry, Lee, Turner and Worrall; instrumental quartettes by Bandmaster F. Robinson, Deputy Bandmaster B. Smith and Bandsmen B. Smith and M. Shadgett and saxaphone selections by the Saxaphone Party.

ST. PAUL'S CHOIR CONCERT.

By T. H. T.

Probably not until they had scanned their programmes in the customary expectancy of concert-goers did the audience at the annual concert of St. Paul's church last night realize the merit and the appeal of the entertainment provided for them by Mr. Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., the organist and conductor of the choir. The notices had emphasized as the feature of the evening Mendelssohn's "The First Walpurgis Night," a cantata that has been rarely, if ever, produced here, and perhaps they left with some an impression of doubtful pleasure in the anticipation of an evening's splendid but dull communion with one of the old masters. The unfolded programmes therefore conveyed a pleasant surprise to those who like their classics in small measures and well spiced with variety. And there was all of that to the Chenhall programme.

The cantata was abridged to its latter sections and was the finale of a list of numbers that bore the hallmarks of the classical category and the appeal of a popularity that has been well tested by time. Of such were the duet, "Home To Our Mountains," from Verdi's "Il Trovatore," the sextette from Lucia, "Vissi d'Arte," from La Tosca, and the Inflammatus and Cujus Animam from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Mr. Chenhall proved his skill as a programme-maker, and then to cap his plans he assembled with his choir four excellent soloists, Miss Agnes Adie, soprano; Miss Jessie Butt, contralto; Mr. Harry Binns, tenor, and Mr. Frank Oldfield, baritone, and a little symphony orchestra, not overlooking two pianos and the organ, the rather impressive ensemble suggesting in miniature those famous affinities, the Toronto Mendelssohn choir and the Philadelphia orchestra. In the note of lavishness from such vocal and instrumental abundance, Mr. Chenhall seemed to be emulating the sweet singers of Arcady whose summer symphony is all but complete since the arrival yesterday of the Bobolinks, those animated music boxes that tinkle joyously above the meadows.

St. Paul's choir concert induced a pleasurable mood of satisfaction that was aroused by the orchestra's opening selection, the Cujus Animam of Rossini's Stabat Mater, and that broadened with each number and rippled in responsiveness to the amusing readings by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, who provided a parenthesis of humor to the evening's music.

The composition of the orchestra was as follows: Violins, Geo. Howarth, leader, and T. McKeown; clarionet, J. Simpson; cornet, W. Hughes; timpani, R. M. Beach; horn, H. Wood; bassoon, F. Hully; cello, Martin Chenhall, Jr.; bass viol, W. Cunningham; organ, Fred Chenhall; pianistes, Miss Agnes Logan and Miss Muriel Bridge. Its opening number was its best, the "Cujus Animam," played with a confident precision and a smooth tonal texture rather more pronounced than in its other selections. It faltered a trifle in the first bars of the Gloria Patri from Barnby's cantata. The accompaniment seemed a little too strong in this number, but on the whole the orchestra deserved a large share of the concert's laurels with its outstanding contribution in Walpurgis Night.

The choir submitted itself to the capella test in "Moonlight," disclosing rich little harmonies and a capacity for shading and color that translated the nocturne mood and atmosphere very effectively. Its power was revealed in the finale of "Walpurgis Night," particularly in the passage, "Thy Light Shall Shine Forever." And in that episode, Mr. Chenhall achieved a dynamic crescendo beginning with Mr. Frank Oldfield's resonant aria and developing to the climax with a fortissimo of choir, orchestra and soloists that deserves a high place in local choral accomplishments.

"The First Walpurgis Night" relates to an old Saxon legend of the night of St. Walpurga, between April 30 and May 1. It forms the theme of Goethe's poem in which the subject of the legend is treated with a significance that is found in the last phrase, "Thy Light Shall Shine Forever," which Mendelssohn interpreted with dramatic symbolism.

The visiting soloists were cordially received in all their work. They were a host in themselves. The subtle unction of Mr. Oldfield's singing of "The Adjutant" was a delightful bit of infectious humor, the sweet, vibrant tone of Miss Adie's high register, these are only more memorable features, and reference to them above fails in praise to the quartette either collectively or in their solo parts. And incidentally the accompaniments played by Miss Logan in their reserved support deserve a special word of commendation.

The programme follows:

Part I.

1. Cujus Animam—Stabat Mater, (Rossini), Orchestra.
2. Gloria Patri—March and Chorus (97th Psalm), (J. Barnby), Quartette, Choir and Orchestra.
3. Inflammatus — (Stabat Mater), (Rossini), Choir, Orchestra, and obligato by Miss Agnes Adie.
4. Song—My Dreams, (Tosti), Harry Binns.
5. Song—My Ships, (Barrett), Miss Jessie Butt.
6. (a) The Adjutant, (Fisher); (b) If I Were, (Howard), Frank Oldfield.
7. (a) Vissi D'Arte—La Tossa, (Puccini); (b) The Answer, (Huntington Terry), Miss Agnes Adie.

Part II.

8. Nocturno — Midsummer Night's Dream, (Mendelssohn, 1809-1847), Orchestra.
9. Reading—Friday Afternoon, Hazel Davidson McClelland.
10. Part Song—Moonlight, (Eaton Faning, 1850-), Choir, unaccompanied.
11. Duet—Home to Our Mountains, (Verdi), Miss Jessie Butt and Harry Binns.
12. Trio—"Ti Prego O Padre." (Nicolas), Miss Agnes Adie, Harry Binns and Frank Oldfield.
13. Quartette—Now the Night in Starlit Splendor, (Donizetti); (Sextette, "Lucia di Lammermoor"), 1797-1848, Misses Adie and Butt, Messrs. Binns and Oldfield.
14. Selection from Walpurgis Night, (Mendelssohn), Quartette, Choir and Orchestra.

FARMER DRAGGED BENEATH MACHINE

Arthur Stephens Fell Under Cultivator and Was Pulled Around the Field.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 12—On Monday while cultivating a field on his farm, a short distance south of town, Arthur Stephens son of Mr. Thomas Stephens met with a painful accident.

The falling of the tongue of the cultivator caused Mr. Stephens to be thrown under the cultivator in which position he was dragged across the field.

Medical aid was summoned and Mr. Stephens who was badly bruised, was found to have a severe scalp wound besides a possible fracture of a limb and side injuries. Late last evening Mr. Stephens was resting as well as could be expected but he will be laid up for some time.

ARE YOU TORTURED WITH ECZEMA?

Eczema, or Salt Rheum, as it is commonly called, is one of the most agonizing of all skin diseases.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the parts are exposed to heat, are almost unbearable and relief is greatly welcomed.

The most reliable and effective remedy for this trouble is

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS.

Mrs. J. R. Johnson, R.R. No. 1, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "For years I was troubled with eczema, and had that terrible itching and burning sensation, and could find no relief for it. Finally, I was advised to use B.B.B., and after my second bottle I began to see a great difference, and I can, now, advise anyone troubled as I was to use this wonderful remedy."

HAPPY MARRIAGE BEAUTY AID, SAYS LONDON SPECIALIST

Good Health Essential, Says Doctor Who Upholds Cosmetics

SMOKING HURTS

Favors Seven Hours' Sleep for Women Wishing Good Figure

"Beauty is due to good health."

"A happy marriage is the natural aid to beauty."

"Not more than seven hours sleep for the woman who wishes to preserve a good figure."

"Avoid excessive smoking and drinking to keep your complexion."

"Modern cosmetics are harmless and often refreshing."

Such are among the words of wisdom to women on the art of beautifying and retaining beauty issued by Dr. Cecil Webb-Johnson, famous British specialist on beauty, diet and obesity, in his latest book, entitled, "Women and Beauty."

Dr. Webb-Johnson has had a distinguished medical career covering every phase of the "general practitioner's studies, and did valuable war work in charge of military hospitals at home and abroad; is a specialist in midwifery, diseases of women and children; but has recently devoted himself more to diet and obesity, and is the fashionable "Beauty Doctor" of the moment. He has written numerous medical books, and is a composer of merit, having been responsible for numerous dances, songs and musical numbers.

IN FAVOR OF MARRIAGE.

In his latest work he early answers the question, "Does Marriage Make a Woman More Beautiful?" very definitely: "Undoubtedly, if the marriage is a happy one. Marriage is the natural end to a spinster's existence."

Emphasizing the need for a hobby and work, and careful dieting for women who want to attain to, or retain, beauty, Dr. Webb-Johnson warns against over-sleeping. "Seven hours' sleep is enough for anybody," he says, "and the ideal number of six. The woman who wishes to preserve a graceful figure should severely limit her hours of sleep, for fat slowly but surely creeps upon the sluggard and the lie-abed.

Dealing with women smokers and drinkers, he gives stern warning. "Because a woman is more unstable and less capable of self-control than a man, a woman smoker, as a rule, does not seem to know what moderation means, any more than a woman drinker. A male inebriate may sometimes be reclaimed, but a woman never. Heaven help the man whose wife becomes addicted to too many cigarettes. She in a short space of time becomes dirty and indigent, her home, normally her pride, is allowed to look after itself."

SHOWS DANGER PERIOD.

The "danger period" of marriage is dealt with by the writer, who quotes a table showing the number of divorces (in Britain) sought in 1922 at respective milestones in married life. They were:

Length of Marriage.	Divorces.
Under one year	15
Under two years	15
Between two and five years..	403
Five and under ten	403
Ten and under twenty	930
Twenty and upwards	328

"It is significant," he says, "that more divorced men than women remarry, the figures being 1,913 to 1,461 respectively.

Dr. Webb-Johnson remarks: "It is often a matter of wonder to the unprejudiced observer that the charm of poise is so often neglected by modern women. The art of deportment is a lost one. We may laugh at the blackboards of 'Miss Pinkerton's Academy for Young Ladies' in the Victorian era, but there is missing in the girls who lounge, slough, sprawl, put their elbows on the table and otherwise endeavor to disguise any natural grace they may possess. Restfulness is a trait that seems to have died out altogether in this hustling age. Dignity is a thing of the past, and nearly every woman you meet is afflicted with a fidgetness and nervousness that gives rise to all sorts of irritating mannerisms.

"Many young girls of the present day are neurotic, 'highly strung' and always blame their parents, though in the majority of cases they would like to do so. The cause of this condition is one they could fight and conquer themselves. 'Nerves'—how I hate that term—can be cured and conquered, provided the patient will co-operate with the doctor. Get rid of the poisons in the body and 'nerves' will disappear.

HEALTH REAL BEAUTY AID.

"Health and beauty go hand in hand," this expert continues. "The girl with the brilliant complexion, the naturally red mouth, the gleaming white teeth, the slim figure, the sparkling eyes, the glossy hair, the springy step, the upright carriage—with all, in fact, that constitutes beauty of the face and body—is simply a girl who has studied her health. She eats and drinks moderately and of the right things, she takes proper exercise and attends scrupulously to her body."

Dr. Webb-Johnson sees no harm in cosmetics. "Happily, there is little danger in the beautifyers sold nowadays," he says. "Most women use a harmless face powder, which refreshes and gives them a feeling of cleanliness. It also does the useful office of protecting the skin from the effects of atmospheric impurities."

REARED NINE ON WAGE OF $2.25

Gambling Profits At Monte Carlo

Once upon a time there was a man who won notoriety, to say nothing of envy, by "breaking the Bank at Monte Carlo."

But the "Bank" didn't collapse. It has got the "pieces" together again — and "then some."

The balance-sheet of the Monte Carlo Casino submitted to its general meeting on April 18 shows net profits amounting to sixty million francs.

This will represent about £650,000. It also represents over half the total receipts, which amounted for 1924 to 110,653,393 francs (about £1,200,000).

The receipt figures for the year 1923 were 99,442,233 francs (just over £1,000,000).

It is proposed to pay a dividend of 575 francs (£6 5s.) per share.

HOW TO KEEP FIT IN MIDDE AGE

"Suicide" by Living Too Well Denounced by Doctor

THREE-DAY FASTS

Early Hours and No Excitement Long Life Recipe

A man of fifty-five has no right to be bald, deaf, stiff in the muscles, with his teeth going, and varicose veins, declared the medical officer of health for Deptford, Dr. Charles S. Thomson, D.P.H., at the Nations' Food Exhibition, Olympia. The chronic bon viveur, the gay Lothario, the glutton, and wine-bibber who dies early is a suicide, he said.

"When we add to over-indulgence in food and drink the strain of social and business ambitions, worry, anger and grief, then our errors are followed by structural changes in our organs. The mad and ineffectual race for life becomes the triumphant race for death.

"Those who cut down their mistake after forty have a clear eye, a retentive memory, an elastic step, an unirritated brain, resilient and elastic arteries, and a green old age as their reward.

"Our whole life and well-being depend on the proper digestion of food, and we need thirty-two good teeth and thirty-two bites for each mouthful of food. A man should visit the dentist every six months if he wants to live long.

"Dinner at night is better than a full midday meal. Eat meat once a day only. Everybody over forty should take enough food to maintain the lightest weight consistent with perfect health. It is sheer nonsense for a man to think that at fifty-five he should weigh a stone more than he did at thirty.

"Never take alcohol before night, and take very little of it even then. Moderation in eating is imperative. Drink plenty of water between meals, fast for a day from time to time, and take a three-mile walk daily.

"Try a three-day fast at times.

"Take the French breakfast of coffee and a roll in place of the heavy English breakfast. Get away from that foolish idea of gorging to 'keep up your strength,' for over-eating ruins the strength.

"A man of forty-five or fifty should not indulge in the foolish afternoon tea with cake and bread-and-butter; take a cup of tea and nothing else. At the evening dinner, fish, fowl or game is better than veal, pork or roast beef. Fruit salad and savory cheese complete a good dinner. Eat nothing after 8 p.m. Such a diet will help a man to be middle-aged until seventy.

"Early hours, long sleeping nights, no excitement, the minimum of stimulants, change of scene and plain and simple diet must be the rule."

"AGONY" OF YEARS OVER UNPAID FARE

Conscience Money for Three Journeys Paid to Railway

In a letter to the general manager of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway a Doncaster man confesses that in 1879, when 20 years of age, he carried tools weighing nearly 60 pound on journeys between Wakefield and Bacup and between Wigan and Blackpool without paying excess fare.

He also rode on the brake van from Blackpool South Shore to Lytham and back without paying his fare, taking with him three packs weighing 70 pound.

Twenty-one years ago, he states, he made reparation in anonymous letters to the various superintendents, but he has not yet satisfied his conscience.

Three other journeys remain unaccounted for, and he declares that, despite the payments already made, he has "suffered great agony of mind," and desires to discharge the debt still remaining.

A recommendation has been made to the general manager that any further claims of the company should be waived.

Man ordered to pay 2s. 6d. at Birmingham for celebrating the Bank Holiday not wisely but too well: Most of my "mornings after" have cost more than this.

PLENTY OF CHANCE FOR YOUNG MEN

Lord Leverhulme's Advice to Those on Threshold of Life

"KEEP OUT OF RUTS"

Necessary Sacrifice Greater Because More Pleasure Opportunity

"I do not believe the pessimists who say that the young man has no chance today," said Lord Leverhulme in a presidential address to the Institute of Grocers at Scarborough.

"He has a better chance than ever, but the sacrifice necessary is one that is greater than ever before, for there are more opportunities for amusement and self-indulgence.

"What young men want for success is the practice of self-denial. Some people call it sacrifice to give up pleasure—perfectly legitimate pleasure, tennis, cricket, or a country walk—in order to qualify for service of the public. That is all it means, and that sacrifice is nothing.

"I have just come from the Congo, where I have been following much on the track of Livingstone and reading a great deal of what Livingstone had to say. I knew the hardships that Livingstone had, but I had none. It was a picnic to me, a yachting cruise.

"Livingstone had to depend on his rifle for his food. Yet I find that Livingstone stated: 'They talk about my sacrifices in coming out to Africa, but it has not been a sacrifice, it has been a privilege.' That is the right outlook to take on life.

"The great danger is getting into a rut. A rut is very like a grave, only longer. There is this difference: You can get out of the rut, but you cannot get out of the grave."

ANTI-VACCINATORS DEPRIVED OF DOLE

A number of employes of a Northampton firm who refused vaccination, on which the employers, in view of the prevalence of smallpox in the district, insisted, have been dismissed.

They have been refused unemployment pay on the ground that they have virtually discharged themselves.

MINISTER'S WIFE SENT TO JAIL

In the Oban Sheriff Court, Mrs. Mary Macfarlane, or Macpherson, of the United Free Church Manse, Craignure, Island of Mull, Argyllshire, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment on a charge of assaulting a girl, 16 years of age, when in her employment.

It was alleged that the girl had suffered from considerable bruising on various parts of her body, and that her mistress had broken a walking stick over her back.

DOCTORS NEEDED MORE THAN JAILS

Sentencing James Whitworth, aged 38, a laborer, who had been convicted as an incorrigible rogue, E. G. Hemmerde, K.C., the Recorder of Liverpool, said:

"When this country reaches a stage of civilization where medical cases are treated as medical cases, men like you will be so treated.

"I do not regard you as a criminal, but as an irresponsible person.

"In the present state of the law, I must sentence you to a year's imprisonment, with hard labor.

LICENCE REQUIRED TO OWN POP-GUN

A license is required for a popgun, said a solicitor at Hampstead Police Court, when Alexander Tiranti, of Maple street, St. Pancrass, was summoned for carrying a gun without a license.

The solicitor who appeared for the London County Council said that under the Gun License Act of 1870 a license was necessary for anything that could discharge a missile.

Tiranti had fired an air pistol at a tree on Hampstead Heath. For a similar offence he had been fined 5s. at the same court a few weeks before.

Mr. Lyell (the chairman) asked whether a license would be necessary for a pop-gun from which a cork attached to a string was discharged, and was told that it would, according to the Act.

The Bench dismissed the summons under the Probation of Offenders Act.

BISHOP'S IDEA OF FOOTBALL 'SLAVERY'

President of Southern League Replies "Arrant Nonsense"

A sermon by the Bishop of Peterborough (Dr. C. C. B. Bardsley), in which he spoke of footballers being "bought and sold almost like slaves," has met with a protest from the President of the Southern League, A. J. Darnell, of Northampton.

Preaching at a footballers' service at Leicester, the Bishop said he regretted the extension of professionalism to football, and added, "It has done an awful lot to ruin our games. I seem to see footballers bought and sold almost like slaves, and human machines trained as gladiators.

"It is the ruin of club patriotism. Football is too good a game to be spoiled."

"UNWARRANTED."

Mr. Darnell's reply is:

"Your statement that footballers are bought and sold like slaves is an unwarrantable assertion, and displays crass ignorance and an absolute want of knowledge of what is known as the transfer system.

"A player is a free agent. He can refuse or accept, as he thinks fit. He receives, if transferred, a substantial proportion of the transfer fee, and it invariably means his promotion to a higher class of football.

"Professional footballers receive between £6 and £8 a week all the year round, and to talk about slavery under such circumstances is arrant nonsense.

"I ask your lordship to believe and to recognize that the professional footballer loves the game he plays equally as much as the amateur, and that there is a great deal of cant and hypocrisy in those who continually boast and vaunt that they alone play for the love of the game."

RUNAWAY DIRIGIBLE SAFELY LANDED

Above is the first picture to reach this country showing the British airship R-33 when being towed by ground crews into its hangar at Pulham, Norfolk, after it had been buffeted about for twenty-eight hours over the North Sea. When first torn from its mooring mast, the R-33 carried away part of the steel structure and also four heavy artillery wheels used as mooring ballast. The fabric of its prow was so badly damaged that the giant airship would inevitably have been wrecked but for the prompt action of the young acting commander in at once having the crew haul in the damaged balloon cloth to make a temporary bulkhead. This prevented the gale from further damaging the interior of the dirigible and enabled the airship to ride out the storm and work its way back to its airport without calling for assistance from naval or ground agencies. The R-33, which is to blaze an air route from England to India, is a sister ship of the R-34, which made its round trip across the Atlantic, but which was later wrecked. The R-33, however, is but a small craft compared to the two new super-dirigibles being built in Bedfordshire for use on Empire air routes next year. Her commander was heartily praised for his skill in navigation.

INTEREST CHARGED AT 800 PER CENT

When Ellen Woods, a hawker, was fined £2 at Dublin for acting as a money-lender without being registered, it was stated that she used to lend to other women £1 for a week at interest which worked out at 800 per cent. a year.

TRAIN BREAKS IN TWO; THREE KILLED

A goods train broke in two on the L. and N. E. Railway at Hexthorpe, near Doncaster, and between 20 and 30 wagons ran backwards down a gradient and collided with a stationary mineral train.

Two guards and a fireman, who were in the last van of the runaway portion, were killed, and their companion, an engine driver, was injured.

It was alleged that the girl had suffered from considerable bruising on various parts of her body, and that her mistress had broken a walking stick over her back.

LAY PREACHER IN NOTTS HAS RECORD

For 88 years William Robinson has lived at No. 88 High street, Mansfield Woodhouse (Notts), the home of his father and grandfather.

He is the father of the Mansfield circuit of Primitive Methodism, which celebrates its centenary this year.

During his 70 years as a local preacher he has travelled 12,000 miles, chiefly on foot, and has delivered more than 5,000 sermons.

As the oldest local preacher, he will attend the May meetings of Notts District Synod at Mansfield. His name heads the list of 50 lay preachers in the Mansfield circuit.

BIG ENGINE ORDER PLACED BY CHILE

A contract for three big oil-burning Garratt "articulated" type of locomotives, 75 feet in length, and 170 tons in weight, has been awarded to a Manchester firm by the Nitrate Railways, Limited, Chile.

The locomotives are designed to haul 360-ton loads over a difficult 20-miles section, where there is a gradient of 1 in 25 and curves of 280 feet radius.

The firm has 35 locomotives of the same type in hand for various railways in all parts of the world.

MISSING PAISLEY CLIMBER FOUND

Partially covered with snow, the body of Alexander Lawson Henderson, an expert mountaineer, of Paisley, who had been missing for three weeks, has been found on Ben Achaarader, one of the highest mountains in Perthshire.

The discovery was made by Duncan Smith, who lives in a farm on the slopes of the mountain. The body was lying on an exposed crag, at an altitude of 3,000 feet.

Search parties had been scouring the district daily for over a fortnight without success.

WHO PAYS DAMAGE DONE BY MADMAN?

The problem of who should pay for a destructive lunatic whose activities cost £700 a year, was mentioned at a meeting of the Dublin Mental Hospital.

Two political prisoners became insane in England, and following the Treaty were transferred from an English criminal lunatic asylum to the Dublin Mental Hospital.

The Irish Prisons Board refused to pay for their maintenance, and the auditor refused to sanction the cost of the maintenance by the hospital. One of the men had become destructive.

It was decided to appeal to the Local Government Department.

COMEDY OF COCK FIGHTS IN IRELAND

Cockfighting, the popular Easter sport, was carried out on a large scale along the Ulster and Free State border, in spite of the police.

A number of inter-county contests had been fought at Ballinaman, between Glasslough and Middletown, in a field remote from the public road, when the Free State Civic Guard reached the scene. A stampede to Six County territory at once took place, and a few more battles had been decided there when the Royal Ulster Constabulary arrived and dispersed the gathering.

The crowd then retreated to the Free State area, but here again they were foiled by Civic Guards in motor-cars. All day the cockfighters played hide-and-seek about the border with the police.

BOUND DOWN.

Prosecuting his son-in-law at Birmingham, a man asked the stipendiary: "Can I have him bound down?"

VILLAGE OF GHOSTS IN WARWICKSHIRE

Mystery of Light That Dances on the Hills

JUGGLING SPECTRE

Hundreds of Holiday Makers Seek and Find Phenomenon

Fenny Compton, the Warwickshire "Village of Visions," which boasts that it has more ghosts than any other place, has been visited during Easter by record crowds of ghost-hunters.

The principal attraction is the dancing light of the Burton Dassett hills that shelter the village on the west. This ghostly light is now in full activity, darting with eerie swiftness from crest to crest and hollow to hollow all over the wide expanse of the hills.

Each night of the holidays hundreds of ghost-hunters were out seeking the dancing light, and scores report having seen it.

It appeared to some close at hand, a dull, yellow sphere, rather like a small Chinese lantern. Others saw it as a bright pin-point of light moving with an undulating motion, and with great rapidity, across the slopes of the hills.

The dancing light was first noticed three years ago, and has been more popular with ghost-hunters year by year. There are three theories of its origin.

One is that it is due to marsh gas generated in the lowlands about Fenny Compton and percolating through rock-fissures to the hills. Another is that it is a phosphorescent owl. The third is that it is due to wireless waves from the Birmingham broadcasting station striking sparks from the ironstone of which the hills are formed.

Before Fenny Compton discovered the dancing light it had no ghosts, but recently ghosts have appeared in every dark lane and in every barn that looks deserted. Families have their own private ghosts.

There are thirteen reputed spectres. They include ghosts that walk, ghosts that cry aloud, ghosts that clank and moan, and one that is said to juggle with crockery.

BOY KILLED IN GUN ACCIDENT

A fatal gun accident was the outcome of the mountain climbing expedition of some boys from Roman Bridge, in Lledr Valley, North Wales.

They ascended a mountain called Moel Siabod, between Roman Bridge and Capel Curig, looking for foxes.

One boy surreptitiously took his father's gun with him. The boys had reached a spot high up the mountain and the loaded gun was being carried by another lad of 14, when, owing to his slipping, it was accidentally fired and Collwyn Williams, age 16, of Garnedd Farm, was shot in the leg.

Some time elapsed before help could be obtained and the injured boy carried to his home. His condition was by that time hopeless, and he died later.

Secret River in Crystal Caves is Found in Yorkshire

A romance of a wonderful discovery by two young students on a lonely moor lies behind the announcement that a great cavern system has been opened up at Ingleton, in the Yorkshire hills.

The two men, Christopher Long and John Churchill, were spending a holiday among the hills, and happened one morning to survey the rugged slope of the great Ingleborough Mountain through their field glasses. They saw, half-hidden among the bracken, a narrow slit in the rock. They blasted away a couple of thousand tons of limestone, and in the heart of the mountain discovered a roaring river passing through crystal caves.

In lofty chambers, curtained with stalactites of orange and white crystal, are cascades of clear water, which have splashed down for countless ages. At one point the river bed widens out and forms a long subterranean lake. This portion is not yet opened up, but excavation is being carried on by Mr. ried on by Mr. Churchill.

This underground fairyland will be named the White Scar Cavern.

LEAVES £1,000 FOR RECREATION FIELD

George F. H. Gardner, of Grassington, Yorks, accountant, Bradford, whose estate is valued at £16,399, left £1,000 to Grassington Town Hall Extension Fund for a playing field.

The ultimate residue for such charities as he may by letter direct. A letter dated April 2, 1924, is attached to the will, but no charities are named.

NO BUYER FOR FOUR STEAMERS

Four of the famous Thames Belle steamers, that were put up for auction at the Baltic Exchange, were withdrawn after only one bid of £16,000.

The four steamers were: Southend Belle, Yarmouth Belle, Clacton Belle and Walton Belle, and they are from 27 to 35 years old.

They were put up in one lot under instructions from the mortgagees.

After the first offer of £16,000, no other bid was made, and the auctioneer announced that he must withdraw the ships.

ROMAN URN UNDER OLD POST OFFICE

Excavations on the site of the old Post Office at St. Martin-le-Grand have brought to light more relics of the Roman occupation.

Among the pieces of pottery and iron of which the "find" chiefly consists is a Roman burial urn in a fairly good state of preservation.

Relics of London at a later day are fragments of fourteenth century pottery.

These antiquarian treasures are at present the property of the Postmaster-General, but they will probably find their way into the Guildhall Museum.

THOUSANDS MARCH AS SILENT PROTEST

A great procession organized as a protest against the growing secular observance of Good Friday drew thousands of spectators in the streets of Swansea.

It was "a procession of witness," instituted, for the first time, by the Bishop of Swansea and Brecon.

All the Anglican churches of the borough took part, and several thousands of men and women, led by the clergy and choristers in white surplices and headed by a Salvation Army band, marched through the principal streets to Swansea Parish Church, where the Bishop preached at the evening service.

SWALLOWS SIX PINS FOR FIVE SHILLINGS

Driven by poverty to win a bet of 5s. by swallowing six safety pins—four closed and two open—a 20-year-old clerk was admitted at the Royal Northern Hospital, where, under X-ray examination, the pins were seen and he was advised that an operation was urgently necessary.

Twice he was prepared for the operation, but each time he decided at the last minute to postpone it. Yesterday he left the hospital with the pins still inside him.

He had no fixed abode, and at the hospital a press representative was informed that he would soon be compelled to seek surgical aid.

RARE OLD VOLUME LOST AND FOUND

How a valuable 18th century book was lost and found again was described by Sir D'Arcy Power in a lecture at the Royal British Nurses' Association, Queen's Gate.

Sir D'Arcy, who is consulting surgeon to St. Bartholomew's Hospital, was lecturing on John Hunter, the great 18th cenutry surgeon and anatomist, and he mentioned that, in February last, when looking over proofs of a life of Sir William Osler, he came across a passage in which Sir William expressed regret at having missed at a sale an illustrated edition of a work by Jesse Foot, a contemporary of Hunter.

This work, which consisted of two huge volumes so heavy that he could scarcely lift them, Sir D'Arcy traced to a West End firm.

It contained a collection of contemporary portraits of John Hunter, but re-productions of these, shown during the lecture, revealed that they were mainly caricatures of the famous surgeon.

The work threw an interesting light on Hunter and his times, and it was hoped to publish it some day.

Sir D'Arcy recalled that Hunter had a habit of driving a cart drawn by two buffaloes down Piccadilly. "You will conclude," he added, "that traffic conditions were not quite what they are now."

ROBINSON CRUSOE, OF FENS, ONCE DROVE THE CANADIAN MAIL

Hermit of 71, Lives With 38 Cats in Woods—Recalls Exciting Job in Sixties Running from Winnipeg to Quebec

In the heart of the desolate Cambridgeshire Fens lives a world wanderer, who now, at the age of 71, is leading the simple life with, as companions, no fewer than 38 cats.

The hermit, William Adams, a grandson of the late Sir John Adams, of Stonham Aspnall, Suffolk, has had a varied and adventurous career. He has been:—

University undergraduate, rag and bone collector, sweep, steeplejack, big game shot, explorer, sailor, and driver of the Canadian overland mail.

His 38 cats are all descendants of two kittens given him by an old man in Persia.

The Hermit's residence, "Marshland's Hall," which is set in a sylvan glade under the shadow of giant elms, is not quite as big as a good-sized fowls'-house.

As it is constructed of the trunks and branches of living trees, however, there is every possibility of expansion!

Mr. Adams is a venerable old man, whose rugged countenance and lithe, sinewy figure is testimony to the Spartan and adventurous life he has led.

He is the omnipotent ruler of a tribe of nearly 40 cats, all members of the renowned family of "Tinker."

His own needs are few, and Dame Nature is a bountiful provider. On the wild fens are duck, rabbits and fish, and a score of edible herbs and weeds.

MIXED MENU.

When I visited the Hermit today he was sitting outside his residence, in the sunlight, enjoying an epicure's repast. I was invited to try a dish of steaming "bramble-shoot soup," and very palatable it proved to be. Our next course was stewed rabbit with boiled stinging-nettles and potatoes for vegetables. Then came an omelette of blackbird's and thrush's eggs, and finally some black coffee, made from baked and grated dandelion roots. The tops of this weed Mr. Adams uses for salads.

"Plenty of vitamines in these weeds," said the Hermit as he lit a long church-warden clay pipe. "But the correct method of cooking them is the secret of success.

"Of course my cats have to have meat. Every week I walk eight miles to the nearest butcher's shop to get their supplies.

"My meat bill for them comes to about £1 a week.

"But if you want to win prizes with them you must look after them."

"ROOSTERS."

"Look up there," said the Hermit, pointing to the branches of one of the big elms.

The cats were there all right; black cats, white cats, big cats, little cats, fat cats and lean cats; they sat in uncanny silence on the branches, some of sinister aspect.

"Puss, puss," I said, in my ignorance, and stood up to stroke one which was just within reach.

In a flash the tribe of "Tinker" had disappeared, some sliding to the ground down the branches, and others climbing to the topmost twigs, with the agility of squirrels.

The Hermit laughed. "You wouldn't call a puma or tiger if you wanted it to come to you," he said. "These cats are as wild as either. I can do anything with them, if no strangers are about, but I'm the only thing on this earth they will acknowledge as master."

When I gazed around, casting an eye along the hedgerows, I saw yellow, glassy, sinister eyes fixed upon me.

HISTORY OF LIFE.

"I have been a university undergraduate and a rag and bone collector," continued Mr. Adams. "A sweep and a big-game shot. An explorer and a common sailor on a wind-jammer; a steeplejack and driver of the Canadian overland mail, a navvy and a gardener.

"I was born at Stonham Aspnall, near Ipswich, my grandfather being Sir John Adams. My father was disinherited because he married a servant girl.

"He became a globe-trotter, and I suppose I inherited his instincts, for after three years at King's College, Cambridge, I decided on a life of adventure.

"I obtained a job with a steeplejack at Sowerby Bridge, Yorkshire, and helped to build what I believe is now the highest chimney-stack in England.

"But there weren't enough thrills in 'steeplejacking' for my liking; and I 'stowed away' on a vessel bound for Bombay.

I had sufficient money in my pocket to purchase an antiquated Snider muzzle-loading rifle, a muzzle-loading shot-gun, ammunition and blankets, and with this outfit I wandered over Asia on foot.

"I travelled through Peshawar, from Kabul to Kandahar, through Afghanistan, and into Tibet and Persia.

"There an old Persian gave me two kittens, which I called 'Torty' and 'Sweepie,' and gave them the surname of 'Tinker.'

"All the cats I have at present are their descendants.

"Later I went to China, entering the great gate of Pekin blindfold, the custom in regard to strangers 50 years ago.

"During the following years I 'tramped' through Russia, Turkey, Austria, Italy, France, Belgium and Holland, my sole outfit consisting of my rifle, shotgun, ammunition and blankets, and always two kittens, the descendants of 'Torby' and Sweepie,' in my pockets. They brought me luck wherever I went.

"DEAD MAN'S SHOES."

"In 1865 I went to Canada, arriving in Winnipeg on a Sunday morning.

"On going into a beershop I fell over a dead man. He was the driver of the overland mail between Winnipeg and Quebec, and that morning the mail had been attacked by Indians, who shot him through the head.

"I was asked to step into the dead man's shoes, which I did, and for four years I wore them. It was an exciting life. I was wounded on seven occasions.

"This is where a soft-nose bullet hit me," said Mr. Adams, showing me a scar in his calf. "Had not my horse, 'Black Knight,' leapt a chasm 15 feet across, with a 200-feet drop below, I should have been killed."

The Hermit showed the prizes won by his cats at several London exhibitions, including four "firsts" and the "champion" at Kensington last year.

Finally he produced his "Book of the Dead," in which are set out a record of the deaths of nearly 300 cats.

As I bade farewell to the Hermit he spoke of life's ups and downs.

"The biggest contrast I ever had," he said, "was when I had to sweep the chimney of my rooms at King's College, 30 years after I had left the 'Varsity.

I left him stewing six sheeps' heads for his family, at peace with the world at large and—his cats.

AUSTRALIAN MADE VICTIM OF TRICK

Two Strangers Relieve Visitor of £1,000 in Cash

The confidence trick in an old and familiar guise yielded a haul of £1,000 from a Colonial visitor to London.

He is Joseph C. Kershaw, of Sydney, Australia, who was staying at a West End hotel. The tricksters were two men who purported to be foreigners. One of them made Mr. Kershaw's acquaintance a few days ago in the neighborhood of Victoria Station. He dropped a rosary which Mr. Kershaw picked up and restored to him.

The stranger was profuse in his thanks, and the acquaintance thus made was developed tactfully until the time came when the devout owner of the rosary unfolded a story of having been left a fortune by a relative on the condition that he gave a percentage of it to hospitals. He explained that a clause of the will provided that whover assisted him in the disposal of the funds to the various charities should be suitably rewarded.

Eventually a second stranger appeared on the scene, and finally Mr. Kershaw was induced to part with eight £100 notes and four £50 notes.

When Mr. Kershaw realized that he had been victimized he reported the incident to the Gerald Road Police Station. The police have a detailed description of the men, but so far no arrest has been made.

They have reason to believe that the two men are the same as have practised the trick successfully several times recently, but have been out of England for a week or two.

WOMEN WHO EARN $50,000 A YEAR

"Women are occupying managerial positions in large commercial houses in the United States at salaries of $50,000 a year," said Sir Charles Higham, when he arrived at Southampton from New York.

He added that one young woman who received $10,000 a year was a buyer of motor-car parts.

"The feminist movement in the United States," said Sir Charles, "is far in advance of the movement in England."

BODY AS SHIELD IN MINE DISASTER

Heroic Official Kept Tons of Rock Off Trapped Man

By using his own body as a shield against falling stones, a pit official rescued a man who had been trapped in the Hickleton Main Colliery, Rotherham.

Two men were buried by a fall of more than 100 tons.

"Get old Bill out. I'm all right," were the words of John Thornley, aged 62, who died from his injuries.

At an inquest the coroner, jury and the Yorkshire Miners' Association representatives joined in warm praise of the gallantry of the rescuers, who were in great danger the whole time.

A deputy named Cornish, of Thurnscoe, was the first on the scene, and while dragging Thornley's companion further falls occurred. Cornish shielded the man with his own body.

Cornish stated that he was holding off about ten tons when the others came to his help.

The coroner said he and the jury were satisfied that every reasonable precaution had been taken against falls. Accidental death was the verdict.

RECORD PRICE FOR DECORATED LID

The record price of £25 for a painted pot lid was twice exceeded at a sale in London.

Two small lids, measuring three inches across, one entitled "Lady Brushing Her Hair," and the other "The Spanish Lady," brought £28 and £31, both being purchased by Mr. Etheridge.

Twenty-five lids were sold for a total of £196 15s.

FIRE STARTED BY BOYISH PRANK

The fire brigade turned out to extinguish a fire in a boot shop in Argyle street, Glasgow. The fire was started by the window blind catching fire.

It is stated that two boys had a magnifying glass with which, with the aid of spasmodic sunshine, they set fire to the blind. They bolted after they realized the extent of their prank.

WALTER JOHNSON BLANKS WHITE SOX, AND ATHLETICS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT FROM SPEAKER'S TEAM

Johnson in Great Form Registers 108th Shut-out of His Career.

TYGERS DEFEATED

Yankees Used Six Pitchers and Were Walloped by St. Louis.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The veteran Walter Johnson held Chicago to five hits today, while Washington bunched its hits and shut out the locals, 9 to 0. It was Johnson's 108th shut out of his major league career of 18 years. By fanning four men he ran his strikeout record for his term in the major leagues to 3,232. Johnson pitched a great game, only two Chicagoans getting as far as second base and one beyond that station. Score:

BILLY EVANS SAYS

MUST BE HITTERS.

How times have changed!

In the old days catchers, like pitchers, weren't expected to be able to clout the ball. Like their battery mates they were defensive cogs in the machinery for the most part.

But things are different now. Catchers must be hitters. No longer are they sure of their jobs on their efforts behind the plate alone. They must be able to swat the agate, too.

Scan the list of catchers in the majors today and you'll find that the majority of them can hit. Those that are weak clubbers are the exception.

* * *

No longer does an opposing hurler figure he has an easy mark when the catcher steps into the batting station.

* * *

ALL CAN CLOUT.

Take the American League, for instance. There is Johnny Bassler of the Tygers. Bassler hit .346 last year. He finished sixth among the players participating in 100 games or over. A splendid record, indeed.

Then there is Glenn Myatt of the Indians. Myatt turned in a mark of .342 in his second season since coming back from the American Association.

Also there are Wally Schang of the Yankees; Hank Severeid, Browns; Cy Perkins, Athletics; Muddy Ruel, Washington, and Larry Woodall of the Tygers. All good hitters, dangerous at all times.

In the National League one finds real clouters among the backstops in Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs; Henline, Phillies, Gowdy and Snyder, Giants; Gibson, Braves; Hargrave, Cincinnati, and so on.

* * *

Each is feared by enemy moundsmen whenever he steps to the plate.

* * *

GET AWAY NICELY.

In the early days of the present season most all of these great hitting catchers have lived up to past performances. Fact is, that one of them—Hartnett—has been the big sensation in the National League.

The Cub receiver has gained quite a bit of prominence by his ability to bag homers. During the first week or so of play he laced out six circuit wallops. Since then he has added a few more, leading the majors at present by a considerable margin.

Myatt, too, has displayed a real penchant for cracking the offerings of opposing pitchers for round-trippers. And so have some of the other men behind the plate.

* * *

Among the newcomers, Gordon Cochrane of the Athletics, has showed that he can bust 'em. He hit .333 with Portland in the Pacific Coast League last year.

* * *

HIGHER ON LIST.

Another thing, too. You'll notice that many big league managers are now placing their catchers higher up in the batting order. A few have even been used in the clean-up position.

In the old days a catcher usually hit next to last. He was down among the weak clubbers on the team, along with the other soft marks. A good hitting catcher was rather out of the ordinary then.

But things are far different now. And a big league receiver is looked upon in a much different light from an offensive standpoint. He's no longer figured "out" before he goes to the plate.

* * *

Yes, catchers occupy a somewhat different role in the majors nowadays. They must be hitters as a general rule.

JOHN P. QUINN
Boston Red Sox
Right-Handed Pitcher

Born—Hazleton, Pa., July 5, 1885.

Major League Career—Drafted by New York Yankees from Richmond, Virginia League, in 1909. Released to Rochester, International League, in 1912. Sold to Boston Braves following season. Ignored Boston reserve and signed with Baltimore Federals in 1914. Sent to Vernon, Pacific Coast League, under peace agreement in 1916. Pacific Coast League suspended season on account of World War in 1918 and Quinn finished campaign with Chicago White Sox by permission. Claimed by White Sox and Yankees following year and awarded to latter. Traded to Red Sox in 1922.

Outstanding Feats—Won 12 games and lost 13 with seventh-place club in 1924. Has been in one world series. Has pitched in over 40 games in each of the last three seasons.

LACROSSE WORKOUT.

Saturday Practice at Central Park Well Attended.

The lacrosse players around the city, and there are a bunch of them, had a workout of Central Park Saturday afternoon. The squad was formed of boys who have learned the game down around Havelock and Campbellford way and some who have picked up the game locally, also there were a few veterans who are still stout of lung and limb. All were in fine fettle and galloped around the park passing smoothly.

A junior team will be sent to the tournament at Campbellford for the Sports Day there on May 24.

If the players will only turn out there isn't a doubt that the blue and white couud have an intermediate lacrosse team that would show their heels to any in the province and gain for Peterborough the same rank in lacrosse that it now bears in hockey and so regain the old honour we used to have locally for Canada's national game.

Practices are held Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Central Park. So come out then and you will always find company.

GORDON AND PHELAN CUP DRAW; SENIOR AND JUNIOR GOALSCORERS

Campbellford Go to Warsaw, But Have Thistle at Home on Victoria Day.

REFEREES APPOINTED

Every year the G. N. Gordon Cup is becoming more interesting through the inclusion of the Juniors into the series, also the amalgamation of Dummer and Warsaw for this competition, as Warsaw United. They were granted permission to do so by the Senior executive. Most likely, Campbellford will place a strong team into the series. Last year the Thistle won this cup and Vets the previous season.

The Juniors notified the executive board that the entry fee for the Gordon Cup was too heavy, and a letter was read dealing with the subject, but the fee is fixed according to by-laws passed at the general meeting, which cannot be altered.

Draw for the Cup proper resulted as follows:

First Round.—Quakers vs. Canadian Woollens. Referee, Mr. Rickard.

Semi-Final.—Warsaw vs. Campbellford; Thistle vs. Quakers or Canadian Woollens.

First round to be played on May 30 at the Oval. Kick-off at 3 o'clock.

Phelan Cup Draw.

Result of the Father Phelan Cup Charity Cup resulted as follows:

Quakers vs. Canadian Woollens; Campbellford vs. Thistle.

The Thistle will have to travel to Campbellford on Victoria Day, May 25.

W. Rickard will referee in Campbellford, and J. C. Russel in the city.

Senior League game at the Oval on Saturday afternoon is between Quakers and Canadian Woollens. Kick-off at 3 p.m. Referee, J. C. Russell.

There will be no Senior League games played on King Edward Park until the goal-post on the west end of the pitch is fixed and put in proper order.

John Hodgson, a signed player for Canadian Woollens has to appear before the board next Monday evening and explain his action in recent games.

All Quaker Oats and Thistle players will practice tonight on King Edward Park.

A special meeting of the Thistle will be held on Wednesday evening in Sutherland's Store, Simcoe Street, at 7.30 p.m.

Two points for a win and one for a draw.

Dummer vs. C.P.C. at Dummer on Saturday. Sam Calladine, referee. Cars leaves the plant at 1.45 p.m.

On King Edward ark, De Laval vs. Masseys, in Junior game, at 3 o'clock. Referee, Frank McKinley, King Edward Park.

At 2 o'clock, the Juvenile League opens on Saturday afternoon, between Canadian Woollens and De Laval. Referee, W. Downer.

Johnny Ward's Young Vets will practice on Friday evening at King Edward Park. All the boys are sons of war veterans.

Warsaw has unearthed a great goal keeper. So, city boys, you can depend on a sterling display.

Canadian Woollens players are requested to attend practice game at the Oval on Thursday evening at six o'clock.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The utmost in reach in the back swing is accomplished not by reaching far back with the arms, so that the club dips down beyond the horizontal, but by twisting the shoulders to the right. after the club has attained the horizontal position across the shoulders. The long driver regulates his distances with this shoulder twist. Also, when the club is dipped down, at the top of the back swing, the grip must be loosened since it is hardly possible to go so far back with the club and at the same time maintain the grip, which should be firm at the top. The golfer should never have to pull the club back up to a horizontal position before starting it downward. That is usually fatal to timing. Stop it at the horizontal, then go on around with the shoulders.

BASEBALL SIMPLIFIED

What is the status of a play in which the umpire is hit by a thrown ball and does it make any difference whether it is in fair or foul territory?

The umpire is supposed to never lose sight of the ball. If he constantly follows the course of the ball it is usually an easy matter for him to avoid being hit. However, there are times when such a thing happens.

When it does, the ball is always in play and the runner or runners shall be entitled to make all the bases they can, advancing at their peril.

In some quarters the impression exists that the ball becomes dead. This is erroneous. A number of years ago that was the ruling. In some cases a smart player, seeing a play was impossible purposely threw the ball at the umpire, hoping to make the ball dead, thereby preventing the advancemnt of the baserunners.

Now it makes no difference how the umpire is hit by a thrown ball, whether on fair or foul territory. The umpire is supposed to avoid the ball. If he fails, it simply continues in play and the runner or runners advance at their peril.

BASEBALL STARTS.

Lakefield Has Good Team, But Support of Fans is Needed.

LAKEFIELD, May 11. — The baseball season is at hand and within a couple of weeks, at least, the local team will enter the league in the annual contest for the honors of East Peterborough. The village has a good team from which much may be expected but something is needed from local fans also. For the past two years the lack of local support has been a handicap to the baseball team. A little real interest in the home team will assist materially in winning games and bringing honor to the village.

SKEETERS SLUG LEAF PITCHERS

Twenty Hits Off Toronto Day's Collection for Jersey City.

BALTIMORE WIN

TORONTO, May 11—Jersey City defeated Toronto here today by 12 to 4, due to the ineffectiveness of Pitchers Gibson and Johnson, who failed to hold the slugging Skeeters. Jacobson of Jersey City hit a homer in the first inning with one on. The score:

Jersey City ....000048000—12 10 0
Toronto.... ....210000010— 4 9 1

Faulkner and Freitag; Gibson, Johnson, Englishman and Manion.

Buffalo, 10; Reading, 7.

BUFFALO, N.Y., May 11.—Buffalo won today from Reading by 10 to 7, but if the Keystones had produced good pitching to start with, the story might have been different, for they hit fully as well as the Bisons, coming strong in their last inning. Hyman displayed the best form, but he came too late to save the day. Billy Kelly knocked a homer in the second. Silva also poked out a four-bagger in the ninth with two on bases. Score:

Reading.... ....010200013— 7 10 1
Buffalo.... ....612000100x—10 0 2

Zubris, Daileyl, Hyman, Smallwood and Lynn; Proffitt and McAvoy.

Baltimore, 5; Syracuse, 3.

SYRACUSE, May 11.—Long distance hitting featured Baltimore's victory over Syracuse today by a score of 5 to 3. Three of the visitors' runs were homers, two by Roser and one by Cobb. Grabowski started for Syracuse and lasted two innings. Syracuse pounded Jackson hard and he gave way to Thomas in the fifth. Score:

Baltimore ....310001000— 5 8 2
Syracuse ....001110000— 3 10 0

Jackson, Thomas and Cobb; Grabowski, Reinhart and McKee.

Rechester, 9; Newark, 5.

ROCHESTER, May 11. — The Rochester tribe won the opening game of the series from the Newark Bears here today by the score of 9 to 5. Catcher Head of the Tribe started the rally in the seventh inning with a home run and also hit a double in the same frame. Score:

Newark.... ....012000020— 5 13 4
Rochester ....01020050x— 9 10 2

Tomlin, Gordy, Brahme and Styles; Karpp and Head.

HOW FAST IS GOLF BALL?

Aeroplane Would Leave it Far Behind in Its Flight.

WASHINGTON, May 12. — A golf ball, as driven by an expert golfer, travels at the rate of 250 feet per second or more than twice the speed of an express train.

But the speediest airplanes today, with a speed of 370 feet per second, would leave the golf ball far behind.

A tennis ball leaves the racket after a hard blow at the rate of 120 feet a second. It this speed were maintained the ball would travel 82 miles an hour.

The speed of a rifle bullet is far greater than any of these. It travels 2,200 feet a second, or 1,500 miles an hour.

SCHOOL GIRLS PLAY SOFTBALL

Schedule of Games For Public School League—In Two Groups.

The Public schools have drawn up their schedule for inter-school girls' softball games. Each school has a team and the six schools are dividing into two groups comprising three of the nearest schools. The group winners will play off on neutral grounds on June 8 and in the event of a tie in either or both groups, the respective winner will be declared by a game on neutral grounds June 4.

Last year the teams were all evenly matched and every single game was keenly contested. The King George school finally emerged champions and won the cup.

These girls' games, along with hard-played boys' games give the Public school youngsters and people a great deal of sport and real fun.

The season is opened on Wednesday afternoon with a game at the King Edward grounds, Prince of Wales being the opposition to the south-enders.

SCHEDULE.
Group I.

May 13 — Prince of Wales vs. King Edward.
May 15—King Edward vs. Queen Mary.
May 18—Queen Mary vs. Prince of Wales.
May 21—King Edward vs. Prince of Wales.
May 26—Queen Mary vs. King Edward.
May 28— Prince of Wales vs. Queen Mary.

Group II.

May 15— Queen Alexandra vs. Central.
May 18—King George vs. Queen Alexandra.
May 20 — Central vs. King George.
May 22—Central vs. Queen Alexandra.
May 29— Queen Alexandra vs. King George.
June 1—King George vs. Central.

In each group the last named team is the home team and the game will be played on their grounds and they must secure all the officials.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Halifax, N.S., May 7, 1925.
Editor, The Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir.—In a letter dated April 6 appearing in several Canadian papers, W. O. Sealey of Hamilton, Ontario, states that if the 1,400,000 cords of pulpwood now being exported were manufactured in Canada, it would distribute $90,000,000.00 in wages instead of nothing.

The total salaries and wages paid by the entire pulp and paper industry in Canada in 1923 were only $38,380,000.00 for a wood consumption of 3,270,000 cords. It is evident, therefore, that the manufacture of 1,400,000 cords would mean a wage distribution of only about $16,800,000.00.

This is the third occasion within the last few weeks in which this same correspondent has made use of figures in connection with this question that are so glaringly inaccurate as to indicate either a total lack of knowledge of the subject or the grossest sort of attempt at deliberate misrepresentation.

You will find the authority for my figures in the latest Blue Book of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics., Forest Products Branch, published January 12, 1925.

Very truly yours,
Canadian Pulpwood Association,
Ralph P. Bell,
Vice-President and Acting Manager.

RURAL CHURCHES HONOR MOTHERS

Rev. Harold Young of Peterboro Conducted Service at Cavan.

OTHER CHURCHES

CAVAN, May 11—Mother's Day was observed in the church here on Sunday when the Rev. H. Young of George Street Methodist Church, Peterboro, conducted the service at 2.30. There was a very large congregation, the church being filled to the doors.

Marmora Service

MARMORA, May 11—The prescribed form of service for Mother's Day was followed at the Methodist Church Sunday afternoon in addition to which Mr. M. W. Lester sang "Little Mother of Mine," and Mr. J. F. Baker, Secretary of the Marmora and Rawdon Townships, Sunday School Association gave a splendid address on "O. R. E. C." showing the part expected of each school and each member by the Ontario Religious Educational Council.

At Warkworth

WARKWORTH, May 11—Mother's Day was observed Sunday morning in the Methodist Church. Owing to the absence of the pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp the entire service was in charge of the Sunday School, Mr. P. S. Ewing, superintendent, being the leader. The programme which is especially printed for Mother's Day was carried out as nearly as possible. Recitation, Somebody's Mother, was given by Miss Ina Bowen and also a reading on Mother's Day by Miss Mary Phillips were very interesting and appropriate. The address was given by the leader, Mr. P. S. Ewing. In the address Mr. Ewing told how Mother's Day happened to be observed and he also gave good advice to boys and girls as to obedience and love and all that is best to one's mother. Solos by Mrs. Gray and Wm. Snooker were much appreciated.

Mothers Form Choir

NORHAM, May 11—The Mother's Day service held in Methodist church Sunday night was well attended. There were people present from Oak Heights, Meyersburg, Codrington, Morganston and Warkworth. A choir of fifteen mothers did the singing. Two mothers offered prayer while another read the scripture lesson. Two mothers acted as ushers; two took up the offering, while three others gave out the hymns. The church was nicely decorated with flowers and white and red flowers were supplied at the door for those to wear who came without any.

BEIRUT, Syria, May 12.—The old slave market is not yet extinct here. Recently a girl of 15 was offered for sale in the public square.

DUFFERIN PARK BOYS TRY OUT

Practice Three Nights a Week—Choose Team on Friday.

McMAHON LEADS.

Manager McMahon had a busy evening yesterday putting the East City Cubs and his Junior Hillcrests through a strenuous practice.

The Cubs, composed of pupils of the Immaculate Conception School, will line up as follows: Pitchers, Guerin and Leahy; catchers, O'Rourke; 1st base, Collins; 2nd base, Leahy; shortstops, Murdock and O'Dette; 3rd base, McCarthy; outfield, McMahon, Guerin, Meagher, Leonard, Huard.

Captain Bernard McMahon would like to arrange a game with any school in the city.

The Junior team is working hard three nights a week. The next practices will be on Wednesday and Friday evenings at Dufferin Park. Every boy in the city under 20 is invited to come and try out. The team will be picked on Friday night.

McKenna Duties on Automobiles May Be Imposed on June 1st.

LONDON, May 12. — Automobiles are being shipped into Great Britain from the United States at the rate of one thousand a day as a result of the impending reimposition of the McKenna duties, which places a tax of 33 per cent. on foreign cars or parts.

The Baldwin government's budget, which reimposes the protective measures for the British automobile industry, fixed July 1st as the date for the tax to become effective, but the cabinet has become alarmed because of the unprecedented dumping of automobiles into all British ports, and it is understood in all British business circles, although not yet announced to the general public that the reimposed duty will become effective on June 1st.

HINDENBURG SEEKS PEACEFUL GERMANY

He Wants the Recognition That is Due From Other Nations.

BERLIN, May 12. — (Canadian Press).—In a manifesto to the German people this afternoon, President Von Hindenburg said: "True to the oath, I will devote all my energies to guarding the constitution and laws. Let us strive through honest peaceful work to gain the recognition of other nations to which we are entitled and to free the German name from the unjust strain which still lies on it to-day."

The President said that his office did not belong to one clan, one religious persuasion or one party alone but to the people in its entirety."

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

GREAT BOY ACTOR IN "FIGHTING THE FLAMES" AT ROYAL THURSDAY.

Frankie Darrow, the Baby Barrymore of the screen, does the most notable work of his screen career in "Fighting the Flames." He plays a ragged street urchin, who becomes the "pal" of the heroic young fireman. "Fighting the Flames" is as clean as a whistle, and the children should be sent to see it for—well, if nothing else, the lesson in manliness they will get out of it.

MARY PICKFORD IN "DOROTHY VERNON OF HADDON HALL" SUPERB!

"Our Mary" was superb as Dorothy Vernon—this little woman of the golden locks—the same that filmdom has learned to love—a Mary with added histronic ability, rides a horse along a wall to rescue her lover in a manner that even the most blase unloose their hands and add to the rounds of applause. To our mind in that ride she gives her spectators more thrills than any flood or mob scenes in the so-called classics.

This production deserves a far better pen than mine to do it justice. It is a long time since I sat through a picture and experienced a vision of beauty every minute. Yes, every minute a beautiful picture, consistently acted, superbly photographed with settings and costumes appropriate and convincing. As for the story, if it lacks in greatness it makes up in romance, and romance is the thing. All the world loves a lover. All the world loves a sweetheart.

MORAL CONTAINED IN NEW FOX FILM, "FOLLY OF VANITY."

Men Will Appreciate It and Tell Their Wives to See It.

A GLORIOUS FANTASY.

Neptune's Court and Beautiful Undersea Caverns Depicted.

A moral that will be appreciated by the men folks of this community and that will be of great interest to the women, is contained in the William Fox picture, "Folly of Vanity," featuring Betty Blythe, which opened at the Regent Theatre last night for a run of 3 days.

As the title implies this remarkably interesting dramatic fantasy depicts the folly of Vanity and the dangers that lurk in the surrendering to the feeling. It shows in a new and clever way how a dream solved the problem for one perplexed husband when everything else had failed.

A young married couple have their first difficulty when the wife gives in to a desire for adornment by purchasing a string of imitation pearls and insisting upon wearing them at a dinner given by a man known to be a connoisseur in jewels and the possessor of a celebrated pearl necklace.

The cheapness of the young wife's string is detected by the host who sees in the girl a possible conquest through her vanity. He prevails upon her to wear his real pearls to restore their luster and return them on a yachting trip scheduled a few days later. No one is to know of the transaction.

AT THE CAPITOL

"DECLASSE."

Corinne Griffith is the lovely, appealing heroine of "Declasse," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week. It is a romance of high life, with the heroine in Lady Helen Haden, a London society light who becomes involved in an unfortunate love affair, drifts into the divorce court and finally lands in New York, down and out financially, "declasse" to her former associates, an outcast from the life she loves.

The beautiful Corinne makes a splendid central figure for a story of this type. It is the sort of thing that the audience follows with breathless attention and then talks about all the way home. They take a real personal interest in the lovely lady and her woes, and discuss her ups and downs as they wend a homeward way. She is the sort of heroine who appeals to young and old alike. Her gowns are beautiful, her grace and charm fill the picture at all times and her story is one of those pathetic affairs where a young, beautiful woman is married to a husband, who, while showering her with jewels and wonderful gowns with luxuries of every sort, still fails to appreciate her at her true value. It is the story of a woman who "seeks her soul," an excellent example of the type of modern woman who marries a man for his wealth, and then decides in favor of a humbler lover and throws home and husband and position to the winds.

The only bleak spot in the Lady Helen's sacrificial career was the fact that the young Thayer on whom she set her attention proved to be rather a weakling. Ignorant of the fact that his lady love might be in difficulties after the discovery of their love affair, which was really a rather innocent event, he flies to South Africa. In the meantime, Lady Helen journeys to New York, spends most of her money at the expensive Carlton Hotel, and comes to the end of a rope whose final knot holds the prospect of a marriage with Rudolph Solomon, a Hebraic gentleman who has bought back all her pawned jewels and prepares to install her in luxury. In the nick of time, the young lover returns to New York and the pair are reunited, with the rich Mr. Solomon departing from the scene with a sportsmanlike shrug of the shoulder.

It is an attractive picture, not, perhaps, the sort of thing that could be particularly recommended as having a highly beneficial effect on the "jeune fille," but still, entertaining in the extreme. The star is young and beautiful, her gowns are georgeous, even in the New York roominghouse scenes, she is willing in London, for instance, to forsake her husband and beautiful home for the sake of her love, and in New York, to throw herself under a motor car rather than marry a rich bounder, in fact, she is romance personified. The moral of her story may not be discernible at a first glance, in fact, even at a second, but one cannot expect a moving picture to be exceptionally entertaining and point a high moral lesson at the same time. To observe the romantic woes of a high-born lady and follow a career that has love as its main theme through various interesting episodes is surely entertainment enough for one movie production.—Jeannette.

SECURE RIGHTS TO SCREEN COMEDY.

"Charley's Aunt," Famous Farce, Brought to Screen With Syd Chaplin.

MOST SOUGHT AFTER FARCE.

Play Broke Money-Making Records of Stage; Is Still Going Strong.

One hundred thousand dollars is the amount paid for the screen rights of "Charley's Aunt," the famous old play by Brandon Thomas, which, as a feature-farce with Syd Chaplin in the title role will be shown here for the first time on Thursday, when it will begin a three-day run at the Capitol Theatre.

Here is a play which has earned upward of three million dollars. Playing continuously for thirty-three years and in practically every country of the world is a wonderful record indeed, and an accomplishment made possible by the fact that "Charley's Aunt" has the basic qualities of farcical humor which can be understood in any language. It is an exceptional piece of material for the universal language of the screen.

Even to-day to play it on the stage in Los Angeles for a week one would have to pay $750 royalty. As far back as 1901 Scott Sidney, who directed the motion picture of "Charley's Aunt," paid $2,000 a week royalty for four weeks to play it at the Grand Opera House in Pittsburgh. It is no wonder that the owners of "Charley's Aunt" for years hesitated to sell the motion picture rights.

When the film rights were secured by Ideal Films of London, that company immediately began negotiating with the Christies of Hollywood to make the picture, because the Christie organization with its wonderful experience in making screen comedies was considered the logical producer to film this laughing classic.

With the wonderful opportunity that the screen affords for developing the comedy situations of the play, the picture is said not only to match but to outnumber the play in point of laughs. As is done when the play is given on the stage at the present time, all customs and costuming in the screen version were brought up to date, so that the atmosphere is modern in every respect.

FLOWERS STOLEN FROM THE PARK

Mayor Appeals to Citizens to Safeguard Property of All.

To the Citizens of Peterboro:

I believe you will be shocked to know some thoughtless person, or persons, have taken flowers from Victoria Park. This occurred late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, a whole row of tulips in a corner bed being taken.

Surely whoever is guilty of this offense failed to realize the desire of the Parks Committee to make the Parks beautiful with flowers, green lawns and altogether a pleasant place to look upon to all who pass by and others who desire to rest therein.

All citizens must cooperate to help the Parks Committee and the caretaker in their efforts to keep the grounds, and flower beds, in good order, which cannot be done if we steal the bloom which comes on at different seasons of the year. Yours sincerely,

J. J. Turner,
Mayor.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Mrs. W. C. Barrie, who died May 12 1924.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.

In our heart your memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That we do not think of you.

MUST SHUT UP BARS AT ONCE

Report of 60 Days' Grace to Hotel Keepers is Denied.

4,000 APPLICATIONS.

TORONTO, May 12 (Canadian Press).—The report that hotel keepers have been granted sixty days' respite in regard to the boarding up of bars is inaccurate, W. F. Nickle, attorney-general, declared today. Between 4,000 and 5,000 applications for beer permit forms have been received by the department, it is reported.

ANOTHER LIST OF OUR MANUFACTURERS

Who Are Taking Space in the "Made in Peterborough Fair"—It's Coming Great.

There is no question but what the Made-in-Peterborough fair is shaping up toward a big success. At a meeting of the chairmen of the various committees, held last evening, most satisfactory progress was shown to have been made, and all were more than enthusiastic over the project. Some manufacurers are making application for more space, many of them want at least two booths in order to properly show their products, and it is surprising to see what a large and varied number of manufacturers there are actually doing business in Peterboro, far more than the average citizen realizes. The committees on entertainments have everything well in hand and the public can rest assured that that end of the programme will be well worth while. Something better and something different than ever before presented. In addition to the lists of manufacturers already published, the following names can now be added:
The Macdonald Lumber Co.
Stock's Bread.
The Ontario Marble Co.
The Peterboro Paper Box Co.
Wm. Hamilton Co.
A. Comstock & Sons.
G. Walter Greene Co.
and there are still others yet to come. The Made-in-Peterboro Fair is something entirely new, and the cause for which it is given is most worthy.

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM GREER.
The funeral of the late William Greer will be held on Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the late residence, 9 Hilliard street. The Rev. Mr. McConachie, Centreville, officiating. Interment in Bailieboro cemetery.

ADOLPHUS GUERIN.
The death occurred last night in Toronto of Adolphus Guerin, in his eighty-sixth year.
He leaves to mourn his loss, three daughters, Mrs. John Gibson of Peterboro, Mrs. Wm. Briou of Toronto, and Mrs. Goulet of Toronto, and one son, Mr. Aldouph Guerin of Toronto.
The funeral will take place on Thursday morning at ten o'clock, from the home of his son-in-law, Mr. John La Plante, 27 Lock Street, to Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

MRS. EMMA WAINWRIGHT
The death occurred this morning, after an illness of a few days, of Mrs. Emma Wainwright, widow of Mark Wainwright who predeceased her by two years. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. F. J. Davidson and Mrs. A. E. Jamieson of Detroit, and Mrs. Charles B. Westbrook of Peterboro; and one son, Samuel, of this city.
The funeral will take place from her late residence, 268 London street, on Thursday, at 2.00 p.m. to the Little Lake cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Rose, of the Murray street Baptist church.

CHARLES SEARIGHT.
The funeral of the late Charles Searight, who died suddenly to-day, will take place from the family residence, 292 Park street, on Thursday afternoon at 1.30. The service will be conducted by Rev. A. J. Langford, interment to take place at Norwood.

WILLIAM LEAHY.
The funeral of the late William Leahy of Douro, was held on Monday morning, May 11, from the family residence to St. Joseph's church and cemetery. The big crowd of people that came to view his body and to accompany it to the grave testify to the esteem in which he was held by the surrounding community.
There are left to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, four sons, Michatel, William and James at home and Joseph in attendance at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and three daughters, Mrs. John Casey of Otonabee and Hanna and Kathleen at home.
Besides the members of his own family he is survived by two brothers, John M. and Michael, of Douro; Mrs. Michael Ryan of Douro, and Mrs. Bernard Harrington, of Ennismore.

New vessels launched last year number 924 with a total tonnage of 2,247,751. Of the latter amount the share of Great Britain amounted to 1,439,885 tons.

VOL. LVI., No. 112 PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 13, 1925 PRICE THREE CENTS

W. T. R. PRESTON REFUSED TO TELL COMMITTEE THE SOURCES OF HIS REPORT ON STEAMSHIP COMBINE

Sharp Exchanges in His Cross-Examination by Counsel For Companies.

ASSERT HONESTY.

Did Not Interview the C.P.R. and Other Companies —Information Indirect.

OTTAWA, May 13.—(Canadian Press).—W. T. R. Preston, who reported to the Government the existence of a great steamship combine on the North Atlantic which was exercising unfair discrimination against Canadian ports, made his first appearance as a witness before the Parliamentary committee on ocean rates yesterday afternoon. His examination by Government counsel, H. J. Symington, K.C., was brief, but cross-examination by G. H. Montgomery, K.C., counsel for the steamship companies, resulted in many sharp exchanges and one or two heated passages which necessitated the intervention of Chairman McMaster.

Mr. Preston's evidence was prefaced by a brief statement which he made to the committee in view of the adverse criticism which he said had been directed against himself. "In forty-seven years, I have not been guilty of a single act inconsistent with the highest principles of honesty and integrity," he asserted. He welcomed the fullest investigation into all matters which had been brought up against him, should the committee desire it.

"I hope this is not an invitation to a political cross-examination," Sir Henry Drayton remarked. "There is no use turning the place into a bear garden."

In answer to Mr. Symington, Mr. Preston stated that the facts set out in his report were correct to the best of his knowledge and belief. He considered that the opinions expressed and the conclusions reached were justified.

Source of Information.

Almost at the outset of cross-examination by Mr. Montgomery, witness and counsel clashed. Mr. Montgomery asked Mr. Preston how he had obtained the list of steamship companies given in the report as being members of the North Atlantic Conference, but Mr. Preston declined the information. Counsel pressed to know whether or not the information was obtained from official reports and documents, or otherwise.

"There are ways of getting information without going round with a brass band looking for it," Mr. Preston remarked. He asserted that he was quite unwilling to give the source of his information. "I think I got it right, however," he told counsel.

Further questions on the report resulted in a heated passage between counsel and witness. Mr. Montgomery asked whether Mr. Preston had not created a false im-

Tax On New 4.4 Beer In Effect Immediately

TORONTO, May 13.—(Canadian Press).—Hon. Col. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, stated at noon to-day that his luxury tax regulations, which will impose the 10 cents per gallon on 4.4 beer, 50 cents per gallon on native wines and a smaller impost on soft drinks of the carbonated variety, were practically completed and would be presented to the Cabinet for approval within the course of a day or so.

"The Luxury Tax Act comes into effect on May 15, and will be applied to all wine sold on or after that date.

"The tax on the new 4.4 beer will go into effect on May 21, when the beverage is placed on sale."

No decision has been reached as to when the tax on soft drinks will become effective.

MME. CAILLAUX IS BACK AGAIN

Shared Husband's Exile and Now Makes Most of Society.

SHOT EDITOR.

By Minott P. Saunders
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, May 13.—Madame Joseph Caillaux has re-entered society, a return made possible by her husband's Cabinet post as Minister of Finance.

At a reception at the British Embassy in honor of President Doumergue, attended by practically all the Ministers of the Painleve Government and their wives, Madame Caillaux, in pink georgette, with close bobbed hair, was the centre of interest. She is a brilliant conversationalist.

It is now nearly nine years since Madame Caillaux shot and killed Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, because of his attacks upon her husband, who at the time was Minister of Finance of which the present President Doumergue was Premier.

Friends of the slain editor claimed Calmette had been about to expose Caillaux dealings with Germany. Madame Caillaux said her victim had threatened to publish letters exchanged between her and her husband before either had obtained the divorce that made their marriage possible. Caillaux's private life had always been an open target for his enemies.

German Dawes Payments Increase To $10,000,000

BERLIN, May 13.—The Allies have received under the Dawes plan 640,010,066 gold marks, or more than $160,000,000 since the plan was put into operation, according to figures just issued by Reparations Agent General Gilbert.

Germany's contribution under the Dawes plan last month was 59,929,019 gold marks. Of the total amount Germany has contributed so far 100,000,000 gold marks through the railroads for interest on reparation bonds. Most of the rest came from the Dawes loan, raised principally in the United States.

HOTELS MAKING READY FOR 4.4— STOCK ORDERED

J. M. Brooks Has Carload of New Beverage on the Way Here.

RESTAURANTS, TOO.

Home Cafe Proprietors Apply For Permit—Others Still Doubtful.

The painter swings a merry brush and the wielder of the mop works with a will in a number of Peterborough hotels, as they aid in preparing for the impending flood of 4.4.

In eager anticipation of irrigating throats parched by tht long drought, hotel keepers filed orders for permits and beer and are engaged in a crusade of preparation for the eventful 21st, on which day the reek of beer will reign in every roost, they believe.

Brooks', on Charlotte Street, has sent an order for a carload of the vintage, and states that it will be in on Monday, and ready for distribution on Wednesday, so it is apparent that the 4.4 which has long been a chimera now approaches reality and will soon be seen "in the flesh."

Mr. Brooks says he has already received a number of orders from local dispensers, and believes that the demand will be amply satisfied. Mr. Brooks is in the business in a wholesale capacity and accordingly will keep sufficient stock to supply the need.

Restauranteurs find themselves in a quandary, the problem being to scrap or not to scrap expensive fittings.

Hum W. Hoy of the Paris has not definitely decided on the course to pursue, but does not believe that it would be advisable for him to keep the goods on sale, as it might interfere with other business.

Home Cafe Tries.

The Hum Brothers of the Home Cafe intend applying for a permit and believe that their cafe is very well adapted to fulfil the requirements imposed by the officials. It

BOOTLEGGER OF VICTORIA ROAD PAID BIG FINE

Signed Cheque For $670 After Lawyer Had Pleaded His Client's Poverty.

OTHERS GO TO JAIL.

Two Haliburton Bootleggers Facing Aggregate Fine of $2,000, Take Terms.

LINDSAY, May 13.—(Special).—Uncle Sam's dry fleet may be making it warm for the rum-runners who are attempting to satisfy his thirst of our American cousins, but they have nothing on the minions of the law in this county when it comes to aggressiveness. They claim that they have the bootleggers on the run, and if developments on Tuesday count for anything, they have strong arguments to justify their claims.

Robt. McCormack, of Victoria Road, has been under suspicion for some time as one who dispensed liquor of doubtful quality to the natives in the district in which he resides. He was caught with the goods by License Inspector Thornbury and Provincial Officer Storey, and at a session of the court which lasted until on in the night, the final curtain showed Robert handing over to the court a signed cheque for $670. His lawyer, who had battled bravely in his behalf, spoke of his client's poverty, and his surprise can be better imagined than described when McCormack convinced the court that he was a man of means.

Preferred Jail.

Yesterday two Italians from the northland (Haliburton), Ned Biebie and Secundus Biebie by name, faced Magistrate Bradford. These men were charged by Provincial Officer Crough, a native of Ennismore, with keeping liquor for sale and for having liquor in a place other than a private dwelling. According to the authorities the pair are the Mussolinis of the north so far as the illicit sale of liquor is concerned. They were caught red-handed, and considering discretion the better part of valor, pleaded guilty. Ned Beibie was fined $1,500 and costs and ten days, or an additional six months if the fine is not paid. Secundus was fined $500 and costs or five months. Realizing that time was money, they took the time.

Sentence Reduced.

Last month "Sliver" Griffis, a local dispenser of home-brew, was fined $650 and one month, or four months additional if the fine was not paid. An appeal was entered against the judgment of Police Magistrate Bradford, and Tuesday His Honor Judge Swayze announced that he had lopped off the month's imprisonment, allowing the fine to stand.

DECIMATION BY HEART TROUBLE

One Person in Every Ten Cases in United States Dies Annually.

DENTISTS CONVENE.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, May 13.—"There is one death in every ten cases of heart trouble in the United States among its 1,700,000 sufferers from this dread complaint," Weston A. Price, of Cleveland, Ohio, chairman of the research division of the National Dental Association, told the delegates attending the annual convention of the Western Canada Dental Association, at the opening session of their four-day meeting here on Tuesday.

More than 150 delegates are registered and another hundred were expected to-day.

Col. Ralph R. Webb, mayor of Winnipeg, extended the city's welcome to the visitors and literally gave them the freedom of the city, after which the chairman introduced Mr. Price, who gave an address on the latest knowledge acquired by science in combatting disease, much of which he attributed to carelessness in the treatment of teeth and their neglect.

DIVORCE MILL'S GRIST

Senate Handled 31 Bills in 20 Minutes.

OTTAWA, May 13. — Thirty one divorce bills were handled in their various stages within twenty minutes in the House of Commons last night. A score passed committee stage and were given final reading in the first fifteen minutes. The rest were given second reading and went to the Private Bills Committee.

CHILD THROWN AGAINST WALL AT "BABY FARM"

Mother's Allegation Against Woman Who Conducted New York Infantarium.

SHE HAD TO WORK.

Side of Little Girl's Head Crushed—Had Been in Good Health.

NEW YORK, May 13.—"The baby was picked up by the heels and smashed against the side of the wall. It died."

That was the end of little Agnes Toohey, child of Mr. James Toohey, No. 2002 Webster Avenue, The Bronx. This is according to stories told to Assistant District Attorney Ryan yesterday by two nurses.

Mr. Ryan is investigating the deaths of twenty-three innocents who have died in a few months at the "baby farm" of Mrs. Helen Giesen-Volk.

Agnes Toohey was one of them.

Mother Tells Story.

Agnes was nineteen months, and when her mother, Mrs. Mary Blauvelt Toohey, last saw her, happy, healthy and fat.

This is what Mrs. Toohey said in an interview yesterday, after the witnesses had told Ryan of the child's death:

"Swung by the heels and smashed against the wall."

"We are poor people. We have another baby, Margery. Things got so bad I had to go to work to help my husband. It was necessary to have someone care for the baby. We had heard of Mrs. Giesen-Volk. We went there.

"We made what bargain we could. Agnes was such a pretty baby, so healthy. We didn't think anything would happen. But—

"That was in October. A few days after this, Mrs. Giesen-Volk called up to say the doctor had been there and had found something wrong with Agnes, a running from the ear.

Ears Were Perfect.

"We would have to pay extra for that. I thought it strange, because Agnes's ears had been perfect.

"Well, we paid as much as we could, from time to time. You know how poor folks are. And I didn't have time to see my baby girl often.

"But I saw her in November, and I was so glad to see her. She was lovely. Just beautiful. She had gained twenty-five pounds. She knew her mother. Yes, she did. And we had a wonderful time together. It was the last time I saw her.

"I wanted to bring her home to show her to Jim. But Mrs. Giesen-Volk wouldn't permit it. We still

BUDGET CHANGES PASS THE HOUSE

Lien on Assets of Taxpayer For Unpaid Excise Taxes is Repealed.

OTTAWA, May 13 (Canadian Press)—Budget resolutions passed the house yesterday after discussion covering the greater part of the afternoon and evening. Following the adoption of the resolutions, bills based on their provisions were introduced and given first reading.

The principal changes made during the day were:

1st—All cheques, money orders, postal notes, etc., under five dollars to be exempt from stamp tax.

2nd—Ninety-nine per cent draw back on coal for coking to be confined to plants exclusively making coke as a product.

3rd—Legislation of the last session creating a lien on the assets of the tax payer for unpaid taxes to be repealed.

A further new provision was adopted that any advance made on security of bonds, debentures, stocks or other securities will be taxable quarterly at the rate of two cents for very fifty dollars.

A YARD OF ALE.

LONDON, May 13.—The British museum has acquired a new treasure—a yard of ale. It is an ale glass a yard high, narrow at the base, but larger at the top. Fifty years ago it belonged to a young man who put on exhibitions showing how to drink all the ale in the glass without stopping.

GRADUATES ARE URGED BY CODY TO REMAIN HERE

"Stand By Canada" the Plea of Toronto Divine at Halifax Convocation.

137 GET DEGREES.

Greetings From Toronto University to Dalhousie by Rev. Canon Cody.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 13.—(Canadian Press).—"If you possibly can do it, remain in Canada, stand by Canada and believe in Canada," was the plea of Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, St. Paul's, Toronto, who conveyed the official greetings of the University of Toronto to the graduating class at Dalhousie University's sixty-second convocation exercises here Tuesday afternoon. This year's graduation class was the second largest in the history of the institution, 137 students receiving degrees, and was more largely attended than any previous convocation. Among the most distinguished visitors were Lieutenant - Governor Cockshutt of the Province of Ontario, Lieutenant-Governor J. Robson Douglas of Nova Scotia, and Canon Cody, who gave the convocation address. President A. H. Moore of King's College pronounced the invocation, and Archbishop Worrell the benediction, and President A. Stanley Mackenzie of Dalhousie University reviewed the progress of the College for the year.

Exchange of Intellect.

Canon Cody said there had been a notable interchange of brilliant men between the universities. "Whenever a university in any other part of Canada needs a president," he said, "they look to the Maritime Provinces." He mentioned several instances in which Nova Scotians had gone to other universities, and while Nova Scotia lost these men he reminded his audience that the Province could not keep them, and at the same time have the honor of contributing them to the nation at large.

Memorial Gymnasium.

Referring to the announced intention of Dalhousie to erect a gymnasium as a war memorial to Dalhousians who died in the late war, Mr. Cody said: "That is right and proper and whenever you are working or playing within it you must remember that those men from the heavenly regions are issuing their challenge to you that the greatest memorial you can build is that of an industrious, contented, united, intelligent, and God - fearing Canada."

BISHOP REEVE PASSED AWAY

Missionary Pioneer in Canada Did Early Work in Northwest.

IN 81ST YEAR.

TORONTO, May 13.—(Canadian Press).—Right Rev. William Day Reeve, for many years Bishop assistant of the Anglican Diocese of Toronto, died yesterday afternoon at his home here. The late Bishop Reeve, who was in his 81st year, had been in poor health since undergoing a critical operation last year.

The late Bishop Reeve was born at Harmston, Lincolnshire, England, on January 3, 1844. He devoted himself to a missionary career in the Canadian north-west, and in 1891 became the first Bishop of Mackenzie River.

He resigned in 1907 and was appointed Bishop assistant to the late Archbishop Sweatman, Toronto.

A true missionary pioneer and hero of the Church, Bishop Reeve lived an adventurous and arduous life during his years in the far north. He visited Herschel Island with Stringer and Whittaker, ordained the first native of the Arctic Circle to the ministry, translated the Gospel into the Slavi dialect and created an episcopal endowment fund.

POSTAL SERVICES DISCUSS SALARIES

Postmaster General Asks For Representatives to Meet Committee.

TORONTO, May 13 (Canadian Press).—All branches of the postal service have been asked by the Postmaster General, Hon. Charles Murphy, to send representatives to Ottawa to meet a sub-committee of the cabinet, in order to discuss a revision of salaries.

Before the strike of last June, the postal workers were trying to obtain increased salaries to make up for the loss of the war time bonus, which was cut off in 1923.

Commons Speaker Yielded Upon Temptation To Pun

OTTAWA, May 13. — The stern dignity of the chair was relaxed for a moment in the House of Commons last night. The Senate had sent back a private bill with an amendment and the House was asked to accept the amendment. The speaker explained in answer to a question that the amendment changed the word "insurance" in the name of a company to be incorporated to "assurance"—"and with this assurance" added Mr. Speaker, "is it the pleasure of the House to adopt the amendment?"

The amendment carried amid chuckles.

LINDSAY HOTEL MEN WILL SELL STRONGER BEER

Not Enthusiastic Over Restrictions and Grocers Unanimous Against.

MAY CHANGE MINDS.

Mariposa Township Council Opposed to Beer Oases in Their Municipality.

LINDSAY, May 13.—(Special).—A canvas of the local hotels and restaurants last evening disclosed the fact that there will be nothing in the nature of a stampede for permits to sell the 4.4 beer of Ferguson vintage. The management of the Hotel Benson, the largest hostelry, will handle the beverage if they are permitted to serve it with meals to patrons in the dining-room. There is no apartment in connection with the hotel that could be fitted up as a beverage room. The management of the hotel Royal and the Central Hotel will make application for permits, but the Grand Union will not handle the brew. The proprietors of three restaurants will apply for permits.

The grocers are unanimous in their decision to leave the decoction severely alone, but if any one of them should change their mind and decide to handle it, others will follow.

The Township of Mariposa, which was one of the first in the province to abolish the bar in Local Option days, is bound to continue to remain in an arid state. At the last meeting of the Municipal Council, a resolution was unanimously adopted protesting against the introduction of 4.4 beer within its borders, and is urging upon the Provincial member, Mr. R. J. Patterson, to use all his efforts for the continuance of the prohibition enjoyed in the past.

UTILITIES PICTURE DISPLAYED TO-DAY

Shows Seventh Commission That Has Handled Utilities Since 1902.

In the window of the Roy Studio is a picture of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, as it has been constituted for the past four years, with Robert Hicks, Chairman, Ernest F. Mason and William H. Bradburn, Commissioners. This is the seventh Water Commission and Utilities Commission that has handled the City's Utilities since the election of the first in 1902, when Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. H. Hill and T. H. G. Denne were the commissioners.

Owing to a recent change the picture was out of date before it appeared in the window, as it shows Mr. Hicks as Chairman, whereas on Monday of this week his resignation was accepted and Mr. Mason is Chairman, and Messrs. Hicks and Bradburn are the Commissioners.

REPAID BENFACTOR

KINGSTON, May 13.—Mayor T. B. Angrove in this morning's mail, received a postal note for $5 from a man who was assisted financially by the city to get to Toronto whilst unemployed, and who is now evidently working on one of the boats of the Canadian Steamship Lines.

EX-OFFICERS STARVING.

VIENNA, May 13.—Several hundred officers of the Austrian army are destitute, some of them being on the verge of starvation. One officer, formerly of high rank, recently died of sheer starvation after selling his medals to buy food.

FRENCH ATTACK AGAINST RIFFS STARTING SOON

Both Sides Concentrating Forces in Moroccan War—French Use Natives.

PLANES ARE BUSY.

Drive Against Tribesmen Will Likely Be Launched Next Week.

PARIS, May 13—Operations are practically at a standstill all along the sixty-mile France-Riffian front in Morocco, with the exception of dashes made by French troops and air plane flights for the revictualling of the besieged French blockhouses and garrisons. The French colonial forces are busy grouping and concentrating reinforcements and it is expected the offensive to force the Riffs from the French zone will be started next week. Meanwhile the tribesmen are entrenching.

Premier Painleve yesterday declared that the Moroccan situation was stationary and that the arrival of reinforcements was proceeding normally. Until the concentration of the French forces was concluded, he said all that was necessary was a strict watch against surprise attacks by ahe Riffs.

Details Published

Despite the announcement of a censorship on all news regarding Morocco, the Paris papers last evening publish in greater detail the movment of forces to Morocco than since the beginning of the trouble.

The Petite Parsienne prints a dispatch from Marseilles giving the names and numbers of the units, composed mostly of Sengalese who are leaving for the front. The paper says six battalions are ready and it also gives names of three steamers which sailed Tuesday from there with artillery and aviation equipments.

The official communique issued last evening says the military situation on the Northern front in the French zone has become stabilized with the arrival of French reinforcements.

Calm Prevails

"Absolute calm prevails on the Ouergha front" the communique adds. "The French aviators have discovered several concentrations of the enemy who are trying to re-organize his forces.

The French centre column has managed to relieve from enemy pressure the position at Ain Mastisuf. Members of the Beni Ouarian tribe took part in the operation, which was under command at Captain Nejo.

"The arrival of General Billote is expected shortly He is to take command of the French forces on the Onergha front."

Punish Mutiny Leaders;

Heavy Sentences Inflicted on Eight Spanish Soldiers

MADRID, May 13—The Supreme War Council on Monday passed sentence upon the leaders of the mutiny among the Spanish troops at Malaga in 1923. The men mutinied just as they were about to depart for Morocco to fight against the Moore.

Corporal Biasco was sentenced to twenty years' solitary confinement and four soldiers to seventeen years and three other soldiers to twelve years' imprisonment.

The defendants, in addition, were ordered to pay 10,000 pesetas to the family of a non-commissioned officer killed during the mutiny and also the costs of the trial.

FRENCH TAXPAYERS MUST DIG DOWN INTO POCKETS TO MEET NEW DEMANDS FROM CAILLAUX

Tax of Fifty Per Cent. Planned on Insurance Companies' Premiums.

TOBACCO INCREASE.

Increased Inheritance Taxes Expected to Make Up Total of 3,500,000 Francs.

PARIS, May 13. — Finance Minister Joseph Caillaux yesterday told the finance commission of the Chamber of Deputies that the French taxpayers must dig down into their pockets for another 3,500,000 francs this year.

The ordinary taxation method will not produce fast enough so he proposed several immediate measures, the first of which amounts to at least a 50 per cent. tax on insurance companies' premiums. He proposed an obligatory reinsurance in a state monopolized insurance company of at least half the risks and if the companies make a profit out of the remainder premium they must also divide with the state.

Increased inheritance taxes and higher taxes on tobacco, etc., he expects will prove sufficient to make up the 3,500,000 francs. First tobacco increase begins to-morrow.

CAPTURE RADIUM RAY.

LONDON, May 13.—British scientists have succeeded in capturing and condensing the Beta ray of radium, and they predict that this development will aid in cancer cures. Previously only the Gamma ray has been used and the escaping of the Beta rays increased the value of radium in curing cures.

WEATHER

For an agreeable change, much warmer conditions prevailed last night. Forty degrees was the lowest reached at night. The trees have made a great advance during the last 48 hours in their leafing operations and the process of assuming their new summer apparel can almost be distinguished by a close observer. Soon the bare and ragged branches will be covered with the beautiful fresh green of the new leafage, and all nature will be at its loveliest. — W. P.

FRENCH TROOPS MARCH TO HELP

Outposts Surrounded By Abd-el-Krim's Riffian Tribesmen in Morocco.

NEWS CENSORED.

RABAT, Morocco, May 13.—(Canadian Press).—French troops began a movement last night for the relief of besieged outposts surrounded by Abd-el-Krim's Riffian tribesmen, says an official communique, issued to-day. The newspapers this morning contained no news of troop movements, indicating that the censorship decreed by the French Government is effective.

DIED TO-DAY.

LORD MILNER.

LONDON, May 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Lord Milner, former secretary of war, who has been ill for some time, died to-day. Lord Milner had been suffering from sleeping sickness. He was 71 years of age.

Viscount Milner is 71 years of age. He has had a distinguished career in the public service of Great Britain, dating back to 1887-89 when he was private secretary to Mr. Goschen, then chancellor of the Exchequer. He first became known as a barrister of the inner temple, 1881. He engaged in journalism from 1882 until 1885, as well as practising law, and for a time was on the staff of the Pall Mall Gazette.

Lord Milner went from the office of the Chancellor of the exchequer to the position of under-secretary for finance in Egypt, 1889-92. He was chairman of the board of inland revenue, 1893-97; governor of the Cape of Good Hope, 1897-1901; Governor of the Transvaal and Orange River Colony, 1901-05; member of the British war cabinet as minister without portfolio, 1916-18; and secretary of state for the colonies, 1918-21.
